September is gone, and we are again face to face with the fact that Guelph has not got a Grocers' Association formed. Are we going to have one or not? Who will be the first to make a move? We have all kinds of trades organized in our city, why not the grocers? We don't need to conflict with the Retail Merchants' Association, which is different. Now in the starting of the long winter nights, we could arrange meeting nights once a week, or month, and get good results. We have good grocers in this city, who could talk to us, and any number of good travelers, who would be pleased to address us on their particular lines. We could have good debates on subjects such as, "Why does the Ontario Government ask for tenders for groceries for the O.A.C., and other public institutions, if, as is supposed it is, a party favor to receive the contracts?" or "Why do the hospitals not divide their trade among the Wyndham street merchants, as they used to do, a month each in turn?" There are a good many others of more interest to grocers and their clerks, such as, "The blending of teas and coffees," but these are afterconsiderations. The question is, are we going to organize this month? There are about 150 men who could pay from $1 to $1.50 for membership tickets. Talk it up, and we will be organized by November.

Some time ago we saw a good, careful grocer holding a lighted match inside a coal oil tank to see how full it was. This week we saw another good, careful man filling a lighted lantern on top of a tank holding 45 gallons of oil alongside of another of the same capacity, and the funny part of it is, neither can see any harm in their actions. Some people seem to like living with one foot in the grave.

I had the pleasure to-day of being handed a day book of the late G. P. Latham, of Guelph, dated 1840 to 1843. I was delighted to have the chance to compare prices with 1907, but it was not just as easy as I thought, for in those days, of course, it was all £ s. d.

Mr. Latham started first in a log store where the Imperial hotel now stands, and built the stone part of that building, afterwards building the stone block opposite, and then being instrumental in building the lower part of Wyndham street, from the Kandy Kitchen to McDowell street, including Benson Bros'. and Jackson & Sons' grocery stores, two of the best in Guelph, and which remain to-day in the hands of his family. The Latham family are among the oldest in the city. The difference in prices are most noticeable in tea, $1.25 being the price for Hyson tea, while ¼ and ½-lbs. were mostly sold. Another condition that seemed to prevail then, as it does to-day, is that people seem to have been slow in meeting their debts.

It has been decided that the Merchants' Association will hold a banquet and preparations are being pushed ahead.

It is expected by the association that Guelph will have an increase of from 300 to 400 in population on this year's returns, which shows these new factories mean something for Guelph, and the grocers. The hands they employ have got to eat.

Your Kingston correspondent makes some remarks on the peddling nuisance, and Galt comes along with another, the man who forges cheques. We have met both and find it does not pay to be caught and not say a word, as is too common a practice among many merchants. I have seen brother grocers caught and put it down to profit and loss, and a week or two after, someone else is caught, and, accidentally, it comes out. Now, why can't we be honest and square with ourselves and each other in every city and town? If we have an association of grocers in each city or town, the news could be passed along and we would be ready for Mr. Hawker and the forger. And another thing, when a merchant is wilfully swindled, The Canadian Grocer is a good place for him to get satisfaction. There are hundreds of such cases we never hear about. Let us have them.

HAMILTON.

Our markets just now are grand. Any stranger seeing them would not imagine for a moment that there was any scarcity of fruit in Canada. In the last two weeks the record of the market has been broken, both for size and display. Peaches, large and luscious; pears, plums grapes and apples, all of the finest, a better display than you would see at any of the fall fairs, and selling at fairly reasonable prices. Finest peaches at $1 to $1.25 a basket; pears, 50c; plums 40c; grapes, 20c for six-quart basket; apples 20c to 35c. While vegetables are very choice, the prices keeps high. Potatoes are 75c a bushel; tomatoes 60c; onions $1; celery 60c per dozen. Verily the people of this good city have a choice of quality, even if prices are firm. The market this year has been a great money-maker for the growers. The beautiful weather of the last month has been a great help to tomatoes and corn, as late tomatoes are still ripening nicely, and the factories are running at full capacity. One of the factories reported yesterday a run of four thousand bushels, a quantity which kept them busy to put up.

The races are on at the Jockey Club this week, and the bookies are doing a land-office business. It is astonishing how easy it is to separate the average young man from his money when he gets the race track fever.

LONDON.

Business, wholesale and retail, is very good. There is little change in prices. Teas continue firm, with an upward tendency. Sugars unchanged, but very firm. Much inconvenience is felt by the trade generally owing to the non-arrival of new crop Valencia raisins, which have been lying at Montreal for over a week awaiting the convenience of the railways to forward London's share of these goods. Haddies are beginning to come in freely.

President Harry Ranahan of the Retail Grocers' Association, having recovered from his recent illness, a meeting of the association will probably be called for this week to again consider the huckster question.

Bananas, which of late years, have become a popular article of diet, are a scarce commodity in the fruit market just now, and are likely to be still more so during the coming winter months, according to local wholesale dealers, one of whom, J. J. Steel, says he has seldom seen conditions worse than they are at present. The continued drought in the tropics has resulted in the growers cutting too closely in order to meet the demand, and now we are finding that the bunches coming in are from forty to fifty per cent. lighter than usual. This condition, Mr. Steele states, will continue for some time or until the decreasing demand in the winter months gives the fruit a chance to ripen up. Mr. Steele received this week a consignment of Cuban navel oranges, the first to ever arrive in Canada. Heretofore, the navel oranges have been almost all brought from California, and do not ripen for some months yet. The Cuban navel possesses much of the finer quality of the California species, and doubtless with continued cultivation will come to be a rival for the latter. At any rate, it will mean a navel orange on the market months earlier than has been the case in the past.

A GENTLE REMINDER.

What is probably the most interesting circular ever issued from a government department has recently been distributed from the department at Washington of the Internal Revenue Commissioner. It deals in the most emphatic way with the stupidity, misguided zeal and misdirected ambition frequently displayed by revenue agents and other internal revenue employes under the apparently genuine impression that these are the means by which they will soonest attract the notice of their superiors and gain a promotion more nearly according with the self-estimated worth of their services.

The circular is in the form of a personal letter, addressed to an individual agent, and is so phrased as in the most forcible manner to bring before the person to whom it is addressed sundry matters of which he was previously in ignorance.

Here is the gist of its contents :

"A recent case which has been called to my special attention enables me to make my position clear in the matter of what I might term the misguided activity of revenue agents and special employes of this bureau who are operating under collectors or under revenue agents in the field. I fully realize that the arm of the law will be paralyzed in the matter of the enforcement of internal revenue taxes due the government if the officers of this bureau are incapable or corrupt ; at the same time [illegible] realize that the laws of this government are passed as much for the purpose of enabling honest men to do business under them as for the purpose of detecting and punishing those who violate them.

"There is a disposition, utterly at variance with good service, on the part of many of the internal revenue employes in the field to make what they call 'a record,' and in order to do so subject this bureau to endless annoyance and expense, and to make a perfect fiasco in the courts of their undue and hasty action in seizing distilleries, making unfounded assessments, and practically confiscating property of law-abiding citizens who are endeavoring to live under the law in a business—the whisky business in any of its forms—always open to suspicion.

"I have on my desk a record of a case where three revenue agents or their employes hung around a registered distillery, hoping to find some sin of omission on the part of a bookkeeper for three weeks, while during that time there were five blockade (or unlawful) distilleries in full operation within seven miles of the registered distillery. By the operation of these unlawful distilleries the government was losing probably $300 a day as tax on the whisky they were producing while these revenue agents were sitting about for 'big game'—the registered distillery.

"The men in the field should understand more fully than they seem to that there are two distinct classes of offences—that is, sins of commission and sins of omission. Nine times out of ten when a man in the whisky business is guilty of a sin of commission it is done designedly and for the purpose of defrauding the government ; as a usual thing the sins of omission are due to ignorance or negligence.

"In this connection I am astounded to find recommendations for the seizing of distilleries, the upsetting of business enterprises involving investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars, because some clerk has failed to properly keep some blank 'form' prescribed by the regulations. Revenue agents and collectors should proceed upon the proposition guaranteed us by the constitution, that all men are innocent until proven guilty, and when they find minor irregularities they should assume the attitude of advisers and counsellors, and by virtue of their experience in the service, tell the people who know less about it what is expected of them. On the contrary, in too many instances they hastily use these sins of omission as a basis for their own self-glorification, and embarrass this bureau and the entire service by stupid seizures and assessments.

"Recently a revenue agent in the west held up the distillation and manufacture of vinegar for four states because the apparatus they were using could be so misused as to defraud the government. I found upon investigation that the apparatus was identical with that which has been used by vinegar manufacturers for ten years, and that during the entire time but one vinegar manufacturer had been prosecuted for intentional violation of the law. I use these two instances, but there are many others on my desk. I want no let-up whatever in a vigorous search for violations of the law, but I want wisdom on the part of the officers of this bureau to take the place of an activity to make 'a record,' finally at the expense of the government, which is entirely at variance with the letter and spirit of the law."

If this circular does not cause a heart-searching in many departments of our own government, it will have fulfilled only a bare fifty per cent. of its possible value. Its widespread publication throughout Canada might be the means of rewinding many miles of red tape, whose immediate usefulness consists mainly in attracting the nimble wit of neighboring powers to deprecate such a vast expenditure on national bunting by a country that is old enough to know better.

THE BAIT ISSUE.

Judge Emmerson, of the Supreme Court, Newfoundland, was in Montreal the other day, and seen by a local newspaperman, gave it as his opinion that the bait question, which was bothering fisher folk in the colony, had been practically settled. He was in receipt of news from Newfoundland to the effect that Premier Bond had consented to withdraw the embargo which prevented fishermen from selling to the Americans, herrings, which they use for bait. According to what he said, it was quite likely that the modus vivendi would be renewed for another year and that in all probability the question of the fisheries would be settled permanently in the near future.

If such is the case the news will be welcome to those interested in Newfoundland trade, as what affects the fishermen has some effect upon all branches of trade in the colony. The matter of selling bait to the Americans does not amount to a great deal, as Judge Emmerson stated, in his idea about 150,000 barrels of herrings a year, which at $1.25 a barrel, would mean $187,500. But the bait issue, while small in itself, is a live question with the men who are practically the backbone of Newfoundland, and its importance should not be underestimated, and cannot be glossed over.

Central Canada Exhibition

Attractive Grocery Exhibits Well to the Fore—Great Ottawa Fair Arouses More Than Usual Interest—Grounds Are Being Enlarged and Beautified, But in Some Other Directions There is Still Room for Improvement—Some of the More Attractive Exhibits.

Once again the Central Canada Exhibition has come and gone. The fair opened September 16, to the public, and continued until the end of the week.

In many ways it was a great success, while in other respects some have found fault with it. The chief trouble seems to be the lack of up-to-date accommodation. People are crying out for a first-class grand stand; for the abolition of the shacks which spoil the appearance of the grounds; for well laid out walks and driveways, and the exhibitors want greater crowds.

The directors of the fair are gradually improving the grounds, and it is hoped that in a few years the exhibition grounds at Lansdowne Park will be as good as the best in Canada.

Another matter which is causing the directors some uneasiness is how to get and hold the crowds. Something is needed to bring the people to the fair. In many instances they appear to be losing interest in the fair, for some reason. Some of the speakers at the directors' luncheon, where business of the exhibition was discussed, suggested better amusement features at popular prices. Something like this is needed, for no matter how excellent the exhibits of the various manufacturers, the people will not come to see them alone.

The new Dairy Building was a centre of interest during the fair, and the daily demonstrations of butter making were watched with interest.

The Aberdeen Building was crowded with exhibits of manufacturers and a trip through it, day or evening, was certainly worth the price of admission in itself. Seldom does one find in one building such a variety of manufactured articles arranged so tastefully for display purposes.

Two very busy men during the exhibition were T. Cameron Bate, the treasurer, and E. McMahon, the secretary of the exhibition. Both these gentlemen during the annual exhibition devote practically the whole of their time to the interests of the fair, and its success is made possible by their efforts, backed up by a board of directors comprised of Ottawa's leading business men.

S. Vessot's Grinders.

Over in the machinery building there was a line which interested many grocers, that of S. Vessot & Co., who manufacture "Champion" grinders, for use in grinding grain, spices and coffees. They also manufacture "Joliette" grinders, which are of a more convenient size for the grocer. The latter is an eight-inch grinder, while the former range includes the eleven, thirteen and fifteen inch sizes. They can be run by any power. In connection with the grinders there was shown a 3-horse power gasoline engine, also known as the "Champion." This is manufactured by the Alamo Manufacturing Co., Hillsdale, Mich., for Wm. Gillespie, Toronto manager for S. Vessot & Co., and Canadian agent for the Alamo people. The engine mentioned in the foregoing is capable of grinding eight to ten bushels of mixed grain with the eight-inch "Joliette" grinder.

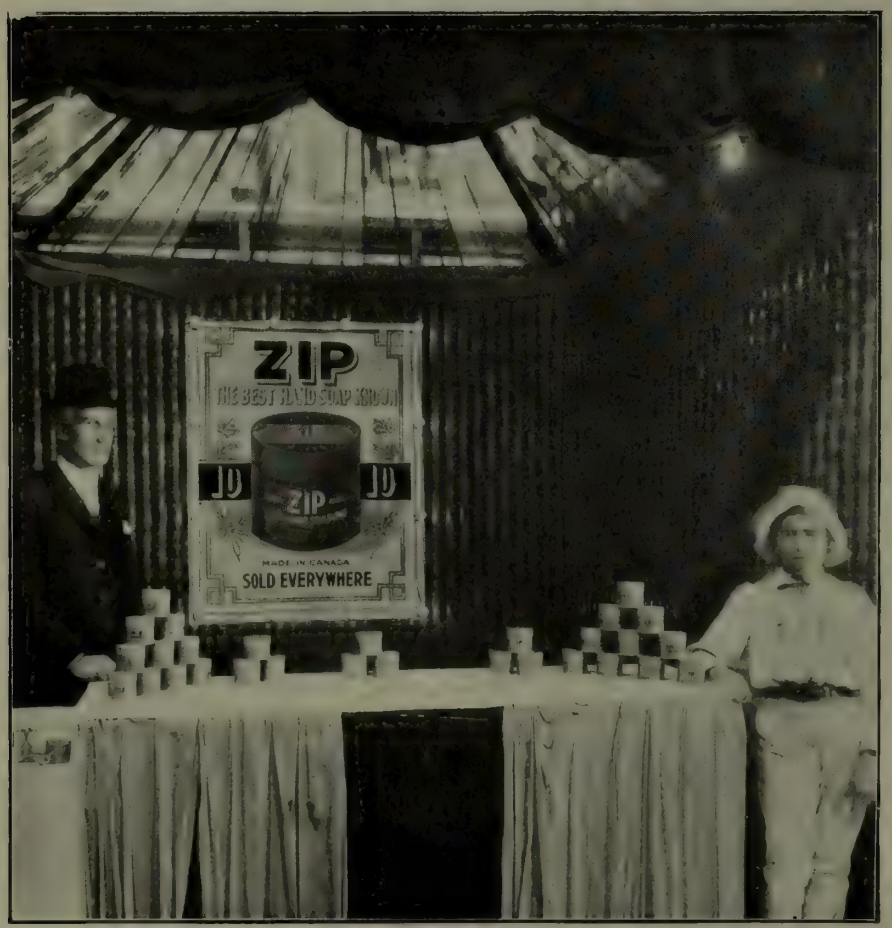
Central Canada Exhibition—Matthews Packing Co., Ltd.

Thomas J. Lipton.

In the cntre of the Aberdeen Pavilion there was one exhibit which visitors rarely passed without stopping, that of Thomas J. Lipton, whose food products possess a world wide fame. They include Lipton's Teas, Lipton's Coffees, Lipton's jams, jellies, marmalades, pickles and sauces. All these high class grocery specialties were neatly arranged. It was Lipton's Teas, however, that attracted one's attention most. Three Cingalee tea experts, who come direct from Lipton's tea plantations in Ceylon, as well as three lady demonstrators, were constantly serving visitors with dainty cups of Lipton's, the tea that pleases all who use it. As might be expected, sales of Lipton's teas, coffees and other lines were numerous every day. The entire exhibit was purchased by R. W. Forde, one of Ottawa's progressive grocers, who recognizes a good line when he sees it. A. E. Carson, Canadian manager for Thomas J. Lipton, with offices at 75 Front Street East, Toronto, was on hand during part of the week and his presence helped materially in maving Lipton's exhibit so successful.

Considerable interest is being aroused just now by the system of advertising which this company is using in the Canadian newspapers. Their "limerick" competitions are spreading the fame of Lipton's teas even wider than their former extensive campaigns have done. The firm certainly believe in the efficacy of good advertising, and to their extensive use of this in many ways is due, to a great extent, the largely increasing sales of goods. Many grocers in all parts of Canada, who a few years ago had never heard of Lipton or his goods, now carry extensive stocks of these and report that the business done with the goods is exceedingly satisfactory.

Central Canada Exhibition—Lipton's Teas.



Central Canada Exhibition—Zip, the Hand Soap.

Zip Hand Soap.

A new hand soap that interested visitors in the Main Building was Zip. The exhibit occupied a very attractive booth, arranged in such a manner that there certainly could be no doubt as to what the purpose of the display was—to let people know that there was a first-class, non-injurious hand soap, being made in Canada, by Canadians, for Canadians. Zip is an excellent preparation, put up in lithographed tins, which may be used without harming the most delicate skin. It removes grease, tar, ink stains, paint, oil, fruit stains, glue and other dirts, with a wonderful ease. Actual demonstrations of its good points were given daily, so that people could see for themselves that it was the real article for all cleansing purposes. For the short time it has been on the market, Zip has taken wonderfully well. Grocers find it a very satisfactory and profitable line to push, as the price—ten cents a large tin—is reasonable and popular. Hardware merchants and druggists are also pushing Zip. Mr. Boright was on hand during the entire week, explaining the composition of Zip and its various good points. He certainly let visitors know that his hand cleaner was: "Zip, the short name, at the short price."

The Dominion Government has placed a large order for Zip for use in the Public Works Department, Printing Bureau, Geological Survey, and other departments.

This, in itself, is particularly good evidence of the worthiness of this new product. "Zip" is bound to have a large market in Canada for it fills a want which has never before been satisfied.

Clean hands are desirable, no matter what position or occupation their possessor is engaged in. Heretofore there has not been a satisfactory solution to the dirty hand problem, but with "Zip" on the market there need be no further difficulty in this matter.

Ogilvie Flour Mills Company.

Nobody could fail to observe the beautiful exhibit made by the makers of Royal Household Flour, the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Montreal. Their booth was located in the centre of the Aberdeen Pavilion and had two sides facing the aisles. It was arranged on a greater and more magnificent scale than any other booth at the exhibition and there cannot be the slightest doubt but that it was a triumph in artistic arrangement; one can see that by a glance at the reproduction of the photograph. There were three arches on each side and two on each end, formed of barrels of Royal Household Flour. The space on the floor between the arches was used to display Royal Household in the various sized bags, while inside the booth tables were neatly arranged where patrons of the fair were served with dainty little luncheons consisting of bread and pastry made on the spot from Royal Household. A competent staff of lady demonstrators, in charge of H. Merrill, of the company's Montreal office, demonstrated throughout the fair the merits of Royal Household as a flour, which is the most satisfactory for either bread or pastry. The large sign in the middle of the booth told the tale very well: "Ogilvie's Royal Household is Equally Good for Bread and Pastry, and Best for Both." Considerable comment was caused by the nice arrangement of finest Manitoba hard wheat in sheaves around the booth. It is of this wheat, with a world wide fame for quality, that Royal Household is made. Some 30,000 cook books were given away during the exhibition. A. H. Mattice, whose offices are on Sussex St., is local agent for the company, and was on hand frequently. Demand for Royal Household has increased so much of late that the makers are at their wits' end to supply their customers from even their present large output of 15,000 barrels a day.

Central Canada Exhibition—Ogilvie Flour Mills.

Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate.

An interesting incident occurred during one day of the fair, which brought again into prominence Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate, for which Maclure & Langley, Toronto, are agents. Wriggling his way through the crowd before Tobler's one apiece, which they took off in delight. The manager, speaking of the incident, said: "We have fairly exploded the 'prophet has no honor in his own country' idea, in the last few minutes. The pretty compliments those two paid Tobler's chocolate made our advertise-to give free samples, and to explain the process of manufacture. But that is no longer required. The merits of Tobler's Swiss milk chocolate are universally known and it is an established success in every town in Canada."

The eastern manager, J. G. Gordon, beautiful display was seen a man bearing in his hands one of the firm's large show cards. He was followed by a woman, who proved to be his wife, and she also bore a large advertising placard. It developed upon inquiry that ment writer look like the end boy of his class."

There was no need to inquire if this booth was having its share of attention. A steady business was being done which kept the several smart assistants

Montreal, was in attendance, and in reply to an inquiry stated that they were booked fully to the capacity of the Tobler Company. W. C. Scott is Ottawa agent, and was in charge. He reported bumper business in Ottawa.

the couple had but recently arrived from Berne, Switzerland, where Tobler's chocolate is made, and, seeing the show cards with the picture of their native city, they had each pleaded so hard for a copy that the manager had given them fully engaged. As for the popularity of Tobler's milk chocolate there was striking expression in the very little demonstration that was necessary. "A few years ago," said one of the firm's representatives, "it was necessary for us

Maple Tree Producers' Association.

One could not get past the booth of the Maple Tree Producers' Association, of Waterloo, Quebec, without stopping. Having heard so much about their lines of maple syrups and maple sugars, a person could not help but stop and examine, and see if they were really as pure as the management claims them to be. It was not necessary to do very much examining, however, to find that the maple sugar and maple syrups bearing the "Pride of Canada" and other labels of this company, were absolutely pure. Under the circumstances it would be difficult for the manufacturers to turn out an adulterated article. They are paying farmers a high price for their syrup, and with each delivery every farmer must hand over a signed certificate, showing that his syrup is absolutely pure. Considering the short time the products of the Maple Tree Producers' Association have been on the market, it is surprising to find them so popular. The cause must lie in the reliable purity and merit of the goods. M. F. Goddard, who is an expert in maple sugar and maple syrups, was there demonstrating their excellent quality.

Sherbrooke's Annual Fair

Dominion and Provincial Exhibition at Sherbrooke, Que., Held Under the Auspices of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association, Scored a Great Success in Defiance of the Elements—New Buildings, Scenic Improvements and Enlarged Accommodation Attracted a Record Attendance—Some of the Displays.

In spite of bad weather, the Dominion and Provincial Exhibition, held at Sherbrooke, Que., September 2nd to 14th, by the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association, was a distinct success in every way. In keeping with the added importance this year of the exhibition, the directors made many improvements which were appreciated by the vast throngs. A new Arts Building, a new Dairy Building, and an enlarged and renovated grand stand greeted visitors. the history of the association, over 30,000 passing the turnstiles.

The Governor-General and suite, the Lieutenant-Governor, and many of the Dominion and provincial ministers visited the exhibition.

As usual, the Main Building, containing the various industrial displays, was the centre of attraction, and it was here that the displays were installed. Grocers and merchants undoubtedly profited from their visit to the exhibition.

The chief object of the show was the actual demonstration that Royal Household Flour (from Manitoba wheat) is the best flour for pastry and at the top of its class for bread—in fact, that only one flour is needed in the household.

Three ladies in the demonstration booth not only mixed Royal Household Flour, but on three ordinary gas stoves baked dainty and tasty cakes and pastry, which were served along with Suchard's Cocoa.

Dominion Exhibition, Sherbrooke, Que.—Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.'s Demonstra tion Booth.

In point of exhibits and general importance the exhibition ranks very high among the fairs on the continent.

Vaudeville attractions provided were of a high order, and each week saw a complete change of bill. The trotting and running races attracted a high class field and good contests resulted. The "Midway" concessions were all occupied by a clever bunch of fakirs.

The first week was interfered with by steady downpours of rain, but the attendance was good. The opening of the second week was attended with good weather and the Governor-General's Day witnesses the largest paid attendance in Royal Household Flour.

As will be noted by the accompanying illustrations, the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Montreal, had easily the largest and most attractive exhibit in the Main Building. The large display was practically in two sections, a large reception room and an immense demonstration booth. The policy of this concern is essentially one of co-operation with retailers, and during the exhibition weeks nothing was left undone. Their large electric sign on the grand stand, with 40 changes, was an outstanding feature of their general exhibit.

Their literature was of a high order and their cook books (of which 30,000 were distributed) were of great practical value. The cook book contains some 125 pages full of useful recipes.

Royal Household Flour is used on the table of the Prince of Wales. Each day's mill is subjected to a practical baking test. Their five mills have a total capacity for 15,000 barrels daily.

Royal Household Flour is known all over Canada, and not only over Canada, but widely in England and Europe, as the above-mentioned fact proves. This favored publicity has arisen from the sterling quality of the product. Indeed, this flour has proved itself a remarkably good advertisement for Canada and her general resources.

H. Merrill, of the Montreal sales department, and D. O. Pease, the district agent, were in charge. Col. Labelle, the manager of the firm, spent one day at the exhibition.

The silver medal, given by Henry Birks & Sons, Montreal, for the best exhibit in the Main Building, was awarded the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.

Maple Tree Producers' Association.

In keeping with their progressive policy of advertising, for the direct benefit of their customers, the Maple Tree Producers' Association Co., Ltd., of Waterloo, Quebec, made a good display of their pure maple sugar, maple syrup and confections. They had a spacious booth in the Main Building, at one of the entrances, and also had special prize exhibits in the new Arts Building. M. F. Goddard, the manager, had also a private exhibit from his own farm in the Arts Building. The general exhibit of sugar products, turned out by his own household, was awarded first prize, and the silver medal, while the Maple Tree Producers' Display was given second prize.

Dominion Exhibition, Sherbrooke, Que. —Maple Tree Producers' Assn. Booth.

This firm, perhaps the largest of its kind in Canada, aims at purity, and no adulterated or compound goods are turned out. This policy is appreciated by discriminating retailers and the public generally. Their trade mark, "Pride of Canada," is the synonym of purity and the standard of excellence in maple products. Their lines are especially popular in Ontario and the west, and will shortly be marketed in the Maritime Provinces. Quebec Province is rapidly recognizing the merit of pure goods. Everything in connertion with their manufacture is first-class, and all lines are attractively put up.

Maple products, sugar and syrup, are goods for which Canada has been noted for years. Latterly, however, adulteration and substitution have been resorted to to such an extent that the public has become tired, and it has been almost impossible to procure maple products which were satisfactory in flavor. To obviate this condition, the Maple Tree Producers' Association have control of their own sugar bush, and by this and other methods are able to guarantee the absolute purity and satisfaction of their goods. The flavor of their syrup and sugar is exactly that which our grandfathers used to enjoy in the old days of early Canada, and the quality is even better than it was then, for cleaner and improved methods are used.

Packard's Dressings.

L. H. Packard & Co., Ltd., Montreal, made an attractive showing of their various polishes and shoe accessories in the Main Building. The exhibit evidently served to introduce their lines to a large number of new consumers in the Eastern Townships.

Special efforts were made in introducing Black-O, French Glycerine, and their combination shoe dressings. A sample size of Black-O was sold at five cents and with each purchase was given a fan, advertising blotters and an interesting novelty in the shape of a drummer.

J. W. Strike, advertising manager of the firm, was in charge of the booth and their hustling Eastern Townships representative, J. B. Crochier, did a thriving business.

Noxie—Kola.

The Crystal Springs Bottling Works, Waterloo, Que., of which F. B. Perkins is the proprietor, had the much coveted centre space in the Main Building, and assuredly made an attractive display of their specialty, Noxie-Kola, and many other drinks turned out by the firm. Mr. Perkins is certainly a forcible advertiser, and Noxie-Kola was largely distributed. Post cards, their advertising wagon, 5,000 free tickets redeemed by a drink of Noxie-Kola, were among the features. The eight attendants at this large booth were kept busy, and undoubtedly Noxie-Kola increased its prestige in the district.

Noxie-Kola has the taste that cries for more, and is exceedingly refreshing and invigorating. It is made from the purest of spring water and the formula contains sarsaparilla, gentian, dandelion, kola, yellow dock, wintergreen, burdock, black cherry and black birch. Noxie-Kola is patented and registered.

Dominion Exhibition, Sherbrooke, Que. —Booth of L. H. Packard & Co., Montreal.

The concern is only some two years in existence, (Mr. Perkins at that time giving up his outside interests to manufacture Noxie-Kola), but several additions have been made to the factory and the staff is now very large.

Noxie-Kola is well distributed in Quebec Province and in many sections of the Maritime Provinces. The facilities are now large enough to permit of further expansion, and the western markets will be covered shortly.

T. A. Bourque & Co., Sherbrooke, distributors in their section, are doing a thriving business. Bauld Bros., Ltd., Halifax, are the agents for Noxie-Kola in Nova Scotia, and Alex. Porter, St. John, is the representative in New Brunswick.

Rock City Tobacco Display.

One of the most interesting displays for men in the Main Building was the general exhibit of the various brands of the Rock City Tobacco Co., Ltd., Quebec. C. S. Milette, their Eastern Townships representative, who had charge of the display, made a creditable showing.

This firm, which is expanding in size very rapidly, as a result of honest goods and energetic co-operation with retailers, showed an extensive line of their smoking and chewing tobacco, cigars and cigarettes. In fact, every form of tobacco was displayed.

Among the smoking mixtures were noted the following brands: "Rose Quesnel," "Long Tom," "Master Mason," "Pipe Kennel" and "Clay Pipe."

Foremost among the chewing brands were "Can't B Beat," a 16 oz. plug; "Britannia," "Maple Sugar," and "Labor King." The popular "Sir Wilfrid Laurier," a ten cent retailer, and "Check," a five cent cigar, had plenty of space, and "Sweet Rose," "Polo" and "Mayflower" cigarettes were not neglected.

The exhibit, as may be seen from the accompanying photograph, was made up of boxes and tins of the various lines of the firm's product, and this was added to by several posters and wall hangers, lithographed in striking colors, which the firm use in their regular advertising. These covered the front of the booth and also added to the wall decorations at the rear.

THE FRUIT CROP OUTLOOK IN THE OLD COUNTRY

By P. B. Ball, Commereial Agent.

The season of the year has now come when a fair indication of the fruit crop of Great Britain can be given. From all indications the apple crop of Great Britain will be very light, one county probably excepted, Somerset, where they are looking forward to a fair crop, but for the purpose of manufacturing cider mostly.

From all I can hear, the apple crop in Canada promises to be good, and I can only still further follow out my advice to apple shippers to exercise even greater care than usual in the packing and shipping. I have followed up very closely the different shippers from Canada, and it is strange that year after year certain men always ship only first-class stuff, and very few complaints are made. On the other hand, year after year we see the same names appearing on poor quality and careless packing. I think, however, that the latter cases show the amateur shipper and speculator more than the careful professional. If our Canadian shippers would only see the foolishness of making careless shipments, it would certainly pay them much better. It costs as much to ship a barrel of poorly packed and badly assorted apples to Great Britain, as it does to ship a barrel of the best, and the average made by the poor article brings the price obtained down tremendously. Some firms have such a good name that no trouble is experienced in obtaining top prices; but the whole system of shipping to this side of the water I do not think is good.

I think that more direct shipments should be made. The filling up of Liverpool and London with no great care exercised as to quantities or regularity of shipments, allows the fruit broker to practically have command. I am glad to see that more attention is being paid to this district this year. Some large contracts have been made for direct shipments into this centre, which is one of the largest users in Great Britain: but the wholesale fruit men hitherto have been obliged to go to the larger shipping ports and buy their goods at auction.

From time to time I have received inquiries from Canada for direct shipments, and have put people into communication; but I regret to say that in several cases it has not been at all satisfactory. The sellers in Canada have their money and goods are not shipped either in quality or quantity as purchased, and in some cases lawsuits have followed, which, to say the least of it, is a very expensive and very unsatisfactory way of settling matters of the kind.

Plums will be very plentiful here this year. Still, as that does not interfere with anything in the matter of Canadian shipping, it may not interest our people. I believe a very large business could be done with plum pulp to the jam makers here even though the crop may be large in this country.

I should like to see an effort made to ship pears in larger quantities from Canada. What have been shipped are very much liked; but what really is required in this country in pears is a smaller size. All fruit is sold by the pound weight, and a pear running five or six to the pound would bring a much larger price than those usually shipped from Canada, namely, two or three to the pound.

ENLARGING PREMISES.

Purnell, Webb & Co., of Bristol, advise us that they have recently purchased the vinegar brewery and business of Panter, Woodward & Co., of the same city. The largely increasing home and export trade have made it necessary for Purnell, Webb & Co. to acquire larger premises, capable of extension. In combining the businesses of the two companies the trade name will undergo a change and the style hereafter will be: "Purnell & Panter." Many structural alterations and improvements are being carried out at both breweries, and the manufacture of pure malt vinegars, sauces and pickles goes on apace.

A model sauce and pickle factory has just been completed.

MECHANICAL TEA PLUCKER.

Consul-General W. H. Michael advises that the tea planters of India are calling attention to the need of a machine to pluck tea leaves, and he seems to think that an invention of this kind would help the planter quite as much as the mechanical cultivator, concerning which he made a recent report. He writes from Calcutta:

Such an invention, it is claimed, would not only help to solve the labor question, but would remove the serious objection of having each leaf handled by the coolie. The great objection to green tea is that while soaking wet it is handled and rehandled by the coolie, whose hands are never clean and not always free from sores. A machine for plucking would be a step toward cleanliness and hygiene, and a machine for mixing tea intended for "greening" would be another step in the right direction. Yankee inventive genius could solve all three problems within a short time if it were brought into relation with tea cultivating, plucking, and making. If the American inventor should be unable to visit India, he might visit the tea gardens at Summerville, S.C., and get an idea of tea culture. He should bear in mind, however, that the ground on which tea is grown in India is not level like that at Summerville.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Beans—Advanced.
Peas—Higher.
Raisins—Firmer.
Currants—Stronger market.
Dairy Produce—Advances.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Fall trade is opening up well, though prices on many lines are anything but attractive to the retailer. Still, there is no help for them, and as it is a case of take or leave the goods, the grocer has to buy and pay the price.

And still the canned goods prices are not out! Tomatoes and corn and the late fruits should have been quoted by this time, but so far no lists have made their appearance. That all fruits, as well as the two vegetable lines mentioned, will be high, is a certainty. Just how much of an advance there will be dealers are waiting for the new prices to see. Teas continue very strong, with advances in greens. Valencia raisins are up in the primary market, and the tone, locally, is firm. Currants are also stronger. Sugar and molasses are quiet. Beans and peas are very strong, prices having been put up considerably. Even at the new figures it is very often difficult to obtain deliveries. Evaporated apples are slow, owing to the high prices asked. Those who will have new crop goods are asking prices only ⅜c below the present quotation. At such figures business is likely to be very slight. Dairy produce continues to advance, butter, cheese and eggs all being higher this week, while in some lines there is a marked scarcity which is causing alarm in certain quarters.

Collections are average.

SUGAR—Sugar is not now selling in such large quantities as it has been for the past few weeks. Small fruits are gradually being closed out by the cold weather, and less preserving is being done as the season advances, so that the call for sugar is not so brisk. The market is featureless.

TEA—Ceylon greens have advanced a farthing since last report, and China greens, Young Hysons, have gone up 1½c. All green teas are firmly held, stocks being none too heavy and demand brisk. Japans are firmer than ever, and stocks as small as usual. The length of time which has elapsed since the taking of some orders for Japans, orders that are not yet filled, illustrates the situation as well as it is possible to do. That there will be no cheap teas later on now seems an assured fact, and grocers desirous of securing teas at a price that will permit them to go on retailing tea at their present figures, had better "get in" right away.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Since last report there has been a decidedly firmer feeling in currants. Orders are pouring into Greece from all quarters, while on this side of the water spot stocks are pretty well cleaned up. Quotations to-day are 3s. above the lowest point. Late advices quote Amalias, for shipment first half October, 21s. Valencia raisins are up 2s. Reports received tell of rains and heavy floods in Spain, particularly in the Malaga district. Then, demand for Valencias being strong, the market has been toned up very much, and to-day the feeling is anything but weak. New figs are on offer to-day at prices equal to about 10c to 10½c to the retailer. The stock is particularly fine. The high prices asked are due to the fact that the goods are the first to arrive, having reached New York by express steamer. Latest advices from California are none too encouraging. There have been rains out there, and as a result some immature fruit has found its way upon the market. The shortage of cars is affecting shipments sorely. California raisins, loose, will be shipped east considerably later than last year. Prunes held locally are all old stock and high prices are asked. There seems to be no likelihood of any new crop being received for a long time yet. California raisins, December shipment, are ½c easier. The new pure food law in the States is causing the American Packers in California some trouble. As a result of it they have had to restamp some 20,000,000 raisin cartons, at the outlay of a great amount of money. It has hurt the American trade also in making deliveries a month or six weeks later than usual. The Canadian trade is not at all affected by the restamping trouble. New prices on Tarragona almonds are from 12c to 12½c. Other nuts have not changed since last report.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—That canned fruits will be much higher than last year now seems positive. Plums and the other varieties show every probability of being quoted at figures which will make last year's prices look cheap. Some wholesalers are wondering when they are going to receive stocks of canned goods. Many of them have not yet received a case of raspberries, strawberries, pears, peaches, or any other lines—and here the first days of October are past. Tomato and corn prices have not yet been made public, though it is understood shipments are being made of both lines. Some particularly fine Fraser river sockeye salmon has made its appearance in Montreal this week and is remarked upon as being of very fine quality.

TORONTO—Toronto is awaiting with some anxiety the long-expected announcements by the canners of prices for the corn and tomato packs. In fact, the prices seem to be bothering them more than the probable percentage of deliveries, which latter, from past and present reports from all sources, seem not likely to exceed 50.

Conditions in the States do not seem to be much better. A Maryland firm, in their weekly review of the situation, say:

"Freak weather, freak conditions, freak prices and we might say, freak tomatoes! The weather has been of various variety during the past week; everybody's taste might have been suited, if a day's sample would satisfy. Saturday, the 21st, the thermometer in the nineties, oppressively hot, looked like all tomatoes would ripen at the same time and everybody would have three times as many tomatoes as they would have help and canning capacity to handle. Sunday it rained; Monday morning it rained harder, in the afternoon it deluged; everything flooded, no tomatoes packed that day, and even the next, as the fields were too soft for pickers, and teams to haul the tomatoes from the field were liable to be stuck in the mud. This was followed by cooler weather and Thursday morning, the 26th, a slight frost, with the thermometer 41. Overcoats were necessary and fires were started and everybody commenced to feel that the packing season of 1907 was near its end.

"Instead of 36 days, which is the normal packing season, the average packer has made 18 days, with a possibility of say five or six days more at the most, and while every effort has been made to accomplish as much as possible in the unusually short duration of time, there is a strong indication for a short pack; otherwise, offerings would be more numerous; some packers have not yet caught up with their future orders; others have about 10 to 15 per cent. packed over their future sales, and yet there is an unprecedented inquiry, demand and buying whenever possible to obtain at full prices; whether the rain acted as a check upon what some called a declining market, or just what condition affected the buyer, nevertheless, there has been a steady demand from all sections of the country for tomatoes, as fast as they were offered and the market showed no decline during the glut season.

"The heavy storm the first of the week has damaged corn considerably, and in some cases the fields are matted with stocks so badly twisted that the expense of pulling is twice as much as it should be. After corn has laid in this position for a given time, the quality is seriously affected, as a result of this condition and also the low temperature referred to. Packers have advanced their prices on Shoe Peg and Maine Style 5 cents per dozen since our last advices."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—New prices anxiously awaited.

Tea—All stocks low.

Sugar—Steady.

Potatoes—Poor outlook in Montreal.

Currants—Advanced 2s.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—The wholesale grocery markets have been quiet for the week under review, and many lines which hitherto have been showing considerable activity are now commencing to move out more slowly. Sugar is one of these. The preserving season being now well on toward its close, this staple is feeling the effect of the general depression in consumption, and within a week or two will probably be only in nominal demand till Christmas comes round to relieve the situation. Stocks of teas are getting into small compass, and no more Japans have yet arrived. Canned goods are about unchanged, as regards the general situation. Prices on tomatoes and corn are being awaited with interest by the trade, but the feeling is for high prices and short deliveries. Currants have advanced another 2s. on the primary market, but the demand for sound fruit continues very strong. It is said that California raisins may be considerably delayed in reaching this market, owing to rains in that country and lack of adequate transportation.

SUGAR—The demand for refined is not so heavy as it has been for some weeks past. This is attributable to the closing in of the preserving season, green tomatoes and peaches being about the only two lines now left for the housewife to put up. Prices locally remain about steady, with Acadia still 10c below the quotations given herewith. Steadiness also has characterized the New York refined market during the past week.

The situation in raws is unchanged. Information is to hand that the American Sugar Refining Co. bought two months ago something in the neighborhood of 6,500 tons of Philippine Island sugar. Four thousand tons of this passed Gibraltar on Sept. 13.

Willett & Gray say of raws: "During the week under review the raw sugar market has remained unchanged. The few sugars offered have been readily taken by refiners and more could have been sold at the current quotations which are 2 9-16c c. & f. for 95 degree test centrifugals and 3.95c duty paid for 96 degree test.

"Two cargoes of Javas afloat were taken at practically 10s. 6d. c. f. & i., being the equivalent of 3.98c per lb. duty paid, basis 96 degree test. Another cargo just arrived at port of call which could not be sold here at 10s. 6d. c. f. & i. has been ordered to the United Kingdom, thus disposing of all cargoes which will be due to arrive within three or four weeks.

"Javas for September-October shipment are held at 10s. 4½d. c. & f., equal to 3.98c per lb. duty paid. The forward supplies of Javas afloat to the United States amount to 180,000 tons and excluding all vessels known to be going to Europe.

"From present outlook the shortage in certain growing cane crops, particularly Cuba, will be about offset by increase in other crops available for the United States, say Louisiana and Java.

"It is now sufficiently evident that the Cuba crop will mature later than usual this season and amount to less than last year's crop, but it is too early yet for valuable estimates. More rain is wanted constantly at this season than Cuba is receiving thus far.

"It is now sufficiently evident that the Cuba crop will mature later than usual this season and amount to less than last year's crop but it is too early yet for valuable estimates. More rain is wanted constantly at this season than Cuba is receiving thus far.

"Mr. Licht reports the weather very favorable for the maturing beet crops of Europe, which is important, as upon the weather at this season will depend the maximum or minimum crop to the extent of some 400,000 tons, more or less, in outturn.

"Under no conditions is the crop estimated to exceed last year's."

TEA—The London market is strong, with demand chiefly in evidence for the lower grades and good to fine teas, medium grades, are not much in request. Locally, stocks are getting into small compass, especially the cheapest grades, which are now exceedingly difficult to obtain in any quantity.

Mail advices from London say of the situation there:

"A healthy tone has again marked the week's sales and demand for good liquoring teas continues to improve, the only weak spot in the market being the comparatively cheap medium kinds from 7d. to 7½d. per lb. A feature has been the competition from country and export buyers, who have come in freely, with satisfactory results to sellers in many instances. Common leaf has been in undiminished enquiry, and with a few shipping orders for low-priced Indians, rather less has been obtainable at 6½d. than last week.

"Cabled advices from Calcutta report an increase manufactured to date of 3¼ million lbs., but as outside markets have already taken about 8 millions more than a year ago, the quantity available for the United Kingdom is likely to be some 4¾ millions less. It seems as if this quantity would scarcely fulfil requirements, for although Ceylon shipments continue rather ahead of last year, an improvement in re-export trade—by no means improbable—would speedily create a shortage in supplies."

COFFEE—The market locally is quiet and unchanged. Willett & Gray, New York, say:

"The crop reports received here about the second flowering in the Rio, as well as the Santos, regions, are unfavorable, and the hopes are now based upon the results which may be shown in October. As regards the Santos prospects, the poor flowering, apart from other reasons, is consequent upon the exhaustion of the trees and the soil.

"The movement of the current crop continues to be much smaller than that of similar crops during the past eight or nine years, and now points to a maximum of 5,000,000 bags in Santos, besides 1,500,000 bags to 2,000,000 bags left over from the previous crop, and about 3,500,000 bags in Rio. The valorization scheme and financing of the Government consignments would never have been accepted by the syndicate of merchants last year unless just such an outturn as is now apparent was expected.

"The new feature in connection with valorization is that Messrs. N. M. Rothchilds & Sons, of London, have accepted the loan of three millions pounds sterling from the Federal Government of Brazil for valorization purposes. It is ascertained that the exchequer loan made by the Government of San Paulo, and issued at 93 last December, is now selling at 96. Considering the innumerable attacks on the standing and credit of the San Paulo Government, the present quotation for the exchequer loan furnishes a flat contradiction to all the derogatory statements so freely indulged in by the opponents of valorization.

"The consuming trade is buying as little coffee as possible, but this policy insures a very sound market and this, together with continued unfavorable conditions for the growing crop, will likely bring a change of views concerning the market, with interior dealers so sparingly supplied."

SYRUPS AAD MOLASSES—There is an active demand for corn syrup in a retail way, and wholesalers report good sales to their customers. The latter, however, are now about stocked up with their requirements. Molasses is quiet. Prices, as a whole, are unchanged.

DRIED FRUITS—Currants advanced 2s in Greece on Sept. 26th, and since that time the market has been very firm and in an excited condition. The markets for sound fruit is very strong, however, and all indications point to a continuance of these conditions.

Valencia raisins have advanced on the primary market, owing to the available fruit being insufficient for present requirements. Prices for prompt shipment are from 1s to 2s higher.

Sultana raisins advanced 1s on Oct. 1st. This makes a rise of 2s within the last two weeks. Cables from Malaga state that the recent heavy rains there will have the effect of advancing prices on Malaga raisins.

Select Valencias

The country is practically bare of Valencias at present. Anticipating this situation we have brought on a small quantity of Selects to tide things over until the larger shipments arrive about the 1st November or perhaps later. The price we offer at is quite moderate considering that we now have the fruit here, ready for delivery, and the quality is of the best.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Once more there has been an increase in cheese prices, though the flight of figures last week has not been to a greater extent than ¼c. This, on the average, is the increase. Strangely enough, business seems to be very brisk at the higher prices, demand from the other side showing some improvement over past weeks.

Dealers in Montreal have been asking for finest Ontarios sometimes as much as 13c, against 12⅞c, which was last week's highest figure. It is not always possible to obtain 13c., and in order to surmount the difficulty they have been known to accept prices ranging from 12¾c. to 12⅞c., though, to be sure, there is not a great deal of difference between the highest quotation and the figure last quoted. In cheese, however, ⅛c. one way or the other in the price has been the effect of a sale or the lack of one many a time.

During the past while the make cannot be said to have been large by any means, the supply has been fairly good, but it has not been up to the standard quantity, and were demand from the other side as great as it was at this time a year ago, no one knows where the cheese to fill orders would come from.

Altogether, according to some estimates, there are not more than 400,000 boxes of cheese in Canada, of which quantity three-quarters would be held in Montreal. Such an estimate, however, is only an estimate, as it is extremely difficult to arrive at the stocks held by the larger firms who make use of their great warehouses, and consequently make it impossible for one to estimate correctly their holdings outside of public warehouse. The only way one can form any idea as to the stocks held in the country is by comparison of receipt and shipment figures, and these are none too reliable to base calculations upon.

Not by any means helping to increase the make is the tendency of some operators to go into butter, attracted by the high prices. This does not help the cheese situation any, but tends to make supplies shorter and eventually firm up the market still more.

As has been remarked, Old Country buyers are displaying a little more interest in the Canadian situation, though they are not anxious to buy very freely at present prices. Stocks of Canadian cheese held on the other side are necessarily light, and if they wish to replenish them dealers must pay the price or do without, for at the moment there seems little possibility of a decline.

Receipts of cheese last week were 74,492 boxes, against 67,641 boxes the previous week, and 96,361 boxes the same week in 1906. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 1,639,043 boxes, against 1,807,941 boxes for the same period last year. Last week 74,438 boxes of cheese were exported, against 59,520 boxes the previous week, and 119,678 boxes the same week in 1906. Since May 1 shipments have been 1,447,808 boxes, against 1,681,402 boxes for the same period last year.

Butter prices have been fluttering since last report, but there has been no actual change in the quotations, which remain, for Townships creamery, 26c.; Quebec creamery, 25½c., and sometimes 26c. These prices are for late make butter, but rarely do dealers let go their holdings of early make at figures which are much below these.

In the trade the feeling is that the present high prices are just as likely as not to be maintained, and it is possible that next week's quotations for this week's make will be even higher. Receipts are none too large, though the fact that some cheese factories are now going in for butter, as mentioned in the foregoing, will help matters more or less. The number of those changing their product is not great, however. Some weeks lately receipts have fallen 50 per cent. below last year. The optimistic dealers expect to witness a slight increase in the make shortly.

Some find that demand locally, where all business has been done this season, has fallen off greatly during the past week or ten days, owing to the high prices. For one thing, retailers are not as anxious to take hold in large lots, in the event of there being a decline, which would mean a loss for them. The tendency seems to be to wait and watch the future.

Better offers are being made from the other side, as much as 24c. being cabled. This figure, of course, does not interest Canadian holders, and until English houses come up to our ideas they are not likely to transact much business with Canada, especially as there is an idea in the trade here that we have no butter to spare. Dairy is very firm, 22½ cents being asked this week. Quite contrary to the usual custom, dairy butter is being shipped in fair quantities to Manitoba and the west.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 11,423 packages, against 10,022 packages the previous week, and 20,609 packages the same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 327,516 packages, against 511,406 packages for the same period in 1906.

Last week 494 packages were shipped, against 2,579 packages the previous week and 23,626 packages same week last year. Since May 1 this year 65,755 packages have been exported, against 326,930 packages for the same period in 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

There is little change to report in the live hog situation from conditions prevailing at the end of last week. Prices are still unchanged—$5.90, f.o.b., country point, $6.15, fed and watered, and $6.40 loaded on cars. Receipts have been very light, but the packers are getting all they want at the quotations given. The usual heavy fall deliveries of hogs will soon commence, but a large proportion of those now coming in are quite unfit for market, and practically valueless. This is very discouraging to the packers, who have had a bad time of it for some weeks. The Canadian farmer does not bother himself very much about the condition of his hogs at this time of year, and allows them to make their own living, as it were, off whatever food is handiest. Later on, when he is not so busy with his grain, he may give his hogs a little more attention, but it seems an impossibility to impress upon the average farmer the great field for profitable development which lies at his very door, and to persuade him of the importance of devoting more time to this department of his farm if he wants to reap its benefits to the fullest extent.

A report has just been published by the Pork Packers' Association of Great Britain, backed by the National Federation of Meat Traders on the decline of pig-rearing in Great Britain. It points out that for the year ending June, 1905, there was a decrease in the number of pigs raised of 590,030, as compared with 1904. And for the year ending June, 1906, there was another decrease of 20,576; the latter figure would have been a much greater decrease but for Ireland's increasing 80,220. England's decrease for the year ending June, 1905, was 393,129, and for the year ending June, 1906, it was 99,624.

The report draws attention to the assistance rendered by the colonial and other Governments by way of experiments, data, and expert advice, and hopes that the British Government will follow their example. Sixteen million pounds a year is going out of Great Britain for bacon and hams, three and a quarter millions for lard, and close on two millions for pork. Evidently some efforts are to be made to try and overcome this decrease, but no large hope seems to be held out.

"It would appear to me," said a packer the other day, "that with the standing Canada has now as a bacon exporting country, our farmers should devote even greater attention than heretofore to the raising of pigs. It is acknowledged that no country produces a finer quality of bacon pigs than Canada."

The Journal of Commerce, in its weekly review of the situation, says: "The past week has shown increased activity in future hog products, partly on firmer prices for hogs, but chiefly on reduced corn crop prospects, which have caused some speculation for the bull account in futures, although the packers have been the chief sellers on any advance. There has been no improvement in cash trade, except lard for export, of which there has been good buying in Chicago, a good part of the week, without affecting prices of cash, as much as futures have advanced on the speculative demand. Otherwise cash trade has remained stagnant, and prices unchanged or easier in the case of hams, which have been extremely dull in the Eastern markets, and there has not been enough improvement in demand at the West to prevent weaker prices. The same is true of pork, lard only having advanced on the export business.

PROVISION MARKETS

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—As will be noticed, lard is firmer this week, prices having been advanced ¼c. Business is reported by packers very brisk for the season of the year. In some sections farmers are beginning their annual killing, but so far, trade has not suffered in consequence. Smoked meats are practically unchanged, except in the case of hams, which are a little easier in price. Heavy goods are being sold in satisfactory quantities to the lumber trade.

BUTTER — Prices have advanced again. This week as much as 26½c. is asked for finest creamery, and the market is very firm at that. Dairy is exceedingly scarce, and high in consequence. Supplies are not large, that is, available supplies. A few large houses are thought to have heavy stocks, but they are hanging on to what they have. In the country holders are not disposed to sell, but are waiting for still better prices.

PROVISIONS—The market is exceedingly firm, with business active. Pork products are about the same as a week ago. Fresh meats, particularly lamb and mutton, are slightly lower under heavy supplies. The prices of other provisions, however, such as butter, cheese, and eggs, are gradually climbing, and the outlook looks pretty serious for the householder during the coming winter.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

All Wheat and Oat Products Very Firm and Likely to Advance—Strong Enquiry for Flour, Both Domestic and Export.

The market has ruled very firm on flour and cereals during the past week, and though no actual advance has taken place in either commodity, a substantial rise of from 20c to 25c is expected in the wheat product within the next ten days. Wheat continues to move very slowly from the West, but reports show that the pessimistic rumors which have been in evidence of late will be discounted by actual results, and that a larger crop than is generally expected may be looked for.

Export demand for flour and cereals is good, but not a great deal of this business is passing, owing to the heavy domestic consumption.

The Chicago wheat market has been irregular, though the past week saw the largest export business yet done on the crop, possibly for years, reaching approximately 5,000,000 bushels. "Millers have also," says a report, "been heavy buyers throughout the West, even Texas buying in St. Louis and the South in Chicago, while the Canadian millers have been buying all millable wheat, old and new crop, in Canada, throwing the exporters out of the market almost entirely. Here every grade of wheat on the market has been taken by exporters, and even No. 3 winters and Kansas, and they have also been heavy buyers of macaroni, which has advanced nearer the price of milling wheats than in its history. So big has been this demand that with the exception of a day or two, when exporters were holding off for higher prices, they were unable to fill their orders, which were general from both the United Kingdom and Continent. The severe damage to the Manitoba crop, reported last week, has been confirmed by the official statement, and also by the lack of offerings. This has made bears very cautious about selling the market short, while there is a long line in Chicago, estimated at 25,000,000 to 30,000,000, held by Patten, which deters short selling as well as long buying, for fear he may unload it any time on the market. But speculative influences cut little figure in this year's market, which is in the hands of millers and exporters, so general and strong is the cash demand."

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—No further advance has occurred in flour, but the market remains firm. Millers report excellent local business, despite the quotations, and say that exporters, while they are grumbling, are meeting the new prices. Grain is beginning to arrive, and the receivers of it express themselves as being pleased with the quality.

ROLLED OATS—Extremely high prices are being asked for rolled oats to-day, as will be seen from the quotations given below. That these figures will last is not the general belief. It is thought that once the season really sets in there will be a decline, and prices will reach a more reasonable level. As it is, few grocers have a trade that will pay the prices they must ask, basing their selling figure on quotations given below.

WHOLESALE CHANGE IN REGINA.

Campbell Bros. & Wilson, Winnipeg, have bought the wholesale grocery business of H. W. Laird Co., Regina, and have leased for a term of years the new warehouse in which the business has been carried. They have also secured an option on the property, and will probably buy it later. Paul Johnson, Winnipeg, sales manager of the firm, went to Regina early in the week to superintend the stock taking and to make all final arrangements for the transfer of the business.

Campbell Bros. & Wilson are now established in Winnipeg and Regina while in Calgary there is an affiliated but separately incorporated firm, Campbell, Wilson & Horne. With large warehouses in these three important centres they are in excellent position to handle their rapidly extending business in the West.

GRAPE SUGAR.

This is the name given to solidified glucose, and may be produced from the same substances as liquid glucose, but properly from grapes. The methods pursued in nearly all the refineries are, however, now identical. Wet starch obtained from potatoes, Indian corn, etc., is boiled in so much sulphuric acid and water. The acid makes part of the oxygen and hydrogen in the water unite with the carbon in the starch, and turns it sweet, after which the acid is taken out with chalk.

The production of grape sugar and liquid glucose is now mostly carried on in America, where corn is most plentiful and cheap, but large quantities are also made in Germany from potatoes, which are specially grown for that purpose over a great extent of land in certain districts.

E. P. Brownell & Co., wholesale confectioners, of Toronto, have assigned to J. P. Langley.

TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Another Advance in Flour—Fish Scarce—J. E. Foster's Grocery Store Destroyed by Fire—Live Tarantula in Bunch of Bananas.

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 30.—Within the last week the price of flour has again advanced, on Manitobas, fifteen cents a barrel, and Ontarios, twenty-five cents. The marekt is reported to be very firm, with a prospect of still higher prices. Oatmeal, both standard and roller, jumped twenty-five cents a barrel at the mills, and on Saturday the local jobbers advanced their prices 50 cents a barrel.

In the feed line, oats have reached the highest point obtained in September for two or three years. As yet there are no provincial oats on the market, and Ontario oats in small lots are held for sixty and sixty-two cents a bushel. with the advent of the hunting season, all meats are easier on the produce market, although so far country beef and lamb are the only varieties which have dropped in price. Butter is said to be scarce and eggs are higher, with every likelihood of increasing in value. Poultry of all kinds about holds its own, and there is not much stock offering.

There has been a great scarcity of fresh fish on the local market. On Friday last there was hardly a pound of fresh fish to be had in the city, and buyers had to content themselves with smoked or salt fish. The heavy gales of the first of the week are said to be accountable for the scarcity.

The prospects are that butter will this winter reach a price which will be almost prohibitive to the poorer families. It is now selling for 24 cents per pound and going up in price. Eggs are fetching the same price per dozen, with the prospect of their being exceedingly scarce.

John A. Hunt of Mexico City, was in St. John on Friday last on his way to the southern country, after a visit to his former home in Toronto. Mr. Hunt left Toronto seven years ago to act as a manufacturer's agent in Mexico. Since that time he has revisited Canada five times. He says the Mexican republic has made wonderful strides in the last few years. Railway and commercial development has been most marked. "Canada," said Mr. Hunt, "has great chances in Mexico. The American manufacturer has captured a large section of the market, but there are still chances. One product in which the Maritime Provinces is interested at present is fish. Norway largely controls the Mexican market. The attractive packages in which the Norwegians put up their goods has much to do with their popularity. If Canada were to adopt the same style of tin package better results would be obtained. At present, seisal hemp is the principal Mexican product that we take, while lumber is our principal export to the republic.

Mr. Hunt reports good opportunities in the rolled-leaf tobacco trade. The recent troubles in Cuba have greatly injured the Cuban tobacco trade ,and, as a result, Mexican tobacco has largely supplanted the Havana leaf in the Canadian market.

The grocery store of J. E. Foster, situated near the railway station at Salisbury, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday, Sept. 25. In addition to groceries, Mr. Foster carried a line of clothing, carriages, agricultural implements, etc. Two nice carriages were burned in the warehouse adjoining the store. Only $500, it is understood, is the amount of insurance carried on the building and stock.

The pork packing firms of A. J. Matthews, Halifax, and the Sussex Packing Co., of Sussex, have been amalgamated, and it is understood the new name will be the Matthews Packing Co. Mr. Matthews will remove from Halifax, and make his headquarters at Sussex for the future, while it is said Mr. Ross, manager of the Sussex Co., has accepted an important position in connection with the Government's scheme for cold storage. The Halifax house will be a branch of the Sussex business in future.

William A. Craven, representing Chase & Sanborn, coffee dealers, and C. W. Spiers, of Kilgour Bros., dealers in paper and paper bags, were calling on the trade in St. John the week of Sept. 16. They went east on the 23rd. Both report business good.

A living tarantula was discovered by W. S. Vaughan, a grocer on Pitt street, a few days ago. It was a large specimen and when captured and placed in a glass jar was the subject of much interest. It is believed to have arrived in a bunch of bananas.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Canadian Small Fruits Falling Off Slightly—Depressing Potato Situation in Montreal—Stormy Weather Prolongs Scarcity of Fish.

The fruit market generally has been pretty active this week, with good supplies and excellent demand. Canadian small fruits, though still coming in freely, are beginning to fall off. Plums are nearly out and other lines are showing the effects of the lateness of the season.

During the past two weeks there has been a very depressing market for potatoes in Montreal. From what can be learned some eight or nine cars of potatoes, meaning 4,000 to 5,000 bags, arrived from New Brunswick. These potatoes were taken from the ground before they were ripe, and in shipment, became heated in the cars, arriving on the market in poor condition. The potatoes, which were all of the Green Mountain variety, were partly soft and had turned black, either entirely or at one end. On their receipt the market was ruling around 75c to 80c for best stock, but the consignees, in their endeavor to rid themselves of their bad stock, were willing to take anything from 60c to 65c for the potatoes, sometimes less. This broke the market for good stuff, and new potatoes which were just beginning to arrive, have been held back by shippers, who are not anxious to throw their goods upon a depressed market. The potatoes which are now being dug up are very good. Reports from Quebec Province show that the yield will be heavy in some sections, but will be satisfactory most everywhere. The quality is good. The market is being gradually cleaned up, but these poor potatoes will remain in more or less large quantities for some time, though their demoralizing effect will gradually wear off. In the Toronto market the situation is more encouraging. The New Brunswick shipments have been of better quality and the local stock is in better condition than was expected.

Fish of all kinds are exceedingly scarce everywhere, chiefly as a result of the long-continued stormy weather. Prices are as high, if not higher, than they have been for years.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—California fruits are gradually becoming a very small factor in the local market. Pears are no longer obtainable, and the market is now supplied by the Canadian article. Prices for all Canadian lines show no change this week, though it is likely there will be advances as the season draws to a close. There is a fair demand for bananas, at a better price. Supplies are not heavy, demand in the States being brisk, while owing to the drought experienced in Jamaica, available supplies are not as large as might be wished, and it will be eight months before the new crop is available. Considerable interest centres in apples, which are now being exported freely. There is a large range offered, some quotations, for No. 2, (culls), being as low as $1.50. Chiefly offered to-day are Duchess, St. Lawrence, Wealthy, Jennettings and Culverts. Florida fruits will begin to arrive in another fortnight.

VEGETABLES—Business transacted these days is falling off. The days are getting cold, and many varieties are offered no longer, or, if they are for sale, the quantity offered shows a severe falling off. American truck will soon be quoted. Interest centres in potatoes, the market for which appears to be recovering. The amount of poor stuff which was dumped onto the market here is getting smaller, and as new potatoes are beginning to come forward freely, there is a better feeling. Prices range from 75c to 80c to-day. Onions are easier, owing to larger receipts.

FISH—This week brought with it the opening of the shell oyster season, and some interest has been shown in oysters in consequence. Bulk oysters are coming in freely, and prices show a decline. In fish, brook trout are practically finished, but the lake variety is in good supply, and demand is satisfactory. Dore and pike are two other lines subject to good demand at prices which have not changed. Haddock and cod are still scarce owing to nasty weather on the fishing grounds. Halibut is in fair supply. Both Eastern and Western salmon are now quoted. Demand is reported brisk. Kippers and bloaters are arriving freely, and while the present receipts of haddies are not large, larger arrivals are expected after this week. Green and Skinless cod are arriving in large quantities, but dealers have no trouble in getting through with the goods as demand is strong for both lines.

the earlier lines are beginning to fall off. Plums are nearly done. Pears are quite plentiful, and some of the best peaches of the season are coming in now, though prices are still up at the top. FISH—The continued stormy weather of the last two or three weeks has caused an almost unprecedented scarcity of fish, considering the season. Prices are the same as last week, but at that are about as high as they can well go. The situation ought to be somewhat easier next week.

ADDRESS BY SIR DANIEL.

Sir Daniel Morris, K.C.M.G., Imperial Commissioner of Agriculture for the West Indies, addressed the Montreal Board of Trade, Monday, of this week. Sir Daniel dwelt upon the importance of trade development between Canada and the West Indies, and pointed out the possibilities of better commercial relations between the two colonies.

Throughout his address he spoke along practically the same lines as he did recently when he went before the members of the Toronto Board of Trade in that city.

The attendance was very satisfactory, and served to show the interest displayed in the West Indies by Montreal business men.

TARIFF SITUATION IN GREAT BRITAIN

From Special Cable to New York Herald.

London, Wednesday.—Less than two years ago the electors of the United Kingdom gave the Liberal party, with Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman at its head, the biggest majority ever known. There are at the present time unmistakable indications that the electors regret the decision of the general election.

The favorite arguments which free importers used in opposition to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's policy of fiscal reform and closer union with the colonies was that it would materially increase the price of food. There was much talk about the big loaf and the little loaf, which was an appeal to the fears of the working classes. The Radicals promised the big loaf at low price. They told the electors that the duty on corn which was proposed by Mr. Chamberlain would raise the price of bread and that the continuance of the free trade policy would certainly lead to a reduction, since the corn duty of one shilling a quarter was taken off.

Bread has gone up, not down. The price this week has gone higher and according to the corn dealers and millers the price is likely to go still higher.

Workingmen Aroused.

There is a feeling among the working classes that as they had no time to examine the economic questions themselves before the election, the Liberals deceived them. They are now willing listeners to the argument that if one or two countries acquire practical monopolies of the supply of food those countries will make them pay dear for it and that it would be wiser to stimulate production in the colonies and the possessions of the British Empire and make the Empire self-sufficient, as Mr. Chamberlain desired it should be.

Coal is too, as mentioned a week ago, much dearer and this threatens British home industries. The Radicals at the general election frequently stated that as no coal was imported into this country the coal miners had no interest in tariff reform and that even if these industries might suffer free import was at any rate the best policy for the coal miners.

The Radicals have admitted that Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to impose two shillings duty on corn might not be harmful, but they assured the electors that it would not stop there. The people will be told at the meetings and in lectures that the duty would stop exactly where the British workingmen desire it to stop, that electoral power is in the hands of the democracy and that industrial democracy constitutes the greatest majority of the voting strength of the United Kingdom. Therefore they will be assured that the amount of duty would always be absolutely controlled by the workingman's vote in their own interests.

For a long time America has been able to put steel in the British market at four shillings a ton less than it can be made in England. With the present price of coal and the prospective rise during the winter months, America may be able to do it even at a less price. It is known that she has built furnaces and works on the most gigantic scale with the express intention of capturing the British market. She produces nearly three times as much steel as England, and men in the iron and steel trade here will be reminded that steel made in England and sent to America has to pay a heavy duty, while America can sell steel to Great Britain for nothing, thus taking their bread away from them.

Coal is Going Up.

The government has taken off the coal duty, and the result is that most of the English coal is going out of the country. While this lasts the miners will earn good wages, but it isn't likely to go on forever. Then, the working classes are asking, what will happen? Practically no industry can decay without injuring the coal miners, though there is actually no coal dumped into England, but manufactured goods, in the production of which coal has been used, are constantly being dumped on British shores, and when, in consequence of that the industry which is used to produce these goods ceases to exist, there is so much less English coal used and less work and less wages for the English coal miners.

Owing to the high price of coal the iron and steel works in England are practically at a standstill.

The ordering of horseshoes for the army from America is also, according to the officials of the Imperial Tariff Reform Association, helping to bring that question nearer to the thoughts of the people, and believing that the people are already tired of the present government, there is the greatest activity at the Tariff Reform Association's headquarters. Arrangements are being made for holding large demonstrations and meetings in various parts of the country during the autumn and winter. These will be in addition to the small local meetings and lectures which now are so numerous.

Tariff Reform Gaining.

One of the leading men in the tariff reform movement has just stated that no movement in the world of politics is making such headway as tariff reform. The working classes are paying greater attention to it because they feel from what they see around them that it is not a matter to be ignored. The establishment of a federation for the purpose of the propaganda is reported to be working well. The electors in the smallest and remotest villages are being told how they were deceived at the general election by promises of a big and cheap loaf.

There are not only Americans but Germans to be feared. Both can make steel and iron cheaper than England can. One reason of the dearness of steel is that England is exhausting her coal. Coal is much dearer in England than in the United States. Another reason which will be given to the electors is that business men do not care to risk money in providing new machinery and up-to-date appliances when any day a foreigner may ruin their trade by dumping his cheap goods on the English market. Coal rules the destiny of nations; it is the source of Great Britain's commercial prosperity, and the secret of her vaunted naval supremacy, so that this matter of a rise in the price of coal will appeal to the British people just as powerfully as did the dear loaf.

PAST AND PRESENT.

An interesting volume, entitled "Past and Present in an Old Firm," being the history of the business now known as Joseph Travers & Sons, Ltd., of London, Eng., has just reached us.

Apart from the biographical sketches of the men who laid the foundation of this business almost two centuries ago, and those who labored in upbuilding the business in the intervening years, the book contains many interesting references to business in the old days, and also various particulars of the prices of commodities in the past. Naturally, the volume is made up chiefly of matter reminiscent of the succeeding generations of Traverses, but there is enough general information regarding the early days of the tea and sugar trade to interest those who have not come in contact with J. Travers & Sons in a business way.

The little book is intended for free distribution amongst the firm's customers and friends.

OYSTERS TRANSPLANTED.

Some Will Be Ready for Market by September.

Consul A. E. Smith, of Victoria, reports that another American enterprise has been launched on Vancouver Island, as follows:

"A company composed chiefly of American citizens, with a steamship commander as manager, has established in Esquimalt Harbor, near Victoria, a large oyster plant for the propagation of eastern oysters. Two carloads of the bivalves, known to the trade as "spat," purchased in South Norwalk, Conn., have already arrived here and been planted in the cove, where the company have secured 43 acres of water front. The consignment includes oysters of one, two and three years of age. They have been laid out according to their age in square beds 50 by 50 feet. Though the bulk of the oysters planted will have to remain in the sea bed two or three years, a large quantity will be dug up for the market in September, and it is expected that sufficient demand for this catch will be found in British Columbia. It is calculated to supply later on the markets as far east as Winnipeg and Chicago.

"At present the market here is supplied with Olympia oysters, large beds of which are under cultivation at Olympia, Grays Harbor and Willapa, Wash. The American manager of the new concern was for seventeen years engaged in oyster culture on the coast of Massachusetts, and regards the Pacific Coast as well suited for the cultivation of the eastern oyster as are the Atlantic Coast beds."

NEW WINNIPEG PRODUCE FIRM.

Geo. W. Prout has resigned his position as manager of the Dominion Produce Co., Winnipeg, and has started a produce business of his own at 241 Main Street. Mr. Prout has a wide acquaintance among the trade and many readers will be interested to know of his new business venture.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

Good Advice

"Snap lacked back bone and had little or no tact in saying NO. By the end of two years he had $3,000 tied up. When he went home to rest he worried because he couldn't meet his bills as promptly as formerly. Being sensitive, he worried, and that affected his digestion. He didn't take a sawdust diet, nor abandon coffee for a baked cereal mixture. He became a plodder instead of a pusher. Instead of being flush he was always in a pinch. He eked out a living and in five years failed to increase his assets. Then he sold out and said: 'No more grocery business for me. It don't pay.' The next we knew of him he was ticket chopper on the 'L' road.

"Take warning from Snap. Avoid credit, pay cash, sell for cash, and get comfort out of life."

1st. The margin of profit is liberal

2nd. Old Homestead Brand is in great demand, and that demand is ever on the increase

¶ At the back of this ever-increasing demand are the soundest of reasons to account for it. In the first place, the selection of fruits and vegetables is made by experts. They reject any particle of fruit or vegetable which is not perfectly sound. Then, the factory where the Old Homestead Brand is produced is easily the most up-to-date and sanitary canning factory in Canada. Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

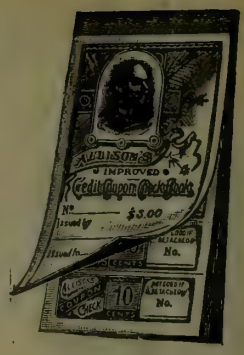
They Grease the Wheels of Commerce



Even if they didn't save you a cent, they so simplify relations with your trade, so thoroughly eliminate the causes of petty disputes, that they are a good investment.

The ALLISON Coupon Books

But they DO save you not cents, but DOLLARS, so many dollars that, as a business proposition, you should have them, whether you can afford to do without them or not. Thousands of progressive merchants are using them.

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him $10; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors and no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. Let us send you cancelled sample, free.

Hammering It In.

It is a well-known fact that if a little drop of water is allowed to drop continuously upon a certain spot in the hardest kind of rock, it will eventually wear a hole there. Probably the time it takes to do so is governed by the hardness of the rock, but the moral which is generally taken from this well-known fact, is PERSEVERANCE. So far so good. But there is also another moral well within the range of vision. That is: Make the drops fall faster, and thus make the hole quicker.

Advertising is the water, and the public is the rock upon whom it is designed to make an impression. A mighty hard rock the public is, sometimes, as some of you grocers know well enough. But publicity of the right sort, if it is kept up continuously, will eventually produce the right sort of effect on the public.

I know a man who is the proud possessor of a 20 by 15-foot lawn. He takes a pride in this little patch of green grass, and in order to keep it close shaved, he bought a second-hand lawn mower a couple of years ago. This summer the blades needed touching up. Now, my friend hadn't a city directory in his house upon the evening he decided his mower needed sharpening, and he wanted to find the address of a man who went in for such business. Then it occurred to him that there was an ancient stencil sign, painted on the corner of a board fence, which he passed every morning on his way to work. He accordingly got underneath his hat and strolled around to take in the details of this ancient ad. There it was, sure enough, the paint getting brown with age. The result was that the owner of the advertisement had a mower sharpening job presented to him next morning.

That wasn't all. This mower sharpener was also a wringer repairer and second-hand bicycle dealer, and when my friend was in the shop he took a fancy to a small bicycle, which he had his son and heir call for, and ride home with for keeps.

That little wornout piece of stencilling was persistent advertising of the crudest variety, but it got there just the same.

"What's all that got to do with effective grocery advertising?" cries one of our friends. Well, its got a whole lot to do with it. Not that I would advocate stencilling on the fence as a sure road to grocery greatness, but I just want to ask the question: How much more business might the mower repairer have done if he had gone a little further in his advertising?

Yes, persistency pays, as the book agent said, whether it's beans or books you are advertising. But in order to make persistency pay bigger dividends, you've got to persist in a proper manner. The man who starts for the top of a skyscraper by shinning up the outside drain pipe, will get there all right if he sticks to it, but he'd get there quicker by going up in the elevator.

The door-to-door-dodger method of advertising may be of some use, but it's been found by progressive people who have tried both, that newspaper space properly used is the elevator route to success; while the dodger-from-door-to-door method may well be likened to the drain-pipe route.

You've all heard the antique chestnut about the Irishman who had fallen down a well, and when his friend on the surface inquired if he were "Kilt entoirely!" replied that he was "not dead, but spacheless"? Well, some newspaper space may be likened to the condition of the Irishman (because all advertising is alive to some extent), but it is pretty nearly speechless.

How to make your ad. speak, is the problem. How to make it heard while surrounded by other speaking ads. is another problem. As you know, it isn't always the loudest talker who is most listened to. Some grocers claim that a grocer ad. has to speak in a somewhat louder tone than, say, the dry goods ad. Is that right? Should the grocery ad. shout its message? Or should it assume a more dignified and quiet tone?

These are hard nuts to crack. Probably it would be safe to say: Shout at some people and talk quietly to others. Such a policy would have the advantage of giving both a trial, but they could hardly be carried on at the same time.

Take an ad. headed "Bargains! Bargains! Bargains! Prices Cut in Half, etc." That certainly belongs to the loud-mouthed family. Lots of grocers use that style and seem to be "getting there." Undoubtedly the word "Bargain" has an attraction which the human eye finds hard to resist. But the "shouting" ad., being usually composed mostly of price reductions, tends to create a bargain-fed public who won't buy anything at the normal price. Bargains in one line certainly pay well in large department stores, where the loss can be made up by purchases in other departments. But in a pure grocery store, where a great many of the articles are sold at close-shaved margins, anyway, it would seem unwise to dwell too much on lowness of price. It is at this point that clever ad. writing asserts itself. It cannot be denied that in the majority of cases the grocer who advertises low prices does a big business, and that the ad. which talks on the lowness of price is very effective. The clever ad. writer is the man who can bring the people into his store without resorting too frequently to the low-price argument. He is the man who can bring the people in on the ground of quality and good service, or, for any other reasons than mere price. And it is largely in that light that I judge the ads. that come in to this department—or, rather, I should say, the ads. which I would like to see flowing into this department, because altogether too few of them have been arriving lately.

A rather odd advertisement, is that of "Dan McClean, the Kash Grocer." Phonetic spelling has evidently struck hard at Owen Sound. This ad. is an undoubted eye-catcher, and we would like to know how it worked out in selling goods.

Another coffee ad., drawn up in a more conservative style, is that of D. MacLachlan's grocery, Chatham, N.B. This ad. is a good specimen of sane advertising and has all the elements of business building ability. The headline attracts, and the opening sentence fosters the interest of the reader by introducing his mind to a familiar and comfortable scene. Then the article is briefly described, and a moderate price attached. This combination certainly ought to bring people in to sample that coffee. The rest of the ad. suffers a little from indifferent set up. The "Pickling Pears," in different type, with one capital serving both words, seems to be out of tone with the rest of the ad. It would probably have had a more harmonious appearance if the words, "Nova Scotia Pickling Pears" had been set in a straight line. The ad., as a whole, might have been improved by leaving out the rules dividing the sections, or using lighter ones, and by having the heavy rules at top and bottom only.

We reproduce another of Bradley & Son's ads. It is particularly good. The talk in this ad. seems to have that personal, "I don't mind telling you" quality about it. It feels like a personal message.

BARRIE.

Barrie is the most thriving town of its size north of Toronto, the best business and all round commercial centre, and the county town of Simcoe, with a population of between 9,000 and 10,000.

Its twenty-six grocers find that this year, so far, has been as good, and, in some instances, especially the tourist trade, a little better than others.

Not one failure in two years, speaks well for the town, doesn't it?

The merchants, now over their summer rush, are turning their thoughts to the Christmas trade, and are now buying freely for the same.

Few changes have taken place lately, the most noted being Hohley Bros., who for the past twelve years have carried on a most successful business in high-class groceries, who have sold to Sargeant & King, a new firm of furriers and gents' furnishings, who bought the stock in order to get the store, the stock being sold out privately.

Harry Calaghen, a young grocer, who has carried on a business for about three years, has sold out to W. Wainwright, late of the Grand Trunk Railway offices at Allandale.

Chas. Strange, one of Barrie's business and political leaders for fifteen years, has been appointed gaoler at the Barrie gaol, but at present is undecided as to what he will do with his business.

Mr. John Clayton, who has been with J. C. Irwin for some years, has joined the forces of the London Pant & Overall Co., London, Ont.

Barrie's commercial travelers, who are actual residents of the town, number eighty-four. Six of these represent grocery houses, viz.: Gren. Calwell, with Perkins, Ince Co., Toronto; John Jamieson, with H. P. Eckhardt & Co., Toronto; L. Fraser, with Balfour, Smye & Co., Hamilton; F. Grazley, of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton; Wm. Matley, of Thos. Long & Co., Collingwood; Mr. Boyde, Telfer Bros., Collingwood.

L. Fraser, with Balfour & Co., Hamilton, who has been a resident of the Queen's Hotel for the past two years, has decided to take up housekeeping again, and has secured one of James Vair's houses on Mary street.

Barrie market which is, and has been, considered by all farmers and produce dealers one of the best paying markets for farmers in Ontario, has been very brisk the past week, for this time of the year, the prices of butter running from 28c to 30c per pound, with eggs from 20c to 22c per dozen; 1907 chickens brought 10c to 15c per pound, while old fowl went at 8c to 9c, and spring ducks at 75c to $1 per pair.

CHATHAM.

The local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association last week bestirred itself, and enthusiastically inaugurated the work for the coming year. The meeting on Oct. 1 was the best attended since the branch was formed here. With a view to making future meetings interesting and attractive, a committee, comprising Messrs. Poile, Westman and Winterstein, was appointed to draft a programme. It is the intention to secure capable speakers to talk on subjects of interest to the merchants. President Cowan also brought up the suggestion of an annual banquet in December; and though no definite action was taken at the time, the way in which the suggestion was received leaves little doubt that it will be acted on at the next meeting.

Ald. Westman brought up the matter of a Dominion Day celebration for 1908. The celebration has an economic side which should appeal particularly to merchants, since at present Chathamites—and their bank rolls—go out of town for the glorious first. Judging by past experience, the previous autumn is not too soon to agitate for a Dominion Day celebration.

The association took a much needed step forward when it ruled against the indiscriminate purchase of tickets in aid of churches, charities, concerts, and other affairs. Chatham is peculiarly blessed with charitable ladies who are forever and aye evolving something in the way of a concert or tea meeting in aid of this, that or the other, more or less deserving charity. The merchants on King St. are the most convenient victims, and the toll has in the past proven a heavy one. Just a day or two before the meeting, your correspondent chanced to enter a store as a lady canvasser passed out. The lady was smiling, but the storekeeper didn't smile. "There ought to be a law against that sort of thing," he declared vehemently. In the absence of a law, the R.M.A. put a stringent and positive resolution on their books, which should do considerable toward abating the evil. Last April a resolution was passed "That no member of the association shall advertise on any printed card or program, nor permit his or their firm name to appear on any subscription list for charitable institutions." An amendment, "Nor purchase tickets for concerts, raffles, socials or excursions," was proposed; but the association wisely decided to leave no room for ambiguity, and merely added, "Nor purchase tickets."

The resolution, if steadfastly carried out—and there is no reason why it should not be—will save the average merchant ten times his annual fee in the association.

A well attended meeting of the council of the Board of Trade was held on Friday evening, when W. R. Landon was elected secretary in place of C. H. Mills, who has removed to Berlin. The securing of connections with the M.C.R. via the electric railway, the lack of accommodation on late Wabash trains and the interchange of Wabash and G.T.R. tickets between Chatham and Detroit were discussed, while a variety of routine matters were dealt with. The executive committee have secured Hon. Adam Beck to address the Board of Trade and the citizens in general on Monday next on the subject of "Hydro Electric Power." Other speakers will be secured for subsequent meetings.

The Triangle Grocery, at the corner of Thames St. and Gradn Ave., has once more changed hands, Clifford Morrison, who purchased it last May from W. H. Marshall, having sold out to D. J. O'Keefe. Mr. O'Keefe took charge last week, and has signalized the new management by a number of improvements indicative of erengy and progressiveness. New and striking signs are already up, and a telephone installed. Mr. O'Keefe has also entered the ranks of the advertising grocers, and is making some attractive announcements in the columns of the local papers.

W. J. Radley, formerly of Detroit, has purchased from Ald. Jas. N. Nassey the stock and good will of the grocery at the corner of Murray and Prince Sts. He took charge on Thursday, Oct. 3, and reports business decidedly encouraging. Mr. Radley intends to inaugurate a system of delivery to all parts of the city, and to make extensive improvements to his place of business.

Ex-Ald. John Edmondson, the well-known St. Clair St. butcher, who, after many years' service in the city council, went down and out last January, is an aldermanic possibility for the forthcoming election. Mr. Edmondson has many friends, and his defeat last January was an unpleasant surprise to a good many people.

L. A. Cummings, the new proprietor of the West End Grocery, on Lorne Ave., is making a specialty of fresh vegetables and meats, in addition to his regular lines. Mr. Cummings is advertising aggressively, and seems determined to bring his business to the front.

Mrs. Cooper, demonstrator for the Pure Gold Manufacturing Company, was at H. A. Andrew's grocery all this week, demonstrating that company's baking powder, jellies, salad dressing, milk cocoa and other preparations. The demonstration proved quite a business getter, many housewives dropping in to sample these excellent lines.

Last week the stable and barn of R. P. Adams, the Tilbury butcher, were burned to the ground, with contents, including three horses. Loss, $1,000, partly covered by insurance.

Arthur Cowley is in charge of F. Lee's butcher business at Tilbury, during Mr. Lee's illness.

The Tilbury Canning Factory established a new record on Friday of last week when 17,000 cans of tomatoes were put up. The output this year is already 200,000 cans, about double last year's output, and large quantities are still coming in.

John Brennan, who has been conducting a small grocery on Queen St. for a couple of years past, has been compelled by financial difficulties to discontinue. D. S. Perrin & Co., of London, are understood to have charge.

Another industry has just been added to Chatham's large and growing list. It is the Chatham Carriage Co., the charter for which was recently granted, the incorporators being chiefly men associated in the past with Wm. Gray & Son's carriage company. The new company have purchased the premises on William St., formerly occupied by McKeough & Trotter's launch works, and are rapidly installing their machinery. They will probably commence active operations in a few days. The concern will go in for all classes of high-grade carriage and automobile body work, as well as gears. The officers are: President and manager, Ira Teeter; vice-president, Arthur Cooke; associate manager and secretary-treasurer, F. E. Fisher; directors, J. P. Rutherford, M.D., and W. A. Hadley.

Grocery travelers were as the sands of the sea this week, so far as Chatham was concerned. No sooner did one vanish than another seemed to appear. The return of the knights of the grip marks the active beginning of the fall trade.

Another matter dealt with by the R.M.A. last week was the unfair competition from the market auctioneers. The latter make use of their spaces on the market to auction off new bankrupt stocks, secured at a low figure, as second hand, thereby cutting largely into the Saturday trade of the regular merchants. There is scarcely a retail line that isn't injuriously affected; whilst the goods sold are declared to be pretty generally of an inferior quality. The R.M.A. claim that the practice is contrary to the bylaw and should be stopped—or that if it isn't, it is unfair, and the bylaw should be amended to prevent its continuance. Some months ago the matter was brought before the city council, but was overlooked. The R.M.A. at their last meeting passed a strenuous resolution, and, as a result, the question is now in the hands of the civic property committee, with instructions to consult the city solicitor and find out where the city is at.

Barrie, which is represented for the first time in these pages, tells of excellent trade conditions in that town.

The Montreal Grocers' Association have not yet taken any definite steps to form an association of their own—as distinct from the Retail Merchants' Association.

A novel banquet was held in Ingersoll the other day. Incidentally it proved a paying advertisement for a certain widely-consumed article.

The Toronto correspondent this week takes up conditions as they are in Toronto Junction.

The Winnipeg Retail Grocers' Association is doing excellent work in securing reliable information about slow-pay customers. Read how it works out.

London seems to be suffering from an epidemic of high prices.

Chatham merchants have taken a strong stand against the hold-up system of ticket buying for fairs, church functions, etc., practiced by too many customers.

In Quebec, the matter of grocers selling milk is being discussed.

GALT.

The grocery trade in Galt is rather brisk at present, the dull mid-season period having been passed. The local grocers are well pleased, although the sad memento of the fruit crop season's failure still lingers with them. Grapes are now in season, and despite the enormous crop, the price still remains at the average. The market on Wednesdays and Saturdays is deluged with the fruit, but the price has not yet dropped below 25c per basket, and Hugh Walker, of the Red Front, gave it as his opinion today that there would be no further reduction. The law of supply and demand certainly does not apply in this case, as the supply is far in excess of the demand. The lowest quotations yet received here are 17 cents on board at Hamilton. When the freight or express has been paid it is impossible to sell the fruit at less than 25 cents per basket.

I take much pleasure in welcoming Pembroke to the ranks of The Grocer correspondents. His article on the cash system is certainly concise and comprehensive, but I would, with all due respect to him, like to remark on the question of the farmers not having ready money. The farmers in the vicinity of Galt are regarded as about the only people having ready money. In a manufacturing town like this, the householder generally has his wages spent before they are received, but the farmer, especially at this season of the year, is generally flush. Nevertheless, your correspondent can see no reason why a cash business should not be conducted in the grocery trade. It appears to be merely a custom, which, while it may take many years, can finally be rooted out.

Allan Deans, of the Red Front, is spending a short holiday in Stratford.

The clerks in Hespeler made an effort to have early closing continued throughout the year, but their efforts were unsuccessful.

Pautler's grocery, in Preston, still continues to grow in popularity, and is spoken of favorably in this vicinity. Mr. Pautler is an up-to-date grocer, and a firm believer in the advisability of organization.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Galt will hold a banquet at the Iroquois hotel on Tuesday evening, October 15th. The executive committee has the program in hand, and it is expected that prominent speakers will be present, and deliver addresses relative to the aims and objects of the association. Invitations will be sent to the association members in Berlin, Preston, Hespeler, Waterloo, Paris, Guelph and surrounding towns, and it is expected that about one hundred guests will be present. In all probability the event will result in much benefit to the association.

The Galt market continues to grow and has assumed city-like proportions. For a time the market was practically demoralized, owing to the inroads of the hawkers, who each and every day made a house to house canvass with produce. When the Retail Merchants' Association came into being one of its first movements was to secure the passage of a by-law prohibiting the above practice, and as a result the market is regaining its own.

The remarks of the Guelph correspondent in last week's issue certainly apply to Galt, and they are hereby recommended to Galt grocers for consideration.

The rumors of a shortage in the banana market have not reached Galt as yet, and a local dealer stated that in his opinion the winter market would not vary in price from that of former years. Peaches are moving very slowly, owing to the high prices, and many a cellar that has formerly contained a goodly supply of this luscious fruit, will be empty this season, at least in respect to preserved peaches.

GUELPH.

On Friday night I walked into one of our up-to-date stores, and found all hands busy tying up sugar, etc., for Saturday's trade. I thought they must do a great trade to have to work at night to get their goods up. I walked into the same store to-day and found all hands loafing, sitting around on boxes and sleeping over the counter, and I at once saw the reason for those fellows having to work on Friday nights. The boss was out of town, and they could not work. The reason on Friday night was, too busy in the day time. The reason to-day was, the boss was away. The real reason was one of the greatest secrets of the grocery business of to-day. That is, when a quiet day comes, which is sure to come once in a while to us all, then is the time to get busy with those very things which we know need doing, and which we hate to leave when we are at them to wait on a customer coming our way. We all seem to forget that our business is to sell, not to fix things. Remember, we have to fix things also, and in the best possible, saleable shape, and it requires a lot of attention to watch a stock and keep each line of goods in a marketable condition.

Just now is a good time to fix up those old prunes and figs which you have been neglecting all summer. Prunes and figs are going to be in good demand this year on account of the scarcity of other fruit. Of course, some grocers will tell you they don't believe in selling prunes or figs dressed. That is all in your eye. There is no grocery store that handles them that doesn't have some left over from each year, and some grocers buy old ones and fix them up, and make money out of it. I saw a grocer this week turning over 10 boxes of old prunes, and complaining that he did not know they were in his stock. I told him to dress them. Just take a quart measure and fill it with hot water (be sure its hot), and put enough molasses in it to color it, and stir well. Then take the prunes and loosen them up and rub them well, and no matter how white and sugary they are, it will bring them back to themselves again. Some people use a bag or barrel to shake them in, and it works all right at that, but any grocer who is too honest to dress figs or prunes had better look out. He is too honest to live.

At Mrs. Lee's grocery store the other afternoon an auction sale was going on when the floor gave way at one end and quite a number of people were slid into the cellar. The floor was overloaded, and the joists at one end rotten. Now, don't you think Guelph ought to have a building inspector, as there are hundreds of floors in our city that are overloaded, and, for all we know, or care, till an accident happens, the joists may be rotten also.

M. P. Card's Chutney has been a staple line in grocery stores for some years, but the last of it is on the market now, as the executors are closing up the estate. Mrs. Card the manufacturer, died some time ago.

Business on Saturday on our market was not up to the usual standard, and for some reason the amount of produce offered was not up to the mark. Potatoes dropped back from $1.25 to from 80c to 90c a bag, while grapes, at from 18c to 20c, were good sellers. Butter is very scarce at from 27c to 30c a lb., while eggs are also up, as high as 25c being paid.

Flour in Guelph advanced 10c all round to-day, and it is about time some of the clerks' wages were going also, as it is really clerks and others who get stated salaries that feel the pinch when prices go up. Coal is $7.25 a ton here also. I tell you what, don't you think the clerks ought to get more money? Think it over.

Green root ginger is not often seen in grocery stores, but there is getting to be quite a demand for it, and it can be got all right. It is used mostly in preserving citron and other fruit.

HAMILTON.

Owing to the beautiful weather of the last few weeks the canners in this vicinity have been rushed to their capacity to handle the stuff coming. An abundance of plums and pears, with a fairly good supply of peaches, is tending to make the outlook better for the canning industry here. The late tomatoes have turned out fine and while not as plentiful as some years, they are a pretty good crop, and as the quality is tip-top, you can safely buy new goods that have either a Hamilton label or that of any factory in the Niagara district. This has been an off year for the man who contracted with the factories to sell tomatoes at 25c a bushel, as the market has never gone below 60c, and a steady demand at that figure.

The grocery trade here received quite a jolt when it was announced that C. H. Peebles had retired from the Peebles-Hobson Co. He has been connected with the grocers so long and so actively in all their association and other work that his old friends were shocked to hear of his retirement.

Starting twenty-seven years ago in the grocery business he is one of the very few in this city to make it a financial success. He has worked long and faithfully and has now retired—not a millionaire—but with a fortune not to be sneezed at. He has been before the public for a number of years as a member of the Board of Health, and also as a prominent politician, and it is quite within the bounds of probability that he may end his days in the civil service.

Trade is very good in Hamilton just now, although the prices of most commodities have advanced. The grocers make no effort to get better profits, but sit calmly down and let the manufacturers dictate to them a four or five-cent profit on all cereals, cocoas, etc. Gentlemen, organize, organize. You can't do it too soon.

INGERSOLL.

A novel and very pleasing social function was held in St. Paul's Church one night last week, being a shredded wheat banquet, provided, it is understood, by the manufacturers of the shredded wheat, and given under the auspices of the King's Daughters of the town. The event must have been a money-maker for the society, as over two hundred were in attendance, and the admission fee was fifty cents.

As an advertisement for shredded wheat, the method adopted in this instance would be hard to beat. Extremely artistic menu cards, depicting several tempting dishes that may be prepared with shredded wheat, and also the company's large factory, were laid near each plate, together with a generous sample of shredded wheat biscuits, which, in every instance, were carried home. The menu was one which demonstrated the various forms in which shredded wheat may be served. The banquet was brought to a conclusion with a splendid toast list, and while shredded wheat was firmly impressed upon the minds of all present, and the King's Daughters realized a handsome sum for sweet charity's sake, everyone had an enjoyable evening.

John Lenihan, who has been in the merchantile business here for many years, returned home last week from England and Ireland, where, with Mrs. Lenihan, he spent four weeks sight-seeing. One thing with which Mr. Lenihan was particularly impressed while in England was the small cost of fruit and vegetables. While he was there plums were selling at a cent a pound, and five pounds of potatoes could be obtained for four cents. This statement will certainly make many a Canadian turn with envious eyes to the Old Country, as the paltry sum will not go very far in preparing a meal in this country at present prices. A loaf of bread is about all that it is good for.

The Ingersoll Retail Merchants' Association, at one time a very aggressive and enthusiastic organization, seems to have lapsed into a Rip Van Winkle state. Several weeks, if not months, have rolled by since the public last learned of any activity on the part of this organization. It surely cannot be that there is no work for the merchants to consider. It is at this particular season of the year, with the Christmas trade drawing nigh that there are many important matters to be discussed. The merchants should certainly meet regularly as long as they are organized, and it really seems that the time has arrived for some one to shout, "Wake up"!

Grapes and peaches have been arriving in rather plentiful quantities during the past week. The former were placed on the market at thirty-five cents a basket, and the peaches, which earlier in the season were selling at $1.75 a basket, have dropped to $1.35, although it is understood that they are not first quality, being known as "seconds."

The most of the local merchants had large consignments for the Saturday trade, of both peaches and grapes, and the resulting competition was, no doubt, the means of lowering the price. One firm announced early that they would have three hundred baskets of grapes, which would be sold at twenty-five cents a basket, and, of course the other dealers were quick to follow their example.

A fat pocketbook is essential if one is going to make extensive purchases on the market these days. On Saturday the local market was well attended by buyers and sellers, but the demand was not as keen as in previous weeks, owing to the general advance in prices. Spring chickens were selling from 60 cents to a $1 a pair; eggs brought as high as 23 cents per dozen, while ducks sold at $1 and $1.20 per pair.

Reports from the various surrounding districts state that the potato crop is a good one. The yield is large and the quality better than usual. The potatoes are now being marketed, and many citizens are laying in their supply. The ruling price is one dollar a bag, but there are some who are confident that the price will drop to seventy-five cents in a short time.

In conversation with one of the leading apple exporters of this section, your correspondent learned that as high as $1.75 a barrel is being paid for choice apples for export shipment. The exporter was particular to point out, however, that this was by no means the ruling figure, as to command this price the fruit must be absolutely triple XXX. Taking the crop, as a whole, in this section, it will likely average up at about $1.25 a barrel, which is considered a very fair price. Although not as large as in some previous years, the apple crop this season is thought to be superior in quality. This, the exporter stated, was especially true of the Northern Spy.

A matter of much interest to the citizens of Ingersoll, and also of considerable interest to the public at large, is the movement here to abolish manual training and domestic science, departments which were introduced into the Ingersoll schools three years ago. There has been considerable opposition to these departments for some time, and the climax was reached last week when the matter was fully discussed at a meeting of the Board of Education. It was generally known that a motion dealing with these two departments would be introduced. A number of prominent citizens waited upon the Board and urged that the departments be not discontinued, and the mothers of the town sent in a petition with the same request. The outcome of the discussion was that a resolution was passed in which the Board disapproved of the departments, and asked that the Council take a plebiscite on the question at the elections in January.

Several merchants have received letters during the past few days which they regard as an attempt to swindle them. The letters, which are typewritten, state that by the death of a relative of the same name, as the party receiving the letter, he has been left five shares of Canadian Pacific Railroad stock. The writer, who, in each case, gives the name of Leonard B. Drummond, states that the shares are in his charge and will be forwarded to the person entitled to them upon receipt of his counsel fee of five dollars. The letters are undoubtedly frauds, and, as far as is known, the business men of Ingersoll were too wise to bite. Strange to say, the initial of the "deceased" in each of the letters is "L," and another suspicious feature is that while the letters give a New York address, they were sent out from Montreal. Merchants generally should be on the lookout for this plausible gentleman.

LONDON.

All stories relating to the local food and foodstuffs market just now are of the hard-luck variety. The scarcity, and consequent high price of fruits, have already been referred to in The Canadian Grocer. Now it is concerning butter that a tale of woe is told. It is predicted that the price of that commodity, which has been unusually high all the year, will advance to 40 cents in the near future, as owing to the character of the past summer, there is very little fodder on hand and already the farmers have started to feed from their winter's supply. In the vicinity of Westminster several of the dairymen are slaughtering the milch cows for beef, as owing to the scarcity of grass and other food they cannot afford to keep them through the winter, even with butter at the unusually high prices which rule at present. Local restaurant keepers are figuring on doing a big business the coming winter, as owing to the high price of meat, poultry, butter, eggs, etc., the number of business men dining down town every day is greatly increasing.

Specially gloomy is the outlook as to fodder, many people hereabouts wondering where they are going to get feed for their cattle. Middlesex is more fortunate than many of the other counties, because no matter how bad the drought may be it can always be taken for granted that Middlesex will be better off than most of its neighbors. With hay at $16 to $16.50 a ton, liverymen are not optimistic over the outlook. The big fellow does not view the situation with such alarm, but the man who does not rent hacks or coupes will be hard hit by the heavy prices..

Nor are matters in the least improved by the wheat situation, but rather the reverse. On Friday last the price took a jump to $1 a bushel, and while the farmer is happy, the consumer of flour, the price of which has not been affected, is in anything but a cheerful mood. "There was no wheat coming into the city," said J. I. A. Hunt, of Hunt Bros., in explanation of the advance, "so we decided to give the farmers a dollar straight to see if they could not be induced to market their wheat. It is simply a case of supply and demand. We could not get the wheat and we had to raise the price to see if it could be obtained. The farmers have been holding back their grain. How long the price will remain at a dollar, of course, I do not know. It will depend on the way the wheat comes in. The millers have to have the wheat and it does not seem to be coming in to meet the demand, so we had to raise the price." Mr. Hunt then contrasted the present condition of affairs with that of many years ago. Then there was a car of wheat a day shipped out of London, after the millers had an abundant supply. Then there were grain dealers who used to do nothing else than handle grain. That day was gone. There were no longer grain dealers. And now the millers could not get enough wheat to keep them going. Wheat last reached the dollar mark in March, 1905. A bad crop and short supply was the cause of the high price. The Russo-Jap war also contributed to the high price.

"Talk about soaring prices," said Ed. Ryan, of Ryan & Russell, this morning. "These men," pointing to Clem Garvey, of John Garvey & Co,, "are enough to drive any grocer out of business. Just fancy ! A week ago I paid $2.30 a sack for rolled oats, and I considered that high. To-day they are asking $3.10 for the same stuff, an advance of 80 cents in a week. If this sort of thing continues, people will find it cheaper to pay funeral expenses than buy food." And he looked longingly at a passing undertaker's wagon.

As yet there has been no advance in prices among retailers, but at a meeting of the association to be held to-morrow night the matter may be taken up.

With retailers, trade is a little quiet, the short preserving and pickling season having ended. Wholesalers, however, find business holding out well. The first arrival of new crop raisins was delivered to wholesalers on Monday and Tuesday. Brokers report prices of these goods for import to be very firm. The same may be said of currants, and to all appearances present figures are likely to hold. Tapioca is somewhat easier, and rice is firmer. Teas, coffees and sugars are unchanged, though raw sugars in New York are rather firmer. The first of this season's canning of kippered herring is coming in, prices abeing about the same as a year ago, and with continued cool weather, the demand for finan haddie increases, and in a few days they will be coming in more freely.

MONTREAL.

Despite all that was said to be forthcoming at the Retail Grocers' Association monthly meeting, that affair, when it did come off, was not so very exciting. Great things were anticipated, and there were some who were not going to be surprised if two or three bombshells burst.

It was thought that some definite action would be taken in the question of whether the Grocers' Association should cut loose from the Retail Merchants' Association, but there was really nothing done. The attendance at the meeting was a mere handful, and those who had been to the fore in speaking about separation at the September meeting, were, with one or two exceptions, nowhere to be seen.

It was distinctly understood at the September meeting that this important matter would be up for discussion at the October gathering, and that the members did not turn out in greater number does not prove their interest in the affairs of the association to be of the highest order. All but one of the officers were in attendance.

Explaining the absence of the majority of members, one of the officers stated that probably many did not expect the return of J. A. Beaudry, provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, from Europe so soon, and as they wished him to be present when the discussion came up, they did not think it worth while attending, presuming that the matter would be left open until the November meeting.

A few words were spoken about the misunderstanding which exists between the Association and the Federation, and there was a short discussion. J. D. Boileau, second vice-president, stated that he most emphatically objected to the Grocers' Association being run as he understood it was to-day. He believed that the association should be run primarily for the benefit of the grocers, then, anything it could do to help on the Retail Merchants' Association, well and good. His suggestion that the officers of the association hold a private meeting and discuss what had best be done, is a good idea, and should be acted upon. Then the officers who are entrusted with the welfare of the association by their brother grocers could report what conclusions they had come to at the next monthly meeting.

Provincial Secretary Beaudry's explanation of the St. John incident did not seem satisfactory to all the grocers. The opinion is that since the grocers form the greater number of the Montreal Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, they should play a part as important at least as that of other branches of the federation, in what is done by the larger body.

Mr. Beaudry received a warm welcome home from his many friends. He returned a little earlier than most people thought he would, but was none the less welcome for that. He is very popular with the trade in Montreal. While in Europe he attended the food fairs held in London and Paris, and also had the opportunity of studying conditions at retail in European countries. His observations will be embodied in an address he will deliver before the grocers, who will assemble at a special meeting. What he has to say will be awaited with interest.

When newly elected second Vice-President Boileau took his seat beside the the president he was loudly cheered, and blushingly (?) told the grocers that he would serve them well in his official capacity.

While speaking of the meeting, it might as well be stated that President Laniel has been wrongly taken up by many, and his actions incorrectly interpreted. His stand at present regarding the relations of the Grocers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association does not indicate his approval of the separation idea. What he wants is a satisfactory explanation of the present misunderstanding between the two bodies. As a grocers' association he believes that the society should be run by the grocers, for the grocers and their interests, first, last and all the time; then the members may consider what course they shall pursue in questions interesting the federation as a whole. President Laniel stated to The Canadian Grocer that he did not favor separation at present. He wants explanations. If they are forthcoming, and satisfactory, and if arrangements are made whereby the grocers will have more to say in what interests them and their society, he sees no reason why the grocers should form a separate association of their own.

City police are having their work cut out for them by burglars. Every week lately robberies have been reported from some section of the city. A couple of daring sneak thieves have been operating lately. The scheme they employ is, if nothing else, original. One dresses as an employe of the corporation and pretends that he has been sent to take measurements. Meanwhile his accomplice sneaks into the store and robs the safe or the till. A confectioner on Notre Dame Street lost $90 in this way, while the Rock City Tobacco Company, on Jacques Cartier Square, was robbed of $150. A Centre St. storekeeper suffered to the extent of $54.

PEMBROKE.

Business still keeps pretty brisk in our flourishing little town, and seems likely to continue. There has been a fairly large influx of mechanics from the Old Country, who, finding good work and wages, seem likely to settle down in town with their families, helping to swell the consumption of the good things kept by the trade.

Prices on the market for potatoes, tomatoes and other vegetables still keep about the same, but butter has advanced another 2c, bringing up the price to 30c a pound, and eggs are brisk at 20c a dozen.

The large quantity of fowls brought on the market sent the price down to 40c to 50c a pair, which same were quickly bought up. Imported grapes still sell briskly at 40c (6-quart basket), and local-grown apples, of which the supply is scarce, fetch 30c a patent pail, crab apples selling for 20c to 25c a pail. Some cranberries were also brought in to market, but were not in the pink of condition, being rather on the unripe side, and the price (75c a pail) being too high, did not find a ready sale.

Say, Mr. Editor, do you think your Guelph correspondent would oblige me with the names of those two careful grocers he mentioned last week who go playing round coal oil tanks with matches? I should like to get out an insurance policy on their lives, as a bit of speculation; but, perhaps, on second thought, I had better not, there might not be enough of them left to hold an inquest on, and the companies might refuse to pay up. Still, some mothers do have awkward children, don't they?

What a pity it is that the wholesale houses and jobbers do not exercise a little more care in the matter of giving credit. One sees some little store open up on little or no capital, and in charge of some one with little or no experience, and it is small wonder that after a year or two of trading the creditors receive, perhaps, the grand sum of 7c or 8c in the dollar. They should follow the example of the Old Country wholesalers, who usually require first-class trade references from all new customers.

QUEBEC.

Business is reported active in the grocery trade. Wholesalers are well satisfied with the present state of things. No change is noticed in prices, which are very firm. They are still receiving good orders from the country, and a good trade is being done in canned goods. Collections are satisfactory. Retailers report a brisk trade.

Fresh fish are very scarce for this time of the year, and a great many changes are noticed in the market quotations this week. Fishing is reported bad. We cannot get herring for less than $7,25, $1.50 per barrel dearer than last week. Salmon also advanced 50c per barrel, and is quoted :: No. 1, $17.50 ; No. 2, $16.50 ; No. 3, $15.

Trade continues brisk in local fruits. The demand is steadily increasing and collections are reported satisfactory. Prices are well maintained, and supplies are fairly large. The only changes noted are for Jamaica oranges, which show a decrease of a dollar per box. They are now priced at $5. Blue grapes, which were priced at 30c per basket, are quoted at 25c.

Butter shows another advance this week. Dairy is higher, owing to its scarcity. Dealers are asking fully a cent more than they were a week ago. The demand is very good. Choice creamery is quoted at 26½c to 28c per pound ; fresh dairy butter, 23c to 25c. Prices remain firm for cheese, with business only fair. Eggs are very firm at prices ranging from 23c to 25c. Maple sugar had another advance of a cent and is priced at from 9c to 10c per pound.

At the last meeting of the civic health committee, a couple of days ago, the question of grocers and others selling milk was brought up by Dr. Cotellier, secretary of the committee. Should they pay the same license as milkmen ? The matter was referred to the city attorneys.

In honor of the completion of his fiftieth year in business, the employes of W. McWilliam, the well-known local confectioner, assembled at the St. John street store and presented him with a handsome illuminated address and a signet ring. Mr. McWilliam made a feeling response to the good wishes of his employes, who later, to the number of fifty or more, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, at which song, speech and sentiment helped to pass a very enjoyable evening.

REGINA

Regina retailers are having a prosperous Fall. Perhaps no town in the West is growing faster than Regina, in none are more municipal improvements being made, and the retailers are sharing in the general prosperity. On the whole, the crops in the Regina district are good, although some of the district to the south-east has suffered. However, with high prices now prevailing, this year's crop should be worth practically as much as last year's.

Regina is rapidly becoming a wholesale centre of importance and it is confidently expected that a change in frenght rates is about to be made which will place Regina and several other western cities in a more favorable position as regards freight rates.

The latest wholesale change of importance is the purchase by Campbell Bros. & Wilson, Winnipeg, of the wholesale grocery business of the H. W. Laird Co. This purchase is merely another sign of the times. If the Winnipeg wholesale houses desire to retain and strengthen their hold on the entire west, they must establish branches in the western cities. The country is too big to be supplied from Winnipeg alone. This movement is now well under way and Regina expects to get her share of new branches started in Saskatchewan.

Cameron & Heap are a new wholesale firm in Regina, having been established only this summer. S. C. Burton is the manager in charge, Messrs. Cameron and Heap being in charge of the parent business in Kenora, Ont. This firm have a substantial brick warehouse with track accommodation on two sides. They are already doing a large business in Saskatchewan.

Honeyman, Haultain & Co have dissolved partnership and have formed a limited liability company known as the General Storage and Transfer Co.

A new wholesale produce company has recently been formed in Regina. It is known as the Drummond Produce Co. and has good business ability behind it. The president is R. H. Williams, the manager Jas. Drummond, and the secretary Jas. McLachlan. This firm are open to handle butter, eggs and poultry on commission.

The Young-Thomas Soap Co. is the latest addition to Regina industries. This company have a large three-storey brick factory and they are commencing to turn out a very high-class line of toilet soaps and washing powder. Their brands are "Young Tom" washing powder, Young's "Elite" toilet soap, "Prairie Flower" toilet soap and "Uncle Tom" tar soap. The officers of the company are: J. M. Young, president; J. W. Thomas, vice-president; and S. Young, secretary-treasurer. The new firm start business with every prospect of being able to build up a substantial business.

ST. CATHARINES.

The recent rains have improved the land and mellowed the soil so that farmers can plow and be prepared for next year's operations. The extreme dry weather that prevailed for so long prevented needed work on the farm. Last Saturday, though wet and cold, saw one of the biggest attendances at market for a good while. Hay, of which there were a good many tons, sold readily at $14 and $15 per ton. Potatoes have dropped to 80 cents per bushel. Tomatoes are fast coming into the canneries, the employes working long hours to keep pace with the business.

The article published in The Canadian Grocer regarding the Niagara canneries, was republished in the Standard on Monday, thus bringing The Grocer into prominence among the general public. The article appears to have given satisfaction, and has restored confidence in the canneries.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, who recently embarked in the grocery trade here, though doing a lucrative business, concluded to close up and have sold their goods. Mr. Ellis has returned to his trade as a painter.

Speaking with W. H. Merriman, one of our wholesale grocers, the question was asked: "How do you find business?" His reply was, "Never better." "You seem to be busy?" "Yes," he replied, "from early morning until late at night we are busy, in fact, we are always busy, and have hardly time to take a glance at the newspapers."

John Ross, the other principal wholesale grocer, speaks about in the same way. Mr. Ross is a good deal of the time on the road, looking after and for business. Both of these stores are fully packed with necessaries for the grocers' trade.

A recent heavy windstorm blew down a large quantity of fruit from the trees. The damaged fruit could be used by the housewife immediately, but was unfit for shipping.

Among the busy men one of the the busiest ones is Mike McGuire, who conducts a grocery and general jobbing business on St. Paul street west. He, at first confined himself to the grocery trade, then he added a meat stall, and later on went into jobbery, dealing in ready-made clothing, stoves, hardware, furniture, and has a second-hand store, so that he meets the customer in the various lines of trade.

All branches of trade appear to be on the increase, and as the population of St. Catharines has increased between five and six hundred during the past year, with mechanics, artisans, laborers and others busy at work, there is no cause for complaint from any quarter. The continuation of street paving was not resumed this year, owing to the stringency in the money market, the Council deciding to delay the work until 1908, when the city debentures might bring a higher value. In this decision they were supported by a good many of the property-owners along certain streets, but this view was not concurred in by others. The curbing on Ontario street has been laid, one of the preparatory works towards excavation and paving.

EDMONTON.

Business in Edmonton is rather quiet at present, due partly to the financial stringency and partly to the partial failure of the crops in this vicinity. Grocers report, however, that things are picking up somewhat and it is expected that in another month business will be as brisk as ever. Real estate, that has been rather too high during the past two years, creating something in the nature of a boom, is very slow now and things are gradually getting on to a sounder basis.

The formation of a local lodge of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association is contemplated in this city, and active steps are being taken towards that end. The association embraces all retail clerks employed in the shoe, drug, grocery, dry goods, clothing, furniture and hardware stores in the city. This will include a large part of the young men in Edmonton, and the formation of such a lodge, where they can meet regularly, should be of great benefit to the trade generally. A meeting of all the retail clerks will be held in the Mechanics' Hall next week for the purpose of organization.

On account of the scarcity of wheat all over the world flour and bread have been largely increased in price during the past few weeks. In flour there have been three advances in price within the past month and a half. It is now selling at $2.70 per hundred pounds wholesale, and from $2.90 to $3 per cwt., retail. As a consequence, the bakers have been forced to increase the price of bread. A pound and a half loaf now sells at 16 loaves for $1 loose, and 18 loaves for $1 wholesale. This makes but little difference to the consumer, as he will still get four loaves for 25 cents, as formerly. There is strong probability that there will be another increase in the price of bread before long.

Edmonton is in the throes of a fight to make an early-closing by-law stick. The fight has been going on for some time and there is no immediate prospect of a settlement. Over six months ago the city council decided that the time was ripe for the introduction of an early closing by-law. Petitions from the retail section of the Board of Trade and from the Trades and Labor Council urged that such a law should be passed. Some of the smaller merchants on the outskirts of the city, "pioneers of the city's expansion," as one of the aldermen called them, petitioned against such a by-law, but in spite of this opposition the early closing by-law was finally passed. In a short time the police summoned some offenders for violating this law. The case was brought up before the Police Magistrate and was dismissed because it was not properly advertised. The city officials once more set to work and again the by-law was passed. Recently two small shop keepers were summoned for keeping open after the prescribed hours, and the magistrate fined them $10 and costs. The case has been appealed on the ground that the city has no power in the charter to pass such a law. The appeal will be heard in the Supreme Court at the fall assizes in November, and the decision is being awaited with interest by all parties.

R. J. Gay, representative of the MacLean Publishing Company, was in the city recently on a business trip. Mr. Gay had been on a trip out to the Pacific coast and was on his way east. He reported everything as being in first-class condition in the parts of the west through which he had traveled, and business generally was good, considering the conditions.

TORONTO.

Things are booming in the grocery business out in Toronto Junction. With the growth of the town in population and industries, the demand for foodstuffs grows also, and the numerous stores in the district are pretty nearly all of them doing a lively business. Nor is this all. One or two are branching out just now in a way that evidences prosperity and good business.

For instance, J. H. Rowntree, of Rowntree & Co., who have been running an active business near the centre of the town, has opened a new store further west on Dundas street, and is making a strong bid for business in that locality.

R. A. Carter, who has a busy little store that you can scarcely turn round in, because of the large stock carried, on Dundas, just east of Quebec street, has evidently been making some money. He has let the contract for a first-class new brick and stone store and dwelling on the southeast corner of Dundas and Quebec streets. The building, of which the foundation is already finished, will be 60x25 feet, with store and warehouse on the ground floor and household apartments and a couple of offices on the floor above. The building promises to be a credit to the corner.

Just a little east of Quebec, there are a couple of stores not yet occupied. These, a grocery, with meat shop adjoining, were built by T. Stewart, with the idea of selling or renting them. Lately, however, the owner has changed his mind and expects to occupy these stores himself in a short time.

Rowntree & Co., in one of the windows of their store on a prominent corner on Dundas street, have an attractive display of tea in long tin boxes, lithographed with their own name. This is one of the firm's specials, a line which they say pays remarkably well. The tea is a special blend, made particularly for them, and packed this way in tin boxes of halves and pounds it keeps its qualities better than most of the package teas. The tins are lithographed in three colors to distinguish the different grades, and on the pantry shelves of their customers must be a mighty good advertisement.

Grocers in the Junction have their troubles, too, with the roads. Dundas street, where most of the traffic is carried on, is in a most disgraceful shape. When it rains the roadway is nothing more nor less than a series of mudholes, and it's pretty sticky mud at that. When it dries things are not a great deal better, for then the dust is very bad. Between the two extremes it's almost impossible to keep a passably respectable looking delivery wagon. Just now conditions are worse than usual, for with the building of the new sewers, banks of clay are being built up all along the sidewalk and roadway on Dundas street. The other streets are not quite so bad, but a heavy rain puts any of them into poor condition.

This, combined with the distance covered, makes cost of delivery rather an important item out in this district. In the course of half a day, for instance, a wagon may have to travel from Lambton, on the west, to the Prospect cemetery district, in the east, and from St. Clair avenue down almost to High park on the south. This, with muddy roads, takes a good deal of time.

Toronto Junction is in a peculiar position in another way, in regard to telephones, the district being blessed, or otherwise, some people say, with two systems. To be able to cater to the general trade, the grocer has to have connection with both.

The independent system has been steadily growing, till now, with between four and five hundred subscribers, it covers the town fairly well. It has no city connection, however, and to be really in touch with business at the wholesales and the city markets, one has to fall back on the Bell system.

Down in East Toronto and at the Beaches there are a number of as up-to-date groceries as will be found anywhere in the city. They're doing a mighty good line of business, too, in this district that is rapidly growing up down in the east end.

Patterson Bros. have just gotten into their brand new store across the railway bridge in East Toronto and are smilingly happy over the ease with which they are doing business under up-to-date conditions. The new store is certainly a great improvement over the old one and is attracting a good deal of favorable comment, and, incidentally, some new business, from the surrounding district.

The grocers down in this section have in one way, an advantage over their brethren of the scales and scoop nearer the city. Many of them waylay, by perfectly fair means, of course, the farmers on their way to the city and get the best of the produce that's being taken in. Getting it in this way, they have considerably more choice than city grocers who do a produce business, and this may be one reason for their success.

Down around the corner of Queen and Lee Avenue, there are two or three stores that are doing a rattling business. Just now a new brick building is being put up on the northwest corner for Pizer & Smith, who now have a tidy, though crowded, little store, a few doors further west.

One difficulty run against every day down in this district is the task of keeping delivery wagons clean. Roads are not to be spoken of as such at any time, and everyone knows just how muddy it usually is on Queen Street after a rain. Delivery means a good deal down here, too, for the district to be supplied is as wide—from the lake shore north to no one knows where, and from Scarboro west to the eastern parts of the city—as one regularly cares to cover. As the district fills up, this will be cut down considerably. One redeeming feature is that the people served here are altogether of a pretty satisfactory class. Some remarkably good business is done by one or two men with the Hunt Club and some of the large houses on the Kingston Road.

WINNIPEG NOTES.

The W. H. Stone Co. have moved into their handsome new store on Main street. This building, with its fixtures, cost $40,000, and it is undoubtedly one of the finest stores in Canada. A formal opening was held one evening not long ago, and the customers and friends of the firm were sent special invitations to attend. An orchestra discoursed sweet music, and the function was a big success, several hundred people attending during the course of the evening. Next week's issue of The Canadian Grocer will contain an illustrated description of this store.

A. Hendry informs The Canadian Grocer that his business is increasing by leaps and bounds since his enforced removal to new quarters on Portage avenue. He has doubled his staff of clerks, and although his new store is very much larger than the old one on Notre Dame avenue he is already crowded for room. All of which goes to show that Portage avenue is about the best retail street in the city.

A leading Winnipeg grocer, in conversation with a Canadian Grocer representative the other day, expressed his hearty appreciation of the work being done by the Winnipeg Retail Grocers' Association.

"The most useful work the association is doing," said he, "is the securing of reliable information about slow-pay customers. We grocers might not give it to each other, but we don't mind telling the secretary that certain of our customers are into our books for certain amounts. You see its like this: Suppose Mrs. Jones has been dealing with me three months and owes me $100. She hasn't paid me and I begin to shut down on giving her any goods. She must have groceries, and so she goes to Smith, the grocer across the street. Smith is doubtful about her and he rings me up, knowing that she has been a customer of mine. Now, I know perhaps that Mrs. Jones is going to Smith for credit, because she wants to settle with me. If I tell Smith she is slow pay, he will refuse her credit, and I can't get my money. The temptation is too strong for most of us grocers—we are only human and selfish.

"But it's quite another thing for us to give the secretary of our association a confidential list of our bad customers. We are all doing it now, and the secretary can give us information about anyone in town."

Winnipeg grocers are insisting pretty strictly now on a system of monthly accounts, and, in fact, a great many are getting pretty close to a strictly cash system of business. There has been a general movement in this direction during the last few months.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock doesn't get the condenser factory, we confidently expected. A letter from the Borden Condensed Milk Company put an end to the hopes of the city to secure the new industry. It declared that the company was disappointed in the quantity of milk they were able to get promised during the canvass, and did not believe they were warranted in making the heavy expenditure to erect a plant, when there was no assurance that the milk supply would be sufficient, so that it might be operated at a reasonable profit. The company is negotiating with Tillsonburg, and the people there are confident that they will get the factory. It is said that the company got a sufficient guarantee of milk there, by buying out the supplies of several of the cheese factories.

"Why is it that the medical health officer does not get after the Italian fruit vendors who sell rotten bananas to children?" said a local physician to your correspondent the other day. He added that fruit which was in a state of decay was absolutely dangerous, and liable to cause cholera morbus and other serious disorders. There is no question but that a considerable quantity of such fruit is disposed of to those who are unable to discriminate between what is healthful and what is not. Dealers naturally do not like to have a lot of fruit spoil on their hands, and so they cut prices, which bring it within the reach of the boys and girls.

A suggestion came from a merchant the other day that an endeavor should be made to get all the merchants and business men to agree to close their stores and places of business one afternoon each week, all the year, instead of just during two or three months in the summer. Lots of arguments may be found for the proposal, but it is not likely that it will come very soon. It is a comparatively new idea, and it will take just as long to work it out as it did to bring people to realize the advantages of a weekly half-holiday in the summer. But if a weekly half-holiday is good for employers and employes in three months, it is surely good for them all the year; if such action proves in the end no detriment to trade for three months, it would surely work out the same way if continued all the year. It is a suggestion which business men all over the country might do

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

J. Messervey, of Prince Edward Island, has been in the city the past week and has placed a large quantity of P.E.I. produce for fall shipment. Mr. Messervey is well known in this colony.

J. A. Dolan, of Lynch Bros. & Dolan, left for Sydney after a good business trip. This was Mr. Dolan's first trip to the colony, but he made himself very popular while here and carried away a large number of orders. Jas. Urquhart will represent and carry a full stock of their goods in this market.

F. Fitzpatrick has sold out his grocery business to P. Duffy and has not decided at present what he will do.

R. Fennell, one of our Duckworth St. grocers, has recently fitted up a fine office. Mr. Fennell does a large business.

T. J. Edens is advertising special values in teas, etc. Mr. Edens carries a fine stock of fancy goods.

C. P. Egan's two stores are busy these days. Mr. Egan is a thorough grocer and carries one of the finest lines in the city. By strict attention to business and square dealing, he has built up an enviable business. He carries an exceptionally fine line of imported biscuits, fruits and vegetables.

Thos. Smyth Co. are to-day doing a larger business than ever. Their fruit trade at this time of year is immense. They import most of their fruit from the Annapolis Valley.

H. Tupper, of the Union Grocery, is receiving large quantities of plums from P.E.I. and is making some very attractive prices on them.

Dealers are already placing their fall orders for poultry from P.E.I. Prices promise to be high this fall.

D. J. Curtin, the grocer, returned from a vacation trip to the Old Country. To say Dan had a good time is drawing it mild. If he could be prevailed upon to write up his trip for The Grocer, it would make interesting reading. Dan can sling the pen for fair.

MONTREAL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION UNDECIDED AS TO FUTURE COURSE

Small Attendance Precluded Definite Action Being Taken at Monthly Meeting —Explanation of St. Johns Incident—J. D. Boileau Speaks Out—Over One Hundred New Members.

The Montreal Retail Grocers' Association still forms a part of the Retail Merchants' Association.

On Thursday evening of last week the monthly meeting of the former association was held, and although the question as to whether separation was advisable came up, and was discussed more or less freely, no definite action was taken.

To tell the truth, the attendance was very small, and those who were to the fore at the last meeting of the association, and who were looking for explanations from the federation, were not present in number.

President Laniel occupied the chair, while First Vice-president J. A. Dore and Secretary A. Sarrazin were there also, and Second Vice-president J. D. Boileau took his seat for the first time since his election.

After some routine business, President Laniel broached the subject of the misunderstanding which existed between the Retail Grocers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association, of which the former is a part. He commented on the publicity which had been given the separation idea in the press, and intimated that discussion of the question would be in order.

J. A. Maynard spoke about the advantages of being connected with the Retail Merchants' Association, and could see no reason why things should not go on as they had in the past.

The president raised the question of the St. John incident. He felt that a grave injustice had been done the grocers, who were admittedly the most powerful body in the Montreal branch of the Federation, in not having them represented by a delegate at the convention in St. John.

Mr. Beaudry Explains.

Provincial Secretary J. A. Beaudry of the Retail Merchants' Association, who has just returned from Europe arose to explain the reason of the grocers' non-representation at St. John.

According to what Mr. Beaudry said in July last there was held at St. Johns, Que., the annual meeting of the Provincial Board of the Retail Merchants' Association. There are supposed to be delegates at this meeting from all the branches in Quebec Province, Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, Sorel and other centres. Five delegates are chosen annually to represent the Montreal branch. These men are chosen from the officers and ex-officers of the various trade sections comprising the Montreal branch, and they are nominated at a meeting of the officers and ex-officers which is called for the purpose.

In June this year the meeting was held, as usual, and the nominations resulted in the following gentlemen being sent to St. Johns: J. O. Gareau, W. U. Boivin, Dry Goods Association; J. G. Watson, Boot and Shoe Dealers' Association; Jean Lamoreux, Butchers' Association. J. A. Beaudry was the fifth delegate. Mr. Beaudry explained that President Laniel was not at this meeting, though there were several grocers in attendance. Ex-President Daoust was nominated to represent the Grocers' Association at the convention, but he explained that while he had been able to attend the year before, he would not be in a position to go on this occasion. As a result, the grocers were not represented at the convention at all, except by the provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Mr. Beaudry further stated that the grocers, being in the majority in the Montreal Branch of the Federation, naturally had more ex-officers to choose a representative from, and there was no reason why they should not be well represented.

All said and done, however, this explanation did not seem to satisfy all the grocers at the meeting. They were of the opinion that the Grocers' Association should have had a delegate to look after their interests at the provincial convention.

Before concluding, Mr. Beaudry said he was very sorry that any misunderstanding should exist. He spoke of the benefits of a thorough system of organization among the retail merchants of the Dominion. He made little of the St. Johns incident after his explanation, and pointed out that the Grocers' Association had always been represented in delegations which had gone to Ottawa, Quebec or elsewhere to interview the Government or others on subjects of interest to the retail trade of the country.

J. D. Boileau Wants Changes.

J. D. Boileau, 2nd vice-president, said that he certainly did not consider the manner in which the Retail Grocers' Association was being run at present at all satisfactory. Things were not going as they should, and there ought to be a general clean-up; explanations and rearrangements. He thought it a good idea for the grocers to be affiliated with the Retail Merchants' Association for the purpose of working hand in hand with the other sections of the trade in questions of common interest, but he did not think that the Retail Grocers' Association should continue in its present course.

In his opinion, it was all right to pay a certain amount into the funds of the Federation, but there was no sense in pouring into their coffers as much as the grocers are now doing. Let the grocers themselves run the Retail Grocers' Association, all the while maintaining friendly relations with the Retail Merchants' Association, as he already stated, for the good of all the trade.

A Good Suggestion.

He suggested the officers holding a private meeting, when they might discuss the pros and cons of the situation, and decide upon what would be the best course to pursue. They could then report at the next monthly meeting of the association.

This was all that happened in this connection, and the question of the association's future rests practically where it was.

A resolution of condolence was passed and a copy sent to J. A. Dufresne, one of the members of the association, on his recent bereavement.

One hundred and sixteen new members were proposed and accepted for membership. This brings the membership of the Grocers' Association up to nearly seven hundred.

President Laniel regretted that attendance at the monthly meetings was not larger. Questions of the utmost importance to the grocers of the city, such as taxes, licenses, etc., were taken up and dealt with at these meetings, and by attending them the grocer was serving his own interests and the interests of the retail grocery trade at large.

PETERBOROUGH.

Travelers for local wholesale grocery establishments report business as exceedingly brisk at the present time. The retail men are laying in their goods for the Christmas trade, and the representatives of the wholesale houses are having no difficulty in securing orders. They state that business is better than it has been for several months.

The Peterborough Board of Trade is considering the feasibility of holding a banquet in the near future, the intention being to have some prominent commercial man from an outside point give an address. Geo. A. Gillespie, of the firm of White & Gillespie, grocers, is one of the most prominent members of the Board, and is president of the Board of Trade Council.

American apple buyers have been through this district buying apples. The crop in the county is a plentiful one this year, and good prices are being paid. Apples are also being shipped from here to Glasgow.

J. E. Pollard & Sons, of this city, have purchased the bakery business at 104 Sherbrooke street, formerly conducted by Mr. J. B. Cuncannon. The new proprietors intend making extensive improvements to the premises, and developing the business in other respects.

The amount of cheese boarded on the Peterborough Board this season, to date, totals about 1,000 boxes less than for the same period last season. The output of cheese in the district is considerably below that of last year, the pasturage being poor for several months, while the scarcity of labor has made it impossible to keep as many cows as formerly.

R. B. Nowell, Montreal, who looks after the Canadian interests of Lamont, Corliss & Co., New York, American agents for Peters' chocolate, Nestle's milk chocolate, and X-Ray stove polish, is in Toronto this week. An active sampling canvass of X-Ray stove polish is in progress in Ontario.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND ANTICIPATES BUMPER CROP

All Prices Firm—Egg Receipts Light and Quotations High—40,000 Barrels of Apples for the English Market—P.E.I. Crop Outlook.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 10.

All the markets are very firm and prices rule high. There is only a fair business passing at present, and jobbers are a little puzzled over the market conditions, the uncertainty of prices having a bad effect generally.

There is a considerable movement of crops in Nova Scotia, the fruit growers in the Annapolis and Cornwallis valleys being particularly busy. In Prince Edward there is likely to be a big crop of potatoes and oats, and some of the farmers in Nova Scotia will also have very large stocks of potatoes. On one farm in Colchester county, owned by a Halifax man, will be harvested one thousand bushels of potatoes, whereas the yield was not expected to reach more than five hundred bushels. They are of fine quality, and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather for growing, there is very little rot in the potatoes. The large crops of potatoes will be welcome to the farmers this season, who will use part of the crops to feed their cattle, owing to the high price of hay.

The butter situation shows very little change as regards prices or receipts. Dairy in tubs is worth from 22 to 25 cents and creamery from 26 to 27 cents. During the week one Halifax commission firm received four hundred boxes of butter from Montreal. He purchased this butter last June and had it stored in Montreal until the end of September, and he will now reap a handsome profit on his holdings. Cheese is firm at 13 cents for large and 13½ cents for small.

The receipts of eggs are very light and they are quoted at 23 cents. The demand is not very heavy, as most of the stock marketed is not to be depended upon.

The flour and feed markets are very firm and prices continue their upward tendency. Prices of flour are from $1.30 to $1.50 per barrel higher than they were at this season last year. Cornmeal is about $1.75 per bag, and $3.50 per barrel.

The total apple shipment from Halifax last week was the largest of any week so far this season, nearly forty thousand barrels being sent to the English market. The Furness liner Shenandoah took 27,000 barrels; the Elder-Dempster liner Melville 3,000 barrels for South Africa; the Allan line Numidian, for Glasgow, took 4,000 barrels, and other shipments aggregate about 4,000 barrels.

The West India liner Sobo is landing 7,000 packages of sugar, besides a quantity of lime juice, molasses and rum.

Prince Edward Island anticipates bumper crops this year. The farmers all over Prince county are now putting in their oats, which is one of the best crops on record. Notwithstanding the abundant crop, the prices will be good. New potatoes are about ripe, but the later varieties are still green. The prospect of a good yield was never better, although some rot is reported in the lowlands. The other root crops are magnificent, wheat being especially good.

MRS. DICKIE'S GROCERY.

Herewith is shown the photograph of a grocery store conducted for many years past by Mrs. L. J. Dickie, at South Oshawa, Ont. Mrs. Dickie has been successful in building up an excellent trade in her district, and, as well as carrying a full stock of groceries, conducts a provision business and a small crockery and glassware department. Her turnover amounts to about $12,000 a year. She gives only one week's credit, and says that during the last six years she has not accumulated more than $50 worth of arrears. In place of the dwelling shown in the photo, Mrs. Dickie has erected a two-storey brick building, in which is now installed the South Oshawa post office, which Mrs. Dickie attends to in connection with her other duties. Unfortunately, of late years Mrs. Dickie has felt the work to be growing too much for her, and this, in conjunction with ill-health, has decided her to sell the business. We are glad, incidentally, thus to be able to bring to the notice of our readers an opportunity of acquiring an old-established and growing business at a very reasonable figure. Any inquiries should be addressed to Mrs. L. J. Dickie, South Oshawa P.O., Ont.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Scott & Co., bakers and confectioners, of Moose Jaw, Sask., have assigned.

Charles Pearson, general store keeper, at Sayabec, Que., has assigned to V. E. Paradis.

John Horton, of Windsor, manufacturer of soda water, has sold out to Geo. W. Edwards, Henry Baynton, baker and confectioner, of Parkhill, has sold his business to F. W. Rowbotham.

The McCurry Co., of Toronto, manufacturers of drug and grocers' sundries, has assigned to H. Dickenson, and the business has been closed up.

The business of Williams & Co., pickle manufacturers, Toronto, has been sold to Geo. Williams, who will continue as Williams & Son.

The general store at Dublin, Ont., which has been under the control of the James Canning estate, has been taken over by Peter Dill.

A GROCER FOR 25 YEARS.

One of Toronto's oldest grocers, James Duff, who has carried on a business at 21 Howard St. for over a quarter of a century, died on Monday after a lengthy illness. Mr. Duff was born in Niagara in 1838; was in his earlier years a boilermaker, and a government steamboat inspector, and later ran a flour and feed business in Yorkville. In 1882 he opened the store at 21 Howard St. and has done steady business during the growth of that section of the city. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. F. and F. Britton. The funeral was held on Wednesday to St. James cemetery.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition in the Dominion House, has selected rural mail delivery as one of the planks of his platform. It looks very nice, everyone will admit, but beyond the ornamental quality its usefulness is nil. The delivery of postal matter through the rural districts would be a splendid thing, but the people of Canada need not expect the convenience of such a service for a few years yet. The scheme is not practicable, and we believe that Mr. Borden must know it. At any rate, he has never attempted to go into details regarding the probable cost, and the method of operation. He simply points to last year's surplus of $1,000,000, in the Post Office Department, and promises that if he were at the head of the Government it would be spent in the manner mentioned above.

Suppose Mr. Borden were Premier of Canada, and had that million dollars. How would he dispose of it to the best advantage? Certainly not in establishing rural mail delivery. Our postal facilities require improvement far nearer the foundation of the system than that. In 1906 there were 347 post offices opened, the greater number in the West. From this new country come a multitude of complaints regarding the inefficiency of the mail service. The surplus, and a good deal more along with it, should be spent in remedying the present unsatisfactory conditions there. The first step in this direction must take the form of better remuneration to postmasters. That is where the fault lies. These men are generally merchants as well and it cannot be expected that they will give the proper amount of time and attention to the work if they do not receive proper salaries for doing so. The existing state of affairs cannot be charged to the railway companies; they are giving good service. The blame belongs to the Post Office Department alone, and a portion of that million dollars would go a long way toward setting matters right.

The catalogue houses will exert themselves in support of rural mail delivery, just as they are doing with respect to extension of the parcels post service. Both may come in time, but not while present conditions prevail in the Canadian retailing system.

Across the line rural mail delivery has been operated in several States. For a long time the expense of maintaining it was very heavy, and it is only now that a few sections have attained a position where they do not show a big deficit. Then the service has always been used for the production of political capital by the party in power.

LESS ADULTERATION.

Dominion Analyst McGill's latest report, which deals with his analysis of maple sugar collected from every part of Canada, cannot fail to interest and encourage all makers and likers of pure maple goods. Of 257 samples collected, 185 were genuine, 57 adulterated, 10 doubtful, and 5 mixture. This is a good showing, 71.98 per cent. pure. The result of the test of maple sugar samples collected in Montreal and Quebec could hardly be more satisfactory, as not one lot was found to be adulterated. Such an improvement in the purity of maple goods must be attributed largely to the Government's new ruling with regard to the labeling of packages. Under the old regulations there were many lines of supposedly pure goods offered for sale, which were out-and-out mixtures of adulterations. As it is to-day, the manufacturer comes out flat-footed and everybody can see for himself whether the contents of a package are pure or adulterated. Such reports as that just issued cannot fail to carry great influence with Canadian trade, if they are circulated freely in the right quarters.

MUST KEEP ON FIGHTING.

The annual report of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, which has just been published, emphasizes the continued growth of the retail mail order business and the great place it is coming to hold in the distribution of merchandise. It appears while during the calendar year 1905 the company's net sales were $27,604,253, and in 1906 were $37,943,472, that for the year ending June 30 last they were $50,722,839. There is thus an increase in the volume of business for the year covered by the report of more than 80 per cent. over that of the calendar year 1905. These figures enforce the seriousness of the competition which the regular merchants are called upon to meet and the need for unrelaxing efforts and increased enterprise and energy in their conduct of business.

There is also brought up anew to wholesale distributors and manufacturers serious problems in regard to the effect of the mail order business on the regular distribution of merchandise. In this condition of things, which does not promise to become more favorable for the marketing of goods in old channels, the Iron Age points out that it may be that the manufacturers and jobbers will have to see to it that the retail merchants of the country obtain their goods on something like as advantageous terms as do the catalogue houses.

CAR SHORTAGE AGAIN.

Once more the period for the annual shortage of cars and the immense transportation difficulties entailed has rolled around. The effect of the increased demand on the railways has been felt for the past couple of weeks, and several instances might be cited showing how goods shipped three weeks or a month ago have been delayed three weeks and a half beyond what they should have been. The grocery trade is likely to feel keenly the shortage in several ways. The movement of the western crops will call into requisition thousands of cars which are usually employed in hauling merchandise in eastern and central Canada, and this shortage, apparently, the railroads cannot overcome, try as they will. The situation in Canada, however, to be optimistic, might be worse, but across the line they are experiencing great difficulties. California packers are at their wits' end to secure cars for shipment of their dried fruits. In one instance, packers are reported six hundred and fifty cars short. In Canada there are hopes of improvement. The Grand Trunk Pacific is nearing completion, and once it is operating its entire length the situation will be considerably relieved. The States, however, appear to be at the end of their tether. Just the other day no less a personage than James J. Hill stated that railroad building had reached its climax there, and all that remained to relieve the situation was to improve transportation facilities by water. This, he thought, would permit of better conditions being realized in the railway world.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Raisins—Firmer.
Flour—Advanced 20 cents.
Beans—Advanced.
Currants—Strong.
Honey—Firmer.
Dairy Produce—Advanced.

Montreal, Oct. 10, 1907.

Recent advances in cereals form the feature of the grocery markets this week. Flour was advanced on Monday 20 cents a barrel, making prices higher than they have been for a long time. Rolled oats are high, while pot barley, and other such lines, are either advanced or very firm. Valencia and Sultana, as well as California, raisins continue firm. Buyers are not coming forward as usual, however, apparently waiting for lower figures. Bosnia prunes are being offered locally. Nuts are firm all round, and there are some advances. New date prices are expected any day. No prices have been issued as yet by the canners, who are still packing their tomatoes and corn. Quebec factories are through for the season. Teas continue exceedingly scarce, and firm markets rule on all grades. Syrups are in demand, but molasses is quiet. Beans are strong, and have been advanced. If present indications are correct, still higher figures will be demanded in the near future. Sugars are steady at unchanged prices. Coffees and spices are moving as usual. Honey is firmer. Dairy produce is higher, particularly butter. The increased domestic demand for butter is causing somewhat of a surprise in the trade, since the Old Country, as a rule, has taken Canada's butter in the past.

Fall importations from the Old Country are now being received. From what can be learned the lumber trade this season will not be up to the average year. The lumbermen will not begin operations as early as usual, and in consequence will not require such a quantity of supplies.

SUGAR—A steady consumptive demand is reported, but there is no excitement, nor special interest displayed in the refined article. Quotations have been stationary for the past while, and do not show any likelihood of changing at the time of writing.

TEA—All teas continue exceedingly scarce and firm. Japans, Ceylons, Indians, all varieties, are as firm as they have been for the past couple of months. Buyers are looking for cheap teas, but find it impossible to secure anything that will interest their customers, unless they pay the price. Showing how teas have advanced, Japans, which sold two years ago at 10 cents, are now being quoted at 18 cents, an advance of 80 per cent., but even at present prices people are glad to get hold of anything offering.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—There appears to be an all round firm feeling in dried fruits. Of late prices on Valencia and Sultana raisins and currants have been advancing, and the tone of the market is quite firm. Valencias are 1s. 6d. to 2s. above lowest figures, and the feeling in the market is anything but easy. Buyers, however, are not coming forward, preferring to hold off in expectations of lower prices, which certainly do not appear to be in sight to-day, for fruit required for the holiday trade. Sultana raisins are being quoted all the way from 9 cents to 13½ cents, to the retailer. New Sultanas are due here toward the middle or end of next week. There is considerable speculation as to how the market will hold, as it is known that while the crop of Sultanas was some 10,000 tons, at least 6,000 tons were rain damaged, and much of this fruit will find its way onto the market, and may have the effect of hurting the sale of the 4,000 tons of good raisins. Latest advices quote Sultanas up 2s. Since last week there has been little change in the Californian situation. Some fear is expressed about delay in deliveries. Both raisins and prunes are very firm. Lots of Bosnia prunes are now being offered, at prices ranging from 7 to 10 cents. Currants are up 1s. The first direct steamer, now on its way to Montreal, carries 1,160 tons of currants, equal to 25,000 cases, and 1,500 tons Valencia raisins, meaning about 100,000 boxes. This is the heaviest cargo she has ever brought to Montreal. New crop dates are expected by the first direct steamer to New York, which will arrive about the end of the month. Prices are likely to be made any day now. Owing to the short crop of Hallowees, prices will be about ½-cent. above last year. Figs have been advanced, owing to the crop not coming up to expectations. October shipment goods are 2s above September shipment. This is equal to about ½-cent a pound advance. The market for Tarragona almonds has been considerably excited of late. Prices dropped 5s. and have recovered 2s. At present dealers are quoting around 12 to 12½ cents. Prices are out on new crop walnuts, but are exceedingly high, showing a cost for Grenobles, of 14 cents; Marbots, 12 cents, and French, 10½ cents. Business is not brisk at these figures, as old crop walnuts are selling 3 cents lower. New pecans are being sold 2½ cents below old prices, which were around 17 cents. Filberts have not changed.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—The new prices on corn and tomatoes, which have not yet been issued, are promised for this week, or at least some news of the pack has been promised the wholesalers. Quebec packers are through for the season, but, of course, their output is small, being hardly more than ten per cent. of Canada's pack. They pack chiefly tomatoes and some corn. Deliveries of canned salmon are now being made. Canned fish of other kinds and canned meats are selling fairly well.

TORONTO — New prices on corn and tomatoes will probably have been given out by the time this is in print. Everyone looks for high prices and short deliveries, opinions being graded according to temperament and natural pessimism, or the reverse. A representative of the Canadian Canners called on the trade on Wednesday and said that probably from 60 to 75 per cent. of deliveries on present orders would be made by the company. All fruits, with the exception of plums, which will be a fair average, are very short. The tomato and corn pack is now practically at an end.

A Maryland firm say of the general outlook for the tomato pack on the other side :

"As reports continue to come in from various packers, almost without exception, the advices are the same : 'Cancel order for last car of cans. We will be fortunate in filling cans on hand, as the rain last Saturday put an end to tomatoes on the vine.' Nearly every large house is making its final run, while it may be possible here and there that a small factory may obtain a few tomatoes—remnants from the large houses—to keep running for a week or more. The tomato packing season of 1907 is practically over and the shipping season will now begin in good earnest, for it has been next to impossible to load and ship while the rush was on; it was impossible to secure enough help for packing, much less shipping, consequently, many buyers have been kept waiting, when the packer wished that things would be otherwise, but he could not, as he did not have the help sufficient to make shipments. One packer writes that, 'where we were losing tomatoes last week we are paying 16 cents per basket to-day.' Others report that the stock coming in is too poor to justify keeping their houses open longer. The west is buying tomatoes; as the market advances, they follow the advance promptly. Reliable reports indicate that the western packing season also began late. If the west should have frost, even though they may have escaped the two serious flooding rains experienced in the east, the market would probably bound from 2½ to 5 cents per day until the dollar mark or over is reached."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—Prices expected daily.
Sugar—Steady.
Plmus—About done.
Potatoes—Market improved.

Toronto, Oct. 10, 1907.

The subject around which interest has centred during the week under review, is canned goods. The Canadian Canners are supposed to have had a meeting on Tuesday, of this week, and to have continued the session on Wednesday, but no prices have been given to the trade up to the time of writing. A representative of the Canners, in conversation with The Grocer on Wednesday, stated that the company would be in a position to deliver a larger percentage on corn and tomatoes than was generally expected. He put the figure at from 60 per cent. to 75 per cent. It is, of course, in the interests of the canners to do a little extra hustling, with a view of avoiding the rebate which is due from them on all deliveries under 60 per cent., but the impression among the trade here has been that this season the crop has not been large enough to admit of a pack sufficient to cover more than half the orders booked. Sugar remains steady, with a declining consumptive demand, due to the closing of the fruit preserving season. Tapioca is selling remarkably well under stiff prices. All stocks of teas are very light, and no new shipments have arrived on the market during the week.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, Oct, 10.

BUTTER—Market featureless.

CHEESE—Steady market.

EGGS—Tone of market firm. Business fairly brisk.

PROVISIONS—No change in situation. Lard continues firm.

Business, as a whole, while not remarkable, has been satisfactory. The chief difficulty experienced by the majority of wholesalers is in getting the goods to fill orders. Even at the general high prices prevailing, the inquiry has been very strong, this applying especially to all canned goods. The shortage on these latter seems only to accentuate the demand.

TEA—Stocks of all grades are lower than they have been, certainly, for many years, and, in the opinion of some wholesalers, since the first grocery store started business in Toronto. There are some Ceylon greens on the way, which are to take the place of Japans, and some Ceylon blacks and Indians which were bought some time ago, before the present crisis. These are expected on the market in about ten or fifteen days.

Mail advices from London, under date of Sept. 26, say:

"The possibility of a shortage in the total Indian supplies for this market has had a stimulating effect on the demand for low priced tea, with the result that the quantity of leaf obtainable at 6½d. has been smaller than last week. At the moment, it seems as if this tendency would continue, for although there is a good deal of common tea printed for next sales, orders are already plentiful, while the fairly extensive shipping enquiry for leaf under 7d. is a factor to be taken into consideration.

"The details which we publish, giving the imports of tea into Russia during the first six months of the year, throw an interesting light on the position of Indian and Ceylon tea in that country, for it is evident that the high market ruling has not resulted in a return to the use of China sorts. The increase of British growths shipped during the period, as given in our circular recently, amounted to six millions, while the Russian imports of all kinds were five millions heavier than last year, thus leaving a further one million lbs. of China displaced by India and Ceylon. The use of no less than 12½ millions more Brick tea is a noteworthy feature and accounts for the high prices realized for Dusts in Calcutta and Colombo."

COFFEE—The world's visible supply on Sept. 1, of this year, was 16,004,313 bags; on Aug. 1, 1907, 16,075,812, and on Sept. 1, 1906, 10,756,653. Stocks of all kinds in the United States amounted to 3,862,690 bags on Sept. 1 of this year; to 3,933,190, a month ago, and to 3,190,701 on Sept. 1, 1906. The situation, locally, is quiet and unchanged.

Willett & Gray, New York, say of the crop situation:

"The movement of the crop continues to run below the average for this period, in crops which gave about 10,000,000 bags, and the receipts for the first three months of the season have heretofore given a fair idea of the outturn of similar crops. Some cables have been received here predicting that receipts will decrease somewhat, but, judging from former years, the October receipts have usually ranged about the same as in September, so that any sensible reduction may not be expected until November.

"Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, London, have just issued the £3,000,000 sterling Valorization Loan for the Federal Government of Brazil at 95, as foreshadowed in this report last week.

"The country continues to buy coffee from hand to mouth only, and in every conceivable way appears to be urged to continue the policy. Newspapers that are entirely remote from the coffee market, print editorials giving their opinions inimical to the article, and similar circulars to those issued from the beginning of the year still continue to spread disparaging views that betoken prejudice, to say nothing of misstatements.

"The San Paulo Government undertook the Valorization operations for the purpose of equalizing supplies from an extremely large crop with those from two or three successive small crops, the former being about as much above the requirements of consumption as the latter are below. It was not intended to make a speculative venture further than the cultivation of coffee, the principal industry of the country. But through the continued hostility of the trade and the possibility of much smaller crops than required for consumption, the Government may be enabled to obtain for its coffee a price far in excess of original expectations and bring about results in every way to justify its course.

"The Government is financially abundantly able to carry the consignments until the trade needs them, and the probability to-day is that the trade will not claim the coffee until the market is very materially higher than now.

"Santos coffee is commanding a considerable premium over Rios, as the competition in buying in Santos is so much greater than the purchasing power in Rio."

SUGAR—Business, locally, is rather quiet, the consumption having declined noticeably since preserving has come to an end. Prices are unchanged, and are regarded as fairly steady. An unusually long period has elapsed since the last alteration was registered, and a change now would not cause much surprise to anyone. A falling off in refined has also made itself felt in the New York market.

Willett & Gray say of the situation in raws:

"The moderate business of the week has been on the previous basis of 3.95c per lb. duty paid for 96 degree test centrifugals. Unsold stocks of Cuba and Porto Rico sugars are very small, and are firmly held. Java sugars afloat are the only ones that show any depreciation in sellers' views, these now being offered at 10s. 4½d. c., f. & i., 96 degree test, equal to 3.95c landed, against 3.93c last price paid.

"Europe made its usual weather fluctuations from 10s. to 9s. 7½d. to 9s. 9d. for prompt beet, closing firm and rather dearer with May contracts 10s. 0d. after 9s. 11½d. during the week. These contracts look promising whenever below 10s.

"The notable feature of the week is the completion of the Cuban crop, and the final outturn of same given by Messrs. Guma & Mejer as 1,427,673 tons, against 1,178,749 tons in previous year.

"In our issue of June 13, we made our final estimate of 1,425,000 tons, and added:

"'The long-continued favorable weather enabled those estates still having cane to grind to remain at work and produce a surplus of crop beyond recent expectations.

"'The record of the Cuba crop as it progressed through this season is a confirmation of the frequently expressed opinion that it is extremely difficult to make close crop calculations regarding Cuba until after the first of May. The weather conditions appear to influence crops in Cuba more than elsewhere, probably for the reason that more cane is left in the fields unground at the usual normal closing of the crop than could have been ground by the Centrals, and when, as this year, the weather conditions were abnormal and scarcely a day of work lost during the entire campaign, and with a sufficient supply of laborers working under improved political conditions, the final outturn reaches a high point that could not possibly be anticipated early in the season.'

"These unusually favorable conditions for grinding have left in the fields no surplus cane for early grinding of the coming crop, which will be a later crop than usual, and this absence of surplus cane, in connection with several other disadvantageous conditions, will result in less production than last season. The decrease cannot be closely estimated now.

"For several weeks past the weather conditions in Europe have been favorable for the maturing beet crops, which indicates an outturn safely above the minimum estimate given by Mr. Licht, although, perhaps, not up to his mixi-mum."

DRIED FRUITS—The damage done to the Malaga raisin crop by the recent very heavy storms and floods, has been estimated by one shipper at 15 per cent. This was about the first definite information that came to hand. Later cables have since been received, quoting prices 6d. to 1s. higher than those named a fortnight ago. Most of the quotations, however, have been on October shipments, and were altered from the first half to all October. Spot currants are fairly quiet and steady, but after the advance of 2s. in two days, noted last week, the market in Greece has been in such an excited condition that satisfactory business has been made well-nigh impossible.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday Oct. 10, 1907.)

Business is more active than for some weeks and wholesale houses are rushed with orders. A few districts are in a bad way, owing to heavy frosts destroying the crops, but, taken as a whole, the situation is much better than was expected two months ago, and there is a more optimistic feeling among the trade.

CANNED GOODS—The trade are still much perplexed over the canned goods situation as it is evident that in many lines the canners cannot begin to fill their orders. Retailers are finding it hard to advance their prices sufficiently to compensate them for the big advance in wholesale prices. New season prices of plums will be noted below. We quote:

OLD GROCER IN NEW STORE.

James Kennedy, who was for over twenty-five years with Davidson & Hay, Toronto, has opened one of the finest and best-equipped grocery stores in the west end of Toronto. The location, at the corner of Arthur and Crawford Sts., is an ideal one, being on the outskirts of a rapidly-growing section. Moreover, it is picturesque, overlooking the beautiful Bellwoods park ravine. The stock carried is one of the best, and in keeping with the tastes of the residents of the district. Mr. Kennedy's experience and training are such that his customers can depend upon getting everything right. Before severing his connection with the Davidson & Hay his fellow-employes in warehouse, sampleroom and offices presented him with a handsome antique oak roll-top secretary. Lieut.-Col. Davidson, president of the company, made the presentation on behalf of himself and Mr. Kennedy's fellow-employes. The Grocer wishes him all success.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Extracts from letters received within a few days. One from a merchant in Quebec, the other from Nova Scotia.

"I have decided to keep in stock only Red Rose Tea. For the past few years I have sold many brands, but have found out that customers like Red Rose better than any other. You can always count on your traveller receiving a good order from me every time he calls."

"I have never handled an article that has given more uniform satisfaction than Red Rose Tea, and I have never been more courteously treated by any firm than by yourself."

ONLY RED ROSE—That Quebec merchant who has decided to keep only Red Rose Tea in stock won't carry any dead stock and his customers will get tea that is always the same quality, exactly the same to-day that it was a year ago.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

It is now becoming a weekly duty to record an advance of ¼c or less in cheese prices. Montreal dealers have been paying more in the country for cheese of late, and they have been forced to advance their selling figures.

Finest Ontarios now sell from 13c to 13¼c, while Townships cheese command 12⅞ to 13c. Quebecs are selling from 12¾ to 12⅞. These prices are high, but as a matter of fact they are interesting Old Country buyers more than the figures which ruled two or three weeks ago. Inquiries from the other side are more numerous than they have been for some time past, and, unlike recent cables, they are leading to good sales. As will be noticed, exports last week were much larger than they have been the average week of late. If demand from England continues, export figures are likely to pick up considerably before the close of navigation.

Locally, dealers are not selling a great deal, though the trade is taking some cheese. It is upon the Old Country that holders are depending for sales. It would appear that there has been a great deal of talk on the other side about the tremendous increase in the English make, which has not been warranted. Also there has been reported a falling off in the consumption. Recent orders received by Canadians would not lead one to believe that there was very much in either of these rumors.

Since October began many factories have changed their make from cheese to butter. This will result in a falling off in the make of cheese, which has not been made in the usual quantity this year. During September the make was by no means as large as it was for the same month a year ago. Favorable conditions may make possible an increase in the make during the fall and early winter, but it is improbable that receipts this season will equal last year's figures.

Receipts of cheese last week were 57,708 boxes, against 74,492 boxes for the previous week, and 76,767 boxes for the same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 1,696,751 boxes, against 1,884,708 boxes for the same period in 1906,

Last week 100,537 boxes of cheese were exported, against 74,438 boxes the previous week, and 105,667 boxes the same week in 1906. Since May 1 exports have been 1,548,345 boxes, against 1,787,069 boxes for the same period last year.

Butter continues extremely high, record prices being asked by dealers. The feature of the butter situation this year is the lack of demand from the other side. Despite the fact that no business is being done with England, however, prices are as high as ever they have been at this season. Home consumption has increased remarkably within the past few years, particularly in the west, where the population has been increased by thousands of souls.

Large orders for creamery are being received from various points in western Canada. They are coming in so freely that dealers feel independent of English buyers. It is apparent that western Canada is depending upon the east for its supply of butter this winter. Everything points to a continued trade. On the other hand, the east is receiving large quantities of Manitoba dairy. Locally, stocks are very slight, the make in the east not amounting to much.

If present demand continues, it is quite likely, as previously stated in these columns, that Australian and New Zealand butter will be brought into Canada from England, after the make from these countries has been placed on the latter market.

Prices quoted by dealers are: Townships, September make, 26½c to 27c; Quebec, 26c to 26½c.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 9,369 packages, against 11,428 packages for the previous week, and 13,064 packages same week a year ago. Since May 1 there have been received 336,885 packages, as against 524,470 packages during the same period in 1906.

Shipments last week amounted to but 33 packages, against 494 packages the previous week, and 12,261 the same week last year. Total exports since May 1 amount to 65,788 packages, against 339,191 for the same period in 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Live hog prices continue about on the same basis as last week, but the situation is not improved, most of the packers feeling that in view of the unfavorable outlook in the Old Country they should be getting their hogs at a lower figure. Receipts at present quotations, however, are light, though improving, and lower prices at this season of the year would be inclined to make the farmers curtail deliveries. As it is, the packers are getting about all they want, and are making preparations for the usual fall rush of hogs, which is about due to start.

Danish deliveries to the Old Country are heavier than they have been for some time and increasing weekly. Last week they were about 36,000; the week before, 31,000. A prominent Canadian packer said to the writer recently: "The Danes are proud of their hog-raising business. We seem to be ashamed of ours. The Canadian farmers seem to have convinced themselves that there is an organized conspiracy of the packers to beat down prices and further their own interests at the expense of the farmers. And the situation is growing worse yearly, instead of improving. The Danes expect to reach 50,000 a week in their deliveries to England before the winter is out. I should be ashamed to say what the corresponding figures from Canada are likely to be."

American shipments have been slightly below normal for last week. The average quotation for bacon in England is 55s.

The domestic situation is about unchanged. The unreceptiveness of the Old Country market, due to the heavy deliveries of Danish and Irish for many weeks past, is, perhaps, having the effect of sending more pork into Canadian cuts, but business as a whole, is very quiet.

Receipts of hogs in the States have been light, and the packers have sold rather than supported, products. The Journal of Commerce, in their weekly review of the situation, say:

"The past week has witnessed a little more speculation in hog products, but very little change in prices, though receipts have been moderate enough to advance their prices without much effect on products. This is believed by some in the trade to be due to the action of the big packers in holding down prices, either for effect on the hog market or to enable them to buy futures. This view is not entertained by all, however, as more believe that the packers have really been selling the futures on improved corn crop prospects and fear of a further stringency in the money market. There has been little activity, however, as the public are afraid of these trust-controlled markets. But there has been a little buying of January stuff for long account by outsiders. The volume of the business, however, has not been large. There has not been as much export business in lard as last week, but prices have been firm with very little offering at the seaboard from the Middle West, as interior family consumption is absorbing the bulk of production outside of the big packing centres. The only other activity has been in skinned hams for delivery up to January in this market, and there have been over 60 carloads sold to come here from the West the latter part of the week. Spot meats remain as dull as ever, though supplies of bellies are still light here. The supply of hogs cut here is still small and hardly up to the local demand for fresh meats for the city trade, and this has kept the price of hogs here very firm, as well as at the West. There has been little change or activity in beef products and no new feature."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Pure lard is firm, but otherwise there is no change in the provision situation. Smoked meats are in fair demand, while heavy lines are inquired for more freely by lumbermen. Bacon is also in demand for the same class of trade.

BUTTER—A large demand and continued scarcity of supply have hoisted butter prices even a cent or two above last week. The fact that practically no butter is being shipped from Canada, and that the supply is hardly sufficient for the demand, even at present prices, shows how scarce the product is. Prices may show further increase before the end of the week.

EGGS—High prices of feed and unusual demand have raised egg prices during the week. Dealers tell us that people have been eating eggs in preference to meat this year, thus increasing the demand. Limes are having some call even this early in the season and are now quoted :

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Under Small Amount of Raw Material Offering, Coupled With Heavy Domestic Demand, Rolled Oats Have Again Advanced—Confectionery.

Millers report business excellent, but the small amount of wheat offering makes it almost impossible for them to begin to fill up on orders. In cereals it is the same. One large manufacturer stated the other day that he was oversold on rolled oats for the next ninety days.

Speaking of the high prices which rule for rolled oats, Col. A. E. Labelle, local manager of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Montreal, said that the chief cause of the recent advances lay in the fact that there was not in sight any really good Manitoba oats, that is, of the kind which could be made into oatmeals which would satisfy the trade. So far, the tests which have been made of new crop oats have not turned out at all satisfactory, from a rolled oats standpoint, and unless something better turns out prices are likely to remain high, if they do not advance still further, as stocks held by millers are not large enough to bear the demand there will be between now and the crop of 1908. Ontario oats do not seem to please the miller for making into rolled oats, hence the importance of there being a good yield of first-class oats in Manitoba.

Export demand is good in both wheat and oat products, but domestic consumption is too heavy to admit of any shading of prices on the part of Canadian millers.

Confectionery.

It may seem a nuisance to be obliged to look after trifling little purchases of candy when your time, or so it seems, could be spent to so much better advantage in some other way. But children's wants are worth catering to, if you are prepared to do it in the right way. They appreciate politeness, very often, more than adults, and their custom is a channel through which much profitable trade may be secured.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Prices have once more advanced, this time 20c, and the market is very firm at the higher figure. Millers report an abundance of orders locally, and good export trade. Importers of Canadian flour have been steadily following the millers' advances and have been regularly calling for further shipments.

FLOUR—Prices are very firm, due partly to the heavy demand and partly to the light offerings of wheat. FLOUR COMPANY'S GOOD YEAR.

For the Lake of the Woods Milling Company 1906-07 was a very satisfactory year. The annual meeting of shareholders was held at the Montreal office last week. Net profits for the year were $618,473. In comparison with the figures of the previous year, $375,152, the latest returns must be very gratifying. Mention was made at the meeting of the company's new mill at Keewatin, which is capable of turning out 5,000 barrels a day. It was in operating shape August 1st. Last year's directors were re-elected, as follows : Robert Meighen, F. H. Mathewson, Hon. Robert Mackay, Abner Kingman, R. M. Ballantyne, Robert Reford, Jas. W. Pyke, W. W. Hutchison, G. V. Hastings.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year : Robert Meighen, president and managing director ; Hon. Robert MacKay, vice-president ; G. V. Hastings, general manager ; W. W. Hutchins, eastern manager ; F. E. Bray, secretary ; F. S. Meighen, treasurer ; R. S. Neilson, assistant secretary ; Geo. H. Kelly, general superintendent ; W. A. Mathewson, manager wheat department ; R. S. Thomson, local manager, Portage la Prairie ; W. R. Breen, manager flour department at Winnipeg ; R. J. Cherry, local manager, Keewatin.

FLOUR IN JAPAN.

According to the Trade Register of Seattle, the Oriental millers appreciate gluten in flour ; although for more gluten, as in the Canada product, they do not show any disposition to pay more money. According to this authority, "the Japanese millers are extracting every particle of gluten from the grain, and their bran is of poor quality, but it is being offered at such a low figure that a return shipment is feared in California." Practical men in the trade, however, give the assurance that "the fear expressed, that by-products of Japanese milling will cut into the American market, should not be taken seriously. The double freight rate that must be paid more than offsets the difference in wages. Despite the fact that Japanese millers are introducing American machinery, Japanese business men engaged in the export trade from Seattle declare that the Japanese mills have not yet become efficient, and that their operations are not extensive. The Japanese flour importers are in touch with the development of the trade in their home country, and they hold that the Orient will continue to be a buyer of flour, instead of becoming a seller of bran to America. Flour milling is a very interesting business, but is done largely upon a rather narrow margin of profit. This circumstance will operate seriously against milling in Japan, which does not afford a market for milling by-products proportionate to extensive milling.

Manchurian grain-growing has not reached an advanced stage; and, so long as the crude methods employed are continued, Pacific coast millers have no fear from that market. The shipment of wheat from the United States and Australia to Japanese and Chinese mills is heavy, but it does not interfere with the market for American flour in the Orient. As a matter of fact, the coast millers cannot supply the flour demanded in the Oriental markets.—Alexander MacLean, Japanese commercial agent.

TO SELL SPICES.

Here is a good spice advertisement that any grocer might use with profit. It was originally got up in the form of a four-page folder, which, among other matter, contained the following:

List of Spices.

AND SOME OF THEIR ADULTERANTS.

Allspice—Spent cloves, clove stems, cracker dust, ground shells, charcoal, yellow corn.

Cayenne—Rice flour, salt and ship stuff, yellow corn, tumeric, mineral red.

Cassia—Ground shells and cracker crumbs, tumeric.

Cinnamon—Cassia, peas, starch, mustard hulls, tumeric, minerals, cracker dust, burnt shells, charcoal.

Cloves—Spent cloves, clove stems, minerals, allspice, roasted shells, wheat flour, peas.

Ginger—Cereals, tumeric, mustard hulls peas.

Mace—Cereals, starch, buckwheat, wild mace.

Nutmeg—Cereals, starch, wild nutmeg.

Pepper—Refuse of all sorts, pepper dust, ground crackers, rice, mustard hulls, charcoal, cocoanut shells, beans, bran, yellow corn.

Mustard—Cereals, starch, tumeric peas, cornmeal, gypsum.

There are several ways of detecting these adulterations, but the easiest and equally sure way to avoid weak or impure spices is to use only those tha are ground by a house of established reputation, whose commercial honor is staked upon the genuine quality of its goods, and which simply cannot afford to place upon the market any article that is mislabeled or otherwise misrepresented.

CONFECTIONERY NOTES.

S. S. Andrews, baker and confectioner, of Toronto, has sold out to Geo. Waller.

The firm of H. Kotsonas & Co., confectioners, of Montreal, has been dissolved.

Kenneth K. Munro, Montreal, Canadian representative for W. & R. Jacob, Dublin, Ireland, biscuits, etc., was in Toronto this week. Fall import orders are very satisfactory. Mr. Munro will visit the larger western Ontario business centres before returning east.

AUSTRALIAN ONIONS.

Exports to Canada Are Increasing—Average Yield 20,000 Tons.

D. H. Ross, commercial agent for Australasia, says that Australia is coming more and more to look to Canada as the best market for the variety of onion known as the Australian Brown Globe.

"The Brown Globe variety of onions," he says, "is chiefly grown in sandy soil in districts quite close to Melbourne, within a radius of 20 to 30 miles, and is marketed between the months of November and February. They are grown in fairly large quantities and are of fine quality, being suitable in the early part of the season—from November to January—for export. After January they rapidly skin and are seldom fit to carry any distance. In appearance the Brown Globe much resembles Italian onions, being round in shape and large in size. They are of a soft nature and are not favored for export to oversea countries, because, generally speaking, they have only one outside skin and are thus liable to become easily bruised. This variety has, however, been exported to America and South Africa in cases, but it is only through using extreme care in their selection and obtaining good handling in transit that shipments can be made successful. While primarily grown for early local and interstate consumption, large quantities are exported in bags to New Zealand and the distant states of Western Australia and Queensland.

"Brown Spanish onions are only grown in Victoria, so far as Australia is concerned, and they differ very materially from the Brown Spanish of European production in being much better skinned, generally having five outside skins, or envelopes. This has been achieved by special cultivation in crossing the seeds of various varieties, with the result that one of the finest onions in the world is grown. In appearance they are inclined to be flat, the idea being to create a kind of dome on top so as to throw off rain and thus bring them to perfection at maturity. On account of the climate and soil of this state being adapted to the growth of this superior product, the industry is rapidly extending. The total production this year is estimated to be between 25,000 and 30,000 tons, while the average yield for some years past has been over 20,000 tons. In many places the crop this year has been from 8 to 10 tons per acre. Brown Spanish onions commence to be marketed in Melbourne about the middle of February, and are fit for export about the first week in March. If the season is favorable for their growth, they continue in sound condition for export up to the end of October.

Exports to Canada.

"For many years Melbourne produce merchants have been exporting Brown Spanish onions—in the reverse season—to San Francisco, but it is only in recent years that shipments have been made to Vancouver and other points in Western Canada. When the excellent quality of Australian onions is better known in Canada a large export trade, which is being carefully fostered in Melbourne, is looked for. The cost of casing is about 30s ($7.30) per ton, and exporters complain that steamship companies insist on freight on the gross weight, which, after allowing for the weight of the cases, makes the freight about 20 per cent. higher than if the onions were shipped in bags. Experimental shipments have, this year, been made in bags to Vancouver, and the onions arrived in splendid condition, besides considerably reducing their landed cost. There is certainly some element of danger in shipping onions in open gunny bags to Vancouver — but apparently not a serious one—when large quantities are on board one steamer, in which case if stacked more than three bags high, sweating might take place, whereas onions in cases are relieved from pressure and consequent injury from other cargo. The Commonwealth trade returns show that 3,322 cwts. of onions, valued at £1,589, were exported to Canada in 1906, and 8,195 cwts., valued at £2,786, to the United States."

TRADE NOTES.

Sullivan Bros., grocers, of Winnipeg, are selling out.

Eric Faulkner, grocer, of Ottawa, has sold his business.

Bishop & Williams, grocers, of Calgary, have sold out.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Canadian Fruits Scarcer—Potato Situa tion Much More Encouraging Under Better Crop Reports—Fish Somewhat More Plentiful.

The active conditions of the fruit market continues this week under excellent demand. Shipments of Jamaica oranges are coming freely and these, with Bahama grape fruit, is filling the place of the California fruit. Canadian fruits are still hanging on and in some cases prices are easier than last week. Vegetables, also, continue to arrive in quantity, though several lines will be closed out shortly by frost.

The potato situation seems to be rather more encouraging. Recent shipments of New Brunswick Selares are in much better condition, and the outlook for the Ontario crop seems to be particularly good.

Fish are slightly more plentiful than last week, though an excellent demand keeps prices up at the top notch.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Owing to the large supply of domestic small fruits, heavy fruits have been rather inactive lately, the weather also being against the transaction of good business. The first of the new season's Nassau grape fruits have arrived. Prices are high, but will likely be lower next week. Jamaica oranges are arriving a little more freely, and quotations are lower in consequence. Florida oranges have not yet begun to arrive, though Florida grape fruit, first shipment, has been received. Lemons are in poor demand, around $4, for new Verdillis, while old stock is neglected. New Cape Cod cranberries, early blacks, are quoted this week, but prices are high for the average grocer. Apples are moving freely. The Americans are taking large quantities, Chicago and other centres in the west are buying freely. New dates are expected about the middle of next week. Large shipments of new Almeria grapes are expected here about the 20th.

VEGETABLES—Horse radish, rhubarb and beans are no longer quoted, while several other lines are becoming more and more scarce, and prices are becoming firmer, in consequence. Turnips, beets, carrots, cucumbers and green peppers are now quoted by the bag, 75 cents being asked for all except the last mentioned, for which $1 is demanded. The potato situation shows some improvement, though there are still some of the poorer quality goods offering, which keep prices from being around 75c and 80c steadily. Sweet potatoes are easier.

FISH—Demand is good for smoked and salted fish, and for what fresh lines are offering, but the great scarcity of fish generally makes business difficult to transact. Stormy weather is responsible for the shortage of haddock. Haddies are by no means plentiful, and supplies of mackerel are not at all large. Market cod and halibut are selling freely, and lake fish of such lines as are now obtainable, are easily disposed of. Prices all round are firm. Kippers, bloaters and green cod are arriving in larger quantities. Oysters in bulk are coming in freely.

TORONTO.

FRUITS—The gradual falling off of Canadian fruit in the local market is noticeable, though peaches and pears are still coming in freely, and grapes are plentiful enough to be easier in price. Jamaica oranges are quoted for the first time this week, and shipments of Mexicans are expected early in November. Bahama grape fruit made its first appearance in Toronto this week. Late California Valencias are still quoted, but are obtainable only in odd lots, there being no material supply.

VEGETABLES—Vegetables continue to be fairly plentiful, though the frosts are expected to interfere seriously with the supply immediately. A particularly good demand is felt for cranberries, which will strengthen the prices shortly. Local potato dealers are quite optimistic in regard to the Ontario crop, which promises to be better than for a year or two at least; recent New Brunswick arrivals are more satisfactory.

APPLE EXPORTS SHOW DECREASE.

Up to Sept. 28, this year, apple exports from Canada show a decrease of 11,038 barrels, as compared with last year's shipments. To the date mentioned 55,167 barrels of apples had been shipped from the country, as compared with 66,205 barrels in 1906. Some of these apples were distributed as follows: Liverpool, 23,291 barrels; Glasgow, 12,954 barrels; London, 138 barrels; Bristol, 460 barrels; South Africa, 326 barrels. The shipments up to the end of September, this year, are away behind the exports for the like period in 1905, when 119,825 barrels had been sent away, while even 1904 exports for that period were greater, 83,177 barrels having been shipped to various points.

The English market has not received Canadian apples in large quantities this year, but the season is young yet, and better things are expected. It is surprising to find the shipments to South Africa so low, as certain varieties of Canadian apples are in much favor there. But, here again, the same principle applies, and before the close of navigation South Africa will, no doubt, have taken its share of this Canadian fruit.

MORE FREIGHT FOR CANADIAN PORTS.

60 Per Cent. of Canadian Wheat Shipped Via American Points.

Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, in an address before the St. John, N.B., Board of Trade, last Tuesday, spoke interestingly on the problem of transportation of western freight and the steps that might be taken to bring more western wheat to Canadian ports.

"In considering this subject," said the Minister, "I found, to my surprise, that sixty per cent. of western Canadian wheat is shipped by way of New York, Boston, Baltimore and other American ports. This ought not to be. Railroads in ever increasing numbers are bringing the grain to the western shore of Lake Superior and from there it is carried to those ports and by the roads which furnish the lowest rate. One explanation of the great grain shipment by way of Buffalo is probably the splendid elevator accommodation afforded at Buffalo, where the grain can be stored and sent to the Atlantic ports for shipment when the market suits.

"Then there is the question as to whether the I.C.R. should be extended to the eastern shore of Lake Superior or Georgian Bay. A route can be obtained almost level, whose greatest incline would be a 3-10 grade. Such a route would materially reduce the cost of transportation."

Dr. Pugsley spoke of a waterway of 22 feet depth by way of French River to North Bay as a means of cheapening transportation, and spoke of North Bay as a possible meeting place of I.C.R. and G.T.R. and C.P.R.

The Minister said that these were problems which must be met if we are going to realize the dreams of every patriotic Canadian and ship Canadian exports by Canadian ports.

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

Thos. Harling, the general steamship agent, of Montreal, has been appointed special representative of the port of Bristol in Canada's metropolis. Mr. Harling will carry on his new duties in connection with the general work he already has in hand.

The reason of his appointment lies largely in the fact that trade between the two ports has increased very rapidly of late. Two steamship lines are now running a fortnightly service from Montreal to Avonmouth and Bristol. Of the Dominion line are the Turcoman, Englishman and Manxman, and of the Canadian Pacific line, the Monmouth, Montfort, and Montcalm, and these are among the largest freight carriers on the St. Lawrence.

FIRM CHANGES.

The Codville, Georgeson Co., Ltd., Winnipeg, is now known as the Codville Co., Ltd. Mr. Georgeson has taken as his interest in the business the Calgary firm, Codville-Smith, which now becomes Georgeson Co., Ltd.

T. T. Caster, who has been conducting general stores in Aurora and Schomberg, has sold the Aurora business to Fred. Underhill.

LOCKED UP FOR 30 YEARS—AN UNIQUE AUCTION IN NEW ENGLAND

An auction as novel as any ever seen in New England was held in Colebrook, Conn., September 10, when ex-Sheriff C. C. Middlebrooks sold under the hammer the contents of a store kept thirty years ago by John S. Wheeler. The store has been locked up for the entire thirty years and Mrs. Wheeler, its owner, who of late years lived at 47 Holmes avenue, Waterbury, Conn., refused to let anybody touch the stock or even go inside the store.

The story of Mr. Wheeler and the country store he kept locked up all these long years is one which well illustrates the eccentricity of the man. He was accustomed to stay in the store until late at night, and before locking up he had to make several trips to the cellar, descending through a trap door in the floor. He had just started down the stairs one night after his customers had all left, when he was struck on the head. He wheeled about and saw two men, evidently burglars.

The storekeeper was a small man, but a plucky one, and he grappled with the men. But they overpowered him and threw him down the cellar stairs with such force that he lay unconscious an hour or two. When he came to, he ascended the stairs and found his money all gone from the till and goods from the shelves.

Mr. Wheeler was a man of impulse. He was too well off to be discouraged at a small loss, but he was either so incensed and humiliated at the rough handling he had been subjected to or so tired of storekeeping on general principles that when he left the store and locked it up that night it was for the last time. He never went near the place again, nor would he allow anyone else to set foot over the threshold.

The goods on the shelves remained where they were. Some of them spoiled, some of them were not spoiled. The stock of clothing had gone out of style and came back in style again half a dozen times, these thirty years, and no one has disturbed them.

The cigars dried up, the extracts underwent all sorts of chemical changes. A barrel of peanuts found in the corner is one of the things to be disposed of at the auction. The purchaser will have to take a chance on getting peanuts or just shells.

All the goods were purchased at war time prices, and that is why the storekeeper refused to sell. Rather than dispose of them at a sacrifice, he chose to let them stay on the shelves all these long years. There are old-fashioned boots and shoes in stock for which Auctioneer Middlebrooks will try to get bids, as well as hose, thread, dress goods, hair oil, bustles, dried lemons, barrels of crackers, fancy cheeses as good as ever, and anything else that one might expect to find in a country store in the old days.

Mr. Wheeler, who died last spring, was a well-known figure on the streets of Waterbury, Conn.—Hartford Times.

THE CARD WRITER.

The card writer is indispensable.

Everything in the window must have a price ticket on it.

Everything you display on the floor and on the counters must speak right out, If the card writer knows his business he won't wait for copy. The manager must let him understand it.

A fly-specked or a greasy ticket is worse than none—almost.

He must pick them off and replace them without being told.

A card must be on the desk of each cashier informing people the department for which she makes change. He must have his fish bulletin ready every Thursday night.

It's his business and his privilege to follow up the ads. and the ad. man. He must be able to make a frame and cover it with heavy manila paper. A dozen of these ought to be in reserve for the Friday and Saturday specials.

He must know the elementary end of electricity; be able to rig up fifty incandescent lights for the window. That's the kind of a card writer to have.

His work must have no frills to it. The outside signs, especially, must be read at a glance by the people passing on the car and by passers-by on the other side.

Good idea to have the initial letters and the price in red; the rest black. Avoid the use of colors on the glass. Let him keep the lettering on the brass signs in shape.

If he doesn't know how, the maker of the sign will tell the firm.

Tickets on everything. That's the game. Every kind of fresh vegetable. Every kind of fresh fruit. "Numbers" on every piece of meat and every fish.

Buy your wire sign holders by the gross. They should be in charge of the sign writer. This man should never write a sign Saturday, but should keep out on the vegetable department or do relief work in other departments.—Tea and Coffee Journal.

TRADE NEWS AND MARKET CONDITIONS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Flour May Advance—Some Prices of 1907 Compared With Those Ruling Nine Years Ago—Apple Crop Below Average.

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 7.

Local merchants are of the opinion that flour will go even higher than at present. The retail prices now are: $6.80 cash for Manitobas, and $6.35 cash for Ontarios.

Dried fruits all continue high, with the exception of Valencia raisins, which are fairly reasonable. Evaporated apples have advanced, cheese is higher and is quoted at 14 and 14½ cents a pound.

Canned goods are very firm and the price of corn and tomatoes is expected to advance any day.

In the feed line middlings and bran advanced another dollar this week. Manitoba middlings is now quoted at $29.50 and bran $26.50. The Ontario middlings is worth from $1 to $2 a ton more than Manitoba. Regarding the price of flour one of the leading wholesale grocers said that he had received word that the mills in the west are paying the farmers $1.05 a bushel for wheat. A fair price is generally considered to be about 70 or 75 cents. If the present conditions continue, it is believed that higher prices will be asked for Ontario brands, as they are not proportionately as high as Manitobas at the present time.

Beans have gone up 20 cents a bushel and pot barley 25 cents a barrel. Tub lard has advanced ¼ cent and canned baked beans, in sympathy with the advance in loose beans, are 5 cents higher by the case.

Potatoes are held firmly at from $1.40 to $1.50 a barrel. Roll butter has advanced a cent a pound and case eggs a cent a dozen.

The fishermen at the mouth of the harbor are making large catches of sardines and large herring. During the past few days the herring have struck in, and all the boats made good hauls. On Wednesday night the sardine herring were very thick and large numbers are taken. One of the schooner boats which went out with a purse seine had so many in it that the seine broke,

A large number of Nova Scotia schooners are now in port purchasing the small herring for bait. There are also a number of schooners buying for the sardine factories at Lubec, Eastport and St. George. The prices range from three to four dollars a hogshead. A number of boats are engaged in net fishing and for the last two days they have been getting from three to four thousand large herring.

The Hon. W. P. Farris, chief commissioner for agriculture, reports that the crops throughout the province have been better this year than for many previous seasons. The weather, however, has been and is so precarious that it will be extremely difficult to save them.

Hon. James Barnes, of Buctouche, says that oats are still green in Kent county. The crops are excellent and the rot has not yet appeared in the potatoes there.

A despatch from Hartland, October 1, says:

"Busy improving the favorable weather to gather the grain crop, farmers have for the present quit digging potatoes. Fully 80 per cent. of the potato average is untouched and it is found that the potatoes do not rot so quickly in the ground as those that were dug early. It is also believed that the good ones dug later will not rot in storage. Some farmers say they hope to have half the average yield, others say they do not expect more than enough for their own use. The acreage that will not be dug at all is too small to figure on. The price is expected to go high, although at present the dealers are only paying eighty cents.

"An article in Saturday's Sun regarding the crops may have been correct as affecting the lower portion of the province, but is erroneous in stating that many hundreds of acres of hay were unharvested in Carleton county. The amount of hay utterly spoiled in Carleton county is undoubtedly less than 100 tons, while on the other hand the farmers have an immense crop of first-class hay in store.

"So with oats; while harvesting is uncommonly late there is a splendid crop. Threshers are busy and the yield is big.

"In Carleton county it has certainly been an off year. The farmers have had great difficulty in getting their crops, but now, with harvesting nearly done, it is evident that this will not in any sense be a lean year except for those who plunged wildly into potatoes. While by this crop they stand to lose several hundred thousand dollars, they still have the great hay and grain yield to save themselves with, and indications point to prices out of sight. The market prices to-day and those of the same date nine years ago are given in the following table, showing an interesting comparison. Truly Carleton county has been in a worse fix:

Hay, loose, per ton	$8,00	$4.00
Oats, new, per bush.	.40	.18
Beans, per bush.	2.50	1.10
Buckwheat, per bush.	.40	.18
Butter. per lb.	.30	.15
Eggs, per doz.	.20	.12
Live hogs, per lb.	.06	.03

Judging from present prospects the supply of apples in the local market will be rather below the average during the autumn months. Prices of the most conspicuous varieties of early apples promise to be high. The market is in a decidedly bullish condition, and the demand is exceedingly strong. It has come to be acknowledged as a fact that the prices of apples have, during the past several years, reached a new and higher level. This condition is directly due to the fact that English and American buyers have come to be a more important factor. This year shows every sign that the new condition of things will be maintained so far as price is concerned. One firm alone has bought 3,000 barrels for export to the New England States. Many buyers from the United Kingdom and from the United States make annual visits to the principal fruit growing centres of Nova Scotia and in some cases pay prices that are almost prohibitive. Cases have been reported where purchases have been made at $1.75 to $2 for apples on the trees, the buyer taking everything. No. 1 Gravensteins have been sold as high as $3 per barrel at the orchards. In another case a lot of Gravensteins, of which it was estimated two-thirds were No. 2's, were sold at $2.50 per barrel straight.

The effect of all this outside buying is already very apparent in local trading circles. Apples are high and scarce particularly in the higher grades, No. 1's of any kind being practically unavailable at the moment.

Such small quantities of No. 1. Gravensteins as are to be had are bringing from $3 to $3.25 per barrel in large lots on board the schooner. Most of the offering in Gravensteins are No. 2's, No. 3's and "Drops." Fairly good No. 2's can he had at $2.25 per barrel. For No. 3's and "Drops" an inquirer would be asked $1.50 per barrel.

On Tuesday evening last, Henry R. Ross was given a dinner and presented with a handsome gold chain and locket by a large number of the leading citizens of Sussex. Mr. Ross has been manager of the Sussex Packing Company's business for the past six years, and recently resigned, to accept the position of manager of the New Brunswick Cold Storage Company's plant in St. John, now nearing completion. Mr. Ross is a native of Belleville, Ont.

Very successful agricultural exhibitions were held during the past week at Centreville, Carleton county; St. Martins, St. John county, and at Moosepath Park, St. John county. A good class of live stock and produce was shown.

The Provincial Government has made grants of $5,000 each to Chatham and St. John for holding exhibitions next year.

Included in the cargo of the Furness line steamer St. John City, which arrived from London on Oct. 1, was 4,425 packages of tea for local dealers.

STILTON CHEESE.

A Little History and Some Hints on Manufacture.

Stilton cheese derives its name from the village of Stilton, in Huntingdonshire, England, where it was first manufactured near the beginning of the eighteenth century. Through the process of making was considered a secret at that early date, it was not very long before the method became pretty widely known, not merely in the county of Huntingdon, but in the neighboring county of Leicester. It is the latter county which is today the seat of the largest production of this cheese.

The original secret of its successful production was the addition of a considerable percentage—from 30 to 45 per cent.—of cream to the milk. This addition of cream was long considered absolutely necessary in order to obtain the real Stilton flavor, yet nowadays excellent Stilton cheese is produced without such addition, and the secret once rigidly held as indispensable to the successful manufacture is now proved to have been little more than a mere accident in the process. There is, in fact, no one recipe for the manufacture. Every Stilton cheese maker must follow certain general methods, but given these, many individual variations in detail are carried out without in any way causing deterioration in either quality or flavor.

It is generally considered that the best district for its production is around Melton Mowbray, in Leicestershire, though excellent cheese is also produced in the neighboring districts of Staffordshire and Derbyshire.

Cheese-making, as a rule, begins toward the end of March, the 25th being held to be the earliest date on which it should be begun, and the production continues steadily to the end of September.

The milk used must be that of cows fed on good pastures, and it is on this point that the special advantages of particular localities are supposed to tell upon the character of the article produced.

The salts in the soil of Central England are supposed to have more or less mysterious effect upon the herbage there produced, and this again has an effect on the mold which gives to the Stilton cheese the particular character and flavor.

Two different systems are followed. In the one, two curds are obtained separately from the morning milk and evening milk, and the two are mixed as two different curds. In the other system only one lot of curd is produced. The latter method is more likely to produce a uniform cheese, and it is doubtless on this account that the two-curd system has fallen somewhat out of practice, for it was found that the cheese was often uneven in color owing to the earlier milk used developing too great an acidity because of the waiting necessary.

The mixing of the two curds was said to secure conditions more favorable for the development of the blue mold, but with the one-curd system these can equally well be insured by having the curd sufficiently moist.

The following are the points that should be present in a good Stilton :

1. A brown crinkled surface.
2. The cheese should give on being pressed.
3. On being cut the mold should show separate from the white, and the more numerous the veins the better the cheese.
4. The mold should have a rich taste, yet the flavor of the blue mold should not predominate.
5. It should be moist and rich, and possess good keeping qualities.—Montreal Star and Herald.

The illustration is a photo of C. D. Worthington's store on Ontario Street, Guelph. Mr. Worthington was at one time associated with his brother in the Worthington Drug Co., Guelph, and a few years ago bought out Mr. Matthews. Since taking over the business, Mr. Worthington has made a splendid success and to-day has one of those nice little money-making corner stores that Guelph is noted for.

Mr. Worthington is a chicken fancier and something of an authority on horseflesh. He owns a horse that made good time at the local tracks this year. Taken altogether, this store forms an excellent example of a combination house and shop and is well laid out for both business and domestic comfort.

NO ONE WOULD BUY.

A farmer, living in the vicinity of Spring Valley, Minn., recently endeavored to market a load of produce in that town. He was known among the merchants as a strong patron of one of the Chicago supply houses. He worked hard until night endeavoring to find a buyer for his produce. No one seemed disposed to buy. Finally, one of the business men suggested that he send it to the Chicago supply house, giving the name of the supply house. The farmer went home mad, but he saw the point.

At Harmony, Minn., the merchants have an intelligent understanding regarding certain farmers who buy nearly everything they use of the retail catalogue houses. Some of the farmers who are in this class have aready been told that the Chicago supply houses should take their butter and eggs and other produce, as long as the supply houses get the most of their money. To make this sound like the real goods, the local merchants have refused to take the produce.

P. Templeman, the merchant prince of Bonavistu, lost seven valuable schooners in the severe storm of Sept. 19, 20, 21 ; also some valuable cargoes. Nothing daunted, he wired the goods to be duplicated by special car and steamer. He has the sympathy of the entire community in his hard luck.

Why Lamp Chimneys Smoke

Lamp chimneys smoke because the oil is dirty and generally it is the fault of the grocer selling the oil. Unless oil is handled by means of a Bowser Self-Measuring Tank it cannot be kept clean.

The Bowser keeps the oil clean, prevents dirty lamp chimneys and so makes satisfied customers. A satisfied oil customer will buy her other groceries in the same store.

The oil is kept in a dirt-proof tank, and when wanted is measured directly into the customer's can.

The Bowser tank is also safe, economical, clean and convenient.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

JAPAN TEAS

are without doubt the best money can buy

Notwithstanding the continued high market this year consequent upon extra demand and short supply, I have very largely increased my import order business from the fact of being in Japan myself and operating with the native companies at first hand, I have the advantage of acting promptly with every change in the market, and, consequently, am in a position to look thoroughly after my patrons' interests.

I have a few lines of excellent liquoring Yokohama teas on hand and shall be glad to submit samples and particulars on application, and also shall be pleased to answer any enquiries regarding the Japan market.

THE TIN AND THE TEA

If LIPTON'S TEAS were sold in bulk and were subject to damage from dust and odors like ordinary teas, they would still have a far better taste.

But they are sealed in air-tight tins. Not the smallest amount of the original aroma is lost. When the tea is brewed every leaf contributes the same flavor-strength it had when it was packed.

That this combination of QUALITY and PURITY is appreciated in Canada, as elsewhere, is shown by the big advances in the Canadian sales of CANNING FACTORIES ARE IN BAD SANITARY CONDITION.

Condemned by Provincial Health Authorities in Strongly-worded Reports—Housing Arrangements Are Bad—What is Recommended.

Condemnation of some of the existing conditions in Ontario canning factories is an important feature of a report failures, and properly qualified men who will devote their whole time to sanitary administration

This heading of an article printed in the Toronto Globe, shows to what extent the health authorities have been hammering the canning factories. Essex goods are free from all imperfections; all work being done under ideal conditions in the most modern and up-to-date preserving establishment in Canada. From the very outset we have had before us the thought that canned food products were worthy of all the care and patience that clean, healthy work-people could give them, and Essex goods show their superiority in every comparison of flavor and perfection.

JAMES TURNER & CO., Limited, Hamilton, Ont.

MR. GROCER! WHY NOT BOOM BUSINESS WITH THE Burlington Brand?

Perhaps you don't know about the Burlington Brand of Canned Fruits and Vegetables! Well, the Burlington Brand is the brand which is produced in the heart of Canada's garden country. Every piece of Fruit and Vegetable used is the very pick of the season's crop in Canada's garden. The factory where the brand is put up is away ahead of even the Government requirement as to sanitation and the personal cleanliness of employees. Every can is in itself a guarantee of excellence.

No Wonder There Is Money in It!

The Burlington Canning Co., Limited, Burlington, Ont.

You will never hear a complaint about the quality of the

of Canned Fruits and Vegetables

The trouble with ordinary canned goods is that people continually express dissatisfaction with them. Now, Mr. Grocer, why bother handling canned goods about whose quality you are not sure? You don't make any more money with them, and you risk losing some good customers. The wise grocer makes it a point to stock the

Old Homestead Brand

He can safely recommend it to his customers.

The Reasons Why

are quite simple. Old Homestead Brand contains only the very highest grade of fruits and vegetables. They are selected from the best sources by experts. They are put up in a factory which positively cannot be excelled for cleanliness, scientific machinery and skilful employees.

And the grocer's profit is just right.

The Old Homestead Canning Co.

Picton, Ontario

The Canadian Government Approves

of our Jams and Jellies, as is shown by the following letter. The most rigid examination resulted in the highest approval.

SIR :—I beg to advise you that the samples of Raspberry and Blackberry Jam and samples of Jelly manufactured by the Belleville Fruit and Vinegar Co., Ltd., submitted with your letters of the 17th and 18th, have been examined at the laboratory here, and are pronounced to be genuine.

I remain, sir,
your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) W. J. GERALD,
Deputy Minister.

OUR PURE APPLE JUICE

for drinking purposes is something that every grocer would profit by knowing about. It is the most delicious refined apple juice ever bottled for drinking purposes, and meets with the instant approval of everyone who tries it.

OUR PURE CIDER VINEGAR

is well known among grocers as the purest and most satisfactory vinegar, for the table or for pickling, ever put on the market. You may order in bottles or by kegs of various sizes. A trial order will prove—by your profits—the absolute truth of our statements.

OUR PURE TOMATO CATSUP

is made of the finest grade of tomatoes procurable. It differs from most so-called Tomato Catsup, because it preserves the exquisite flavor of tomatoes, blended with the purest spices. It is a great seller.

THE BEST SELLING BRAND of Canned Fruits and Vegetables on the market is undoubtedly the

Riverdale Brand

There are the soundest reasons to account for it. The material used is only the highest grade of fruit and vegetables from Canada's garden district. The factory is a marvel of scientific sanitation and up-to-the-minute mechanical perfection. And the employees are highly skilled people, of great personal cleanliness.

Is it any wonder that Riverdale Brand is the best?

Some Facts About The Grocer—Improvements During the Year—Its Past, Present and Prospects.

The Canadian Grocer is now in its twenty-second year, having been published continuously since 1886. It has not attained its majority without having had to survive hard knocks, many discouragements and setbacks, and occasionally the apparent hostility of the very men and women in whose interests it is published. It has struggled along, however, until to-day it has attained a position no less enviable than deserved. It is no exaggeration to say that The Canadian Grocer is to-day one of the most widely-read trade journals in the world, that it covers its field as, perhaps, it is covered by no other publication of a similar nature, and that it enjoys the reputation of being authoritative, reliable and absolutely unbiased. The strength of its influence has been shown repeatedly—notably upon two occasions, when the Federal Government was forced to change its policy because of the position taken by The Grocer at the time, to protect the interests of the manufacturers, wholesalers, and through them the retailers—a fact which loses none of its significance because of the wide publicity given to it in the past.

Market Quotations.

The Government recognize the value of The Grocer's quotations, and use them. They have more than once been accepted as final by the courts of law in cases of importance, and under these circumstances, it is hardly to be wondered at that their value to the retailer as a weekly mirror of the basis upon which he is or should be conducting his business, is well-nigh incalculable. The market reports of a weekly paper cannot be expected to give prices which will be maintained throughout the week. Quotations on certain articles fluctuate so tremendously in six days that it is impossible to do more than give the prices ruling for the day on which the paper is issued. What can be done, however, and what is done every week by The Grocer, is to publish the probable trend of values for the ensuing week, basing these prophecies upon the most reliable and exclusive sources of information obtainable, such as cable advices from the primary markets, and constant reports from the controlling centres. No care or trouble is spared to make The Grocer's market reports as complete and informing to the retailer as possible, and we are at all times unreservedly at the service of any of our subscribers who desire extended information on any point.

We are constantly receiving requests for special information, and with the facilities at our command, it is seldom that we are unable to supply it. We have so far been in the habit of replying to these inquiries by personal letter, but the better way of answering them, in our opinion, would be to establish a separate department for their treatment and thus make the answers of universal, instead of merely personal, value. This is a matter upon which we would like the opinions of our subscribers.

Credit To Whom Credit Is Due.

It is not unnatural that The Canadian Grocer should be proud of its success. The position it holds to-day is the result of hard and conscientious work on the part of the men who have been connected with it. But we are very far from being blind to the fact that its success is due to the loyalty of its friends in no less degree than to the efforts of its staff. In this respect we maintain that the position occupied by The Grocer is unique. We know of no other paper that numbers among its subscribers so many loyal friends as The Grocer congratulates itself upon possessing. Many have followed its career with interest and assistance ever since its inception in 1886. We believe that our records show a less percentage of cancelled subscriptions in 22 years than most other papers are able to boast of for half that time.

Another matter which it would ill-behoove us to overlook is advertising. When The Grocer was first started the science of advertising was more or less in its infancy; people were shy of trying out a new theory before they had someone else's experience to profit by. They did not want to be first. It was in this that the paper found its hardest obstacle. That the feeling has now been effectually dispelled is shown, by the unanimity with which The Grocer's oldest advertisers continue year after year to talk to their customers through its pages and by the unusally large number of new advertisers which yearly take advantage of the opportunity it offers of becoming acquainted with the greatest number of people at the least possible expense.

This year we have installed new presses of the most modern character, capable of turning out, from a typographical point of view, more work and better work than has been possible heretofore. The staff of The Grocer in Montreal and Toronto has been augmented, and we enter upon the new year with feelings of gratitude to our friends, pride in our paper and confident anticipation for whatever the future may bring forth.

COCOA FROM POD TO CUP

BY A LARGE IMPORTER AND MANUFACTURER

How the Article is Grown and Gathered—The Manufacture and Marketing of the Finished Product.

The use of cocoa was first introduced to the European world by Cortez, who found it in common use in Mexico, when he invaded that country in 1519. It was, however, considered very much of a luxury, being drunk only on special occasions by the great nobles of the Astec Court. The beans themselves were used by the Astecs for currency in lieu of money. Their value may be gathered from the fact that twenty beans were often exchanged for a slave. In spite of their appreciation of the value of cocoa, the Astecs seem to have had no knowledge of its use in any but a liquid form. Chocolate for eating, now its commonest form, was a much later European development.

The taste for cocoa was soon spread through Spain by returned adventurers who had learned its use in the New World. It had, however, to withstand considerable opposition from the church, which regarded with much disfavor its growing popularity among the monks. Its extreme costliness was also a handicap to its widespread use as a beverage. By the beginning of the 17th century, knowledge of cocoa had spread into Italy and France. About 1660 some chocolate houses were opened in London, thus becoming the forerunners of the more famous coffee houses of a later date. One of these chocolate houses, White's by name, was situated in St. James Street, and for many years was the resort of fashionable Londoners. The first chocolate factory in Germany was erected at Steinhude, in 1756, under the patronage of Prince Wilhelm von du Lippe. To operate this he imported a number of Portuguese workmen, that nation, being at the time, by far the most skilled in the manufacture of chocolate. Introduction to the United States came by way of the West Indies and Boston. By the time of the revolution it had become fairly well known in New England. The first cocoa factory in Canada was established in Halifax—cocoa being imported from the West Indies—as in the case of Boston.

For many years the increase in consumption was slow, but during the last quarter century an enormous advance has been recorded. This is in part due to skillful advertising of the many merits of chocolate as a food, and in part, to the general increase in wealth, which has enabled a much greater proportion of the public to enjoy, what was once regarded as altogether a luxury. The trade has now become one of the most important in the whole range of food products.

Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Drying the Cocoa-bean in the sun

Growth and Gathering.

Cocoa is prepared from the seeds of theobrona, cocoa, linne, a tree which is indigenous to tropical America, but which has been successfully transplanted to many other tropical countries, notably, Ceylon, Java and Sao Thome. It is a tender tree, requiring the protection of larger vegetation from the heat of the sun. It grows from seed, bears its first fruit in about six years, and grows to a height of twenty to thirty feet at maturity. The flower is small, pinkish in color, and of wax-like appearance. It grows out of the main trunk of the tree as well as from the branches.

Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Cocoa in the "sweating" boxes.

The fruit is a pod of about ten inches in length and much resembles a cucumber—green when young, and ripening to a golden brown. Each pod contains from twenty-five to forty cocoa beans or seeds, which is the article of commerce. Like many other tropical fruits, the flowering is continuous, the same tree bearing fruit, flowers and green pods at the same time. In most countries there are two principal pickings each year—usually in July and December.

Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Cocoa pods on tree.

After gathering, the seeds are separated from the hard, outer shell and subjected to a process of fermentation. This consists of packing the beans in casks or troughs with a covering of leaves and branches. A considerable heat is thus evolved, setting up a thorough fermentation, which has the effect of removing any pulp which may still cling to the seeds as well as taking away much of the natural acidity and bitterness. When taken out and dried in the sun the beans are ready for shipment.

Roasting and Grinding.

On being received at the factory the beans are carefully sorted and graded, all immature and sour beans being rejected. The cocoa is then roasted in large steel drums over a slow fire, the operation lasting about an hour.

This is a very critical stage in the manufacturing process, as a good deal of the flavor of the finished article depends upon the manner in which the beans have been roasted. After cooling

The recent very rapid advance in the price of cocoa beans in the primary markets, and the consequent increased cost of all chocolate and cocoa preparations to the consuming public, has created a wide-spread interest in this important commodity. This article has been written by an authority on the subject, and discusses, in an interesting and non-technical way the history, growth marketing and manufacture of the cocoa bean.

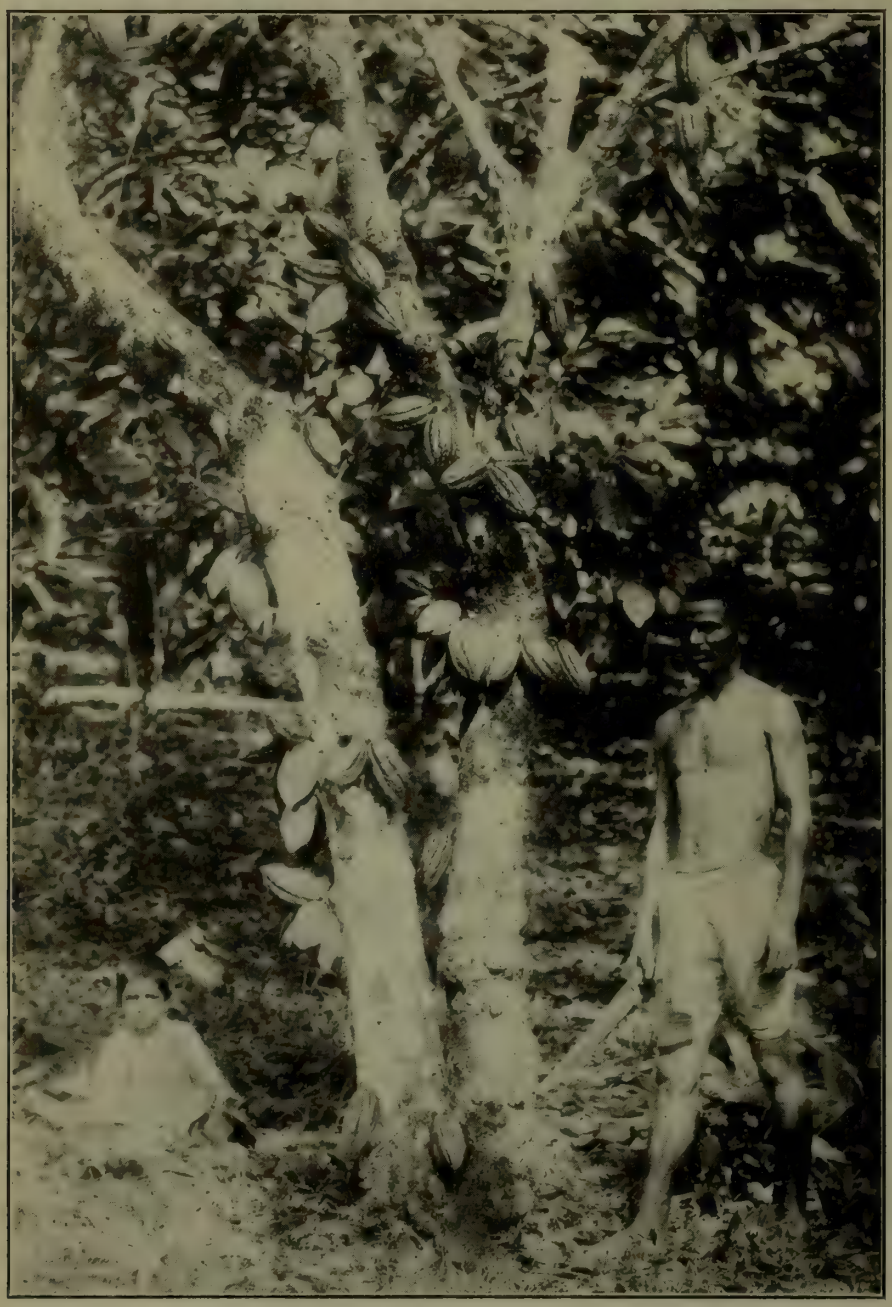
Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Cocoa Pods.

Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Another Method of drying the Cocoa-bean.

the cocoa is run through a breaker which separates the outer shell from the kernel and cracks the latter into small pieces suitable for grinding. These are known as cocoa nibs.

The nibs are then ground in a series of stone mills, being at the same time slightly heated. The result is a syrupy fluid in which the oil has been liberated by the grinding and liquified by the heat. This oil is now extracted by presses of immense power leaving a dry powder, which is the cocoa as sold by the grocer. The oil, when cool, solidifies and is known as cocoa butter.

If the oil is not pressed out and if the liquor is treated with sugar and flavoring, ground further in a series of stone mills until it is "worked" to a degree of smoothness, it becomes chocolate. If no sugar is added it is known as plain or bitter chocolate. When it has reached the required consistency it is run into moulds of various shapes and sizes and placed in a cold storage vault where it slowly hardens. It is then wrapped in tin foil, packed in boxes and is at last ready for market. As may be gathered from the foregoing, the manufacture of chocolate products is an intricate business, and requires not only great care, but a thorough knowledge of a special kind. As the plant required is very costly the business is in the hands of comparatively few firms, when one considers the enormous consumption. In 1905 the world's consumption of cocoa beans exceeded 300,000,000 pounds.



Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Cocoa tree in full bearing.

The recent advance has been caused by an enormously increasing consumptive demand and a great shortage in the crop. In addition, there is supposed to be a large speculative holding in the hands of consummate manipulators of the market, who, if this surmise is correct, are certainly reaping a rich harvest.

Cocoa from Pod to Cup—Cocoa pods on tree.

How long high prices will continue is a problem. It is certain, however, that there can be no relief before next June at least, and most manufacturers look for still further advances rather than any immediate decline.

Here is a good idea: Put a good, frameless mirror in the window, and put no advertising on it whatever, but entitle it, "A Picture Without a Frame." Then each lady who looks in it—and which of them will not?—will be the picture.

Why not make it an inducement for people at a distance to come to your store, by paying their car fare, if their purchase totals a certain amount.

IMAGINARY PROFITS

A big turnover does not necessarily mean a profitable year.

Cash receipts are no indication of capable retailing.

By C. L. Marshall.

A man I knew went into the retail grocery business. He opened a store in one of the best localities of a large city. His rent was low, his expenses light, he did a good class of trade, and his turnover was, for the firet twelve months, a large one, far beyond his expectations. He estimated that after deducting his expenses from the year's profits, there would remain a handsome margin, yet, after carefully and accurately taking stock, he found, to his astonishment, that he had just "broken even," and, after a year's hard work, had not made enough money to pay himself a laborer's wages. He sold out, and to this day cannot understand where the profits went.

Now, this man appeared to have everything in his favor. For twelve years previous to hanging up his shingle, he had been employed by a large wholesale grocery firm, where he had a thorough training in the office, shipping and sample room departments, was considered by his employers to be a thoroughly practical man, a good buyer and salesman, a good judge of staple and fancy groceries. In spite of this, or rather because of it, he did not succeed in his own business, for the simple reason that he was not a practical retail grocer. All his experience having come to him from the wholesale point of view, and of the losses and leaks incidental to retailing goods in small quantities, he had no conception whatever. Like many another man, he knew to a fraction the cost of doing his business, made what he thought was a good percentage of gross profit, had a satisfactory turnover, only to show at the end of the year a balance on the wrong side of the ledger.

Why They Fail.

The majority of failures in the retail grocery business can be attributed, not so much to a lack of ability to make profits and to figure them, as to an utter ignorance of the multitude of small losses and leaks which are occurring in the store every hour in the day. It is the faculty of being able to keep track of these losses, to minimize them, or to prevent them altogether, which determines oftener than not, the difference between the practical and successful retail grocer and the man who just "keeps store" and fails. This, of course, is not meant to imply that there are not many other causes which contribute towards failure, such as, insufficient capital, bad buying, bad debts and general ignorance of the business, but my argument is that unless a man is able carefully to systematize his business in such a way as to reduce to a minimum these so-called minor losses, to stop the leaks, or better still, prevent them, he will never get tangible results—real profits, in his business.

Of all the successful retail grocers you know, men who are making money, can you think of one who is not watching closely every little detail of his business, watching with a keen eye the scales and the garbage barrel? But are not these men the exception? Hundreds of grocers all over the country are throwing their profits away over the counter in overweight; quite as many are dumping them into the garbage heap in the form of rotten fruit, vegetables and other unsaleable perishable articles. Of these some simply shut their eyes to what they believe is an irremediable evil coincident to the business, others are blindly ignorant of what it amounts to, acquire no definite knowledge of what proportion such losses mean to their profits and grope along in the dark until the bailiff arrives on the scene.

Some Examples.

Theoretically, if a thirty-dozen case of eggs is bought at twenty cents, and sold at twenty-four cents per dozen, a gross profit of twenty per cent. is made. But is it possible to handle thirty dozen of eggs, sell them and deliver them in lots of a single dozen without breakage? If not, what does the breakage amount to? Any grocer who does not know this definitely and accurately, is better out of the egg business. Then, for instance, cheese—say a cheese invoiced to you as eighty pounds at 12½ cents per pound, is sold over the counter at 15 cents per pound. What is the profit? Not twenty per cent., perhaps ten per cent., perhaps less. That cheese cannot be cut into eighty separate pounds (to say nothing of smaller divisions). Keep track of it and see for yourself, and then taken into consideration loss in weight from evaporation, and the invariable fag ends which are almost, if not quite unsaleable, and you will find that your profit has melted away to the vanishing point. The same thing applies in a more or less degree to lard, butter, bacon, ham, etc., even with the most careful weighing losses are inevitable. In fact, with everything which is bought in bulk and retailed in small quantities, there is an attendant loss in weight, which is greatly enhanced by carelessness.

With fluids, such as vinegar, syrups, molasses and coal oil, there is bound to be a percentage of loss in measuring and selling them in small quantities, a loss which is not always easy to determine, but which it is important should be known with exactness.

With vegetables, fruits and other extremely perishable goods, there is an additional risk of loss from decay, worth keeping track of, but so often allowed to slip. The retail grocery business is done on a close, hazardously close, margin of profit, the grocer himself cannot be too close in his methods. He should insist that his clerks, as far as possible, weigh everything with absolute accuracy, give weight and nothing more. If there are losses from shrinkage, from breakage, from leakage, he should know and know exactly just what the losses amount to, ignorance on this point begets very short-lived bliss and usually ends in disaster.

Keep track of the losses. If they are little, aim to make them less—locate the leaks and stop them and imaginary profits become real.

The Problem of the Lobster

The Lobster Fisheries in the Maritime Provinces Are in Danger of Total Depletion—The Following Paper Gives the Facts and Suggests a Remedy.

BY A. W. EAKINS.

The lobster fisheries of these provinces and the marketing of the fish, either alive or canned, is one of the most important industries of the Maritime Provinces, employing, as it does, thousands of men, and bringing into the country millions of dollars, which, with the exception of the cost of the tin used in canning and of some imported fishing gear, is entirely the wages of labor. Unlike some other industries, however, such, for instance, as farming or the manufacture of textile fabrics, the raw material of the lobster fishing business is apparently capable of exhaustion. Recognizing this fact, the Government has, for many years, sought to protect these fisheries by enacting, and enforcing with more or less success, laws regulating the seasons for catching, and the size of the fish that might legally be packed or shipped alive. While the law enforcing the close season is well observed, the same cannot be said of that prohibiting the packing and exporting of fish under nine inches in length. Owing to the fact that each successive year the proportion of large, or legal sized lobsters is getting less and less, the tendency is to make up the deficiency by canning those undersized. Of course, inspectors are appointed, and paid to see that the law is not violated in this respect, but it is a matter of common knowledge that the law is practically a dead letter as far as the canners are concerned.

Look to the Future.

Under these circumstances, and in view of the fact that if present conditions prevail for a few years longer, there will be no lobsters left worth fishing for, does it not become our imperative duty to adopt such restrictive laws as shall conserve this most important of food fishes for the use of future generations, and deny ourselves, for the benefit of posterity, the temporary advantage of using up now what few lobsters remain? Years ago, when the supply of lobsters on the coast of Maine was threatened with exhaustion through the operations of the canneries, the Legislature passed a law absolutely prohibiting the canning of lobsters in that State. That law, I believe, is still in force. The effect of this prohibition, along with active and intelligent work by the Fish Commission in propagating lobsters artificially, has been gradually to re-stock the waters of the coast with a yearly increasing supply to be furnished the markets in their live state. Without doubt, it would be inflicting a hardship on the canning companies to prohibit them now from doing business. Large amounts of capital have been invested in factories and steamers and plants for carrying on this industry, and this capital would be mostly lost if the factories were shut up. In view of this I think that if it should be deemed by the Government, after a thorough inquiry, to be in the best interests of all concerned to close the factories, some reasonable compensation should be given the packers as an offset for their loss. This compensation might take the form of a yearly percentage on the value of the plant: suppose, for instance, that the factories were closed for ten years, then let the owners be paid 10 per cent. a year on a reasonable valuation for that length of time.

Mr. Eakins read this paper before the Maritime Board of Trade convention, held this year at St. John, N.B. His address was directly instrumental in securing the proposal and adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, the lobster fishing and canning industries of these Maritime Provinces are among the most important sources of income and natural wealth that we enjoy, and

Whereas, by reason of the very large number of men engaged in lobster fishing, and the general failure on the part of all concerned to observe the size limit that may legally be marketed, these fish are growing scarcer each year, and the fisheries seem threatened with practical extinction:

Therefore resolved, that the attention of the Federal Government be directed to this very important matter, and that it be most earnestly asked to adopt such measures, as, after careful inquiry, seem to be best adapted to conserve this great source of natural wealth.

Profit in Waiting.

It is surely a serious economical blunder to destroy the very source of profit and income, but as previously mentioned, that is just what is being done every year in the lobster fishing business. Hundreds of thousands of small lobsters, some of them merely babies five or six inches long, and hardly worth the trouble of canning, are caught and sold to the packers each season. The loss to the country, resulting from this ruthless waste, is enormous. It is said that every time a lobster sheds his shell and takes on a new one, he increases an inch in length. If this is repeated every year, it may be seen that a lobster that is only worth 1 cent this year, for the meat that is in him, may be worth 25 cents for export, alive, four or five years from now. What rate of interest on this basis, would the country earn by leaving a lobster on deposit, so to speak, in his native element, as compared with drawing him out to-day, and after converting him into a cent, putting that cent on deposit for five years? The last named investment would earn about 25 per cent. in five years, while the other would earn 2,500 per cent. In other words, the small lobster, capitalized and invested this year, would yield in principal and interest at the end of five years, 1¼ cents, while if left five years to grow, he would sell for 25 cents. Figure on a million lobsters on the same basis, and we have $12,500 as the result of the first transaction, and $250,000 as that of the second.

But someone may say, "We cannot afford to wait five years for these lobsters to grow; we have to live ourselves, and we want the proceeds of them now to help pay our bills." If the lobster were the only source of income, this appeal would be unanswerable, but it need hardly be said that it is not. It seems to me that we shall all grow into a more reasonable state of mind regarding this matter if we look at it from a broader point of view than we are apt to. Let us realize that we are all one big family, brothers whose interests are identical, and whose rights in our common heritage are equal. Not only are we brothers, under obligations to respect each other's rights, but we are the fathers of generations to come after us. Should we not, in the interest of these generations, deny ourselves the use of the immediate cent, in order that they may have the benefit of the hundreds of dollars which will accrue to them as the result of our self-denial? In our family life we have a thoughtful regard and painstaking solicitude for the future as well as the present welfare of our children. We do not, as a rule, spend all our income as we go along; we save what we can as a provision and assistance to those whom we are responsible for bringing into the world. If a man has timber areas which he uses as a source of income, he does not, if he is normally prudent, cut down growing trees, which, if left standing, would yield in a few years a much greater value in lumber than he would lose in interest by not at once converting them into cash. Even in our municipal life we have constant thought and regard for the future, and cheerfully contribute of our means, through taxation and otherwise, to the cost of works and improvements, education facilities, etc., which shall be mostly used and enjoyed by those to come after us. In Europe, notably in some of the German States, the Government owns large forest preserves, which are carefully tended and managed for the benefit of the whole people. Certain portions, that are ready for the axe, are cut down each year, and the denuded area at once re-planted, periods of re-planting and cutting being as wide apart sometimes as 60 to 100 years, depending upon the kind of timber grown.

Theories and Remedies.

Coming back to the question of the immature lobsters, and what shall be done to protect them, so that they may grow up and become the parents, actually or potentially, of millions of other lobsters, to go in a never-ending cycle of production and re-production as long as the world lasts. I find myself furnished with ready-made remedies as varied and as numerous as cures for rheumatism. Some packers would like the export of live lobsters prohibited, and the size limit strictly enforced, and then the small fish would have a chance to grow up, and yet the factories would be able to get enough stock to keep running and make money. Others say, "Abolish all restrictions except a close season, and there will be lobsters enough to go round, not only now, but always." Fishermen, generally, however, admit that the present indiscriminate slaughter of the innocents is a thing greatly to be deplored, and must soon result in the practical destruction of the lobster fisheries; but they say, "What is the use of one man observing the law, and putting the small fish back in the sea, when his neighbors all sell theirs to the factories? The very fish he would be putting overboard would be caught by someone else and sold." Theorists, like myself, have various remedies to propose. Those who have no direct interest in either canning, or shipping alive, say the factories should be shut up entirely, and the size limit for shipping alive he raised to 10½ inches, and strictly enforced. Others say, "Stop all fishing for lobsters for a period of five years, and give the fish a chance to catch up."

A Solution.

My own opinion, and in giving it I do so with a good deal of diffidence, and I am quite conscious that practical fishermen may find it unworkable, is, that the Government supervision or interference might easily take a more useful form than that of enacting laws that are not observed, and of maintaining overseers who do not oversee. It is well known that lobsters and many other kind of fish, are as capable of cultivation under proper conditions as are chickens. Around this coast are arms of the sea, several of which could be enclosed (suitable provision being made for the ebb and flow of the tide, and the admission of small fishes for food), and the small lobsters that come to the canneries could there be bought by Government agents, and deposited in these pounds. The lobsters would require to be fed there, and protected from poachers; but lobsters, as is well known, are not fastidious as to their bill of fare, and I think that pickled dogfish would answer very well for a steady diet, and this would help to solve the question of what to do with these pests. The cost of feeding and taking care of them, however, would be small as compared with the enormous increase in value of the fish as they reach marketable size. Small steamers would have to be employed by the Government agents in attending to the gathering up of the lobsters, and the carrying of them to these pounds, and the cost of this service, as well as the salaries of the officers, would come out of the proceeds of sales of fish. In these pounds the increase would not alone be in the size of the lobsters, but the seed lobsters would deposit their eggs there, and multitudes of new fish would be born and brought up, so to speak, in these enclosures; or they might be liberated to re-stock the adjacent waters.

The details of this plan could easily be worked out by practical men, and the question of expense and income, i.e., whether the thing could be made self-sustaining or not, decided. Being only, as I said, a theorist, I do not put forward this suggestion as one certain to be found practicable in operation, but it seems to me to be worth experimenting upon.

THE DEPARTMENTAL STORE.

Pros and Cons of a Vast Organization.

We hear a great many complaints, especially from country merchants, regarding the havoc caused to their trade by the great departmental stores of the cities. Just at present the country is being flooded with catalogues, that have cost a pretty penny to send out, and which are expected to more than pay for themselves in the returns looked for by the senders. It may as well be conceded by everybody, that the departmental store is here to stay, but it is not necessary for everyone to fall down at its feet, and allow themselves to be trampled out of business.

When they first started, there was great consternation amongst the different trades, as they took hold of one line after another. Their mode of advertising was not just as honest or truthful as it might have been. At first, and even to this day, only in a modified measure, their advertisements were so worded, and prices were quoted in such a way as to make people believe that heretofore the grocer, the shoe dealer, the dry goods merchant, and others, had been fleecing them, but that now they could buy everything from them, with only a small profit added on. In order to make the people believe these standard articles, such as soda biscuits, branded soaps, and other articles, the prices of which were well known and established, were offered by these people, very often at less than cost. True, the prices were changed daily, but as Barnum will put it, "the people like to be hum-bugged." The object they were after was gained; they got the people started going there, and it is their own fault if they cannot keep it up.

In those early days there is no doubt there were bargains, real bargains, to be had, but only by the knowing ones. It is doubtful if there is a bargain of any kind to be had to-day, certainly not sufficient to justify the jostling and crowding and wasted time, that it is necessary to go through, in order to get them. There are good points, however, about these great stores, that many grocers could, with profit, both to themselves and their customers, study to emulate.

DON'T KEEP IT.

"We don't keep the finest tea and coffee in town—we sell them," is the witty sign displayed in a grocery window in a Provincial town.

EFFECTIVE GROCERY ADVERTISING

CRITICISM, HELP AND SUGGESTION AS TO THE BEST METHODS OF PRODUCING IT.

Occasional Chats by W. F. Ralph.

The headline of an ad. has been compared to the locomotive of a train. And certainly the importance of a headline cannot very well be exaggerated. Oftentimes the headline is the only cause of an ad. being read at all. In fact, it might truthfully be said that such is the case with the great majority of ads.

In these days of hustle and general prosperity, newspapers usually give a paper of pretty good bulk for the money. The newspaper reader has a big mass of reading matter to wade through. Very few of them read from the top left-hand corner of the front page clean through to the bottom right-hand corner of the last page. They haven't the time. The average reader glances rapidly over the headlines, and will only pause to read an item the headline of which has aroused his interest. The importance of a headline in a one or two-column space is, therefore, very considerable. To be effective, it must arouse interest at once.

A grocer's advertisement should, as a matter of course, be designed mainly to arouse the interest of the world's purseholder—the housekeeper. Few women read the paper for anything other than the social news, and the advertisements. To the average housewife the advertising columns are far more interesting than the general news columns. The advertisements, in fact, are her news items. The bargain ad. has an immense power to attract the feminine eye. Bargains are the joy of her existence. And in the important matter of groceries she wants to feel that she is getting more quantity and quality for the money at "her grocer's" than she could anywhere else in town. Hence the necessity for a tone of absolute confidence in a grocery ad. Confidence inspires confidence.

Did you ever see a vacillating, "not-sure-of-myself" person inspire confidence in his neighbors? Hardly. An ad., being a human institution, designed to sway the human mind, should possess the tone of absolute conviction as to the merits of whatever it offers. For all of these reasons a great deal of attention should be given to the headline of a grocery advertisement. Particularly in the case of an advertisement of a general nature which offers a number of things, none of which are priced.

Some people believe in and use, headlines of a freakish variety. But it is doubtful if freakish headlines are of much use. They certainly may be counted upon to attract the wandering eye of the reader; but will they carry RESULTS.

Results, is the keynote of all advertising. Results mean more sales—greater sales, which, in turn, mean more money for the advertiser. Any idea that will produce results is worth using and sticking to, even if it may happen to be at variance with accepted theories.

The formerly accepted idea that telling the absolute truth in advertising was balderdash is rapidly being exploded. Many merchants are learning by experience that the truthful ad. creates confidence, and a store which carries the confidence of the community is certain to get a large share of that community's trade.

"If you can't tell the truth about a certain thing, you had better say nothing about it, for it will come home to roost some day."

This is what a prominent advertiser said the other day, and he sounded the sentiment of the average honest and reliable dealer.

Too many stores are given to the use of bald-headed. stereotyped phrases in explaining the cause for special sales. Such phrases as, "We have to move," "Forced out," "We must have money," "Bankruptcy sale." and the like, were overworked and fagged out long ago.

One merchant whose advertising has come under the notice of this publication says: "If I have damaged goods I say so frankly, both in my advertising and in personal talk with the customer. If I have something that won't sell, and determine to get rid of such, I plainly say that the goods are out of style, hence the lower prices." He says that in this manner, he has gradually convinced the public that he tells the truth and nothing else. He is fully satisfied with the results.—White's Sayings.

his interest to the advertisement proper? Humorous illustrations are frequently used by advertisers to illustrate the point of a headline, and opinions differ as to their efficiency. Many of the most successful advertisers have used humorous cuts with great profit. They are, however, usually advertisers on a wholesale scale, and are designed to influence an immediate purchase from a particular place. In retail advertising the humorous cut may sometimes be useful, but, as a general rule, most good grocery advertisers don't use it.

The use of hackneyed phrases and well-worn words is roundly condemned by some writers on advertising. Certainly, if a grocer's ingenious brain can think of an entirely original mode of expression his advertising will possess a "snap" worth having. But inasmuch as the average grocer is a very busy man, he cannot spend much time to sit around taxing his brains in the endeavor to be original. There are some words which invariably attract the eye. "Bargain," "Sale," "Special," "Notice," "Fire," are all hackneyed words which have been used in advertising ever since the Anglo-Saxon tongue became the chief language of commerce. Yet their power of attraction has not diminished. Place either of these words in fairly prominent type at the head of an advertisement and it will be read by nearly everyone who looks through the paper. They are hackeneyed words and, when combined, make hackneyed phrases; still they make excellent headlines.

The rules for headline writing would appear to consist of two only. Make it as short as possible and let it have some connection with the matter following it.

It has been asserted more than once in this column that one doesn't need to be a genius to produce business bringing grocery advertising. There is no mystery about it. It is merely a matter of, first, knowing the grocery business, and, second, knowing how to talk about it in the shortest number of words of plain English.

Most readers of The Canadian Grocer know a good deal about the grocery business, and are learning more all the time. Most of them also possess the capacity to express themselves in plain English. This means that they can write good ads. if they will exert themselves a trifle. In some ads. no composition of language is at all necessary beyond the headline. Plain statements of names and prices are often quite sufficient. But it is generally a good policy to infuse a little personality into an ad. in the shape of a short talk. This usually has the effect of adding a personal touch to the facts and prices, making the ad. that much more effective.

The ad. of Kirkup & Wilkie (Fig. 1) is a very good specimen of general grocery advertising, and carries out the ideas above expressed with reference to headlines. The headline, "Grocery Economy is Easy," is attractive to begin with, as it contains a word always in the mind of a thrifty housekeeper—"Economy." The headline is in exactly the same type as the name plate, which has the effect of inseparably connecting grocery economy with Kirkup & Wilkie. The talk is short, well worded, and to the point, and should have the effect of getting trial orders from people in that locality not entirely satisfied with their present grocers. A little additional space, giving an item or two with prices attached, would have been an improvement to the ad.

The George Williams ad. (Fig. 2) leaves some room for improvement, but chiefly in the matter of set-up. In this ad. the headline is turned into a sideline. Although from its peculiarity of appearance it might have the effect of catching the reader's eye, it is doubtful if it would hold it. Perpendicularly spelled words are often more confusing than legible, and are not held in much favor by the majority of advertisers. Although this ad. may have produced business, the set-up suggested in Fig. 3 is more in line with advertising usage, and is offered by way of comparison. We should like to hear the opinions of some of our readers on this point.

Fig. 4 is a good example of commonsense, advertising its effectiveness, consisting in its simplicity. Just a headline, list of priced goods and the name.

We have received an ad. from that excellent advertiser, J. A. McCrea, of Guelph. It is a little too large for us to reproduce this week, but fully deserves description. It carries out our above expressed theory on headlines very nicely. The headline is "Eat Fish Friday," set in 48 point capitals, followed by a neatly turned paragraph upon the wisdom of having variety in food and suggesting fish on Friday as a good way to accomplish it. Then comes a general description of the fresh fish always to be had at McCrea's every Friday.

SUCCESSFUL CASH GROCERY

Some New Ideas in Carrying on a Strictly C.O.D. Business—Modern Methods and Up-to-date Equipment.

Down in East Toronto, in the district that has grown up within the last three or four years, there are a number of grocery stores that are as bright and up-to-date in buildings, equipment and methods as one would find in traveling many a day.

Of the best of these, two belong to W. J. Snell, a gentleman who has ideas of his own about the grocery business. The newest of the two, the Kew Beach store, is illustrated in the accompanying photographs.

A Successful Cash Grocery—Interior of W. J. Snell's Store from the Front.

Just a year ago, on October 29, this store was opened and since then, by doing a strictly cash trade and using modern and up-to-date methods, Mr. Snell has built up a business that is making some of his neighbors look around.

Strictly Cash Business.

"Yes, sir, we do a strictly cash business," was Mr. Snell's answer when questioned regarding his methods, "and we find that all round it's the most satisfactory. No bad debts, no collecting, no bad friends among our customers. It's a very happy way to do business. Yes, the driver carries $5 in change and collects as he makes his rounds, turning in his receipts at night. If the customer is not at home he usually leaves the order and collects next day, but if the customer is not well-known the goods are brought back to the store. At first a few of our customers objected to always paying cash," went on Mr. Snell, "but when they found everyone else was doing it and that our service was good, the objections began to cease and now we have no trouble whatever."

To facilitate delivery, a "delivery sheet" has been arranged which contains blanks for driver's name and route, and columns with headings as follows: Name, No. Parcels, Price (C.O.D.), Oil, Charcoal, Butter, Sundries. This has been found to be of immense advantage.

System of Soliciting.

Mr. Snell believes in going after business, turning it up, as it were, instead of waiting for it to come in. To this end three travelers are kept on the street during the day soliciting orders. They come into the store in the later hours of the afternoon and look after getting out their orders. These men are paid on commission and a good deal of good-natured rivalry exists as to who will turn in the largest string of orders weekly. The system has proved itself an exceedingly good one.

The use of well-planned advertising is another secret of the store's success. At the opening, a year ago, a neat little booklet, entitled: "Progress and Opportunity," was placed in every home within a considerable distance of the store. The index page of this told its purpose in the words: "A True Story About Toronto's Most Modern Grocery, Fruit and Confectionery Emporium." The pages following contain a comprehensive description of the store and an attractively-worded invitation to visit the premises during the opening week.

Every week circulars are distributed bearing quotations for the week and also a number of special lines which are being pushed. And these are found to bring particular good results.

Useful Coupon System.

Mr. Snell uses a coupon system which will be of interest to many grocers. With each purchase a cash-redeemable coupon is given. When purchases of $30 have been made the customer is entitled to $1 worth of goods free, at a rate, as is pointed out in the circular, of nearly 3½ per cent. discount, more than bank interest.

A confectionery department is one of the features of the establishment. Two large silent salesmen display the stock, which ranges from standard lines up to the very best boxed goods and because, for one reason, the store enjoys a particularly good class of trade, this department is a big profit maker.

Up-to-date Fittings.

The store fittings, as will be seen from the photographs, are just as up-to-date as the business methods used. Windows just below the ceiling on each side of the building afford a direct current of fresh air, which keeps everything fresh and prevents the disagreeable "grocery" smell, so common in badly-ventilated stores.

The show windows extend right across the full store front and these are kept in first-class shape. The store is lighted by two large windows on either side of the main entrance. In the evening a system of gasoline lamps of 300 candle-power each provides particularly good lighting.

The shelving is fitted with a large number of show boxes, some labelled and some provided with glass fronts, thus avoiding dust and unnecessary handling of goods. Along the front of the counter is also placed a line of shallow show boxes for displaying lines of cereals, nuts, etc. This scheme ought to be a mighty good one, for the customer will receive many a suggestion from these while she is waiting for her parcels. Just inside the door a couple of rows of tilting show boxes contain lines of fancy biscuits, and, incidentally, offer numerous other suggestions.

These fixtures were installed by the Walker Bin Co.

The refrigerator is one built specially for this store. It has seven compartments, three of which are fitted with swinging shelves permitting inspection of the article while preventing escape of the cold air. The scales are of the latest computing pattern and the store equipment includes patent meat slicer, cheese cutter, etc.

W. Giddings is the energetic manager of this store, and he certainly keeps things generally in spic and span condition.

Hints on Flour and Feed.

Mr. Snell's other store, in East Toronto, does a big business with the Hunt Club and with some of the larger householders on the Kingston Road. Flour and feed is carried here as a special department, and a good deal from this is supplied to the Woodbine. To facilitate the handling of these goods the warehouse is specially fitted with a hoist and chutes run from the second storey into a small room directly behind the store proper.

"One of the lines that we sell a lot of, and that grocers in the suburbs would do well to handle," said Mr. Snell, "is that humble article, chicken-feed. We dispose of it in 5 and 10-cent packages and are able to clear 20 per cent.

Practically the same business methods are in operation here as in the other store, but as yet, for a variety of good reasons, the strictly cash system has not been adopted. It is the intention, however, that the business shall be put on this basis shortly.

NEW USE FOR MOLASSES.

Molasses as a fire extinguisher! You probably never tried it, but it can deliver the goods in this capacity as well as in its ordinary role of general sweetener to the human race. It will not burn, and on one occasion several large tanks of burning oil were extinguished by covering them with tarpaulins soaked in molasses.

HOW TO PREVENT PRICE-CUTTING

A capable and exhaustive discussion on the importance of the manufacturer establishing and maintaining prices.

By J. F. Paulding, Los Angeles.

[At the meeting of the California Retail Grocers' Association, held a few weeks ago at Sacramento, a great many subjects were discussed of live interest to Canadian, no less than to American retailers. Of such a kind was the address given by Mr. Paulding on price maintenance, and it will be to the advantage of every grocer in the Dominion or out of it to study and digest Mr. Paulding's eminently practical advice on this subject. Mr. Paulding is recognized and widely known in the States as an authority on these matters, and though his words may not necessarily carry extra weight on this account, they are worth the careful attention of every thinking man, as setting forth many regrettable conditions that exist in Canada to-day, and suggesting some practical methods for their reform.—Editor's note.]

The subject of price maintenance has, perhaps, caused more thought, more argument and taken up more time with less result than most any question before the American grocers to-day. Only one question has superseded the price question and that is credits and and it is very questionable whether that important subject has had as much time and thought as the question of how to prevent price cutting. Hardly any association of any locality, that has been organized any length of time but what has had this important question before the meeting more than once. More associations have gone on the rocks of defeat for want of some proper manner to control this all important question, than all other questions combined. Practically every plan that could be devised had been tried without success up to three years ago and yet the trade demoralizer had his way almost invariably because those who seek to gain trade by cutting prices know that price maintenance in any form will take away their advertising advantage, therefore, it has been a life and death struggle with them and they have held on until ultimately they have gained their point by discouraging the great majority of the dealers and causing an abandonment of every plan that was inaugurated. Boycott had been levied against department stores, wholesalers and retailers. Agreements had been made between wholesalers and retailers. Understandings had been entered into between retailers and themselves, but the proper power of punishment necessary for a successful carrying out of price protection was always lacking, and it is doubtful if there is an association in this country to-day of any mentionable size that has a protected price that has been maintained in a year without same has been abandoned permanently in the end. There may be a few who have a sugar card that is lived up to, or a few articles that are listed by an understanding, that are meeting with some degree of success; but a list of articles worthy of the name of protection I believe I am right in saying scarcely exists. They have always been a failure when backed up by agreements of any kind, whether between retailers and wholesalers, or not popular under such circumstances; therefore, such a plan as forcing a wholesaler to discontinue selling one of his best customers usually meets with his hearty disapproval and he backs up this disapproval by devising ways and means of protecting that particular customer, or customers. Any agreement regarding prices, if successful, will ultimately call for a direct boycott, and if any association wishes to secure uninterrupted profits on their staple articles, they will have to go to the fountain head and work with the only party who has a right to protect their goods and that is the manufacturer.

Price Agreements Unsuccessful.

We have had our experience with price agreements based on an understanding with the wholesalers, also our failure along with other associations who had tried in like manner to secure proper profits. It was a bitter pill, but we had to swallow it and try another plan and in this we have succeeded. When the prices established in 1902 failed, one of our members, J. A. Faazenda, stated he believed that the proper way to secure protection was to go to the manufacturer and ask him to set a retail price and protect it which would interest the great mass of retail dealers in any brand of goods on which a permanent profit was assured. We have been guided largely by the well known firms of this State, namely, the Sperry Flour Company and the Globe Grain & Milling Company who had been for several years establishing and successfully maintaining prices on their leading brands of flour. We approached a number of manufacturers on the question with a result that more than sixty manufacturers, many of national reputation, are to-day maintaining retail prices on their goods in the Southern Territory. Of course there are a few occasional cuts; but not 10 per cent. of what there was before the prices were established and the retailers are reaping a profit on their staples that could not be enjoyed under any other conditions. We have had the same trouble with those who wish to demoralize the prices as we had when we originally started our prices which failed.

The demoralizers were reckoning with a different class this time, and with those who had a right to invoke the law, if necessary, to back up their desires in the matter. Suits have been threatened, and goods refused demoralizers, and there are certain stores in the south to-day that will do without some brands of goods rather than maintain the prices established by the manufacturer. It is the manufacturer who is directly interested, because he is the direct loser if his goods become unpopular. The wholesaler is not interested, because if the demoralizer fails to buy one brand he will go to another and he secures the profit just the same. Again, the wholesaler, except on his private brands, has no right to invoke the law for his protection, while the manufacturer has. A copyright gives the manufacturer the right to control until the goods are in the hands of the consumer and any manufacturer who cares for the interest of the great mass of retailers can give a profit protection that will make the grocery business pay something like what it should.

Two Classes.

There are two classes of retailers who do not want protected prices. They are, first the man who is receiving favors, and, second, the pessimist who does not believe that prices can be controlled. Take the situation in Southern California, for instance. We have a few who do not want the manufacturers to maintain prices, and they are the direct cause of 99 per cent. of the cutting. They cut the well known articles to gain trade and the smaller man who cannot afford to cut things has to meet downtown competition and slashes away until he goes the way of 90 per cent. of all small cut rate stores —through the Board of Trade. Any man who is not receiving favors from the wholesalers and manufacturers cannot afford to cut prices even though they sell for cash. The man who is receiving favors can afford to sell below the average and does not want protected prices. Take two of our large cash dealers, for example. They are buying Perfection Soda Crackers, in three-pound packages, made by the Pacific Coast Biscuit Company, for 2.40 per dozen, less 10 per cent., and a window full of these goods has been on display on a prominent street in our city for two weeks offering to sell the goods at list price or 20 cents a package. The small man pays just 20 cents per package and has to get 25 cents or go to the wall. The big cash man sells at 20 cents and makes a leader and makes his 10 per cent. just the same. Again, take the same retailer, he is selling National Biscuit Company's goods for 3 for 25 cents or $1 per dozen. He is getting them for 85 cents per dozen, providing he buys $250 a month, which, no doubt, he does, and is, therefore, selling the goods as a leader for a 15c. margin of profit, yet the little man is paying $1 per dozen for his goods.

Again, take Shredded Wheat Biscuits, this same dealer has always sold them for 10 cents a package. He bought them for $4.60 per case, and makes 40 cents profit where the little man has to pay $5 and sell at costs if he met the competition, or he had to parade as a high priced man before the public if he wanted a living. I could go on down the line and give you the names of numerous articles which would come under the same head; but this is enough to picture to you the reason why this particular dealer does not want prices protected. He is afraid to do business on a par with the rest of the trade. He wants inside prices which are not allowed the rest of the dealers, and he would, no doubt, be the first one to ask for protection from the manufacturer if he were placed in the position of the men who are to-day advocating the maintenance of prices by the manufacturer.

The great question is what are we going to do with the man who is favored? Are we going to continue to patronize a manufacturer who will deliberatey give this dealer and his kind this inside price and allow him to demoralize the conditions so that it is impossible for the man with small means to gain a livelihood. He is worth, perhaps, a quarter of a million dollars. He can buy for cash and get all the discounts. He can use the quantity that makes an order attractive to the manufacturer or wholesaler. He pays no rent and sells for cash. His excuse for not wanting prices protected is that he sells for cash and loses no bad bills.

The Real Reason.

I tell you that this is not the reason. The reason he is cutting is that he is getting his goods so that he would be ashamed to tell you how much less he is buying goods for than you are. He is like the great trusts who have recently been fined for receiving favors that were denied the rest of the trade. The Standard Oil Co. has annihilated thousands of small businesses, made men go hungry, and taken children from school, all because they were receiving favors that were denied their competitors. My plan would be to go to the Pacific Coast Biscuit Company and the National Biscuit Company and say, "Gentlemen, you are giving 10 to 15 per cent. off your goods to this man and his kind, and we want you to protect the great mass who are not able to buy the quantity," and if they said there was nothing they could do, tell them to take away the extra discount and then their customers would not want to cut, and if they refused to do as asked, then tell the trade far and near what kind of manufacturers they were dealing with. Not only these two firms, but every one of their kind should be called to the attention of the trade throughout the entire West. There are others just as bad, and I only use their name because their goods have been brought to my attention in a cut price window recently, therefore I name them. If any grocer within the hearing of my voice can get a better plan than this, I hope he will bring it up for discussion before we adjourn. Let these manufacturers establish a price that will give all a profit, and if they must give such men as this 10 to 15 per cent. discount, make it contingent that the retail prices shall not be cut or the same will be taken away from them. There is no binding agreements necessary, between wholesaler, retailer or manufacturer. Just tell the manufacturers whose goods are being cut and that unless the cutting is stopped you will refuse to handle the goods he is making. Then you would see these fellows get in the band wagon and be just as good as any one; but they will not do it just as long as you grocers will allow the manufacturers to give them special prices and permit them to use these favors to demoralize your trade.

This paramount question was the best discussed question before the last National convention. For three hours the merits of having the manufacturer establish and maintain prices was discussed, and every man who belonged to an association where the plan had been tried supported the resolution. The main objection to this question was that we were liable to prosecution under the anti-trust laws of this country and the question was lost by a small majority on this one point. In answer to any such argument I wish to say to my eastern friends who may happen to read this paper, that we are just trying to avoid that one liability and we have succeeded. We, as retailers, have no right to establish prices among ourselves and no agreements can be entered into between wholesalers nor manufacturers regarding this subject; but the retailers have a right to ask the manufacturers individually to prevent the trade demoralizer from cutting the prices below a living margin or take away the special discounts.

Prosecutions Threatened.

There have been more prosecutions within the past twelve months for violations of the anti-trusts laws, than any previous wear in the history of this country. In every case where there was a conviction, it was because there were agreements between two or more parties, which is a violation of the law. The Pacific Coast Plan will obviate the necessity of any agreements and therefore take away any liability whatever of prosecution of the members of any association. The Government attorneys who prosecuted the drug trust proved collusion between the Patent Medicine Men and the National Druggists' Association, and also proved that the National Retail Druggists' Association maintained a list of people who would not maintain prices. The only way for any association to govern any movement to maintain prices is to keep out of binding agreements because attorneys will bring out every point in order to prove collusion and try and parade before the public as trust busters to gain a little notoriety for themselves.

With all we have accomplished in the way of maintenance of prices I will defy any attorney, whether he be connected with the Government or a private concern, to find one single agreement between our association, or any manufacturer, or any agreement made between the retailers, and wholesalers, or among the retailers themselves. When we can create a condition of this kind in our vicinity, it can be done in others. To more forcibly illustrate my contention that we are keeping within the law I wish to point out to any skeptical grocer, whether he be of the east or west, our experience with the recently enacted Cartwright law, which is an exact copy of the Ohio and the Texas anti-trust laws. When this law went into effect on the 23rd day of May there was much joy in the camp of the trade demoralizers, who wished to take unto themselves the credit for freeing the trust-ridden public of the grocers' trust and no less than half a dozen dealers in Los Angeles were out with their advertisements promptly on time, stating they had defied the trust and there would no longer be any prices dictated to them by any combination of wholesalers, retailer or manufacturers. Not only did these parties promise the public that hereafter there would be no more grocery trusts to contend with, but they took a certain amount of credit on themselves for the passage of the law. The district attorney called at the association office and questioned the secretary, requested a copy of the by-laws, and soon thereafter appeared notices in the paper that the grocery trust, of which J. F. Paulding had been the managing head for the past five years, would be a thing of the past, and perhaps the secretary would be in jail. The daily press was from doing as they pleased. One evening paper in particular, has taken up this fight and promised the public that the Retail Grocers' Association would have to disband with all other organizations of like character.

No Proof Forthcoming.

A reporter who had gained some reputation in Chicago for getting information from members of organizations where an agreement had been made between the members called at the office several times and tried by diverse ways to get a copy of the old cast aside agreements of the association in order to publish it along with his other vast amount of misinformation. He endeavored by every means to prove an agreement to maintain prices and so sure was he that he could do so he allied himself with the district attorney's office in order to clothe himself with the authority to demand the most private papers on file regarding the subject. He was always treated with courtesy but told that there were no prices established by the association, but all prices that were in effect were made by the individual manufacturers, and that no law would effect the manufacturers' right to continue this policy. This was the cause of this particular reporter's remorse. He had pledged himself to his advertisers, and the public, that there was to be a sensation, a prosecution and a conviction, and investigate as he might he could procure no evidence that would be of any use to him whatever. We have not heard of him for some months and his paper has ceased to mention in any way the grocery trust. The department stores were as sensational as the reporter, and it seemed as if there was a collusion between the two for the purpose of making our association disband. They suffered disappointment and our association is still in existence and the reporter has been forgotten, and we have forgiven him for his intended injury, because he is not responsible for his lack of knowledge of matters that he had never studied It was a case of mistaken identity and he, like some of our Texas and Ohio grocers, placed the manufacturers establishing and maintaining prices on a plan with the oft tried and ever fatal way of prices by agreement between members.

Within the last few years the Kandy Kitchen has developed into what many claim is one of the finest confectionery stores in Canada. This is a proud boast, but is largely substantiated by the appearance of the above reproduction. full of possible happenings and the department stores, especially, were much gratified that they could have their way at last, and defy the ever alert grocery trust that was grinding the public between the stones and keeping them (the department store)

The district attorney, however would not give up his contention that the manufacturers had no right to establish prices, and he took the stand that the new law prevented any prices whatever, thereby placing an individual manufacturer in the light of a trust I was one of a few who have taken the position that no law would prevent the individual manufacturer from establishing prices and many were the predictions that failure was confronting this important department of the retail grocers' paper. We let matters run along with as little publicity as possible, well knowing that conditions would right themselves in the end. The final result is that the district attorney has announced that the manufacturer has the right to establish prices and the daily papers have made a final statement that the Retail Grocers' Association is not, nor has it been, in violation of the law at any time.

YOU MIGHT ADOPT IT, TOO.

Here is an idea, culled from an old grocer, which may help other grocers who are bothered by people using their store telephone. "I used to be troubled a great deal," he says, "by people coming in and holding long conversations over my line. Finally I was so bothered that I put up a notice, 'Public telephone next door.' This seemed rather hard on my customers, so on the advice of a friend I changed it to the sign you see there." Tied to the 'phone was a neat little notice which read suggestively: "Certainly, but make the conversation short, please." This seems to have solved the difficulty.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW BRUNSWICK

The resources of the Province and how they are being realized.

By The Grocer's Special Correspondent

The industrial development of New Brunswick in recent years, while not rapid, has been steady and sure. The leading industry of the Province is agriculture, and the advance in this particular has been most satisfactory. Wheat is being grown in larger quantities every year, but not in sufficient quantities to supply the needs of the Province. For several years past, the Government has been giving bounties for the erection of grist mills, in which wheat is ground by the Hungarian process. Under this arrangement, twenty-seven roller mills have already been erected, of which three have been destroyed by fire, leaving twenty-four in operation. Besides these, a roller mill has recently been erected in Buctouche without the Government bounty. The total capacity of these mills is 1,260 barrels every 24 hours. If run day and night they would be capable of grinding 1,500,000 bushels of wheat a year. Their capacity is easily beyond the present wheat production of the Province.

Oats, potatoes, turnips and buckwheat all yield well, and are among the largest crops. A great deal of attention is now being given to dairying. There are 43 cheese factories and 41 butter factories in the Province. The value of these products in 1906 was $373,963,71, as ompared with $76,151.46 in 1896.

Next to the agriculture, lumbering is the principal industry. The forest exports of New Brunswick amount to about $5,000,000 a year, of which three-fourths goes to Great Britain. The lumber exports have shown an increase every year for some time back. Although the New Brunswick fisheries are not as extensive as those of Nova Scotia, they are, nevertheless, very valuable, the average product being about four and a half million dollars a year. The principal catch is herring, which amounts to about $1,000,000 a year alone. Several large hatcheries devoted to fish culture have been established in recent years, and millions of fish fry are distributed every year in New Brunswick waters.

In mining, this Province, while inferior to some of the others, has several valuable deposits of mineral wealth. Coal is found in the southern portion of the Province, and is being worked in Queen's and Kent counties. Albertite is mined in Albert county, oil wells are located in Westmoreland, iron, copper ore, nickel, antimony, galena, manganese and graphite, also exist.

There is an abundance of limestone, many valuable deposits in St. John county being worked at a handsome profit. Gypsum is extensively quarried in Albert. Large quantities of granite, marble, freestone and slate are taken out. Mineral springs and salt springs are being operated at a profit.

The great manufacturing industry of New Brunswick is the conversion of the lumber of the Province into deals, boards, clapboards, shingles, and similar articles. This industry employs hundreds of sawmills and gives employment to many thousands of men. The Province contains five pulp mills for the making of chemical pulp, all established in recent years. There are five cotton mills and several iron foundries.

The manufacture of nails is carried on extensively. Boots and shoes are made in a number of places, as are wrappers, paper boxes, woolen cloths, candy and soap. There are also several furniture factories and carriage factories. Although no figures are available, it is conceded that the Province has made a steady advance in its manufacturing industries.

The Province is well served with railways, the I.C.R. and C.P.R., together with numerous branch lines, tap its various sections, while the G.T.P., now under construction, and the proposed St. John Valley Railway, will, no doubt, open up more of the country and develop its various resources.

The value of the imports of the Province during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, was $8,886,409, and the exports for the same period was $23,-267,348 in domestic goods, and $281,605 in foreign, not including United States products sent through St. John valued at $8,796,664, thus making St. John's total exports $27,131,788.

A GROCERY DE LUXE

Quarter-cut Oak, Plate Glass in Profusion and Tin-Lined Bins Soon Pay for Their Cost in the Class of Business They Attract.

The satisfaction that accrues from doing business with the best class of trade in a store that corresponds in fittings and general effect with the houses of its customers, must be considerable. If so, R. H. Stewart, whose store is at 599 Sherbourne street, Toronto, ought to be a happy man. With solid quarter-cut oak counters, shelving and fittings, with plate glass galore, with tin-lined bins, and with the latest in accessories, he has an edition de luxe of a modern grocery store. The store is even fitted with exposed oak beams in the ceiling, and the office fittings look as though they had been built for a bank. The photographs appearing herewith will show the details in a more adequate way than any verbal description. The fittings were manufactured and installed by Jones Bros., Toronto.

Entering the store, one comes face to face with the confectionery department, the goods of which are displayed on a large mirror-backed chiffonier and in glass-fronted compartments under the counter. Only the best class of goods is carried, and the profit on these is found to be remarkably good.

This idea of glass-fronted compartments under the counter is carried out for the full length. It is a remarkably good idea, providing for an effectual display of soilable goods without exposing them to the ravages of flies and dirt. Behind the counter, underneath the shelving, is a row of tilting boxes, all tin-lined. Above these is a row of spice boxes, and above this, again, the shelving which is filled with general package goods, extracts, etc.

The shelving on the other side of the store is filled with canned goods of the best lines, of which the store carries an enormous stock. Below this is another row of tilting bins, and also a row of smaller drawers, all of quarter-cut oak and tin lined.

At the rear of the store is the refrigerator, built with three separate compartments, the ice supply being put in from the warehouse outside. Across from this a cosy little private office has been fitted up.

The general office is situated conveniently near the door. Unfortunately it is not shown in the photographs. The front is fitted up with plate glass and bent brass, like a teller's window in a bank, and the desk and filing devices inside correspond. Two telephones on two separate lines are supplied here, and very frequently they are both in use. A very large proportion of Mr. Stewart's business is done by telephone, and this system seems to be growing more popular every year with the best class of trade.

A couple of special movable fittings deserve special mention. For instance, the store's line of fancy biscuits is carried in two frames, which can be shifted, as desired. Each frame contains four long tilted boxes in tiers, each box being covered with a hinged glass cover and arranged to hold six tin boxes of standard size. A large double-decked table near the door provides room for the display of any special lines, and the goods on this give many a hint to the incoming customer.

In keeping with the fittings, the store is heated by a number of hot water radiators, placed in out-of-the-way corners, and to facilitate the handling of barrels and boxes, a hoist runs from the warehouse in the rear to the cellar below the store.

GROCERS AND GROCERIES IN CHINA

Conditions of Trade in the City of Shanghai.

European Foodstuffs of all kinds stocked in abundance.

"Why, yes," said a lady who is quite conversant with affairs in China, "several of the stores in Shanghai are just as up to date in appearance as the one shown in the photographs you have there. When you consider that there is a population of 11,000 English people in the city and that these are all pretty well to do, you can see that there must be quite a demand for English and American goods," and that English methods will be likely to prevail to some extent.

"I have bought groceries time and again from Dunning & Co.," our informant went on, "and have found them most satisfactory to deal with. Their store is quite large and of three stories in height. In the ground floor they handle chiefly groceries. The second story is devoted to hardware, of English and German manufacture, and a line of American typewriters is also handled.

English Firms and English Goods.

"The other stores? Well, there are two other large English firms doing business in Shanghai in buildings just as good as Dunning's. These are Lane, Crawford & Co., and Mustard & Co. These two are old established firms having been in business there for twenty or thirty years. The Dunning business has changed hands several times and has been under the present control only about ten years.

"Several Chinese firms as well, who are quite up to date in store methods, handle British goods. The names of a few of these? Well, I'll have to spell them for you. 'Paw Chong,' for instance, and 'Wen Dah,' are two of the largest of them."

Chinese Groceries.

"What about the real Chinese grocery stores?" inquired The Grocer representative. "Are they distinctively groceries, as they are in this country?"

"Oh, yes," said our informant. "In Shanghai there are thousands of them, little places, a good many of them, on street corners as they are in Toronto, which supply the Chinese people with characteristically Chinese goods. In later years, however, the influx of European people and methods is having such an effect that the character of these goods is changing considerably, and the demand for European goods among the natives is becoming marked."

"Are the names of these stores as peculiar as those of the laundry men here?" was the next question.

"Quite as peculiar," with a smile. "They have just the same 'Lee Sings' and 'Chong Hos' in Shanghai as you see here. These small stores, too, do a good deal of business, though, of course, according to Chinese method, one has to use the 'beating down' system for anything they buy. It is perfectly ridiculous to what an extent this system prevails. Usually one can buy an article from 100 to 200 per cent. below the first price quoted."

Well Stocked Stores.

"What about the goods in the English stores?" inquired The Grocer. "Can one live as we do in Canada?" "Well," was the reply, "if the people are willing to pay a little more for it, and most of the Europeans in Shanghai are well able to do so, they can buy about anything you can at the best stores in Ontario or Quebec. For instance, English canned goods, that is, meats and vegetables, and bottled fruits, are carried in abundance. Japanese canned goods are also creating quite a demand. Hams and bacons and dried fish are plentiful." The Grocer had already noticed the display of Swift's goods in the window. "English biscuits are procurable in all varieties," she continued, "arrowroots, gingers, cocoanuts, and even animal wafers, being on sale."

Fruits, Meats and Milk.

"Fresh fruit? Yes, they sell a good deal of that, too. Bananas and oranges come from the Southern Pacific and some oranges, of a more citric flavor, are grown in China. Vegetables are quite plentiful, cabbages, corn, beets, and sweet potatoes being grown near the city. Tomatoes and ordinary potatoes are not usually grown by the natives, but the climate easily permits of it.

"Meats? Well, you'll perhaps be surprised to know that fresh meat is considerably cheaper in Shanghai than in Toronto. We could buy beefsteak of a pretty good quality for 10c. per pound. Most of this is sold in the market, a large enclosed structure, but with no roof, filled with tiny stalls, where all the bargaining goes on.

"Where does the beef come from? Oh, you know the Chinese use the cow as a beast of burden, and on this account beef is quite plentiful. No, the natives don't ordinarily use milk, but a couple of large dairies in Shanghai supply the English people. The Mohammedans all through China also use milk and it can usually be obtained from them."

Canadian Trade.

"Are any Canadian goods sold in Shanghai?" asked The Grocer. "Not ordinarily," said the traveler, "but a good deal of it is shipped in for the use of Canadian missionaries. The market may in time be developed, and Chinese trade ought to prove of considerable value to Canadian manufacturers of foodstuffs, if it was developed. Shipping charges would be somewhat less than from England. The English goods are so perfectly reliable that it is always safe to handle them. That is one factor which operates against United States goods."

"One interesting point for you," said our informant, toward the end of the interview, "is the fact that the Chinese make excellent sugar, cane sugar, that is. It comes in two grades; a white baking sugar, which is similar to our granulated in flavor, but is manufactured in large granules about half an inch in diameter. The other grade, which is very inferior, is of a brown color. These sugars are made in Hong Kong and Canton."

Window Dressing in China—A Display by Dunning & Co., Shanghai.

It might be interesting to note that the three English firms mentioned above all advertise extensively in the three English daily papers printed in Shanghai, and also in the less frequently published Chinese papers. How far the European movement has taken hold in that city may be judged from the fact that one of the issues of one of these dailies carries an ad. for a vacuum cleaner machine. Several advertisers, English firms, who occupy The Grocer's columns regularly are also represented in these dailies.

THE WESTERN CROPS AND THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

For a decade to come, the year 1907 will undoubtedly be remembered in Western Canada as a year of great anxiety, nervousness and uncertainty. In the best of years the crops get on one's nerves. So much depends on them that not only the farmers, who are the men most directly interested, but the business and professional men in the western cities, and even in the east, watch the weather and crop reports during the critical season of the year with the keenest interest. During the months of August and September the crop reports and the records of temperatures throughout the west are the first things referred to by the business man in Winnipeg as he scans the morning paper while waiting for his coffee. The crops are on the minds of all classes of people and the discussion of the weather and weather probabilities is not merely a polite and tiresome commonplace of conversation, but a subject of vital and significant interest.

This has been a year of anxiety and uncertainty. The winter was the most severe on record and it was followed by a late, cold spring, which delayed seeding. The summer was none too favorable and the harvest was thrown more than a month later than usual. Naturally, there was great anxiety lest the first frosts should destroy the crop, and when it is remembered that owing to various causes this has been a year of world wide financial stringency it can readily be understood that business conditions have been none too favorable. For the first time in years there has been an undercurrent of pessimism in the west and business men lacked their usual confidence.

Twenty-five Per Cent. Shrinkage.

There has, however, been a marked revival of confidence since the beginning of the harvest. It is too early yet to do more than guess at the size of the wheat crop, but it is certain now that the crop was much larger than was expected two months ago. It is probable that Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was nearly correct when in the course of his annual report last month to the C.P.R. directors he estimated a shrinkage of about 25 per cent. as compared with last year. He added that there was a large increase in the production of the coarser grains and that in view of the high prices obtaining it is not unlikely that the western farmer will receive quite as much money for his 1907 crop as for his 1906. He might have added that in view of the fact that the crop is considerably smaller than last year it is likely to be handled much more promptly by the railways and therefore the farmer will not be compelled to wait so long as last year for the proceeds of his crop.

The Worst Days Are Over.

This, then, seems to be the sane and accurate view of the situation. Some districts have undoubtedly suffered severely and the business men will feel the pinch of hard times; but, taking the country as a whole, there has been a fairly good crop and the high price paid for grain will save the situation.

The days of general crop failures in Western Canada are over now, for the area under cultivation is too big to permit of them. In the early days, when the western wheat area was confined to the districts around Portage la Prairie, Brandon, and Virden, general failures were possible; but at the present time the wheat area extends over so many hundred miles of territory that such a thing is altogether improbable. The best proof is the experience of this year, the most unfavorable the world over that has been known for more than a generation. Western Canada has stood the test and her substantial crop, grown and harvested under the most adverse conditions, bears eloquent testimony to her great possibilities.

The general business situation in the west is therefore not unfavorable, in spite of the adverse conditions prevailing during the year. The money stringency has made it necessary to shorten credits and business henceforth will be conducted on a more satisfactory basis.

WINNIPEG'S FINEST GROCERY STORE

"Goods Well Displayed are Half Sold."

How W. H. Stone's new store, in Winnipeg, has been built around this maxim.

No grocer who is planning to build a new and high-class grocery store building should think of letting the contract or approving the plans until he has acquainted himself with the principal features of a few of the best stores in the country; and there are few stores in Canada in the same class with the handsome new store completed in Winnipeg last month for the W. H. Stone Company. For twenty-two years Mr. Stone has been actively engaged in the retail grocery business in Winnipeg, the firm being known for the first two years as Stone & Bryson. For twenty years Mr. Stone carried on the business in his own name, but simultaneously with the removal to the new store his nephew, Archibald White, was taken into the business and the firm name is now the W. H. Stone Co.

The new building is located on Main street, between Henry and Logan avenues, in the same block in which Mr. Stone has been located since he first started his business in Winnipeg. The location is central and well suited to a first-class business. Of late years the tendency in Winnipeg has been for retailers to remove to Portage avenue, but a careful examination of the situation convinced Mr. Stone that there is room for a high-class grocery in that particular part of Main street, and that it would be no mistake to erect in that block one of the best grocery stores in Canada.

The first impression of the visitor to the store is its bright, cheery atmosphere. It is a large store with a high ceiling, and particularly well lighted. The photographs for this article were taken on a very dull morning, but so light is the store, even on a dull day, that the photographs have shown up with remarkable clearness. Prism lights for a depth of several feet over the high doorways and extending the full width of the store a large skylight in the centre of the store and high windows in the rear, provide excellent light and do away with the dark corners that spoil so many grocery stores.

A General Description.

The store is 33 feet wide with a depth of 113½ feet, thus providing ample floor space for a large stock of groceries, provisions and fruit. A basement the same size provides ample storage room, and as it extends under the sidewalk, coal can be unloaded without any difficulty. On the ground floor, in the rear, there is a large shipping room, and a spur track runs past the door. There is, therefore, every facility for unloading goods coming in by rail. An elevator in the shipping room carries goods down to the basement for storage and up again as required.

The office is shown in the illustrations. It is more than three-quarters of the length of the store from the front, and, as can be seen in the illustrations, is reached by a stairway. The ceilings are so high that there is ample room for an office in this position. Here Mr. Stone has his desk, and, like the captain on the bridge of a ship, can overlook everything that is being done. The office is not so easily accessible as to interfere with its privacy, but from his desk the manager can see everything that is going on, and when a customer comes in to whom he wishes to show some special attention, he can see her enter.

The store throughout is fitted with the latest fixtures, supplied by the Walker Bin & Store Fixture Co. These were made to Mr Stone's special order, and some little improvements suggested by him and fitted to the special requirements of his store, were made by the fixture firm.

Everything Under Glass.

As can be seen from the illustrations, the left hand side of the store is fitted with counters, while to the right are silent salesmen. On this side the bottled goods are kept in glass cases, where they are absolutely free from dust. The dried fruits and peels, bulk teas, etc., are kept in the bins, and make a very attractive display. The canned fruits, meats and vegetables are also kept on this side of the store.

On the right, there is an attractive department devoted to high-class confectionery and fancy biscuits. The higher grade confectionery is displayed in handsome silent salesmen, while the cheaper lines are in the Walker bins, with glass fronts. The bins devoted to biscuits are so large that the biscuit boxes can be placed in them. In this way the tedious handling of biscuits is avoided.

Behind the biscuit department is the department devoted to provisions, smoked meats and bacon, etc. This is a department to which Mr. Stone pays special attention, and it is a profitable one. One clerk does nothing else but attend to this department, and he has every opportunity to make some very attractive displays.

Fruits and vegetables are temptingly displayed in the centre of the store.

To the rear and under the office is the order department, where all orders for delivery are made up. In this way the counters are always kept clear of goods. The delivery wagons are loaded in the rear.

In every respect, the new Stone store is a model of convenience, and its proprietor has every reason to feel that the investment of $40,000 has been warranted by the results obtained.

OUR ENEMY, THE RAT.

And the Best Methods of Getting Rid of Him.

The United States Department of Agriculture recently issued a very comprehensive bulletin on "Methods of Destroying Rats," from which the following information is condensed. This should be read with interest by every retailer who is troubled with these pests and who wants to inform himself as to the best and quickest methods of getting rid of them.

Three kinds of rats have found their way to America from the Old World, but by far the most numerous, and on that account the most destructive, is the common brown or Norway species, which introduced itself in 1775. In the United States, this rodent is said to destroy more property than all other animal pests combined. In Denmark, the losses occasioned by it are estimated at $3,000,000 a year, while in France the total damage caused by rats and mice is placed at $40,000,000 a year. Copenhagen, in Denmark, has begun a war of extermination. A bounty of three farthings is offered for each rat tail handed in.

When it is considered that a single rat will consume about two ounces of wheat or corn in a day, and that the average cost of feeding one on grain for a year is fifty cents, the loss occasioned by great numbers of these pests may be somewhat apparent.

The fecundity of the female is enormous. It breeds three or four times a year, and produces from six to twelve —occasionally more—young at a litter, the first brood appearing when the mother is but four or five months old.

The methods recommended for destroying rats are as follows : (1) Poisons, (2) traps, (3) ferrets, (4) fumigation, (5) rat-proof construction of buildings.

Poisons.

Barium carbonate, or barytes, is one of the most effective poisons known for this purpose, and possesses, besides, two distinct advantages : (1) Its action is sometimes simply spread on bread and butter. If the first supply fails to drive all the rats away, the process should be repeated, but with a different bait.

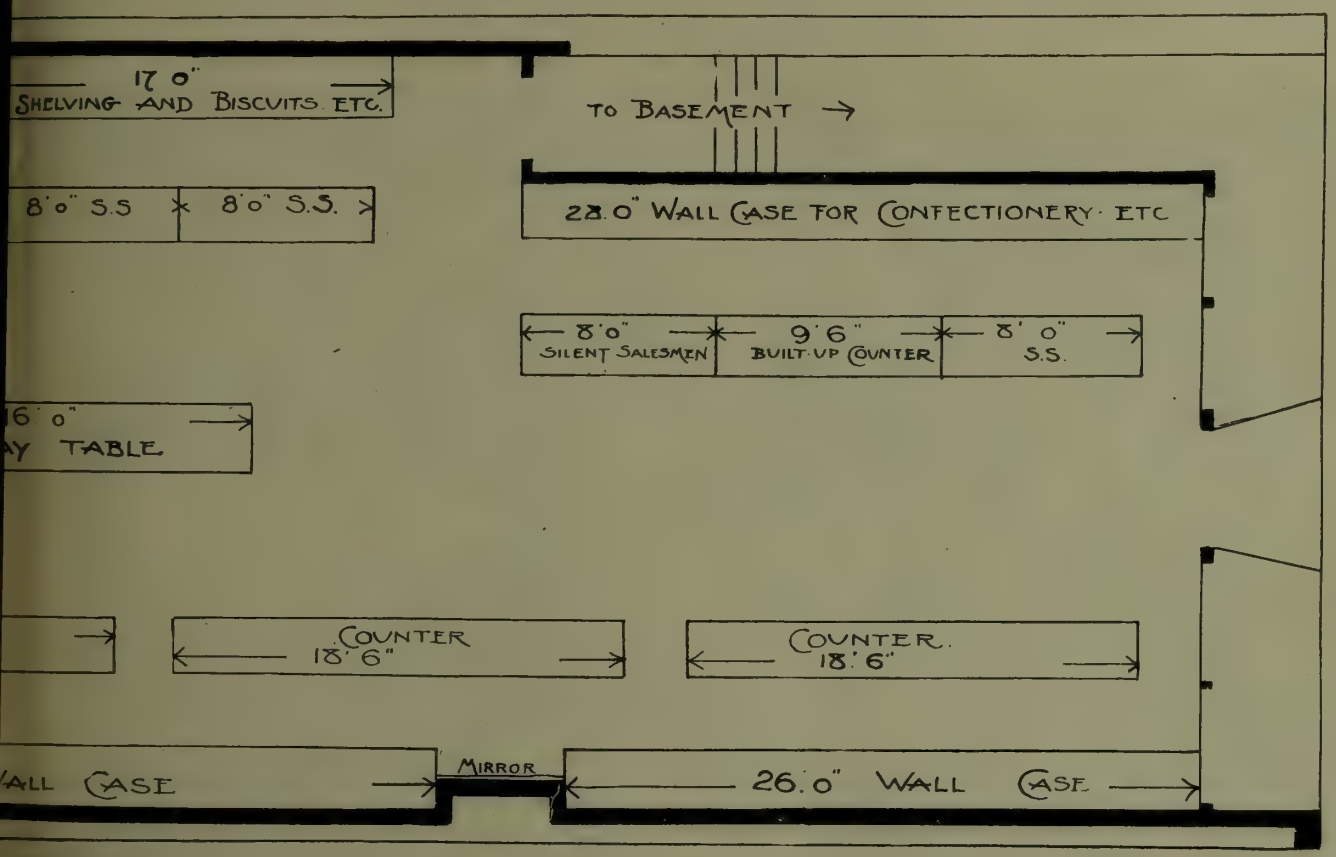
Strychnine is also an effective poison, but its action is so rapid that the animals often die on the premises. It may be prepared by putting the crystals in bits of meat, or by soaking oatmeal or wheat in strychnine syrup and placing it in the rat runs. To make the syrup, dissolve one-half ounce sulphate of strychnine in boiling water and add to one pint of syrup.

Arsenic and phosphorus are sometimes used, but are not to be recommended, as arsenic is occasionally ineffectual, and the rats may convey the phosphorus to different parts of a building, and thus cause fire.

Foxes, weasels, skunks, owls and hawks all destroy rats and mice, yet nearly all these animals are regarded as undiluted foes of the farmer and poultry man. It is estimated that rats destroy more poultry eggs and young chicks than all of these animals put together.

Rat-proof Construction.

The best way of keeping rats out of a building is to make it rat-proof with cement. The cellar walls should have concrete footings, and the walls be laid in cement mortar. Make the cellar floor of "medium" concrete, and embed all water and drain pipes in it. Rat holes may be closed by a mixture of cement, sand and broken glass. Poultry houses and granaries may also be made rat-proof by a liberal use of concrete in the foundations and floors.



GROCERY.

hich, with full description, will be found on the preceding pages.

slow, and the rodents usually leave a building in search of water before they die. Sometimes it is advisable to set out a pan of water where the rats may help themselves. The farther it is placed from their holes, the better. All wells should be carefully walled and curbed. (2) Although sure death to rats and mice, the small quantity of it required is harmless to larger animals. It may be fed in dough made of one-fifth barytes and four-fifths meal, or of ordinary oatmeal mixed with one-eighth its bulk of barytes, water being the mixing medium in both cases. Barytes is

If rats are in poultry yards or houses, the following plan may be used : Take two wooden boxes, one larger than the other, and place two or more holes in each large enough to admit the rats, while excluding the poultry. Put the poisoned bait near the middle of the larger box and invert the smaller box over it.

Traps.

There are several kinds of modern traps, those most commonly used being the "cage" and "guillotine" varieties. The latter is the best, as it kills the rodents at once. For bait, use bacon, sausage, toasted cheese, toasted bread buttered, sunflower or pumpkin seeds. It is well to feed the animals a night or two before with the same kind of bait which is to be used in the trap, as they are rather suspicious and may require to be thrown off their guard.

Comfort and Convenience in a Grocery

Plans and Description of Compact and Up-to-date Store and Dwelling Built by Ellis & Connery for Patterson Bros.

To combine business and home under one roof seems to be an almost ideal condition of affairs. Usually, however, the attempt to follow this plan results in considerable inconvenience in one way or another, either in the business or in the household arrangements. Grocers, generally, will be interested in the plans and illustrations presented herewith of a combined grocery store and dwelling recently built in East Toronto for Patterson Bros., which seems to secure the desired result without the usual attendant disadvantages.

The building, as will be seen, is of two storeys only, with an up-to-date store, office, warehouse and flour and feed room on the ground floor, and an exceedingly compact and convenient household apartment in the second storey. Roughly speaking, the building is about 96 feet long by 26 wide, while from sidewalk to roof of second storey the measurement is 29 feet.

The Store Proper.

The store itself is 45 by 26 feet, and in this space is stowed away, without the slightest evidence of crowding, all the departments of a general grocery business, including confectionery and tobacco.

On the east side a counter runs almost the length of the store. This is fitted down its whole length with glass-fronted show boxes for the display of standard lines of groceries and cereals. Underneath the counter and against the wall behind it are rows of tilting bins of the latest pattern.

On the west side of the store the counter runs only about half the length. Near the front on this side are two large silent salesmen—one for confectionery, the other for tobacco. At the other end is the refrigerator, a special one, by the way, built with three compartments, providing for the separation of meats, butter, etc. The shelving is of the latest pattern. One feature, that of tilting glass-fronted boxes to hold the regular sized tin biscuit boxes, is particularly effective.

The two pillars supporting the upper storey are, as may be seen in the plans, placed in the middle of the store, where they are practically no interference. In this case the architect has provided for covering them with four-sided mirrors, which take away the pillar effect, and at the same time throw many a suggestion into the customer's eye from all parts of the store.

New Ideas in Display Windows.

The windows, one of the most important features in a store's equipment, are particularly well provided for. As will be seen from the accompanying engravings, the store front is entirely of glass. Beside the front alone, advantage has been taken of the corner location to provide for a side window, fully as large as each of the front windows. It is thus evident that facilities for effective window display are exceedingly good. The window spaces inside are enclosed with other windows and roofed in at the top, a particularly good idea, by the way, providing against the entrance of dirt and flies. By another arrangement of ventilation a current of air is carried upward across the face of the plate glass, thus preventing the gathering of frost on the window. Above the window proper a good-sized area of prism glass provides for the interior store lighting.

Artificial lighting is provided for by the Pitner hollow wire system of gasoline. Nine lamps of 500 candle power each are provided, two of which are in the windows, and the system seems to have proved itself very satisfactory. "To have lighted the store by electricity would cost me $45 per month, on an estimate," said Mr. Patterson. "Under this system the cost will be not much over $6, and we'll have just as satisfactory lighting." The store, and, in fact, the whole building, is wired and piped for gas and electricity.

Exterior of Patterson Bros.' New Store, Toronto.

Office, Warehouse, Etc.

Directly behind the store is a cosy office, fitted with mantel and fireplace, giving sufficient room for an outfit of business furniture. The office opens again into a hall, which runs into the warehouse. In the rear of the office is a hallway, really part of the household apartments above, opening to the street and containing a stairway to the second storey.

The warehouse, which occupies the full width of the building, is equipped with a hoist which runs to the cellar, and with a sink and lavatory. From one corner a back stairway leads to the apartments above. A large sliding door in the west wall provides for the convenient receipt of shipments.

Facilities for delivery are also well provided for. A driveway runs the whole length of the west side of the store. A doorway from the hall immediately behind the store opens onto a platform over this driveway. Parcels are shifted from the store directly into the wagon with the minimum of handling.

The Cellar and Living Apartments.

A stairway from the hall immediately behind the store, runs to the cellar, which occupies the full space under the building. This, too, is very conveniently arranged. A wall divides it, the rear section giving ample space for storing potatoes, apples, oil and other goods, and the front section containing the furnace and coal bin, and allowing ample space for supplementary storage. Hot water heating is provided for, and the piping here is all asbestos-covered. The cellar all through is plastered and well finished.

FRONT ELEVATION

The idea of compactness and comfort has been admirably carried out all through the building, but nowhere is it more evident than in the arrangement of the living apartments. The rooms are grouped about a long hall, which runs from a large parlor extending across the whole building, in front, to the rear. The convenient arrangement may be seen from the accompanying plan. Fine, roomy bedrooms are provided for, beside a cosy little den, which is fitted with a fireplace. The bathroom and closet, separate, by the way, are conveniently located, as are also the dining-room and kitchen. In the kitchen may be seen the dumbwaiter cabinet. This handy apparatus runs to the cellar, and also has a door in the warehouse, thus saving many steps.

REAR ELEVATION

The extended windows in the dining-room and parlor allow for the placing of large window seats, which give the interiors a particularly roomy appearance. Both rooms are also fitted with mantels and fireplaces.

Since East Toronto has no sewer system, special provision had to be made for this important feature. This was done by means of a septic tank of good size placed at a distance behind and at a depth below the building. The sewage is run direct to this tank, and here the solids are disposed of.

Regarding the Cost.

Grocers who are considering putting up a building at all similar to the one here described will be interested in a few figures regarding the cost, which Patterson Bros. have kindly furnished:

Building only, store and household apartments	$6,500
Heating plant for store and dwelling	900
Store fixtures, including refrigerator and coffee mill	1,000
Lighting plant and fixtures	100

These estimates should give a pretty satisfactory idea of what the building and outfitting of such a store would cost in almost any part of Canada. In some districts, of course, labor is much cheaper and a considerable margin might be cut off on that account, but, allowing additional charges for freight and handling on contractors' material, the cost would probably work out at about the same figures.

About the Proprietors.

Sons of the Patterson family have been conducting a grocery business on the corner which the new store occupies for twenty years. The present proprietors, two of the brothers, J. L. and R., have not been grocers quite that long, but they have seen East Toronto and the district adjacent, grow up to its present busy condition. Naturally this growth has brought the firm a good deal more business than they started with and caused the expansion here described.

FIRST FLOOR

The old store was in a low and rambling building, and latterly had become a particularly good example of how a large business could be done in little space, though this was accomplished with a good deal of discomfort. When the new building was contemplated, the old store was moved to the rear of the large lot owned by the firm, and business was carried on there while building was in progress. Naturally, the proprietors are very glad to get into the new structure.

J. L. Patterson one of the brothers in the firm, has a home on a neighboring street, but R. Patterson, the other member, with Miss Patterson and two brothers who are employed in Toronto, both of whom, by the way, were former members of the firm, will live in the new home.

The Architects.

Ellis & Connery, whose offices are in the Manning Chambers, Toronto, were the architects of the building, and to their personal supervision during construction is due in a great measure the excellence of the finished structure. The firm have designed several of Toronto's most up-to-date bank buildings and have to their credit some of the finest houses in Ontario.

A CHRISTMAS TREE.

An attraction which is always good for the Christmas season is to place in the window a handsomely decorated Christmas tree. Colored electric lights may be used, of course, if you have them; if not, you can do quite as well without. Announce that every purchaser to a certain amount will be given a present from the tree. These presents should be wrapped and piled up at the foot of the tree. A few presents of considerable value should be included. Each bundle should contain a small slip or folder advertising some specialty of your own, also a few words to the effect that you trust they will be pleased with their present, and that you will receive a call from them again whenever they want drug store goods or especially prescriptions filled. Clerks should have a general idea of what each package contains so that they can make an appropriate selection when handing out a gift. The pile should be replenished each morning, and your stock of "presents" so managed that something new will come along from day to day. The expense of the scheme may be varied to suit by running only as many days before Christmas as you think best. This should be an excellent advertisement, as there are always crowds of people on the streets at this season, and a "tree" will always attract their attention.

THE MILK IN THE COCOANUT.

The search for the "milk in the cocoanut" has been going on among the world's brightest minds for countless ages, but in a commercial sense the man who actually has it on his hands would be thankful if someone would show him how to get rid of it with some profit. Said a cocoanut trader the other day:

"It seems a shame that one of the most wholesome and most accessible products of the cocoanut, the milk, goes to waste entirely because thus far none of us has been able to find a way to make use of it our profit. Every day we break up thousands of cocoanuts for the meat, millions in a year, and every one of them has a pint or more of sweet, nutritious milk in it. We manufacture the meat into an edible form, the shells are ground up for a variety of purposes and even the husk is used in one way or another, but the gallons and gallons of milk go entirely to waste. We have tried bottling it, but there appears to be no demand for it, and we have tried to boil it down into a syrup without satisfactory conclusion, yet we know that there is nutrition in the liquid and that it isa delicacy. If someone will only find some way to utilize it 'there's millions in it.' To-day we are letting it run waste by the barrel."
—Journal of Commerce.

PURITY AND CLEANLINESS.

A firm manufacturing cocoa loans to retailers who handle its brand an interesting card for store display. This device has attached seven small glass receptacles. The first contains cocoa beans as they come from the pods, while the others show six different kinds of refuse that are separated from them in making the firm's cocoas—cocoa bean shells, shell dust refuse, light refuse, dirt refuse, fibrous refuse and the germs or sprouts of the cocoa bean, which are hard, woody, indigestible cores, never ground up in this brand. Appropriate text briefly tells a forceful advertising story of purity and cleanliness.

YOUNG CUSTOMERS.

It pays well to go after the trade of the school boys and girls, not so much because it is so very profitable in itself, as for the reason that the sale of school goods gets the youngest shoppers into the habit of coming to your store. It gives the dealer a chance to get acquainted with them all and to be able to call them by name. If they are properly treated, they will keep coming and become regular customers as they grow older. There is no class of trade that repays attention better than the children's trade. There is no class of customers more discriminating and appreciative than the youngest.

An excellent means of getting the trade and the good will of the school people is to make prize offers to the students. One that will get ready responses is to issue a card with an outline picture upon it and offer prizes for the best colored copies returned. Make the prize list long, rather than short, and elaborate. Another idea is to offer a prize or series of prizes for the best compositions upon some article of which you can make a good window display. Such schemes get the teachers to assist you and take an interest in your business. They will urge the students to compete.

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE

Illustration and Description of some of the Latest Goods—Hints for Crockery Department.

The grocer who devotes any attention to crockery will be interested in the photographs reproduced on this and the following page, which show, not only some of the newest of the year's goods, but also methods of display which might well be followed. The photographs are of the interior of the store of Myott, Son & Co., at 785 Yonge St., Toronto, and some of the goods on display are, by the way, special lines which were described, previous to importation, in The Grocer's Special Spring number.

In the first photograph, the table immediately in the foreground, shows a line of very handsome hand-painted French china in exceedingly delicate shades. On the tables behind this are shown lines of foreign novelties and some standard English goods.

On the shelves of the stand to the left may be seen samples of the new Norse pottery, which are reproductions of the bronze utensils recovered from the graves of the ancient Norsemen. The glazed metallic surface of this ware represent the old bronze surfaces, while the lines and surfaces inserted in green, supposedly represent the verdigris-filled crevices in the original vessels. These goods come in various form, such as jardinieres, vases, biscuit jars, flower bowls, etc., and are so unique and taking in character that the demand for them is great.

At the top of the photograph may be seen a plate-rail, which runs entirely around the store. This has proved itself a very valuable means of display. "The grocer who runs a crockery department," said Mr. Beddlington, manager of the store, "would do well to add a plate-rail to his equipment for display. It will show up odds and ends which would be seen nowhere else, and time and again would be the means of disposing of an article which in any other place would be unsaleable." The effectiveness of the plate rail in this establishment may be judged from the photograph.

In the second photograph the main table holds a comprehensive display of German and Austrian china. Attached to the pillar in the foreground are samples of a couple of new and novel lines, which are becoming exceedingly popular. At the top is shown a picture in frame, a copy of a famous painting, which is here reproduced, in tiles. The six tiles composing the picture may readily be seen in the photograph. These tile-pictures are used for wall panels and mantel decoration and practically any picture may be reproduced in them. For mantel decoration they are particularly suitable, for subjects are used which may be run continuously up one side, across the top and down the other panel of the mantel.

Below this tile picture may be seen two hand-painted placques, a line of goods which is also much in demand at present.

At the top of the photograph, to the left, appears another novelty—pewter spoons in suitable antique holders. These are very attractive and are good sellers.

A line of ware just now being introduced and which will probably be exceedingly popular, is that what is known as fireproof cooking china. The ware comes in sauce and frying pans, stewing dishes, and smaller utensils in particularly pleasing shapes. The chief advantage of the goods is that food may be cooked in the vessels and brought in them directly to the table. They will not burn nor discolor as do the metal goods ordinarily used for the same purpose, and besides, are much more easily kept clean may be frequently induced, by means of a well-planned display, to purchase pieces even of considerable cost. It is quite worth the while of any grocer who boasts a china department to keep in touch with what is newest in this line.

NEW FAMILIES.

In the small town, it is easy to keep track of the new comers and send them advertising matter when they first get printed folder ready to mail to these people when they first arrive, giving them an idea of the sort of store you run. We would recommend sending them a nicely gotten up announcement first, simply welcoming them to town formally and offering the services of your store without going into any detail. Then a little later this could be followed by the folder giving more complete information regarding your stock,

ARE CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS LOSING GROUND?

The present demand for Canadian-made goods is enormous.

So far Canada has not kept pace with it.

The retailer will naturally welcome the American manufacturer if the latter can supply the goods at a reduced price.

Are Canadian manufacturers keeping abreast of the times? This is a question which many of the business men of the Dominion are asking themselves. Times are good—everyone admits that—yet prices on Canadian-made goods are soaring up, up all the time. And why is it many houses report a shortage of goods? Well, some say, the demand is greater than the supply, that labor is scarce, and, consequently, dearer, and that there are many other changed conditions that all add to the increased cost of goods. And if you ask why the demand is greater than the supply, the answer is that consumption is greater, much greater, than it was three years ago, the population of the Dominion has increased with remarkable rapidity, and, in short, that goods are being consumed faster than the manufacturers can produce them.

This is about the way these questions are being answered; if any reader wishes to test their accuracy, just let him put a few leading questions to a manufacturer, commercial traveler, or anyone connected with a manufacturing business, and the replies to his questions will be practically as stated above.

But the thoughtful man will not be satisfied with this. He will say it may be very true, and is all right, as far as it goes, but the main points in the case are that there is a greater demand for Canadian-made goods than there ever has been in the past, and that the manufacturers have not increased their producing capacity to enable them to cope with the increased demand for their respective articles of commerce.

Many people will argue that no one could foretell the demand would be so great, and that no manufacturer would be justified in increasing his plant and staff, etc., until such time as the actual increase in his business warranted him doing so. This argument is good, up to a certain point, but the present state of affairs has been in existence for some time, in fact, very much longer than it should have been, and there is no disputing the fact that the manufacturing companies and associations, etc., have not neglected to raise their prices and are very much up to date in this respect.

This state of affairs is bad for Canadian manufacturers. Labor is scarce, because the cost of living has increased twelve or fifteen per cent., and wages have not been correspondingly advanced, and, in many instances, not advanced at all. As a result, the laboring men have been forced to look for something whereby they could better their condition, and many of the men that were before content to work for wages, have now in a small way entered some kind of business or occupation of their own which they find more remunerative.

Wanted—The Right People.

What does the outsider see and hear of the situation? The Government, business men, the manufacturer, the farmer, and, in short, everybody, is trying to induce more people to emigrate to Canada, and everyone is ready to acknowledge that what we want is more people. But the ones that do the real advertising are the people of moderate means, who are striving for something more than a mere living. They write a heart-to-heart letter to their friends or relatives across the water, or across the border, as the case may be, and they tell the exact facts; bearing in mind the present condition of affairs, what can they say? Something like this:

"Things are pretty lively here just now, but the cost of everyday necessities is increasing all the time, and if things keep on the way they are, we shall not be able to make a decent living soon. It is all right for the man in business, but the working man has no chance to make more than a mere living. So I guess you had better remain where you are for a while till we see how things turn out here."

This is about the way one friend writes to another, and, as a result, many good people are kept away.

The Man Who Benefits.

But there is one class that will be attracted by the present condition of affairs, and that is the American manufacturer. He will be quick to grasp the situation, and, if the Canadian manufacturer wants more competition, he is surely going to get it. Many business men—the retail grocer among them—are likely to extend a warm welcome to the man that steps in and lowers a few of these "Alpine" prices. It is the retailer that in many ways has to bear the brunt of the burden, for in many instances he cannot raise his price to correspond with the wholesale advance. Even if he does, he has to make explanations to his customers, and all these things do not help to make business run any more smoothly. It will be only natural, therefore, for the retailer to patronize the manufacturer who makes things easier for him.

Any business man who has had the experience of dealing with the general public, and has found it necessary to be continually advancing his prices, will know what a joy it is to be able to say to his customers, once in a while, that such and such an article has taken a drop. So I say again, that the retail merchant will extend the "glad hand" to the manufacturer that steps in and "knocks a little bit off the top."

Canadian Quality.

In regard to quality (speaking from a grocer's standpoint), it will readily be admitted that the Canadian manufacturers are well to the front, and the large majority of houses are endeavoring to maintain a high standard of quality. These same houses deserve to be highly commended for so doing. A great business may be built on a foundation of quality, but exorbitant prices will some day bring it to a standstill, whereas the business along side with quality and moderate prices combined, will develop with remarkable rapidity.

Consumption is another point worthy of a little consideration. Some business men claim that high prices do not tend to lessen the consumption of an article provided it be an article of every day use and not a luxury. This may be the case if all goods are correspondingly high in price, but single out and advance the price of any one line of goods and the decrease in the sale of that particular line will at once be noticeable. For instance, if the butcher advances the price of fresh meat, the grocer immediately finds a greater demand for such goods as can be used in the place of meat, such as bacon, eggs, cheese, canned meats, fish, etc.

Last, comes the question of importation of foreign goods. Undoubtedly, high prices of home products, increases the importation of foreign goods to compete with them, and this, naturally, is a state of affairs that all Canadian business men wish to discourage. It is a recognized fact that this is one of the most serious questions the manufacturer has to deal with, and it does not require an old business man to remember the day when there was such an outcry about merchants showing a preference for foreign goods. Lately, "Made in Canada" has been the cry, but how long it will last depends almost entirely on the Canadian manufacturers.

Prize Window Dressing

Winners in the Grocer's Christmas Competition—Window Dressing as a Fine Art—Three Valuable Examples of Carefully-Designed, Effectively-Arranged and Business-Bringing Displays—One From the Pacific Coast, One in the Heart of the Rockies and One From Ontario.

Around Christmas time of last year, The Grocer ran a special prize window dressing competition, open to every grocer in Canada. The result was that the office was for many weeks overwhelmed with photographs of windows of every size and description, ranging all the way from good to bad, with many indifferent ones in between. The response, while exceedingly gratifying, was also somewhat embarrassing, for the judges, according to their own account, passed many restless nights before they could arrive at a decision. The winners were published in February of this year and attracted a great deal of attention. These issues are now, of course, long out of print. Since that time we have received so many requests for their reproduction that we have now no choice or desire but to accede to the popular demand, and meet the wishes of our subscribers. The three photographs following are the first, second, and third prize winners in the competition referred to above.

The first-prize window hails from "the coast," its home being Victoria, and it was trimmed for Dixi H. Ross & Co. by H. O. Kirkham, one of the eighteen clerks employed by the firm. The Victoria papers took notice of it, as well they might, and visitors from the east in Victoria at the time were loud in their praises of it.

The centre of the ground floor display is formed of the best quality currants, inlaid with boxes of crystallized fruits, ginger, stuffed dates, Jordan almonds, Smyrna figs, bottles of cherries and extracts and other good things, with a centrepiece of finest Malaga clusters. On either side of the currants, divided by rows of orange, lemon and citron peel, are golden sultanas, and set in these are boxes of glace cherries, crystallized angelica, plum puddings and fruit cakes in tins, and numerous other little boxes of Christmas dainties.

Farther back will be noticed large bottles of fruit in their natural condition. The centre bottle is "Royal Anne" cherries, the others are plums, pears, peaches, Logan berries, apples, grapes, and currants of all kinds.

The floor of the back part of the window is covered with large cranberries, and in these are set boxes of prunes, peaches, pears, nectarines, apricots, and figs, also fancy boxes of bonbon crackers, Christmas candles, etc.

The articles are not set straight, but diagonally, across the window, with a pillar at each end and one in the centre (which does not show very well in the photo). On these pillars above the arches, is a shelf, also diagonally set, with a centrepiece, on which is seen a 29-pound turkey. On either side of the turkey were placed bottles of corn on the cob, green peas, cranberries, etc. The rest of the shelf is filled with flowers and Christmas delicacies, making a very effective back for the window.

The arches and all the woodwork were trimmed with white puff-bunting, with strips of delicate green.

Natural plants and strings of smilax in the window produced a remarkably pretty effect and gave color to the window.

The upper part of the window was also something original. A shelf was constructed, circular at the ends and V-shaped in the centre, and on this shelf goods were placed. The frosted glass at the back was draped with white puffed bunting and autumn leaves, then under this shelf hung clusters of grapes and grape vines, and a bunch of mistletoe in the centre, also the cards with Yule-tide greetings. The side shelves and mirrors do not show very well in photo.

The Second Prize.

The second prize went to George Rogers, 830 College Street, Toronto, and even with the unsatisfactory photograph reproduced it is easily seen why he deserved it.

Perhaps the main feature of the display is the four wire cylinders placed at intervals across the window. These measured about one foot in diameter, the taller ones standing about four feet, and the others about two feet. The larger cylinders, containing almonds and walnuts, topped with apples and oranges, were made of a double thickness of wire netting—that is, a tube within a tube, the diameter of the one being two or three inches less than that of the other. Only the space between the two then required to be filled, although the appearance is that of a solid column of nuts. One of the remaining cylinders is filled with apples, while the other contains oranges.

The central pyramid is composed of E. D. Smith's and Goodwillie's preserves and jams, together with honey in the comb and in jars, arranged in layers, each tier resting on a sheet of glass placed on top of the one below. At the right and left of the pyramid are smaller pyramids on the same plan, while two more are constructed of canned goods.

Boxes neatly covered with crepe paper and heaped alternately with oranges and apples are arranged across the window. Between these are cartons of seeded raisins, in pyramid form. These, with small bottles of flavoring extracts, are also used as fillers in other parts of the display.

In the foreground are boxes of figs and candied peel, with small heaps of nuts between.

In the foreground are boxes of figs green wreathing, hung perpendicularly, an inch or so apart, from a horizontal bar in the floor of the window.

Holly placed in every available corner framed in the whole display, and with a large tissue-paper bell hung from the ceiling gave the proper Christmas tone to the general arrangement.

The Third Prize.

The third prize winner, like the first, is a British Columbia window, and is that of Robert M. Hood, of Nelson. The display was designed and carried out by D. C. Wilson, of Hood & Co.'s staff. Without at all challenging the finding of the judges, we believe that had the photographer been more successful, the awards might have been differently arranged. Certainly Mr. Wilson has attained results of distinctive merit in window dressing and it is interesting to know that the window executed a markedly appreciative effect upon the firm's Christmas trade. The cherry reflection in the right pane of glass is that of the mountains. That is suggestive of Nelson's situation and some advantages.

The following description of the window is interesting :

The base of the window was covered with purple crepe paper liberally sprinkled with diamond dust, the latter showing up well against the purple.

Round the inside casing of the entire window was an evergreen trimming covering all visible woodwork and giving the window a seasonable frame.

Front Row—Peak, Frean's biscuits in long, narrow fancy ½-lb. boxes, placed in zigzag form, the spaces in front being filled in with a complete assortment of nuts.

Second Row—Open 1-lb. boxes of Dehesa cluster raisins alternately with open ½-lb. boxes of mixed chocolates, the centre of each half row showing fancy boxes of chocolates.

Third Row—Bulk chocolates, in 5-lb. boxes at either end, next a display of peels and between two long, hand-painted Japanese wickerwork boxes of chocolates were displayed two handsome bronze vases, the bowl loaded with Malaga grapes, cluster raisins and mixed nuts, the vase holding chrysanthemums in proper table style.

Behind the vases were pyramids of oranges, a pyramid of Heinz's apple butter, and also boxes of natural pulled figs and piles of Vienna figs in 1-lb. baskets.

Fourth Row—Pyramids of canned fruits with 10-lb. and 20-lb. boxes of Smyrna figs set in between and forming part of the background. The tops of the fig boxes were set off with miniature pots of holly, and two pyramids were topped with acacia palms.

Centre—Built in circular style, in front fancy chocolates, Tonee figs in bottles, behind a circle of package raisins, with pots of holly on top, the inner circle filled with Valencias, a fancy bottle of sauce set on top of pyramid. Open 5-lb. boxes of 9-crown clusters, hand-painted boxes of chocolates, open boxes of Fard dates, boxes of crackers; these interspersed by bottles of champagne cider completed the outer circle.

Behind and forming part of the background a mirror with Xmas greeting. The wall on the right hand was covered by a tall pyramid of tomatoes, a stuffed owl sitting on top, around and above it a dressing of evergreens. All the evergreens were sprinkled with diamond dust.

From the chandeliers was suspended a dove grasping trails of art flowers, which were carried to the four corners and drooped to the bottom, to the chandeliers, and behind to the mirror encircling frame of same, sprays of finest ferns drooped over mirror, Xmas bells hung from centres of chandeliers.

All the figs and dates displayed were encased with decorations, no bare box showing ; art trails fell from the tops of the pyramids.

The window was not overcrowded. Every article in it was seen to advantage and during the Xmas business it proved its attractiveness by being a great trade winner.

Prices on all the goods were advertised daily. Owing to the reflections of the mountains on the opposite side it was almost impossible to get a good photo of the window.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR WINDOW

Neatly-written price-tickets assist the effectiveness of a good display.

The "Show Card Writer" is a little magazine that has just made its bow to the public. It is published in Poutiac, Michigan, by W. A. Thompson, and is described as "The only publication in the world devoted exclusively to show card writing." As an authority on those subjects which are comprised in the art of show card writing and designing, we should imagine it will eventually occupy a high place. The first number is full of good things, and contains much of direct interest to the retail grocer who writes his own cards and price tickets and desires to improve the appearance of his window by marking the goods displayed therein with more artistically lettered and thus more effective price tickets than he has hitherto had the ability to design.

"In the line of price tickets, says a short article in the paper referred to above, there is a big demand for neat and novel designs. No end of odd and peculiar shapes, such as triangles, circles, diamonds, crescents, stars, ovals, etc., can be quickly cut from cardboard and when nicely finished in colors are sure to attract attention and sell goods. There is no other advertising so inexpensive and at the same time so effective.

"When making special designs, always have separate patterns so that all tickets of the same style will be uniform. They can be made in any style or shape with pleasing results when not too large. Small square cards may be made very neat with either a plain border line or simple scroll in a light shade of paint, the figures brought out prominently and distinctly in black or other colors in full strength.

"All retail merchants recognize the efficiency of neat and distinct price cards in advertising and drawing attention to goods in the show window or on display throughout the store. Small price cards when attached to goods always appear larger than they really are by actual measurement. Try this a few times and you will discover that there is considerable study in making effective price tickets. After some experience any one can make a very small price ticket have more prominence than that which many card writers use—which is generally twice or three times larger than necessary. There is no end to the variety of work that can be done in this way and at the same time at a trifling cost.

"Common white cardboard, 6-ply, cut to the desired size or style, will give good results when using paint in strong and brilliant colors."

In the cut reproduced above are given examples of a variety of designs which may be used to good advantage and without much practical experience by any grocer or general storeman who will take the trouble to devote a little time to the work.

Eighteen Suggestions for Neat Price Ticket Designs.

A. P. Taylor, of John Taylor & Co., soap manufacturers, has been down in the Maritime Provinces for a week or so stirring up the company's representatives and incidentally laying plans for more business in that part of the country.

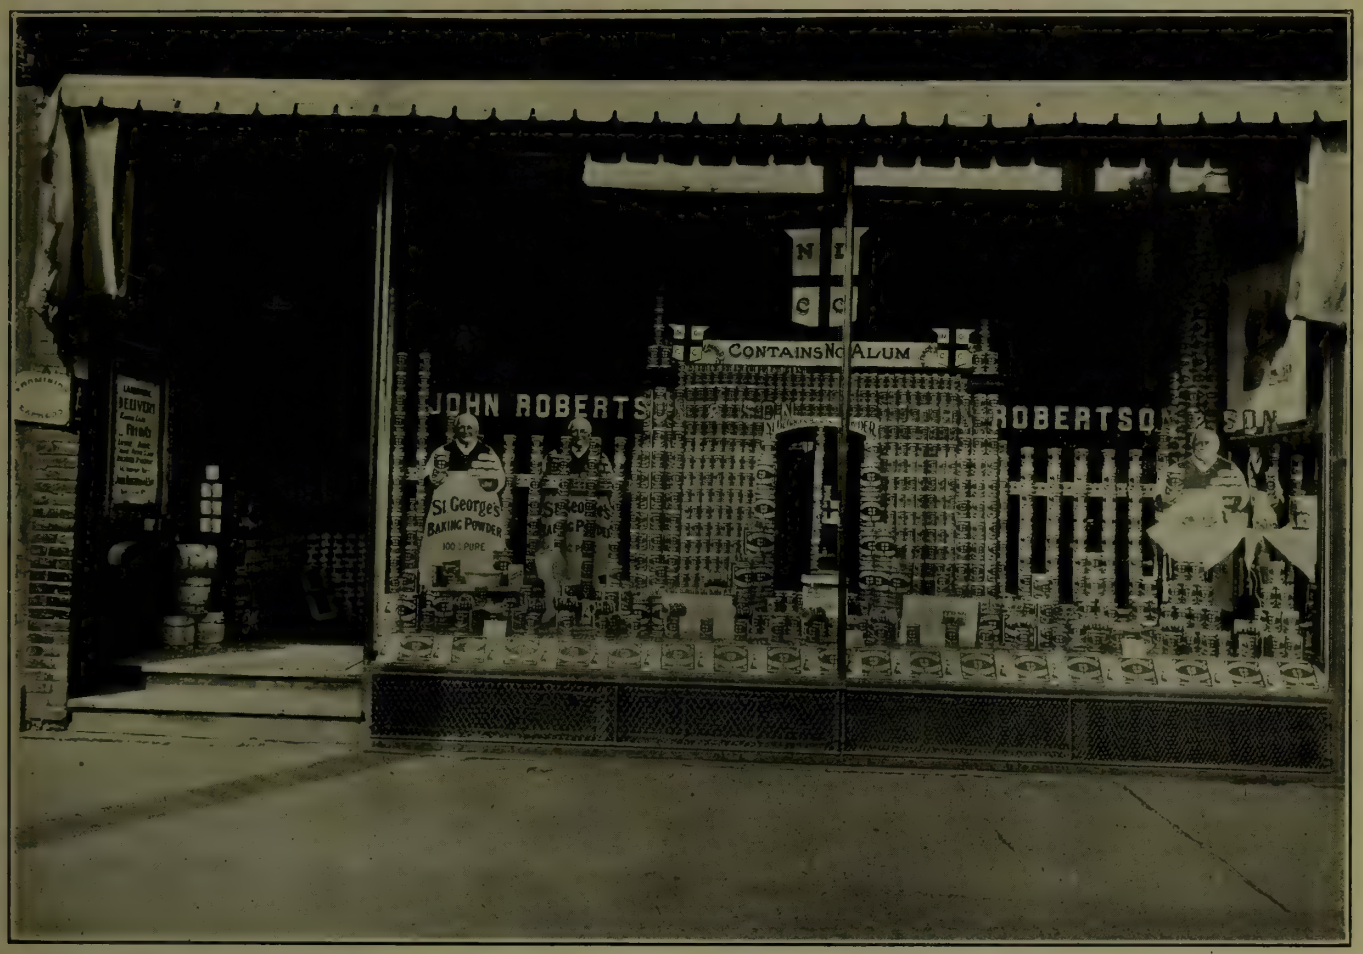
THE SHOW WINDOW.

The best window for a grocer in which to show his goods is one which is plain and even, with a large plate glass front. It frequently happens that the grocer's window has neither a plate-glass front nor an even interior. There may be columns inside of the glass. One partition may be straight and the other may run off at an angle. All of which the window dresser must needs take into account when he comes to arrange for his display.

If there are two permanent columns in the window, these should be made use of in making the display. If there is but one column another should be made for the display to correspond with it. Where one side is on an angle it should be made straight to correspond with the other side, or the other side should be made angular. As a foundation the window should be made to have its sides alike and the back should be made to parallel the glass front. With this for a beginning the trimmer may proceed in an intelligent way to create in his mind the general design he desires to follow.

Having conceived of his plan the decorator will get all of the fixtures needed for the display ready and putting them in place will go ahead with his decorations. This done, he may place his signs and goods in the window according to his preconceived plans.

It sometimes happens that having begun his display according to the general plan already conceived, many happy suggestions come to the trimmer. These he can make without in any way marring the whole design as it was originally created. These little changes, made as the window display is being developed, are likely to prove to advantage. All good trimmers work in this way, rather than bind themselves to the hard and fast rule of their original conception. It is like the artist who would paint a beautiful picture. He has in his mind just what he



An Effective Baking Powder Display

The window shown herewith was dressed by the National Drug and Chemical Company, proprietors of St. George's Baking Powder, for John Robertson & Son, one of Montreal's leading grocers, whose store is situated in the heart of the retail shopping district of that city. Messrs. Robertson are noted for their consistently striking window displays, and the one which is reproduced here should go a long way toward enhancing their reputation.

The National Drug and Chemical Company also deserve credit for the energetic and agressive methods which they are employing to bring St. George's baking powder to the attention of consumers all over Canada. Although this article is of comparatively recent introduction, branch houses have already been established in Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Calgary, Regina, Nelson, Vancouver and Victoria. This window is the first of a series which the company propose running in all the cities in Canada, in conjunction with an immense poster campaign, which is now in full swing throughout the country. This is probably one of the largest baking powder campaigns ever undertaken in Canada.

This particular window display proved itself to be well worth the trouble expended upon it, the sales resulting therefrom being most satisfactory.

wants, but as he proceeds new ideas come to him and he puts them into practical effect. But this must not be carried so far as to destroy the essential features of the original design. It is largely in small matters of detail that improvements are possible and desirable to make.

The general rule of making an elaborate design, as followed by large houses that maintain a special staff of window trimmers cannot well be followed by the smaller merchant. However, it is well for him to conceive of a general plan of decoration, even if he does not go so far as to make a sketch of his conception.—Art and Science of Window Dressing.

attracting many new customers within the store.

TRICK WINDOWS.

People who are fond of humor are often led to believe that trick windows which express some humorous phase of business are very effective in drawing trade. Some ingenious men like to arrange a window so that it will, in a measure, at least, conform to some cant phrase or stereotyped trade line. For example, a man designs a soap window, and after he has his soap piled up he pushes some of it down or gets that effect of having soap lying about at the foot of the pile as though it had fallen. What the merchant wants is to attract buyers, not merely a crowd of curiosity seekers. There are thousands of foolish things a merchant can do to attract attention, but the only kind of attraction that serves his purpose is the kind that sends people into his store.

The best merchants in all the large cities avoid these trick or catchy displays. The cheaper houses resort to it frequently. The better class of merchants regard such window displays as tending to lower the dignity of their house. Sometimes one of them makes a mistake and is tempted to try the virtue of one of these humorous displays. It usually happens that he regrets his folly and does not try it again.

A. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Window Display, Dressed by R. H. Stewart.

A CHEESE DISPLAY.

The window display shown on this page was put in for R. H. Stewart, of 599 Sherbourne street, Toronto. It is composed entirely of jars of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, and at night, brilliantly lit up, it had a most effective and unusually striking appearance. The window was dressed by Mr. Stewart himself, who is fortunate in possessing what is probably one of the finest grocery stores in the city. Photographs of the interior of his establishment are reproduced elsewhere in this issue. The window proved a winner from a selling standpoint, and was the means of

Then he puts in a card: "A tumble in soap." Or he puts a lot of goods in a balloon all ready to ascend. This he placards: "These goods are all going up. Buy now," and so on to an almost unlimited degree. Men can invent these catchy displays without hurting their brain much. But our advice to the good, substantial merchant is, do not do it. Leave this class of window trimming to the men who put young ducks or old foxes in their windows to attract attention.

These things do attract attention, to be sure. But merely attracting attention is not good window dressing.

There is no objection to bright signs with a touch of humor in them. But what is here meant to discourage are those cheap, extravagant displays that are devoid of real humor. Epigrammatic sentences are what the window dresser should strive to produce. Lines that are catchy in the sense that they are easily read and understood without an effort. Lines that make a lasting impression.

Leave the tricks and coarse displays and noise to the cheap stores. They are dime museum effects, and are out of place in a high-class store.—Art and Science of Window Dressing.

HOW SALMON ARE CANNED

Visit to a Modern Factory in British Columbia—Cleanliness is the Prevailing Feature.

In these days of inspections, reports of special commissions, "Jungle" books, and the commercial muck-rake, one is apt to think that the product of canning factories in general is, at best, but a second-class article of food, and accordingly, to be eaten only on rare occasions. In British Columbia canned salmon, however, we have a bright and welcome exception to this rule of recent years. If the salmon you buy bears a responsible British Columbia firm's label and the fish is of the last season's pack, you are assured of an article fit for any table.

The Start for the Fishing Grounds.

Having heard the usual stories in connection with the work in the factories being done only by Chinese, and this for particular and concealed reasons, I was prepared for at least some obnoxious odors in the near vicinity of the cannery. However, I made an appointment with J. J. Mulhall, manager of the Eagle Harbor cannery, and, accompanied by J. D. Broom, of Vancouver, we boarded the steamer leaving with supplies for the different canneries situated near the mouth of the Fraser river.

Typical Fishing Boat.

I confess to receiving a distinct shock when, at the first port of call, we discovered that a party of tourists had pitched their camp quite close to the cannery, and were apparently thriving upon their close proximity to what I had imagined would be a spot where "distance lent enchantment to the view."

The Eagle Harbor cannery is situated in a beautiful natural harbor surrounded by mountains and tall cedar trees, as shown in one of the accompanying cuts. Mr. Mulhall conducted us to the factory house, where we found everything as clean and sweet as a summer camp at Muskoka, the Chinese cooks being specially noted for their neatness. The fish was just being landed from the boats as we entered the cannery, and we, therefore, had an excellent chance to note the different processes through which the salmon has to pass before being ready for shipment.

J. D. BROOM, Vancouver, Salmon Expert.

The fish are first sorted out in piles on the floor, which is as clean as repeated washings can make it. The salmon are never allowed to remain long before being cleaned, and this insures good, firm fish in the tin. As soon as the fish are sorted, the head, tails, etc., are removed and the fish split open by the "finner," who passes them to the "cleaners," where the insides are removed and the fish passed to Indian women, standing in front of a long tank of water. Here the fish is subjected to a thorough scrubbing, both inside and out, and dropped into a second tank of salt water, where they are left for a short while.

Next the fish are put through the slicing machine, where they are cut into steaks the depth of the tin into which they are to be packed, whether it be flat or tall. From the slicing machine the fish is carried in boxes to the "fillers," who put the steaks into the tins, whence they are passed to the "weigher." Here trained eyes watch each tin, and any can which is not up to the standard weight is rejected.

The tins are then placed on a traveling belt, which carries them first of all to the crimping machine, which punches a hole in the top and puts the cover on entirely without human aid, and so firmly that the tins may be rolled along on the side without the top coming off. The hole is necessary to allow the steam caused by the hot solder to escape. They next pass through the soldering machine, all the time under such critical inspection that chances are very slim for a tin being improperly soldered. Then the holes in the tops are closed and the tins immersed in water, where any air-holes are discovered and the tins rejected. Next the tins are cooked for a half-hour at a temperature of about 212 degrees, when they are taken out and another hole punched in the top, which allows the steam to escape, and at the same time excludes all the air from the tin; after which they are finally soldered up and again subjected to an inspection under water, as shown in photograph No. 3. After passing through this satisfactorily, the fish is cooked again for an hour at a heat of about 240 degrees, when the tins are piled up and allowed to stand for some days, when every tin is once more subjected to an inspection in case any of them should swell. Finally they are laquered and boxed ready for shipment to the markets of the world.

We thoroughly enjoyed a meal from one of the largest fish caught, which was prepared in a very appetizing manner by the Chinese cooks. Late on in the afternoon the fleet was towed out to the fishing grounds by the tug in the manner shown in the accompanying photographs Nos. 5, 6, and 7.

Testing Tins Under Water.

The salmon breed near the source of the rivers, where the water is rough. The scenery in these places is usually very fine. Photograph No. 8 shows a typical mountain scene in British Columbia, a paradise for the disciples of Izaak Walton. At a certain age the young salmon pass down the rivers to the Pacific ocean, where they wander no one knows where. They return to their spawning ground after a certain length of time. It is a wonderful sight to see them jumping up falls eight and ten feet high.

The run varies each year; every fourth year the run is large, whereas the number of fish decreases during the next three. This season is the second, so that next season we may expect a very short pack indeed, when we remember that this year's pack falls far short of the average. Indeed, it is the opinion of several prominent salmon authorities that some, at least, of the canneries on the Fraser river will not be in operation next year, as the run may not be large enough to pay the expenses of operating. It has been said that even this year the Chinese contractors, who do all the hiring of labor, are losing money, and, accordingly, the writer noticed, the poor Chinese laborers get only two meals per day, instead of three, which they are allowed during a good season. It is also the serious complaint of British Columbia fishermen that the Americans are largely responsible for the noticeable falling off in the number of salmon of late years. It is to be hoped that our Government will look into this matter before it is too late.

The eastern Canadian agents for the Eagle Harbor salmon cannery are Messrs. Hayter & Scandrett, Toronto.

In connection with announcement of Chicago canned meat revelations and their possible effect upon markets for canned goods, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries ordered a committee of the British Columbia fisheries commission to investigate and inspect salmon canning operations and the salmon canneries from hygienic and sanitary standpoints. Hon. Mr. Brodeur received the report. It stated that the commission had made a thorough inspection of the canneries operating in the Fraser river district.

"We were accompanied by Dr. Fagan, of the Provincial Board of Health. Without exception we found conditions satisfactory. The salmon being packed were fresh from the cold waters of the Pacific, and were placed in the cans in absolutely fresh condition and in the most cleanly manner. We found no cause for complaints. The Provincial Government Board of Health maintained a continuous and systematic inspection of all the canneries last year. From our inspection we have to assure you that the salmon canned in this province is fresh and wholesome." The report is signed by Commissioners Sweeny, Babcock, and Brown.

THE RIGHT CHANGE.

One of the little things that comes up frequently between customer and clerk is disputing over change. Occasionally the net result is deadly to the store.

Eagle Harbor Cannery.

Many a good customer has been known to leave the store for good because of such a difference.

"I gave you five dollars," said the customer.

"No, ma'am, it was a two-dollar bill," says the clerk.

But the customer knows different and is sure she is right. And the clerk is equally sure.

You know how such differences arise. You also know they are well worth any little care and system that will tend to eliminate such disputes.

One of the best things yet advanced as a solution is to have the clerk always announce the amount of the coin or bill handed over by the customer.

Supposing the customer gives a five-dollar bank note in pay for goods. The clerk says immediately, "You gave me five dollars."

Where the Salmon Play.

Then if the customer thinks that the bill was larger, the correction can be made before it is too late. This is a simple little method, but it is very effective. Many city stores now insist that this be done in every instance.

FREE COFFEE.

"Free Coffee To-day," is the sign seen every Monday and Saturday, in a grocery store window in the vicinity of the shopping district. The astute proprietors are alive to the fact that these are the two days when the great army of shoppers are abroad in the land, and that tired mortals in the strenuous game greatly appreciate the refreshment of a cup of coffee. Goods are well displayed, and placards on every hand—silent but eloquent salesmen—tell of their merits. Thus the object of all good advertising—getting people into the store where they have leisure to study the goods while sipping their coffee—is accomplished.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

A good advertisement sure to be hung in a prominent place by housewives was recently given away by a western storekeeper. It consisted of a small, neatly printed card, containing brief notes of mail collections in his neighborhood, addresses of doctors, telephone numbers, street car service, and a list of all the conveniences at the disposal of the public in his store.

WHO'S WHO, AND HOW

At the Top of the Heap in Groceries

Examples of quality in human goods.
Graduates in the grocery trade.

Some men are born with a silver spoon in their mouths; but it is not these in whom the world usually is most interested. As in other walks of life, so in groceries—it is to the men who have spent a lifetime "getting there" that their fellow men accord the greatest measure of respect and interest. The following sketches are all typical of such men, and fairly representative of the qualities of brain and body necessary to achieve success in a business of which one, at least, of the subjects here presented, was a pioneer.

WALTER PAUL,

A Pioneer in the Retail Grocery Trade of Canada.

Sixty-nine years ago, in the little Scotch village of Killearn, in Sterlingshire, there was born one, who, in later life, was destined to become one of Canada's leading retail grocers.

Walter Paul conducts a business in Montreal which, for class of customers, volume of trade and quality of goods sold, is equalled by few retail distributors of foodstuffs in Canada.

Half a century ago he was just about completing his education in his native village. Of sturdy Scotch stock, (his parents lived on a farm) he did not spend his life from the age of reason to manhood in securing an education in school and university; but with a brave heart, after obtaining what learning he could up to the age of fifteen, he began to contribute to the support of the family.

In 1854 he went to Glasgow and there began his education in the grocery business. He entered the employ of A. & T. Buchanan, beginning as messenger boy. Young Paul soon proved to his employers that there was good material in him and that he was capable of development. As he increased in years and experience, promotion came his way, and he occupied more responsible positions. With the Buchanans he held all positions from the lowest to the highest. This firm he left in 1863. The Buchanans, by the way, now conduct a large confectionery manufacturing business in Glasgow.

An old Quebec grocer, Adam Waters, long since dead, offered Paul a three-year engagement, and, answering the call of a young country, full of future possibilities, he accepted. From that time he has always been closely in touch with the grocery business in Canada and his reminiscences of the olden days would fill many volumes.

Montreal in those days, as to-day, was a growing place, and the young Scotchman finally decided that chances of success were greater there than in the ancient capital. He joined the staff of Alexander McGibbon, who ran a business similar to that now conducted by Fraser, Viger & Co., which firm surceeded him. Always ready and willing, his eyes open, and alert in everything, Paul won the respect and confidence of his employers and gained rapid promotion.

WALTER PAUL, MONTREAL.

After having been several years with McGibbon, where he built up for himself a thoroughly good connection, the insistent demands of ambition resulted in his opening a store of his own on St. Catherine St., where the John Murphy building now stands. Here he labored night and day, with the assistance of three clerks, to win a place for himself in the grocery trade.

That he succeeded in his endeavor is beyond question. His business to-day, if not the largest in Montreal retail grocery circles, is at least equal to the best. By strict attention to business and by following modern and up-to-date methods, he has won a place for himself among the leaders in the retail grocery trade of the Dominion, while financially he has succeeded to the limit, probably, of even his ambition.

Since he started business, he has increased his volume of trade four-fold. Thirty clerks and drivers are now employed. Six delivery vans place his goods in all parts of the city, while he runs a Lake Shore delivery every week, sending provisions as far out as St. Annes.

He is about to open a new store at 80 University St., a step made necessary by increasing trade. Unlike most grocers, Walter Paul has customers in most every part of Canada. Not a week passes but large orders are shipped to particular customers in Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto, and even as far west as Winnipeg. That he should command such an extensive outside trade speaks volumes for his groceries and his methods.

A big, well-built man, with prominent nose and chin, and steady, deep-brown eyes, his personality breathes a forceful character. An ideal retail grocer, who has studied his business and takes a pride in it, Mr. Paul is eminently a man who has cut his own path through the world. But although he knows his business to the last detail, he is not wholly wrapped up in it. He has time to devote to charities, as his modest bequests prove; the leisure to go in for church work, and the desire for further education. He is interested in several Canadian educational institutions, and is a member of the Board of Trade, the Business Men's League, and the Caledonian Society.

And how did he succeed in business? He answered the question in a few brief sentences. "I have made it a rule to handle nothing but the best goods, which I sell at moderate prices. I carry everything in groceries and never, under any circumstances, run out of a line. For the rest, I make it a point to pay strict attention to customers, to deal with them in a straightforward, honest manner, and by the quality of my goods and the treatment accorded my patrons, to induce them to return, and to make my store their Mecca of groceries."

ALEXANDER FRASER, MONTREAL,

A Success Won by Honesty, Ability and Perseverance.

Forty-one years ago a little Scotch lad in knee breeches, determined upon securing a position that would mean his start in life, applied at the offices of the Standard Life Insurance Company, St. James street, Montreal. The sturdy youngster made an impression upon Mr. Ramsay, the manager, and he was taken on. For four years he earned his small but growing salary with the insurance company; then decided he was not cut out for an insurance president, and obtained a position as junior office assistant in the grocery store known as the Italian warehouse, of which Alexander McGibbon was the proprietor. That was the entrance into the grocery business of Alexander Donald Fraser, president of Fraser, Viger & Co., Montreal, one of Canada's foremost retail grocery stores.

His life has been spent on St. James street, within a space of two city blocks.

In 1870 Fraser entered the employ of McGibbon, who had been established since 1856. During thirteen years' service as office assistant and clerk, he acquired a good education in groceries, and by close application to his work, unswerving honesty and loyalty, he had won the respect and confidence of his employer to such an extent that he was made a partner. That happened in 1883. The new firm was known as Alexander McGibbon & Co.

Two years later Mr. McGibbon retired and Fraser, seizing the opportunity, formed a partnership with Hormisdas Viger, who had long been a fellow clerk. The new firm name was Fraser, Viger & Co.

Under energetic management the concern made great strides, and business increased wonderfully. Mr. Viger died in 1893, but the firm name was continued as of old.

In May of the same year, incorporation was effected, Alexander Donald Fraser, president; George Alexander Fraser, vice-president; Joseph Edmond Tardy, cashier; Alexander Davidson, manager; Charles Peter Macklarer, assistant manager, and Charles Shepherd, secretary, compose the new company, Fraser, Viger & Co., Ltd., which boasts a capital stock of $500,000.

Mr. Fraser is an Irish-Scotchman. He was born in Ireland, where his father had a farm, in 1852, but his people came originally from Inverness, Scotland. When a year old, he crossed the ocean with his parents, who were attracted to Canada.

The family settled in Montreal, and in a few years the boy was sent to school. He attended "Hick's" for a few years, and then went to the McGill model school. Circumstances, however, made it necessary that he should begin to earn his bread at the age of fourteen.

Whether or not he has made a success of life rests with the reader to decide. As a high-class, profitable retail grocery business, that conducted by Fraser, Viger & Co., has few equals in this country. Not many have such a wide, strong and paying connection.

In a little private office over the store, connecting with it by a narrow back stairway, Mr. Fraser gives personal attention to his large interests. Though he has been forty-one years in harness, no thought of retirement ever enters his head. His ideas are those of a young man ambitious for the future. Just the other day he was speaking to the writer of his intentions to open branch stores in the suburbs of Montreal. He is not in a rut. He is open to consider new schemes, and always has been. He is not a small man by any means.

One of the qualities, which has contributed largely to his success, is his remarkable foresight, which was illustrated in a striking manner by his purchase, in 1903, of the building in which the firm's business is located. He paid Samuel Nordheimer, of Toronto, $190,000 for it. Recently he refused $250,000 from the C.P.R. He foresaw the possibility of the building changing hands and feared that he might lose a location which was worth thousands to his business. Had the C.P.R. purchased the building he would, undoubtedly, have had to move. In the same way he quickly recognizes a good agency, of which he has many.

Mr. Fraser is brusque in manner. He is the kind of man that gets down to business without any hedging. Sometimes he appears to be gruff, but that is mostly on the surface, for he has a kindly heart, as his employes will testify. He has the knack of knowing a good man when he sees him, and he gives such a person every opportunity, and rewards where reward is due.

With the exception of staple goods, all the groceries and the wines and liquors carried are imported direct. Mr. Fraser's effort has been to keep the best and to sell at fair prices.

A firm believer in the power of the press, he is a steady advertiser in the city dailies, and uses circulars widely. For years the firm has made a specialty of sportsmen's stores, and Fraser, Viger & Co. are known by fishermen and hunters in all parts of the United States and Great Britain.

In his advertisements, Mr. Fraser tells a straightforward story, and he appeals to the reader chiefly through quality. The firm's customers are of the very best class, residing in every part of Canada, and they receive steady satisfaction. They are always ready to put in a good word for Fraser, Viger & Co.

By push, close attention to details, a thorough knowledge of groceries, and judicious buying, Mr. Fraser has built up a business of which any man might be proud to call himself the head.

Mr. Ryan came from county Tipperary, Ireland, to Newfoundland, when quite a boy, and entered the employ of the well-known Harbor Grace firm of William Donnelly. Later, he came to St. John's and opened a grocery business on Water street.

At the annual meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society of St. John's, in 1895, Mr. Ryan was elected president.

and has been unanimously elected each year since.

He has been an active member of this grand society for over twenty years, and by his ability, ripe judgment, honesty and industry, has rapidly made his business one of the most extensive and most reputable in the colony. He entered public life in 1900, being elected to the House of Assembly for the district of Ferryland, and having had the unique honor of being chosen one of the Executive Council of the colony immediately after his election, a position which most people only attain after years of political experience.

J. T. BRILL.

After four years in the House of Assembly, Mr. Ryan was promoted to the more dignified atmosphere of the Legislative Council, or Upper Chamber, which corresponds with the Senate of Canada.

Mr. Ryan is a hard worker, and can be found at his desk as regular as the clock goes round. He also believes in recreation, and for twenty years has made it a rule to take a trip away to the Old Country for rest. Mr. Ryan's keen foresight and financial ability, which, in a few years brought his business to be one of the foremost in the colony, have always been at the disposal of the B.I.S., in which his interest never flags. When Mr. Ryan was elected president of the B.I.S., the society was resting under a heavy debt, and the bank to which the debt was due, having become insolvent during the financial calamity, the previous December, it was imperative that the society's debt should be paid at once to the liquidators of the defunct bank. Mr. Ryan negotiated with a Canadian bank to take over the loan. By this arrangement the society in which he takes so must interest was relieved from its temporary embarrassment.

As secretary of the St. Patrick's Hall Building Committee, in 1876, and as chairman of the Rebuilding Committee in 1892, he has rendered the society invaluable service. Mr. Ryan is a director of most of our local manufacturing industries, and can always be counted upon to aid in any good cause. Mr. Ryan's stock is always replete with the best goods the world's markets produce, and his able staff of assistants bear witness to the good business training they are receiving.

J. T. BRILL, GUELPH,

Pioneer of the Butter and Cheese Business of Canada.

The accompanying photo is an exact likeness of J. T. Brill, of the city of Guelph.

Mr. Brill arrived in Guelph just 42 years ago and is now the leading produce dealer and exporter in the city. He established a large pork packing industry there, and also built one of the finest equipped warehouses in Ontario, 35x 65 feet, which for cleanliness, handiness and utility would be difficult to equal. He also built the first creamery in Ontario, at Teeswater, Ont., and is still running it. He built and started a creamery at Walkerton, Ont., and has been the leading cheese and butter exporter of this section for over 40 years.

Thirty-five years ago he shipped two large train loads of butter (28 carloads) for export, consisting of 5,600 packages, weighing in the aggregate 616,000 pounds, valued at $123,200, the largest shipment ever sent from this section at one time. He paid out in one year for cheese, butter and hogs over half a million dollars.

Mr. Brill is an ex-alderman, and has filled several public positions. He is 83 years old, and hale and hearty, at that, and is just as keen for business to-day as he ever was. He is a daily visitor to the grocery stores in Guelph, and is a general favorite, especially with the ladies and children.

E. B. NIXON, WINNIPEG,

President of the Winnipeg Retail Grocers' Association.

Success in the grocery business can be had for a price but the man who is unwilling to pay the price never wins it. It calls for hard work and intelligent effort. It has been well said that it is worry, not hard work, that ages a man, and the truth of the saying is well proved by the experience of E. B. Nixon, the president of the Retail Grocers' Association of Winnipeg. He has a well earned reputation of being one of the hardest working grocers in the west, but although he confesses that he has almost arrived at the half century mark, very few of his friends would guess it.

When only thirteen years of age, he started at the bottom of the ladder in a Montreal grocery store, earning the magnificent stipend of $3 per month. That was the beginning, and it is safe to say that the young clerk was very soon worth much more than that to his employer. After eleven years with David Crawford in Montreal, he went to St. Louis, and there learned something of the grocery business as it is conducted in the United States.

Still a young man, he came to Winnipeg, where he entered the service of the "Ancient and Honorable Hudson's Bay Company." For sixteen years he was buyer and manager of the grocery department of that company in Winnipeg and gained a wide acquaintance with the western trade.

Not until 1902 did Mr. Nixon start in business for himself. On May 1st of that year he opened a grocery store on Main Street South, and stocked it with high class lines. His appeal was principally to the high class trade of the city and from the first he has secured a very large portion of it.

E. B. NIXON.

Mr. Nixon is an enthusiastic advocate of organization among the retail trade and as president of the Winnipeg Retail Grocers' Association has done much to further the movement.

A MODEL QUEBEC GROCERY

A Photographic Description of Elzear Turcotte's Store in Canada's Ancient Capital.

On the corner of Delfosse and Grant streets, in quaint old Quebec, is located the most up-to-date grocery store in the Ancient Capital of Canada. It is occupied and owned by Elzear Turcotte, a French-Canadian grocer, who has built himself up an eviable trade with all the best classes in Quebec.

His store would not compare with the largest in Canada in question of size, but without a doubt it will compare with the best for artistic and economical arrangement. And as for window space—Mr. Turcotte has enough to make some of the large dry goods houses feel very small, indeed. He has no less than ten plate glass windows for display purposes. Altogether he occupies four buildings, one joining the other, which gives him 250 feet of frontage on the public sidewalk.

As will be seen from the photographs, the interior arrangement of Mr. Turcotte's store is ideal. Every department is complete in itself. There are the confectionery, tobacco, wine and liquor, meat and provision, departments, among others, and each section is excellently laid out.

There is an air of freshness and cleanliness about the store that makes one wish to deal there and the goods kept are the very best; one can always count upon the quality of the merchandise offered for sale. An occasional palm, standing here and there throughout the store, lends effect to the general appearance.

Modern showcases, the latest scales, cash registers, and all up-to-date business methods are in use. Time and money is saved as a result, while the air of progressiveness these conveniences carry with them, is, in itself, an asset not to be despised. The store is brilliantly lighted by large arc lamps.

Mr. Turcotte employs twenty-three hands and it requires five delivery vans to distribute the groceries purchased by his customers, who reside in every part of Quebec. His trade also includes considerable shipping business to the Lake St. John district.

Mr. Turcotte being one of the most successful grocers in the Province of Quebec, and having built up his entire trade in less than fifteen years, any remarks from him as to how other grocers may accomplish a similar result, will be listened to with interest:

"I believe in advertising where it will do most good," he says. "I believe in using the columns of the town papers. Of course, in the larger cities a grocer wastes much circulation, but Quebec is not as large as all that, and I advertise freely in the chief journals here. Another thing, I make it a point never to let pass an opportunity of any kind.

"I make it a rule, also, to keep up my stock. It does not do to say, 'I am just out of it,' to a customer who wants something. And I keep a large assortment of all goods. To advertising consistently, to being constantly on the lookout for new trade bringing possibilities, and to keeping my stock always fresh and up to date, I attribute a large proportion of my success."

A brief history of the long strides this business has made will be of particular interest. The business was started in 1893 with a capital of $100. In 1895 capital and resources had increased to such an extent that Mr. Turcotte was able to buy the property occupied by the store. In 1896, $2,635 was spent in improvements. The increase in business since has been rapid and steady until now his yearly turnover, on a credit basis, is about $40,000. A remarkably small percentage of this remains on the books.

Some details from Mr. Turcotte regarding the floor-space utilized in the business will show better than anything else how large the store and other departments really are. The store occupies 2,800 feet; packing room, 1,880; warehouse, 5,500; 4 cellars, in all, 5,980; premium show room, 1,300; stables, yard and express shed, 7,000. There are two offices, one general, and one private, and also a well-fitted dressing room for clerks. A good deal of money is spent annually in increasing facilities for the comfort of customers, clerks, and the proprietor. This is one of the matters in which any grocer would do well to follow Mr. Turcotte.

COFFEE ADVERTISING.

A very original method of advertising their coffee was adopted by one grocery firm. A window was dressed with a display of the goods, a space several feet long and about a foot deep being left in the front of the window. This was covered with crimson cloth, and about a foot or more above the floor a number of little crimson balls were suspended with cords. This space was occupied by a cat with a family of three playful kittens whose antics with the crimson balls kept an amused crowd about the window all day long.

The connection between this display and the goods shown was made manifest by a placard reading: "If you want to feel as full of vitality and happiness as a kitten, just try our Eureka Coffee. Nothing like it for a bracer in the morning. Makes the world look brighter all day."

LONDON.

The meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association on Wednesday evening last was fairly well attended. The vice-president, Mr. Shaw, was in the chair. In the past, meetings have been held only at the call of the president, but it was decided hereafter to have monthly meetings, the first Wednesday night of each month being the time fixed on. Complaint having reached the association that millers and confectioners have been selling goods to their employes and others at less than retail prices, the offenders were communicated with, and the replies from all but one—who said his retail customers were few and unimportant—were considered satisfactory, being mostly to the effect that they "wouldn't do it again."

With the advance in the wholesale prices of oatmeal and certain other goods, there has as yet been no corresponding increase in the retail prices, and a strong committee was appointed to interview the trade, with the view of getting a living price, at least, out of these commodities.

The huckster question was also considered by the meeting. The market clerk explained that while he might see hucksters buying on the market, to be able to prove that they sold from wagons there was a difficult matter, in view of the many duties he is required to perform. Steps will be taken by the association to have a watch kept on suspects.

Provincial Inspector R. W. Bell, who has been making a tour of Ontario's canning factories, looking into their sanitary conditions, was in the city yesterday, and inspected the plant of the London Canning Co. Inspector Bell expressed himself as well satisfied with the conditions as found in the local industry. He has been over most of the western Ontario factories within the last few weeks and has found them uniformly clean. The factories in the Niagara district which were not up to requirements were those in which a foreign element from Buffalo was employed.

Harry Abell, a local apple buyer, declares that there are three times as many apples in this district as growers early in the season looked for. Mr. Abell has been all over the county buying for some weeks past, and has had no difficulty in securing big lots for shipment to the British market. Apples are easily secured, but the big problem is to secure barrels in which to pack them. So far he has packed 8,000 barrels, the average price paid being $1.50 per barrel.

Sixty per cent. of this season's pack will be Spies, which are of good quality. Russets and Baldwins are also plentiful and of good quality, although the Baldwins are a little smaller than usual. Greenings are scarce and poor, being the one exception to an otherwise excellent crop.

With hay selling at $17.50 a ton, and pasture unusually bare, local butchers hold out no hope of a reduction in beef prices. At the same time they place little reliance on the report that farmers contemplate selling off their cattle because of the difficulty of feeding and impossibility of fattening them on a paying basis. "The farmers in this part of the country do not have to sell out on one year's crops," said a leading butcher. "They have plenty of feed, in most cases. Of course, they could sell the feed to advantage and let the stock go at a lower figure, but such stock would not be of the kind sold by the butchers of this city."

Continuing, the speaker said, that farmers might be found selling off old milch cows, for instance, and when asked who would buy these, he replied that possibly they would be picked up by dairymen who would think them worth wintering over.

"Do these old cows ever find their way into the local butcher shops ?"

"Well, if you had time, I think I could take you around town and show you a few," the dealer replied. "There are cattle sold here that should not be sold for meat at all. If we had an inspector who knows good meat from bad, this sort of stuff would be seized. But when an animal is killed it is pretty difficult to tell that there is anything wrong with it."

"Do you mean to say that diseased meat is sold to local consumers ?"

"You might hardly call it diseased," was the reply. "But there are old cows, so old they have not been able to masticate their food, and I do not think that meat of this kind should be allowed."

The butcher said that London consumers were a very particular lot of people.

ESSENTIALS OF A GOOD WINDOW.

It is, of course, the happy medium which the experienced trimmer strives to attain, and which the successful trimmer always does attain. A window in which there are a limited variety of objects, contrast or harmony of color, and taste in arrangement, properly blended, should result in a pleasing and attractive display. Such a combination of qualities you will find in the better class of shops to-day. It is a tendency of trimmers in representative cities, and it is these men who make the art what it is who "set the fashions," who inaugurate ideas, who revolutionize the so-called systems.

The metropolitan window trimmer, like the metropolitan advertising manager, editor, merchant, is a leader in his line. He is so, not always through inherent merit, but by the force of necessity and circumstance. He is so because he has advantages that do not come to his provincial contemporary. The best material that can be procured is his to work on, and the inspiration, or, if you please, the competition, of those around him, who are shining lights in this field, is finally an element in his success not to be overlooked. It is for these reasons that the metropolitan trimmer leads, and on this account that metropolitan windows, in the evolution of artistic ideas, are ever a source of surprise and satisfaction.

The workingmen were not different from others, all demanding the best cuts, and making it difficult at times to sell the less high-priced parts of a carcass.

The fact that export prices of cattle have not changed was pointed to as evidence that a decline in retail prices of beef was not to be looked for, at least for the present.

INGERSOLL.

The opening of a five, ten and fifteen cent store here by F. H. Brewster & Co. means additional opposition to practically every retail merchant in the town. As is to be inferred from the prices mentioned, these stores carry an extensive stock of the smaller articles, displayed on the departmental store plan, and it would seem that there are but few lines which they do not handle. The new store will no doubt cut into the trade of tne druggists, stationers, and hardware merchants, but on the whole it will not likely be a very strong competitor of the grocers. Confectionery is usually carried in large quantities by these stores of "popular" prices, but ordinarily the grocers do not attach much importance to the candy trade, thus they have the least to fear in the way of opposition.

"Frenzied Finance" is no longer confined to the monopolists of the steel trusts or the oil magnates. It has spread to almost every home in the land and is truly a trying proposition. Providing the necessities of life is no longer a simple matter of "placing" the orders, but on the contrary, is a serious transaction. Prices are advancing with such rapidity that it is almost impossible to keep posted on them without inquiring daily, and it is doubtful if the merchants themselves are not diffident about chalking up the increases which circumstances compel them to make. The man who at one time was content to regard bread and butter as a goodly portion of his meal, and frown upon many of the so-called luxuries, is now inclined to take a more serious view of life and class bread and butter in with the luxuries. This is a section, with all its fame for dairying, where butter is invariably a scarce commodity, a state of affairs accounted for by the many cheese factories and the large factory here of the St. Charles Condensing Co. Throughout the summer the price of choice butter has ranged from 25 to 30 cents per pound. This was bad enough from the consumer's point of view, but little, probably, would have been said had the price stopped there. But it has been again advanced during the past few days, selling now at 32 cents per pound, and it has been predicted that it will reach the 35-cent mark before the winter is over. Fortunately no advance has yet been made in the price of bread, notwithstanding the fact that the dream of the farmer—dollar wheat—has been realized. This is the ruling price on the local market at the present time and other grains have also advanced materially. Oatmeal will in all probability be the next to be boosted in price, as oats are selling at 55 cents a bushel and the demand is keen. There is indeed no loophole of escape from high prices, and about the only way to economize, which would hardly be a practical one, would be to reduce the "rations." But just as though the householder did not have enough to worry over, the coal man has now announced that the price of coal has also taken a jump from $7 to $7.25 a ton, and there are rumors that it may be raised to $7.50. From the standpoint of the grocer, however, it is gratifying to note that in spite of the higher cost of living, they are all enjoying a brisk patronage. There is plenty of work for all who are willing, with wages advanced to meet other conditions, and the grocers have stocked up with their usual large supplies, in anticipation of a brisk autumn and Christmas trade.

What about the Thanksgiving turkey? This is a question which many are doubtless asking at the present time, in view of the fact that this important day is only a few weeks distant. If the local market were to be taken as a criterion of the number of turkeys in this section, it could be said without hesitation that they are not plentiful, but fortunately this market is not always a true index to conditions in the surrounding districts. As yet scarcely any turkeys have been exhibited on the market, but it must be remembered that farmers as a rule do not offer turkeys for sale until within a short time of Thanksgiving, and then only a small percentage are brought to the market. The number of turkeys in the majority of districts is invariably small, compared with other fowl, and owing to the high prices which they command, it is seldom that there is a keen demand for them apart from such festive occasions as Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. It has been the custom of several enterprising merchants here to contract for their supply for these occasions, and they are delivered direct to their stores. This is a good plan, for under ordinary circumstances many customers would probably be disappointed were they to rely upon the market for their supply.

A well-known local exporter of turkeys is authority for the statement that turkeys will be as plentiful this season as they were a year ago. In Dereham township and other sections to the south and west turkey raising is followed extensively and it is to these districts that the exporters usually go. It is understood that several of the exporters have been going over the territory sizing up the situation, but it is a trifle too early to give anything definite in regard to the prices. Indications, however, justify the belief that there will be plenty of turkeys for all Canadians who can afford to celebrate both Thanksgiving Day and Christmas in the good old-fashioned way.

The present week will witness the close of the tomato season with the Ingersoll Canning Co. Information gleaned by your correspondent was to the effect that the company had a very busy season. It is doubtful, however, if the output of tomatoes generally will be up to expectations. Tomatoes were plentiful, but the chief difficulty encountered was the backward manner in which they ripened. The tomatoes this year have been of good quality, a most important factor with the consumers.

With the close of the tomato season the Ingersoll Canning Company will commence canning apples. The apples are put up in gallon tins, and the past two years have shown that there is a good market for the fruit prepared in this manner. Greenings and Spies, regarded as the favorite varieties of Canadian apples, are used very largely by the company.

> The world reserves its big prizes for but one thing, and that is, Initiative. Initiative is doing the right thing without being told. Next to doing the right thing without being told is to do it when you are told ONCE.

Operations are being continued at the Ingersoll Evaporator with a merry swing. Apples are being received in fairly plentiful quantities and the output of the evaporator will be large this year. On making inquiries your correspondent was informed that the bulk of the evaporated apples are shipped to the west coast of Europe, where there is a keen demand for this Canadian product.

As a result of the shortage of peaches and the attendant high prices, there have been fewer sales this season in small quantities. In previous years peaches have been freely sold by the quart, but from observation it would appear as though the merchants had made very little effort to dispose of them in this way this season. Although the price has been nearly double that of last year, the major portion of the peaches have been sold by the basket up to the present time.

Arrangements were recently made by the St. Charles Condensing Co., whereby the milk of two large cheese factories, Salford and Prouse's, is being delivered to their factory here. This arrangement will only be in force during the winter, but through it the supply of the condenser has been very materially increased. Heretofore both of these cheese factories have been in operation during the winter. The St. Charles Condensing Co. have also obtained many additional patrons in this immediate vicinity, a fact which is regarded as being very important by the townspeople. That the St. Charles Condensing factory is an important industry will be apparent from the fact that on Monday of last week over one hundred thousand pounds of milk were received. At the present high prices which are being paid for milk, this means that a large amount of money will be put in circulation, and when the farmers are getting in the dollars the grocers and other merchants usually have a period of prosperity.

In this connection, it will not be out of place to mention that nothing definite has yet been made public as to the probable location of the new factory which the St. Charles Condensing Co. were contemplating establishing in some Western Ontario town. Having very materially increased their milk supply here, it is understood they will also add to their facilities.

Mr. Robert Stuart is Ingersoll's veteran grocer. Mr. Stuart engaged in the grocery business here in 1866, which he has conducted continuously ever since, with the slight interruption of a year and nine months. For the greater portion of the thirty-nine years that he has been in business, Mr. Stuart has occupied the one stand, at the corner of King and Mill Streets. He still enjoys a good patronage and is as attentive as ever to his business interests. From his old books, Mr. Stuart is able to furnish some very interesting information relative to the prices of various articles in the early days. About the time that he entered the grocery business here, pork was selling at five cents a pound retail, while $2.50 per hundred was about the ruling figure off the farmers' wagons. In those days there were no food fads, nor package tea. Oatmeal was the old reliable morning diet, and the tea was all in bulk, the best quality selling at a dollar a pound. Maple sugar was used very extensively at this time, thousands of pounds being made each season by every farmer. It was used for both cooking and table purposes, the usual price being five and six cents per pound. Maple syrup was not looked upon as a delicacy, as it could be had for thirty or forty cents per gallon. Wheat, however, was selling at about the same price as at the present time—a dollar a bushel.

The accompanying illustration shows the grocery store of A. Beattie & Co., at the corner of Thames and King Streets, Ingersoll. The store is commodious, attractive, and well stocked with all articles pertaining to a complete grocery business. The stand is an ideal one, being on the principal corner of the two main streets. A Beattie & Co., who also have a grocery business in Stratford, engaged in business here about four years ago. At the present time the store here is under the capable management of Mr. John S. Smith. The store is widely known, the firm of Robinson Bros. having for many years carried on a wholesale and retail grocery business there. A. Beattie & Co. have stamped themselves as being progressive, as the tidy appearance of their store indicates. They believe in carrying a large and well displayed stock and in advertising in an effective manner. One noteworthy feature as to their methods of doing business is a weekly bargain day, which is regarded as a leverage in securing additional patronage. In addition to the manager, the firm employ three clerks. They also have two delivery wagons.

BELLEVILLE.

The grocers of this beautiful city of the bay are just about as happy a crowd of merchants as one could find, and the reason for "the smile that won't come off" is all due to the excellent business they have been and are still enjoying. Every one that has been spoken to by your correspondent says that never in their memory has the city been in such a prosperous condition, therefore, the grocers are always the first to benefit when such conditions exist. Just to give an idea how Belleville is progressing, it is only necessary to state that the increase in the population during the past year is close upon five hundred. This is certainly a splendid record for a city the size of Belleville. It must be admitted that for several years, recently, this city has been "standing easy," to use a military phrase, but during the past couple of years she has redeemed herself and now takes her place among the leaders of the smaller Ontario cities. And why should she not be so favored? She has every advantage, as far as nature is concerned. Situated in one of the richest agricultural and mining counties in Ontario, with excellent transportation facilities, by both rail and water, it is only a wonder that her present strides were not taken years ago. No finer scenery in Ontario can be found than that along the celebrated Bay of Quinte or among the many lakes and mountains in the northern part of the county, where hundreds of American tourists spend the summer. Belleville citizens certainly have much to be thankful for. If some of those inland cities and towns had a sheet of water at their doors such as the Bay of Quinte, or the River Mona, they would simply go wild with delight. The only real luxury that this city now feels the lack of is a street car service, and, judging from the present feeling and need, it may be a reality before long. The erection of the big cement plant by the Lehigh Portland Cement Company is hastening the need for a car service, as this firm will employ about 600 men the year round, and as the works are about four miles from the city, the need of such a service will be readily seen, as most of the men will reside in this city. The company have already built forty cosy houses for their workmen, and are building more. When completed, this will be the largest plant of its kind in the Dominion, with nearly double the largest output. A small village has grown up around the works already, and the grocers are, therefore, reaping a huge benefit. One grocer supplies about $300 worth of groceries and provisions per week to the Belleville Portland Cement Company employes, residing near the works, which are adjacent to the Lehigh plant.

The price of canned goods will likely be advanced this winter. Such is the opinion of a prominent canner of this district. This county and her sister county, Prince Edward, are dotted with canning factories, but a few closed down this year owing to the scarcity of produce. The looked for advance will depend largely upon the price set by the Canadian Canners, Limited. Canned corn at least, will be sold at an advanced price. The factories have had a far busier season, however, than was anticipated two months ago. The first and second weeks of October saw some of the factories handling as much as 2,000 bushels of tomatoes per day, for which the average price paid was 25c. per bushel. Corn has been a good crop, particularly the late varieties. The prices have been high, the farmers receiving $9 and $10 per ton. The contracted prices were $7 and $8 a ton, but the factories were forced to advance these because of the short crop. In a week or so the canning of tomatoes will be finished. This district was visited by a damaging frost on the 8th of this month, and, as a result, many farmers growing canning factory produce, have suffered considerably. Many fields of tomatoes were injured, and corn, too, has, in some localities, been badly touched. The loss is, perhaps, a little greater this year, because of the lateness of the crop. The "nip" was not severe enough to hurt apples.

R. B. Morden, one of the proprietors of the Belleville Canning Company, says they have been up against a peculiar state of affairs, and that is the lack of help. The company have tried every device to get female assistance, but are only able to secure about half the help they require, and, as a result, they will only be able to can about half as much as usual. Almost every day they have had to refuse tomatoes. There is plenty of work at good wages, which would last, he says, until the middle of November. Owing to the arrival in the city of so many new residents, he cannot understand why the opportunity to make some easy money is not taken advantage of. Some of the girls and women now average $1.50 per day, with clean and comfortable quarters to work in. J. R. Gay, the popular bookkeeper of this company, was married recently to Miss Maud W. Brown, a graduate of Winnipeg General Hospital.

GUELPH.

Step by step, nearer and nearer, Niagara power is approaching the city of Guelph. In a very short time now the surveyors who are laying the line will be in Guelph district. The proposed line to Guelph skirts the Hamilton mountain, and comes up through Millgrove, Freelton, Moniston and Aberfoyle, to the city. The line is not being laid along the road, but at what is called the baseline, or in other words, the boundary line between the different properties, some distance from the road.

when the president of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association will be present and give an address.

Our city council buried the hatchet at a picnic at Puslinch Lake this summer, but I think some of the members take a run down occasionally to have a look at it. The board of control proposition for a city our size is not at all necessary, and our council doesn't need to sit up all night worrying over that fact.

The woods are full of travelers this week. They are nearly as plentiful as customers, and each one has the best snaps and all are telling about the advance in prices or about to be, and you had better buy now. That is all right if you can see it that way, but don't forget you are the one that wants to see it. A well-assorted stock is what you want, and not too big, at that. You know your own business best.

Why some confectionery establishments send out their confectionery in such dirty boxes, as also their biscuits, is a matter of discussion at present. We get fancy chocolates, candies and biscuits in boxes that are far from being clean, which not only make the goods poor sellers, but are certainly not good stock, as no grocer wants to show his goods in dirty boxes. A grocer showed me a sample of soda biscuits from a first-class house, which should have been sent for pig feed somewhere, and another informed me of sending some back to another first-class house for the same reason. Now, why do the managers of these institutions allow such goods to get out of their factories ? The trade doesn't demand any such carelessness. It certainly doesn't pay to allow a line of goods that are not up to the mark to go out among a first-class trade and expect good results. We have the same complaint in regard to bread. We have seen bread sold right here in Guelph with the marks of dirty pans on it, just as well as we have seen biscuits. Then again, we sometimes run across a paper bag that has had cayenne pepper in it, shipped out with a line of pure ground cassia in it. Now, where the economy lies in another chance for someone who knows to reply.

We see and hear from travelers a whole lot about the raising of prices among the wholesalers. But did you ever stop to think that in most cases the retailer is the man who suffers most ? Take, for instance, starch and corn starch (any first-class brand). We only get 10c retail now, in spite of the advance in price, wholesale. Then take common starch. The price to-day, and the price you are selling at. Figure for yourself. Are you doing the fair thing for yourself ? The same thing applies in a number of instances, which space won't allow to be mentioned, but you know them just as well, perhaps better, than I know. The retailer should be in a position to follow the market either up or down at a moment's notice in any article he handles. There is one point where a good grocers' association would come in useful. We could all act together and be just as well able to raise or lower the price as wholesalers or anybody else. But right there is where some of the retailers are losing money at present, and for no other reason than that they are afraid to raise the price until they are sure their opposition is doing likewise. Get together. He needs it as well as you do.

An out-of-town grocer was telling me the other day he had to let his head clerk go, and I asked him why, as I knew he was a good man. "He is a good man," said my friend, "a splendid worker, and a good stock keeper, but what I want is a man who can make the others work also." Now, I thought that was funny. Here is a good man losing his job, I said to myself, just because he can't get enough out of his assistants. It is all very well for a proprietor to put up that kind of an argument. But there may be a good reason on the other side also. Some proprietors give a head clerk lots of orders for himself as well as for his assistants. But right there the shoe pinches. He doesn't give him the authority to enforce his orders. If he gets the work done, why, all right. But very often the head clerk works hard himself to get through the work, in fact, does too much himself, but as soon as he crowds those under him, they go at once to the proprietor or get friends to do it for them. The proprietor calls his head clerk to one side and says, "Don't expect too much from so and so, I have him cheap." But just the same he does expect first-class work from cheap help. A boss ought to give a head clerk his confidence and help him in his troubles, if he expects his assistance at other times. A good thorough understanding on both sides saves trouble.

Some years ago in Stratford I acted as a judge of some window dressing. We gave the prize to the man whom we considered had won it. The other day I was asked by three different grocers to decide or express an opinion on two different windows, but refused, as I have gone out of the window-judging business. But I can safely say that any grocer's clerk or grocer who puts in a window out of the ordinary, doesn't need to be afraid he will not come under the specially mentioned column, or that it will not be seen. But as for expressing opinions or acting as judge, I am out of the business. I like the work and love a fellow worker, but I have no heart to pull his ideas to pieces, or his neighbor, either. We have all got lots of room for improvement. But at the same time in awarding prizes for window dressing, it ought to be taken into consideration whether the employer is willing to give his clerks the time and little incidentals necessary to put in a good window. There are lots of things that come under this head, such as crepe paper, holly and mistletoe, etc., that cost money, and if the clerk has to spend his own money (which is sometimes the case) that ought to be considered.

An entirely new feature has been added at the O.A.C. College, in the way of a Department of Baking and Milling. This department has been instituted at the express request of the Master Bakers' Association. The object of the Government in establishing this plant was to aid the miller and baker in their work, and supply all necessary apparatus for deeper investigation into the nature of the chemical changes that take place in baking and into what really constitutes strength of flour. These are problems which it is almost impossible to study without carrying on parallel baking tests to aid the interpretation of the chemical work. To this plant a miller may send a sample of wheat at eight o'clock in the morning, and a loaf of bread will be made from it by two o'clock in the afternoon. Reports are then prepared by the department, in which the strength, expansion, and quality of the flour is compared, with what is used in the laboratory as standard flour. This report is sent to the party sending the flour or wheat. This will give the millers the information they need in order to so mix this wheat that they can control the uniformity of their flour.

There was a marked air of briskness about the market on Saturday, but the supply was very unevenly balanced. Eggs again were not to be had at any price, while other prices remained unchanged, except poultry. There was an over-supply of it, and of very poor quality, and the farmer must learn, sooner or later, that any old thing in the poultry line is not good enough for the market. From 40c. to $1 a pair was paid for chickens, and for ducks, from 60c. to $1 a pair. On the outside market the high prices prevailed and the figures are getting out of the question. Prices are being paid now that were never heard of on the Guelph market before. 52c. to 54c. for oats, and as high as 70c. for barley.

The police raided the butter market on Saturday, and out of 300 samples weighed, 61 pounds were found short weight and were confiscated. But there is one thing I heard of, where a farmer had 20 pounds, and 3 out of the 20 were short. I don't think that farmer meant to be dishonest; but the three had to go. It is not likely there will be any further steps taken to prosecute the farmers caught in this way.

MONTREAL.

Burglars have been giving the grocers around town considerable attention during the past few weeks. Desjardin's store on lower Bleury Street was entered and smashed up a bit on one occasion. Again Thomas Elliott, who keeps a bright store at the corner of Ontario and Bleury Streets, received a visit from the men with the "jimmys." They broke into his store late Saturday evening, gaining entrance through the plate glass window, which they smashed. They did not get much for their trouble, however, Mr. Elliott missing only half a dozen bottles of liquor.

So great was the popular clamor against milk dealers who presumed to advance the price of that fluid two cents a quart, that the shippers decided to effect a compromise. On October 1, they began selling milk at nine cents a quart, instead of ten, as they announced three weeks ago. This price is more in keeping with the natural state of things, and the many grocers who sell milk will be glad to learn that they will not have virtually to hold up their customers when they sell them milk. The price of hay and feed is very high in Montreal and district, but not so much higher than elsewhere that such an advance as contemplated should be made.

Now that the fruit season is practically over, there are quite a few grocers wondering how much money they have made in fruits and vegetables during the summer which is just past. There are a good many, unfortunately, who do not know that they have lost a considerable sum in what they thought was a business that paid them well. Included in this number one does not find the experienced grocer, the man who has been at the game for years, during which time he has had his eyes open, but the class is made up of young chaps who have not been long at the counter. More's the pity.

These young grocers went at the fruit business this spring, as they do most every summer's beginning, in a wholesouled manner. Quite early every morning they were to be seen seated on their delivery wagons making haste to the market to secure the pick of the offerings of the farmers. With the farmers they usually made a good dicker, and in the end, came off not second best. But later they were seen around the fruit stores laying in a supply of pears, plums, peaches and other high priced, perishable fruit. It is on these lines that they lose money.

Whether it is that they are in a hurry, or they take every man's word to be as good as his bond, they do not seem to exercise their usual good judgment in purchasing fruit. Time and again have retailers been seen buying on the market, say, pears. The fruit dealer offers a box, and on being asked how many dozen it contains, off-handly replies: "Oh, say about fourteen dozen." The experienced grocer is quite sure of his fourteen dozen before he pays for them.

This is the inexperienced man's stumbling block. He takes the dealer's word and carts home his purchase. Even at the store he does not bother to count the pears, but, opening the box, sorts out the bad ones and then fixes a price based on the dealer's word that there are fourteen dozen in the box. Only too often there are only twelve dozen pears in the case, and at least one dozen goes to waste before the balance is disposed of. Now, basing his price on the fourteen dozen, the grocer is likely to sell the pears cheaper than if he paid the same price for twelve dozen. Then, not allowing for waste, he does not count still another dozen. Therefore, he reckons his selling price on the basis of fourteen dozen purchased, while in reality he only gets returns for eleven dozen.

Now, what grocer can afford to lose the price of three dozen pears per case? Where's the profit? If such grocers as buy their fruit carelessly will but bear this little instance in mind next spring and summer, not alone in connection with pears, they will find that they will not have to contend with some unknown loss figures at the end of 1908, when they are figuring out their profits and losses for the year. It's such a little thing—but then it is the little dribs and drabs, the small leaks, that so quickly kill off the profits in the grocery business to-day. A man is watching for the big losses, the small items do not appear on the surface. One has to think, in order to locate them.

Now that the holiday season is coming on, it is up to the grocers to do something nice in window dressing. The amount of trade that can be secured through attractively dressed windows is beyond belief, unless one has tried the window as a silent salesman. There are in Montreal quite a few grocers who know the power of the window, and they are, some of them, getting ready even at this early date.

I know of one grocer on a side street who has a progressive manager whom lack of good location does not discourage. He recently had a first-class fall window which attracted a great amount of attention, and sold dollars and dollars' worth of groceries. This manager firmly believes in window dressing. And his faith works to the benefit of the proprietor, for action being next to belief, the manager gives much attention to the window. He attracts customers from districts covered thoroughly by other grocers simply through his attractive store front, backed up by good groceries at a reasonable price. And there are other grocers not possessed of a good location who are making good use of their windows. The largest retail grocer in Quebec City attributes a great measure of success to his ten windows, backed up by newspaper advertising. His store is in an out of the way section of the city.

Let the man who does not believe in windows talk to a grocer who has seen the power of them place cash in his register. There is a grocer on St. Catherine Street who is noted for his frequently changed, artistic windows. It is an actual fact that he sells thousands of dollars worth of groceries every year, solely because of his window. Thousands of people pass his store daily, and he takes advantage of the fact. A tea window he put in for about a week last year netted him sales to the amount of $500 over and above what he regularly sold to his steady customers. He had been doing absolutely no advertising, so the window must have sold the tea.

To get results, one must, of course, devote considerable attention to the window. A few parcels of various lines thrown in the window will not result in sales. There must, first of all, be something in the dressing of the window to attract the attention of passers-by; then the attention must be held sufficiently long to permit of the window advertisement making an impression.

Acquire the art of catching and holding the attention of those who pass the store, and you have mastered the art of window dressing.

Some progress is being made in the early closing movement. Grocers in the central part of the city are taking up the idea. P. Campbell & Co., Brouillet & Guay, Thompson & Co., T. A. Woods & Co., and P. Elliott are the latest acquisitions to the ranks of the early closers. They shut up shop at seven every Thursday evening, and they expect to close every Tuesday evening after the holidays. All the St. Catherine Street grocers close every night, that is, those west of University Street, so that things look brighter for the clerks in that part of the city.

Walter Paul, who runs a fine large store at the corner of St. Catherine and Metcalfe Streets, has opened a branch at 80 University Street. It is an excellent place of business, fitted in the most modern manner. Mr. Paul expects to relieve the pressure on the west end store somewhat by the opening of this branch.

OTTAWA.

Notwithstanding the copious rains in this section for a month past, the Ottawa market is a sufferer by scarcities of agricultural and dairy products which enter into and from a part of the grocery trade to an important degree, and for which prices now rule higher than they have done at this season for former years past.

The grass lands, which, during the hot months of this year, became too much exhausted of moisture before the rainfall, do not show much improvement in fresh growth for fall grazing, consequently the stocks have to be additionally fed from the supply laid in for winter, which, because of a short crop, will be insufficient to last through the feeding months.

The dairy prospects, therefore, are not so hopeful, as the late rains seemed to lead those interested to believe, and farmers are now endeavoring to dispose of their herds as best they can, though for the most part at a serious loss. It is expected there will be a good supply of water in streams and wells for winter use, the want of which in previous years has been to many a great source of trouble and expense, but this will not compensate the threatened losses through scarcity of feed.

Best qualities of hay are now selling from $22 up per ton. A farmer having sixty tons to sell was offered $1,000 cash for the quantity on the spot. He got full price, instead. Oats, 52c up per bushel in large lots. Butter, 30c up. Cheese, 13 1-16c at cheese board sales. Milk, 8c to 10c per quart, with a fair probability of higher prices in the near future. Potatoes and all staple products are in brisk demand. Poultry and meats the same, all commanding high figures.

Movements in grocers' merchandise are fairly active, in view of the usual advance in freight rates at this season, both for warehousing of stocks, and for shipment of outgoing purchases, so that business is seasonably satisfactory, done as it is, under stringent money conditions, resultant, more or less, from Ottawa's proximity to the Cobalt region, in which this city and vicinity is heavily interested.

In face of this fact, however, but few failures have occurred in this section during the past two years, which is a most encouraging feature of its mercantile health and future prospects.

The civic assessment fof the city of Ottawa for 1908 has just been published in the papers, showing an increase of over two millions more taxable property than for the year of 1907, and an increase of over two thousand during the past year to its population, all helping to keep up a keen demand for supplies surely to accrue to the grocers' benefit in the end.

With the rise in flour, no yeast was used by the bakers to raise the price of breadstuffs, as their combined agreement suited the purpose, but not to such an extent as to cause complaint.

Fruit has not been as plentiful this year as in the past. This section is yet largely dependent on western Ontario orchards for its fruit supply, but as some attention has been given, and is growing, towards fruit tree planting in suitable places, we may expect an additional supply in due time. Generally speaking, this part of Ontario is not adapted to fruit culture. The long, cold winters are unfavorable to trees, except in protected localities, and for the small fruits unless they be levelled to the ground and covered.

Ottawa is said to possess the largest retail produce market in Canada, and as imported products find a ready sale in large quantities here, there is every reason to believe that the cultivation of fruit in the Ottawa valley would prove a most profitable industry. Work in all departments of labor is fairly plentiful at good wages, and merchants generally, are getting on nicely.

Grain prices here continue high, and there is no indication of a drop. Deliveries are rather slow just now. In Blenheim and other adjoining towns, the high prices offered have resulted in somewhat larger deliveries. Beans are an exception, however, for, though as high as $1.50 per bushel has been offered for two pound pickers, deliveries have not been heavy.

Prices offered last Saturday were as follows: Corn, shelled, 60c.; oats, 57c.; wheat, $1; barley, per 100, $1.56; beans, per bushel, $1.30 to $1.50.

The prices of market stuff and farm produce also show a tendency to soar. For butter, farmers ask all the way from 28c. to 30c. on the market, and eggs last Saturday fetched 23c.

Sheriff Gemmill is assignee, the assignment bearing date of Oct. 10th. The creditors' meeting will be held at Harrison Hall, Chatham, on Oct. 18th, and Nov. 15th is fixed as the day of distribution of the assets. Mr. Read, who was in business at Northwood for several years, had a large trade in that section of the country, and the news of his financial difficulties comes as a surprise.

Leamington has repealed an early closing bylaw, passed some time ago. The bylaw has affected grocers, dry goods men, jewelers, harness makers and dealers in other lines. Apparently, it didn't work well, for at the last regular meeting of the Leamington council, a petition for its repeal, signed by a majority of the merchants in each of the lines affected, save one, was presented. The harness makers, the only trade not represented by a majority, were subsequently brought into line, and at a special meeting of the town council, held later, the bylaw was repealed. Under the caption, "A Step Backward," the Leamington News has this to say regarding the move:

"The repeal of the early closing bylaw is unfortunate. Instead of repealing the law, it should have been still further extended. This is too progressive a community for such reactionary legislation long to continue popular. We feel sure our people will soon repeal the repeal. No up-to-date employer but knows his his hands will do more work in less time, up to a reasonable limit. Our merchants can make better money and have a bigger trade by short hours than by long ones, and they know it."

The Favata-Zakoor trouble, which has engrossed a share of public attention for the past few weeks, saw its termination at least for the time being, in the division court a week ago, when Gaspar Favata was awarded $8 for damages sustained by his push cart as a result of its collision with Zakoor's delivery wagon.

The enterprising L. B. Drummond, attorney-at-law, New York, has been operating in this vicinity, and Maple City merchants have not been overlooked in his attentions. One of those favored with a legacy of five shares of C.P.R. stock was Alf. Deloge, the St. Clair Street grocer. Mr. Deloge didn't bite. Instead, he invited Mr. Drummond to send on his stock, C.O.D. Needless to say, the stock didn't come.

The Old Boys' Reunion, held at Thamesville last week, in connection with the East Kent Agricultural Society's fair, was a big success. Large crowds attended from all parts of the province, and the exhibits and attractions were high class in every respect. As a result of the enterprise of the directors and the liberal patronage of Thamesville boys, old and new, the gate receipts were $1,200—$900 in excess of any previous year.

A significant advertisement appeared in one of the local papers last week. It was as follows: "Owing to merchants objecting to ticket canvassing, the ladies of Christ Church Guild have placed tickets for sale at Andrew's Grocery, Central Drug Store, and Brisco's, and hope to receive a liberal patronage." Evidently the recent resolution of the Retail Merchants' Association is having the desired effect.

SASKATOON.

The grocery trade is very active for the season of the year and a good fall trade is looked for. Just now special orders are being filled for threshers and homesteaders, who take considerable supplies of provisions into the country with them. There is a dearth in butter and although the supply from the farming districts has always been light, it is now being much curtailed, and dealers are negotiating for shipments from produce merchants in the east. Dairy butter is retailing for 25c. per lb. Creamery butter is 30c. Eggs are 30c. per dozen. Potatoes are 50c. per bushel, and onions 5c. per lb.

Shipments of Ontario and California fruit are arriving and being rapidly distributed and many housewives are now busy preserving. Apples are $2.25 per box; pears, $2.90 per case; crab apples, $2.90; plums, $1.15 per crate; peaches, $2; tomatoes, 75c. per basket. The first consignment of grapes arrived last week and are selling at 60c. per basket.

It is announced that the Nash Fruit Company, of Grand Forks, N.D., have purchased the fruit business of R. A. Rogers & Co., of Winnipeg and Saskatoon. There will be no change in the management of the local business at present, but the purchasers will take over the two Canadian branches on October 15th. A representative of the new owners is expected here about that date to put matters on a definite working basis for future operations.

J. Y. Griffin & Co., of Winnipeg, the largest wholesale meat dealers in the Dominion, have opened a branch in Saskatoon, with W. J. Bell as local manager. This widely known company also have branches at Edmonton, Calgary, Nelson, Vancouver, Regina and Fort William. They are now the largest cheese, butter and egg dealers in Canada, and more than a car of their goods will arrive in this city weekly in future. Next year they intend building a packing house, to cost one and a half million dollars, and a canning factory, costing nearly as much, in connection. The new packing house will have a capacity of 15,000 hogs, 300 cattle, and 300 sheep per day.

Grindlay Bros. have opened a new feed and sales stable on First Avenue. Their boarding rates, which include proper attendance on horses and cleaning of rig and harness, are: Single horse per month, $14, team per month $27. They have also a scale of charges for shorter periods. The stage to Asquith stops here every Monday and Friday.

A. C. Poole has purchased the bakery business of J. F. Cairns and intends maintaining the past good reputation of this house.

Holmes & Benson, grocery and hardware dealers, have dissolved partnership and Frank Holmes will carry on the business in future.

Young & Galbraith, grocers, have dissolved partnership.

ST. CATHARINES.

Though St. Catharines is situated between the two great arteries of trade and travel—Toronto to the north and Buffalo and Niagara Falls to the south and west—she has her advantages by being in the great fruit-growing belt of the Niagara district. With the old Welland Canal as the motive power for her manufactories, with the new Welland Canal as a means of transportation of goods and merchandise, the two railways, with their connections, and the steamers that ply between Port Dalhousie and Toronto, give her some advantages over her competitors in trade. The city, without blowing trumpets or a boom, is steadily growing, and outside of the fire limit a large number of frame dwellings have been and are being erected to meet the demand for housing. In fact, the demand for dwelling houses is greater than the supply, and though rents have been gradually increased, the demand still continues. All classes of mechanics have been kept steadily at work during the past season, but now that the cool weather has set in, there will be slackness in some trades.

The fruit season is rapidly drawing to a close and a good deal of disappointment is felt by the fruit men. Plums, pears, and apples were far below the average in quantity, peaches proved to be a little better crop than was expected early in the season, and all of the above brought high prices. The grape crop is the best for a number of years. In fact, there is an overabundance, though the rose bug did some damage on sandy soil. Grapes are selling at $32 to $33 per ton. These kinds usually go to the wine manufactories, of which the George Barnes factory, located between St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie, is the largest in this vicinity.

Saturday is the principal market day for the week and farmers and hucksters come from long distances to dispose of their products. Farmers these days are as sharp as the other business men. A choice lot of vegetables or fruit will be at the top of the bag or basket, but further down the sample is usually not so good, so the buyer gets caught. They will couple chickens dressed, one young and tender, the other an old fowl, but keep the prices high. The ruling price for chickens is 40c. Butter ranges from 30 to 35 cents per pound and the reason given for such figures is that the pasture was poor and the cows did not give as much milk as when in good pasture. There was but a limited supply on the market. Eggs were sold at 30 cents per dozen, and the supply was limited. Hay advanced one dollar per ton and sold readily at $16. Potatoes were sold at 80 cents per bushel and potato growers told your correspondent that the late yield would be light, consequently, one may look for expensive potatoes before the next crop ripens.

The retail grocers here vie with one another as to who can produce the finest window display. This exhibit is more than half the battle to win customers. And as each has his hobby, one will see a great variety of windows.

Alderman Charles M. Gibson, one of our young and leading grocers, is a possible candidate for re-election at the forthcoming municipal contest. Though not pretending to be a platform speaker, Ald. Gibson has accomplished good work during the current year.

Ald. B. J. Lenbsdorff, the present chairman of the Finance Committee, is a possible candidate for the mayoralty the coming year. Ald. Lenbsdorff has been a member of the council for several years, and has proved an efficient officer. Mayor Andrew Riddell, one of the staunch business men of this city, will probably retire from municipal office at the expiration of his present term, and rumor says he is an aspirant for higher honors. Ald. Harry Southcott will probably seek re-election. In addition to being a druggist, he is intimately associated with the Wethey Mince Meat and Canning Company, who have built up an extensive mince meat business.

Cheese making in this section of the Niagara district has ceased to exist as an industry. There is but one cheese factory in this section—the one at Bismarck—about twenty miles from St. Catharines, which is conducted on an extensive scale. William Hanna, of Thorold township, a prominent farmer and speculator, conducts a cheese factory on a large scale. These two are the only cheese making firms in the Niagara peninsula, though a third one is expected to be opened out in the near future, at Queenston. Mr. W. A. Sherwood, a prominent grocer of this city, is to be the proprietor and operator, assisted by his son, who is associated with him in business.

Short time accounts, or spot cash is the motto of the merchants here. No long-drawn accounts, as in the old days, running for six months or a year, and frequently not paid then. The merchants claim the present system to be the best for buyer and seller, as the buyer secures an advantage. True, there are workmen who get their pay either fortnightly or monthly, and the account extends to the end of that term, but no longer, and a fresh account is opened out. That's the cause of the grocer's success, and he does not require to lay in six or twelve months' supply ahead, as in the olden days, for his wants can be supplied now within a few hours or days.

STRATFORD.

There is not a great deal of stir in the grocery business at present, trade having the tendency to move along in the usual tenor of its way. Grocers do not report any great rush, nor do they report that trade is dull. On the whole the season (fruit) has been a good one, and although there were scarcities in many lines, there was abundance in others. Considering the large number of grocers in this city, trade and business is good for all, or almost all. The progressive grocer gets the trade, and it is not hard to single such a grocer out from his fellow tradesmen.

There is all the difference in the world between a successful business man and the non-successful one, and the difference is not only noted in the different businesses, but in the general appearance and characters of the individuals. And in many cases the business man is not successful simply because he does not use the ways and means by which success can be obtained. He fails to see why such and such an article should be given a trial, when the other brand sells just as well. He is content to just slip through comfortably. In plain words, he is lazy. Too lazy to look after his own business. Clerks seeking positions should try to get into good stores. The good clerks are found in good stores.

Nothing, perhaps, does more to hold a man in the favor of an employer than efficiency. There are always those who can do the work fairly well, if someone else does the planning. Really efficient workers are always scarce. There may be men who can do work well up to a certain standard, but who need more or less watching to see that they maintain the proper standard. The clerk who succeeds to-day in any line of business is the one who does a certain amount of thinking for himself and puts it into practical use, the one who decides on points of interest, points that will help to promote his employer's business. There are those who have still to work well when the work is clearly defined by the judgment of others, but who lack judgment themselves. In a short conversation with one of the leading merchants of this city the other day, he said in part, that he made it a practice to advance the clerks in his employ who took and showed an interest in the welfare of the business. If he saw a clerk doing his best and originating new ideas he gave him the preference every time over the clerk who simply did what was required of him and no more. And after all, it's the little things in life that count. It's the little extras that count in any business ; it's the same little extras that the clerk puts into his work that attract the attention of his employer. The clerk that succeeds is not the one that closes up shop sharp on the tick or that comes to work a trifle late in the morning. It's the very opposite, and it's the clerk that puts in a little overtime without grumbling that draws the fat salary. There are thousands of more or less incompetent persons who hold their positions chiefly because of the lack of better workers to take their places. The employer clings to the man who can take hold of a proposition in its roughest state and work it out to its logical completion. This kind of a clerk is too rare a man not to be appreciated by the employer who looks well to his own interests. The employer is always ready and glad to shift some of the burdens from his own shoulders onto a competent clerk, and it's the competent clerk who works up into his employer's estimation that begins to share the responsibilities of the business, and gradually finds that his ready cash is growing in large bank accounts. Even if the employer's appreciation is not always expressed outwardly in words, it is there, and in his own heart he finds much satisfaction in having a really efficient man to lean upon. Young clerks, all you have to do to succeed in this world is to apply your stored-up talents to good use, to uses that will have a tendency to make the firm you work for prosperous.

The market last week was very largely attended, having the dimensions of a Christmas market. It was quite noticeable that the prices in almost every article of farm produce had a tendency to advance. The cost of living has increased during the past week, and fuel and provender has become a luxury. The only fault that the grocers find is, that although they have in a number of cases to pay the wholesalers an advanced price, the price to the customer remains at practically the same as it did prior to the increase from the wholesale end.

W. J. Norfolk, proprietor of the Clean Grocery, is advertising his Queen blend coffee, and last week had a lady demonstrator serving up the delicious blend to the customers.

WOODSTOCK.

A special number of The Grocer is always looked forward to with deep interest, for while all its issues are filled with matter of an interesting and instructive nature to the grocery fraternity, yet it is possible, on occasions, to turn out an issue that is brim full from cover to cover with hints, suggestions, and information that no live grocer can afford to be without.

Your correspondent regrets to report that the Woodstock branch of the Retail Merchants' Association has practically suspended business. No meetings have been held for several months, it being impossible to get enough out to make it possible to do business. The term of office of the officers of last year has expired, and new ones have not been elected, because there was not a quorum the evening this was to have been done. It is doubtful, anyway, if men could be found to accept official positions, for the work has been exceedingly discouraging, in the face of the lamentable lack of interest displayed by merchants. The situation is hard to explain, and that Woodstock is not alone, I notice from what other correspondents have to say. One would think that enough interest would be taken in an organization which exists for no other purpose than to benefit its members, to make it possible to maintain in every thriving town and city a thriving branch of the Retail Merchants' Association.

It is useless to say that there is nothing for an organization to do. There is lots that might be accomplished, if grocers would drop little petty jealousies, which we all must admit do exist, and work together, not for the extortion of the public, but for their own best interests, which in the end work out in the interests of the general public. It is possible for them to prevent little price-cutting habits, which only react on the cutter's business, and to do numerous other things which make business more pleasant and profitable.

The price of bread is a variable quantity just at present here. The bakers have no organization, and this is the result. One man sells bread at five cents for a two-pound loaf. He will deliver to any part of the city. What his object is, is not just apparent, for flour is quoted at $2.75 per hundred pounds, and there is most certainly no profit in the price at which he sells. Another sells a two-pound loaf for five cents, providing you call for it. He will not deliver. This bakery does a big business with farmers every Saturday. A third sells a pound and a half loaf for four cents, but this isn't so popular, for people have become accustomed to paying five cents for a loaf of bread, and they would rather see the size of the loaf reduced, than pay six or seven cents. This man does not deliver. Some other bakers sell pound and a half loaves for five cents, and deliver anywhere. Lastly, one venturesome dealer sells bread at five cents for a pound and a quarter loaf, and has been for a week or more. All loaves under two pounds must bear a label giving the weight. The one selling the pound and a quarter loaf said he was forced to the reduction in size by the increase in all the supplies which go to make bread, and in the expenses of running an establishment. He said there was no money in selling at any other price, and was certain that it was only a matter of a few days before all the others would have to follow in the path he made. Meanwhile, people can get almost any kind of a loaf they want for any price they want to pay.

There is a strong probability that milk will be increased in price from five to six cents a quart in the near future. Dealers say there is no money in selling at five cents, and that an increase is unavoidable.

On the whole, local grocers have enjoyed a prosperous summer and are in a position to stand any possible decrease in custom during the winter, should the tightness of the money market come to have a local effect, and reduce business, by putting less money at the disposal of householders. Fruit has been scarce in nearly all lines. Just now, there are lots of grapes procurable. There are plenty of apples in the district for home consumption, but not many will be available for export purposes.

The Shredded Wheat Biscuit Company have been giving a number of demonstrations throughout this district. The demonstrations have been taking the unusual form of banquets, in which the biscuits are served up in numerous dainty and appetizing forms, to make out a supper of several courses. The company operate under the auspices of the local church, and make everything free, with a concert of local and outside talent following the supper. The whole is, of course, an ingenious advertising scheme, and one that meets with success. It introduces to people who were previously unacquainted with the goods, a new article of diet, and shows them in what different ways it may be served, with fine results. In one place, Windfall, the affair was such a success on the first night that it was repeated on the evening following with just as big a crowd.

A suggestion is being made in some quarters that it would be advisable on the part of the city authorities to consider the establishment of a municipal abattoir, where animals would be slaughtered, after a careful inspection. Dominion inspectors are stationed at packing houses, to protect the consumers of packed goods, which are to a large extent exported. There is no inspection in most places of animals slaughtered and placed on local markets, and there is no safeguard that people are not consuming tainted meats. It is a matter which might well be taken up by the Provincial Government, to make it compulsory on municipalities to provide public abattoirs, under the direction of an efficient inspector.

The Board of Trade is commencing a campaign for the advertising of the city among prospective manufacturers, in an endeavor to cause them to locate in this city. To this end, a handsome booklet is being prepared, which will set off to advantage Woodstock's handsome public buildings and private residences, and in its reading matter, its advantages as a place in which to locate. It is a tribute to Woodstock's public-spirited citizens that the whole expense of the production is being borne by private citizens, and it will entail no expense to the Board of Trade nor to the City Council. Woodstock has been in a measure slumbering for a number of years, but people are coming to a realization of the fact that other places are going ahead, and a different spirit is already in the air, a spirit of progressiveness, which should steadily boost the population and importance of the Industrial City from this time on.

Wheat has touched the dollar mark here, but how long it will stay there is a matter for conjecture. Even at that price, not a very large quantity is being brought in to local mills, farmers apparently holding out in hopes that the price will go higher yet. However, the proprietor of Cullen's roller mills believes the price is more apt to drop. He says there is no demand for Ontario wheat by the British importers; that the price advanced with the price of Northwest wheat, for which there is a demand, and because of a certain demand by local millers.

Several new public buildings are now under way here. The corner-stone of a new $25,000 Y.M.C.A. building was laid the other day. A $20,000 Carnegie library is rapidly going up, and the roofing-in of a fine new hotel building has just commenced. At the municipal elections in January, the people will vote on a proposal to spend $60,000 on a new city hall. A project for one or two new ward schools is also in the air. Watch Woodstock grow !

PEMBROKE.

My first duty this week will be to thank Galt for his kindly welcome to The Grocer's columns, and for his friendly criticism of the ready cash system, but I still adhere to my former opinion about it. I certainly agree that at this period of the year the farmer is pretty flush with money, but what about the summer months, when he has spent his money and has little or nothing to sell except milk and eggs ? It is then that the pinch is felt and then it is he asks for credit. Certainly, I do not see why the cash system cannot be conducted, but the difficulties are great and manifold. Take, for instance, if a customer, after making several purchases, sees something that he or she takes a fancy to and on looking into her purse finds she has not sufficient to pay for it. Now, for the merchant to be consistent, he has nothing before him but to refuse the article or to offer to send it c.o.d. Most of us know that the majority of people do not possess the tempers of angels, and that in a great many cases the merchant not only runs the risk of losing the sale of the goods, but also a future customer. And then, again, there are the goods ordered by 'phone. As a merchant remarked who I was talking to on the subject, as the bell rang : "That darned thing is responsible for more credit than anything." A customer rings up with a long order to be sent right off. When the delivery man gets there the lady is out, and the maid hasn't the money. She requires some of the goods for cooking purposes; the delivery man refuses to leave the goods without the cash; consequence, another good customer gone. Now, I think that if the system the Winnipeg retail grocers have started, that giving information about doubtful payers, was taken up in every town, it would save many a bad debt and worried hour to the trader.

What miserably cold weather we are having and what a damper it has put on trade. With the streets a sea of mud and the rain pouring down, it is only a case of necessity that brings the lady shopper out, and it is surprising how tight the pocket gets when the spirits are as damp as the weather. Such has been conditions in Pembroke for the last week, and a great falling off in trade has been the result. Still, we must not grumble, for we shall be having all we know what to do with as the days draw nearer to Christmas. Most of the traders have started getting their goods in for the festive season.

With the announcement of the price of canned tomatoes the scramble has been great to secure stock, among those who had not already placed their orders. One lucky merchant managed to place an order for 35 cases at the old price and his only regret is that he did not make it double.

On the market on Saturday prices for butter and eggs took another upward jump, the former reaching 30c to 32c, with June and July packed tubs at 25c. Eggs reached 25c a dozen, being very scarce, except in one case, where, tempted by the high price, one man appeared with a large crate and was quickly surrounded with eager buyers. "Are you sure these are fresh ?" asked a lady. "Sure, ma'am, perfectly fresh," said the dealer. At the same moment one of the eggs burst with a loud report.

Potatoes took a drop of 5c a bag, and a plentiful supply of vegetables kept the price about level. The last cases of local tomatoes were brought in, as owing to frost and cold, a great quantity have been spoiled. Price per basket was 40c. Onions sold at from 90c to $1 a bushel. Carrots, turnips and beets brought 30c a pail. Fowl sold for 60c to 75c a pair, and a bumper meat market brought the prices down below the average. Hay, which is very scarce, has already reached $18 to $20 a ton, and fears are entertained that before the winter is over it may reach $25.

With the feed dear and hay at the above price, many farmers are killing off their cattle, rather than keep them, and in one district an unknown disease has carried off some scores, thus making the prospect for some of the farmers anything but pleasing.

BARRIE.

Thos. N. Hahley and family are leaving town this week for Toronto, where he has purchased a grocery stock in one of the best and oldest stands in the city. We wish him the same prosperity that has always been with him during his twelve or thirteen years of business in Barrie.

Ed. Armson has been spending the past week in Pembroke.

W. Herron, who has been conducting a small but flourishing business here, has sold out and purchased a grocery store on Major street, Toronto.

The bakers of Barrie have asked the Council to reduce the standard weight of "bakers' loaf" from two and four pounds, to one and a half and three pounds, respectively, urging in support of their application, the increased cost of raw materials manufacturing and delivering.

J. A. Janes, who manufactured cigars here a few years ago, has returned to town and opened a factory on Owen street, where he will continue to manufacture the brands which he has been making in London.

HAMILTON.

Now that the manufacturer and the jobber have arranged the price of canned goods to suit their expenses and profits, would it not be advisable for the retailer to think over what he should charge his customers? A great many retail grocers do not know what their expenses are. I am sure some of them would be shocked if they did. Nor do they know exactly what the net profit is on the goods they sell. How pleasant it would be if all the retail grocers could meet in a well-organized association and discuss this and other important trade questions, even as the canners and jobbers have done. A good association, just at this time, when all the manufacturers are making up new price lists, and, incidentally, soaking the poor grocer, would do a lot of good. Every new price that I have seen yet puts the retail man in a position to realize less profit than before. The cereal people must think the grocers are getting puffed up on their ready-cooked stuff, to judge by the arbitrary orders they give us to sell on the new prices. One firm asks us to sell a plate with a few rolled oats in a box for 25c. and pay them $2.75 a dozen for same. However, this is only one of the things that grocers should compare notes and chat about, if organized. The time is coming when protection will demand it. Why not now?

Getting back again to tomatoes at $1.27½ means that they will retail at two for a quarter—not a very large profit. The prices of peaches and strawberries are too high for ordinary people and those that buy them will likely be in a position to pay a profit. Every day something gets a boost.

J. Y. Griffin & Co., of Winnipeg, probably the largest provision merchants in Canada, have opened a branch at Saskatoon, which will now take upwards of a car of their goods weekly.

St. Catharines grocers are emphasizing cash and the short-time account system of business.

Short weight butter was detected and confiscated, on Guelph market on Saturday.

The Hamilton correspondent thinks that the time is ripe for thorough grocery organization.

I see by the newspapers that the distillers got together and elevated the price of whisky, and the paper very kindly goes on to explain that, being only some ten cents a gallon, the retailer will have to stand for it. Just a matter of $4 a barrel, and from 25c. to 50c. a case on bottles. The increased cost of living is certainly looming up large, and for the average householder the coming winter begins to look rather a tough proposition.

NEW TORONTO OFFICES.

S. H. Ewing & Sons' Toronto offices are now located at 20½ Front St. E., where larger premises have been secured. The old quarters were not large enough to accommodate the growing trade of the firm in Toronto and district.

D. J. MacLeod and R, W. Andrews have opened a grocery business in Sherbrooke, Que., under the name MacLeod & Andrews.

GROCERS' GUILD INDICTED.

Hamilton Grand Jury Brings in True Bill—Case Goes to January Assizes.

The case against the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, which has been arousing a good deal of interest in the trade for some time, was carried a step further in Hamilton on Friday, when the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against the officers of the Guild. The indictment reads as follows: "That H. C. Beckett, George E. Bristol, John I. Davidson, Thomas E. Escott, W. G. Craig, J. F. Eby, Thomas Kinnear, the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild and the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild did during the years 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, and 1905, at the city of Hamilton and elsewhere in the Province of Ontario, unlawfully conspire, combine and agree and arrange one with the other and others of them, and"—here follows a long list of firms—"to unduly limit the facilities in producing, manufacturing, supplying and dealing in sugar, tobacco, starch, canned goods, salt and cereals, being articles and commodities which are subject to trade and commerce."

They are also charged under this section with restricting trade and commerce, with limiting and lessening the manufacture, enhancing the prices and lessening competition in the commodities mentioned in the indictment.

Counsel for the defence expressed themselves as desirous of disposing of the case as soon as possible, but the Chief Justice replied that he would have no time open until January.

It would be to the interests of the trade generally to have the matter thoroughly decided as soon as possible.

OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS MEETING.

The annual meeting ot the. Ogilvie Flour Mills Company took place in Montreal last week. It was announced that net profits for the year were $630,685.57. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director, speaking of the past year, said that it had been a most successful one, and he was very optimistic for the future. The election of officers and directors resulted as follows:

Directors—C. R. Hosmer, president; F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director; Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G.; Sir H. Montagu Allan, E. S. Clouston, H. S. Holt, Shirley Ogilvie.

Officers—W. A. Black, general manager western division; S. A. McMurtry, treasurer; T. Williamson, secretary; W. A. Gandle, assistant secretary; F. H. Anson, general superintendent; Lt.-Col. A. E. Labelle, local manager; George A. Coslett, Fort William manager.

SHORTENING CREDITS IN THE WEST.

"I have letters from more than a score of retailers thanking us for going after collections hard and putting pressure on them to pay their accounts. The general stringency has forced us wholesalers to do this, and a general movement of this kind has made it necessary for the retailers to go after their own accounts and shut down on credits. As a result, scores of Western stores are now selling either absolutely or practically on a cash basis, and all have been compelled, at least, to shorten their credits. Retailers are beginning to reconize the benefit of the cash system into which the necessities of the situation have practically forced them, and I, as I said, I have letters from more than a score of Western dealers telling me that the net result of this stringency has been a good thing for them."

In the above words, a leading Winnipeg wholesaler expressed to this paper last week his opinion of the financial stringency and its effects. Every commercial traveler in Western territory has practically the same story to tell. For the last two or three years, thanks partly to the educative work of the retail associations, and the trade papers, there has been a general tendency towards shortening credits in the Western Provinces, but some pressing necessity was required to win a general victory for this movement. That pressing necessity has been supplied by the financial stringency of 1907. The banks have brought pressure to bear upon the manufacturers and wholesale houses, and the latter have been compelled to press the retailers for prompt payment. The process has been disagreeable; it has borne very heavily upon some business men, but the net result has been a benefit.

It is now possible to estimate the business situation in the West, with some degree of exactitude. Owing to the high range of prices which the farmer is getting for his grain, it is now generally conceded that the West will make as much money this year out of a small crop as it did last year out of an exceptionally large one. Some districts will suffer, but, taking the country as a whole, the situation is satisfactory. The moderate estimates published in this paper from time to time during the last three months, have been justified by the actual results, the boomster estimates of more than 115,000,000 bushels made by supposedly well-informed business papers and the crop killing reports circulated by the knockers, pessimists and wheat market bulls, having proved alike erroneous. The West is all right for another year, and, with retail business forced to a cash or monthly payment system, the prosperity of the country now rests upon a secure and stable basis.

THE FLOUR SITUATION.

Since the end of August the flour market has been steadily advancing, just why, a good many do not altogether understand. There have been six advances to the time of writing, the first an advance of 25c, then an advance of 15c, with four raises of 20c each. At the beginning of September, flour ruled, for the two best grades, $5.10 and $4.50 a barrel; now the ruling figures are $6.30 and $5.70, showing an advance of $1.20 per barrel.

A year ago, towards the end of August, the prices for the two best grades were $4.70 and $4.20, which figures had been ruling for some time. During the last days of August there was a decline of 20c, and for three weeks prices ruled steady until there was another drop of 10c. In early October, however, prices recovered 10c, and, later, another 10c, and a year ago to-day ruling prices were $4.60 and $4.10, showing an increase since that date of $1.70 and $1.60 per barrel.

In some quarters there has been a feeling that the high prices ruling are not justified by the existing conditions, but this is hardly the case. In the first place, wheat has been exceedingly firm, and there have been large advances. At the beginning of October, 1906, No. 1 northern wheat, Fort William, brought 74½c, against $1.11½ on the same date this year. By comparison, it will be found that the advance in flour has not been out of proportion to the advance in wheat, but that rather there is scope for still further rises in flour before the proportion will be equal.

Millers, the larger ones, at least, have stored in their elevators grain purchased at lower prices than those which have ruled recently, and they have been able to manufacture at a profit without putting up the price of flour in proportion to the increase in wheat values. The advances in flour have been made because present stocks of grain will not last forever. The millers have a natural desire to take their profit when they can get it—and there is no profit in buying wheat at to-day's prices and selling the flour manufactured from it at any lower figures than rule to-day. Consequently, they are making a larger profit than usual on flour made from grain purchased months back, in anticipation of an almost certain loss when the flour made from grain purchased at present values, comes to be marketed.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT.

The Canadian public generally will be somewhat reassured, after the recent discussion regarding some of the Ontario canning factories, by the report of Dr. R. W. Bell, Provincial Health Inspector, who has just returned from an inspection of twenty-four factories in the western Ontario counties. His report regarding these is, on the whole, satisfactory, and indicates that where difficulties in securing labor are not overwhelming, there is no trouble in keeping factory conditions up to the desirable standard.

FINE THANKSGIVING TURKEYS

What cheering news ! We are to have fine, fat, juicy and tender turkeys for this year's Thanksgiving. How much satisfaction this will bring to the hungry householder, who looks forward to a joyful family reunion around the browned carcass of a stuffed gobbler, and to the grocer who delights to see his customer walk off with an eighteen-pound foundation for the feast under his arm !

Last year, it will be remembered, Thanksgiving arrived two weeks earlier than usual, and as a result the farmers were not able to bring their prize birds up to a condition satisfactory for the great day. This year, with two weeks more of stuffing and strutting, the gobblers ought to be in the pink of condition. Reports confirm this prognostication, and it seems certain that the quality of 1907's Thanksgiving dinner will be well provided for.

As to the supply, reports are not so reassuring. Our correspondents in the western counties are optimistic over the turkey "crop," and say that farmers there are preparing for a big harvest. City poultry dealers, however, say that their reports are not so bright, and that the supply will not be at all abundant. There have been practically no turkeys in the market as yet, and the price is almost prohibitive, but with the opening of the turkey season the supply is beginning to increase and prices will probably drop to some extent.

A NEGLECTED ASSET.

Is your store a cheerful one ? Is it bright and clean and attractive enough, and are your clerks and yourself full enough of the kind of cheerfulness that will bring a man up out of the dumps when he drops in to order a few little things on his way to the office ? That's what it should be.

Cheerfulness is an asset not usually considered in connection with the selling of groceries, and yet one whose importance cannot be underestimated.

Think for a moment what traveler you like best, and I'll wager you the profits of a Saturday morning's business his house gets your biggest orders. Isn't this because he always greets you with a cheery smile—no matter how wet the day is, or what kind of a bed he slept in at the small hotel in your town the night before ? And isn't he always the same to you whether he loads you up with half a car of stuff or only sells a few pounds of this or that ?

Now don't you suppose this thing works out the same way with your customers ? It isn't only politeness or quick service. A clerk could be polite and yet make your customer feel as though she had been in the icebox. It's real "No. 1 hard" heartfelt cheerfulness that ought to be prevalent all the time in your grocery. If your store hasn't got it, import a small shipment on trial, and see how the investment works out.

Even if that last case of Valencias went bad, or the rats got at your new table figs, don't stay grumpy and thus spoil the sale of other goods. Cheer up and make a joke out of it, and you'll sell enough extra to make up for the loss. God made us to be cheerful. You never saw a sunflower look grumpy in your life, even if it was dripping with rain.

START CHRISTMAS SELLING EARLIER.

The Christmas season tries the facilities of most stores very severely, and the great majority of merchants feel that if they could extend the holiday rush over a little longer period they would do a good deal larger business, and handle it with much more satisfaction to their customers, and, consequently, to themselves. It can be done. In most cases active selling does not commence until the first week in December, or later, and the congestion of trade that follows is well known to everyone. Is there any good reason why you could not attract brisk buying the last week in November? Numbers of other retailers have done so, and you can, too. The Christmas spirit will have permeated the atmosphere by that time, and it rests with you to stir it up. Advertising and display are the chief mediums through which this may be accomplished. Devote your newspaper space to Christmas goods, and emphasize the advantage of buying early, when selections can be made more comfortably and while assortments are unbroken. Make the windows and interior co-operate with the ads. If you can evolve some idea to interest the children in your store it will help very materially.

It is not too early to think of the Christmas trade. Lay your plans now and resolve that your facilities shall be much better this year than ever before.

AN IMPORTANT DETAIL.

A reader of this paper draws attention to the carelessness with which many business houses handle firm names. For some weeks the reader has been watching his mail and has been surprised at the number of times his name has been misspelled. The evil, he says, is far greater amongst his Canadian correspondents than amongst writers in the United States, more attention being paid to the proper spelling of firm names across the line.

Jobbing houses are, he says, amongst the greatest offenders, one house with which he has been dealing for over 30 years persisting in spelling his name "Johnston," although all his printed matter reads "Johnson." "If I signed my cheques and drafts as carelessly as these business houses write their addresses," writes our correspondent, "it would be necessary for them to hunt around for some one who would pay the accounts."

The points are well taken. It is undoubtedly annoying to receive nine out of ten letters with the address wrongly spelled. Many of the errors are made, probably, in dictating letters to stenographers, but the instance given by the correspondent of a firm continuing to address a customer wrongly after thirty years' business connection shows gross carelessness, as hundreds of letters must have been received containing letterheads, etc., on which the customer's name was correctly spelled.

Most men are particular about the spelling of their names and all merchants and employes of business houses should take particular care to make no mistake when addressing customers in correspondence or in personal conversation.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—New prices.
Beans—Higher.
Flour—Advanced.
Fish—Revised.
Dairy Produce—Advanced.
Rolled Oats—Advanced.

Montreal, October 17, 1907.

Brisk fall trade is reported by most dealers, but the general trouble lies in the scarcity of money, which is seriously hampering collections.

Canned goods are about the feature of the past week's business. New prices are out on several lines, including tomatoes and corn. Figures quoted are considerably above last year's prices, as it was expected they would be. The advance in pear and peach prices is quite large. Teas are scarcer than they have been for months. Every dealer is looking for different varieties, but supplies available seem to be not far from nil. Prices are extremely firm. Cereals continue to advance. This week rolled oats and flour are higher. For the best flour $6.30 a barrel must be paid to-day. The advance in rolled oats during the past month has been something abnormal. The first direct steamer from the Mediterranean, the Bellona, has arrived in Montreal, and raisins and currants are now being distributed. Nuts are firm and dairy lines are again higher.

SUGAR.—A good consumptive demand for sugar continues; in fact, there is some improvement noticed in the call for this article. Prices remain very steady, with no prospect of a change at present.

TEA—Teas of every description continue extremely scarce. London offerings of various lines are made, especially in blacks, and dealers buying are able to obtain perhaps one lot in ten bid upon. China Young Hysons are higher and supplies available in China lower grades are very small. Interest locally, however, centres chiefly in blacks, which appear to be scarce in every part of Canada. London is also in short supply, despite the fact that 4,000,000 lbs. of tea more than last year were shipped to England from India.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS.—An easier feeling is noticeable in the primary market for currants this week, due to the fact that the second direct steamer, the Jacona, has left Patras. The Bellona, the first direct boat, has arrived in Montreal with her cargo, and the goods are now being distributed. Valencia raisins are firm, while Californias are also strong. Prunes are unchanged. Walnuts have been advanced ½c and 11c to 13c are now the ruling prices. There has been a slight decline in Tarragona almonds, which are selling from 12½c to 13c. Valencia shelled almonds are quoted from 31c to 33c, a drop of 2c. Brazil nuts have been advanced ½c, ruling quotations being 17c to 18c. Citron peel is exceedingly firm at the high prices ruling to-day, 16½c to 17½c.

It is now possible to estimate with some degree of accuracy the business situation as it is likely to be found during the next year. The crop is smaller than last year and a few districts will feel a touch of hard times, but taking into consideration the high range of prices now being paid for grain, it is conceded even by the pessimists that the western country as a whole has no real reason to complain. There is, accordingly, a more confident feeling among all branches of the trade and, while credits are shortened and collections are sharply looked after, business is showing a marked revival.

Salt is advancing, and owing to the rising prices of grain, breakfast cereals are also going up rapidly. Evaporated apples are opening at high prices, and it is likely that there will be further advances, as at present prices they are being handled without profit. Salmon is higher and supplies in Winnipeg are short.

CANNED GOODS—Buying is light, owing to the extremely high prices this fall, and the retail trade do not yet understand just what is the wisest policy to pursue. Apparently profits in canned goods will be light this year, as it is very difficult for the retailers to get the prices warranted, and, in fact, made necessary by the big advances announced by the canners. Salmon is higher this week and supplies are light. Orders cannot be filled in full. The same condition obtains in the canned fruit and vegetable market. Prices are abnormally high and the goods cannot be obtained even at the prices asked.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The prices quoted to the trade at present are from 9¼ to 10¼c per lb. It is not likely, however, that these low prices can be very long maintained. The lower price quoted is for California fruit, the higher for Ontario. The Ontario evaporators are quoting the wholesale houses about 9c f.o.b. Ontario stations, and it is expected that there will be an advance on these prices. Under the circumstances an early advance by the Winnipeg wholesale houses may be expected.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—New prices out.
Sugar—Steady and unchanged.
Flour—Advanced.
Teas—½d. advance.
Fish—Revised.

Toronto, Oct. 18, 1907.

Canned goods are again the feature of the wholesale grocery markets, new prices having been given out within the week by the Canadian Canners. Almost without exception these prices are higher than those of last year's pack. Cherries are unaltered, and neither corn nor tomatoes are as high as was generally anticipated, but most other lines show a very stiff advance over last year's prices. Deliveries on pears will likely be almost 100 per cent., on peaches 60 per cent., on corn 85 per cent., and on tomatoes 70 per cent. On plums orders will probably be delivered in full.

As noted in our last issue, the London market advanced ½d. on India and Ceylon teas. This applies only to the cheap grades, ranging from about 10d. per pound, down. The advance has come at a most inopportune moment, curtailing, as it has, even the small amount of business that was being done in these lines previous to the raise. Stocks of tea held here are practically nil. The bean crop is said to have been badly affected by rains and frost, and apparently not more than half the crop has yet been pulled.

Business generally is reported satisfactory, some houses claiming that their total business so far this month is greater than the amount registered on their books for the same period in September. Collections are fair in the city, but a little slow from country points.

SUGAR—A moderate consumptive demand is reported for refined, but nothing to warrant special comment. Prices continue unchanged, as they have done for an unusually long period. There is no feature in the refined market to indicate in which direction they are tending, and the majority of the trade do not expect any change at present. The New York market has been firm and steady, with indications pointing to a fairly large distribution for October.

Willett & Gray say of the raw situation:

"There has been no change in quotations for centrifugals during the week.

"European markets made narrow fluctuations for beet sugar downwards, closing at lowest point of 9s. 8½d. on a dull market, influenced by favorable weather crop conditions as cabled by Mr. Licht. The influence of the weather in the United States on the domestic cane and beet crops has not been as favorable in some sections for high results and possibly somewhat less Louisiana and domestic beet sugars will be made than anticipated.

"Weather reports from Cuba indicate a decided lack of the necessary rains to produce satisfactory crop results, and definite advices begin to come to hand of special difficulties on many estates. Cane in the fields of some centrals is being sold to other centrals for economy sake. This assures the grinding of all cane in the fields, notwithstanding the fact that a less number of centrals will work during this season. The visible supply of sugar in the world at last available dates is 61,912 tons less than last year.

"Beet contracts for May delivery are again below 10s., at 9s. 11½d., and might possibly go to 9s. 7½d. eventually, and temporarily, at which the outlook ahead gives fair promise of profits on purchases made without special risk of further important decline."

COFFEE—The world's visible supply in bags was 16,712,582 on Oct. 1, compared with 16,004,313 on Sept. 1, 1907, and 12,153,621 on Oct. 1 last year. Stocks of all kinds in the United States were 3,863,414 bags on Oct. 1; 3,862,690 on Sept. 1, 1907, and 3,334,348 on Oct. 1, 1906. The local situation is quiet and unchanged. Willett & Gray say :

"In the past few days there were somewhat larger receipts at Santos, but this, according to reports from Brazil, is due to the announcement that increased freight rates on the railroads in San Paulo will go into effect November 1st. But even under this impetus the crop movement so far is considerably below that of two years ago, and as stated before in this column, receipts seldom show a decrease in October. Therefore, so far as receipts themselves furnish indications of the size of the crop the total outturn this season should not be larger than the small crops of 1903 to 1905, or an average of about ten millions. An important item concerning the present crop is the fact that the large well-kept plantations have given such a small yield. The important "Schmidt" plantations in San Paulo gave last year 201,000 bags, while this year, with the harvest entirely finished, the result is less than one-fourth of it. Other planters' experiences are some better and some poorer. Reports are received from several plantations of a yield of only 10 per cent. of last year, other as much as 40 per cent., but the average is considerably below one-third, and the outturn of the Schmidt plantations being under one-quarter of last year's crop, ought to indicate a fair average of all the others. It has been stated repeatedly that the real cause pf the 'freak' crop was the high percentage of yield per tree, and coming freely from the old trees, not from a large number of young trees bearing fruit for the first time. Reports show that the absence of flowering is because the trees and soil are exhausted and these facts are the basis for the belief that there will be several small crops following the extraordinary yield of last year. The law of 1902 prohibiting the laying out of new plantations is still in force, so the only new trees to come into bearing are those planted by careful managers to replace old trees.

"Many minds find it difficult to understand why the Santos production for three successive crops should average about 7,000,000 bags and be followed by one of 17,000,000 bags and then again a small crop of five to six millions, but the fact is it was a veritable 'freak' crop last year, which is not likely to occur again for a number of years, if ever.

"While the trade continues to buy only in keeping with its daily wants, the distribution is satisfactory, as European and American deliveries for the first three months of the season were 500,000 bags larger than the same time last year."

TEA—The advance of ½d on the London market, registered last week, has had the effect of putting a check on business for the time being. The advance is applicable only to Indian and Ceylon teas worth 10d and 8d a pound, and under, and has not been placed on any of the higher grades. The impression among the trade has been for some time that tea prices were as high as they were likely to go, but most of these optimists are now prophesying a further advance before many weeks. This market is practically bare of stocks of all grades, and no immediate relief seems to be in sight. Mail advices from London, under date of October 3rd, say:

"Although no complete news of Indian outturns during September is yet to hand, favorable weather for the most part seems to have been experienced, especially in Assam, and at present it looks as if the total crop secured would show a small increase on 1906. Meanwhile, mail advices confirm previous cables of exceptionally heavy direct shipments from Calcutta to outside markets, so that the quantity available for the United Kingdom should be rather less than last year. This probability has conduced to the activity prevailing this week, the keenness of the demand up to 7d, resulting in ¼d per pound advance in most instances.

"A further increase of 500,000 pounds took place in China imports during September, the clearances for the four months ending 30th ult. being six and three-quarter millions, against five and a half millions in 1906. Ceylon receipts, in contrast to Indian, were again heavier but deliveries showed no improvement, and stocks of this growth are now two and three-quarter millions more than a year ago. According to London figures, clearances of all kinds last month marked a decline of one and three-quarter millions on 1906, but the Board of Trade returns will probably indicate a less heavy falling off, owing to the rather larger quantity now being shipped to home ports other than London."

The offerings at London public auctions during September were 175,000 packages, as compared with 168,000 packages in the same month of 1906.

"Although there were a few good teas from Darjeeling, and from Assam," says a report, "which realized highly satisfactory prices, the general run of quality was not so good as at the corresponding period of the last two seasons. There was, however, some recovery in the prices of the better, medium and fine grades. Commonest were irregular but stronger at the close of September. Dusts and fannings were in strong demand at high prices; owing to Russian requirements in Calcutta for brick tea purposes, the percentage of those grades coming on the London market is now greatly reduced."

DRIED FRUITS—Currants are very firm. It was expected that the September market would be strong, owing to the heavy forward sales, but no one could have anticipated the enormous demand which has prevailed and has put up prices about 3s. since the opening of the season. And this, with a crop of generally indifferent quality, and fully sufficient for all consumptive requirements.

Valencia raisins are firm and unchanged. There is a strong market for Sultanas, and cable advices received Wednesday stated that prices have advanced.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—New prices for several lines are out this week. Corn is selling at 97½c and 95c, which is only 5c above prices which have ruled for some time past. Gallon corn has been advanced from $4.65 to $4.90. Tomatoes are $1.07½ and $1.05, against $1 and 97½c. Carrots, cabbage, cauliflower and parsnips are quoted at the old figures, as also are pumpkins. In fruits, apples, blueberries, pears and peaches are above last year's figures considerably. Especially does this apply to peaches and pears, which are away up. Grapes are quoted this year $1.52½ and $1.50, for 2's preserved. In the trade the figures given out are regarded as very high, but they did not surprise, as they were expected. Reports of the shortage are contradictory, some giving figures which are extreme. Canned lobsters are higher, in fact, are becoming quite a luxury. To-day ½-lb. flats are quoted $2.40 to $2.50 dozen; 1-lb. flats are $4.75 to $4.85, while 1-lb. talls are quoted $4.10 to $4.20.

TORONTO—New prices are out at last. Their general trend may be summed up as follows: Red and black cherries currants, gooseberries, pineapples, plums (all lines), rhubarb and raspberries, remain the same in price.

There has been no advance in any vegetables, except on corn, turnips, succotash and tomatoes.

The advance on peaches, pears and apples has been heavy.

Many of the prices are a surprise to the wholesaler. Corn and tomatoes were expected to be considerably higher than is actually the case, while many of those lines on which there has been no advance, were expected to be higher than last year's prices. Probable deliveries by the Canadian Canners will be: Pears, full; peaches, 60 per cent.; plums, full; corn, 85 per cent., and tomatoes, 70 per cent.

A TIME-SAVER.

They have a unique way of price-cutting in a big Dundas street butcher shop in London, Ont. Whole carcasses are displayed in the windows, with price tickets on the various parts, so that a buyer making a purchase, knows how much he has to pay per pound. The scheme saves a lot of questions and expedites sales.

The business of John Bowsher, baker, of Bradford, is advertised for sale.

COCOA AND CHOCOLATE GO UP.

Enormous Advance Recently Due to Scarcity of Cocoa Bean and Heavy Demand.

The advance in cocoa and chocolate, prophesied last week, has come with a vengeance. While nothing definite has been quoted, locally, it is likely that the recent advance will be from forty to fifty per cent. This, added to previous advances during the year, will amount to an appreciation of from 100 to 125 per cent. on the price of the cocoa bean during the last twelve months. These advances seem attributable, principally, to scarcity of the bean, though the enormous increase in the consumption of chocolate products must be a considerable factor in the result.

Importers and manufacturers were the first to notice the stringency in the cocoa bean market, but the retailers will feel the advance immediately, and it will also reflect on the general public. Both sweet and milk chocolate, and also confectionery, which includes the product, will be affected.

Members of the trade state that the advances will probably continue for several years, at least, and that there is a possibility of still higher prices.

TRADE NOTES.

Sauer Bros., grocers, of Buchanan, Man., have sold out.

T. H. Carey, grocer, of Chaplin, Man., is closing up business.

MEAT AND CANNED FOODS ACT

This Act Applies Only to Houses Doing a Business Outside Their Own Province or With Foreign Countries—It is Not Inter-Provincial in Character.

A number of our subscribers have written us, requesting a copy of the new Meat and Canned Foods Act, which was passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament. Finding it impossible to obtain a sufficient number of copies from Ottawa, we have reproduced the act in full here, and trust that it will be studied by all foreign houses, as well as by all those within the Dominion itself.

The following regulations do not, as so many people erroneously suppose, apply to any establishment within the meaning of the act in which the sole products prepared for food for export, or stored for export, are fish, fruit or vegetables :

1. All animals intended for slaughter for export in any establishment shall be inspected as provided by the regulations.

2. No animal shall be allowed to enter the parts of an establishment where slaughtering is carried on, unless it has undergone such inspection and been found to be healthy and fit for food.

3. Every animal affected, or suspected of being affected, with contagious or other disease, shall be slaughtered under the supervision of the inspector and be disposed of as provided by the regulations.

4. All carcasses and portions thereof of all animals, wherever slaughtered, intended for export, shall be inspected as provided by the regulations.

5. Unless the Minister otherwise directs, upon the report of an inspector, animals owned by farmers and slaughtered by them on their own premises, and animals slaughtered by retail butchers on their own premises, shall not be subject to inspection under the provisions of this Act.

6. Every carcass, or portion thereof, found to be healthy and fit for food, shall be marked by the inspector in such manner as is provided by the regulations ; and the carcass, or portion thereof, may then be dealt with as the owner thereof sees fit, subject to the further supervision of the inspector.

7. Every carcass or portion or product thereof prepared for food in any establishment and packed in cans or similar receptacles, or in any package whatever, shall be subject to inspection during the whole course of preparation and packing ; and after all the requirements of this Act regarding inspection have been complied with, and not until then, all such packages shall be marked by the inspector in such manner as is provided by the regulations.

8. The inspector may at any time reinspect a carcass, or any portion or product thereof, in order to ascertain whether, subsequently to the first inspection thereof, it has undergone decomposition, or has otherwise deteriorated, or has been tampered with or adulterated by the use of preservatives or otherwise.

2. Every carcass, or portion or product thereof, sent out of an establishment, and returned thereto for any purpose, shall not be again sent out therefrom without re-inspection.

9. Every carcass, or portion or product thereof, found, upon inspection or re-inspection, to be unhealthy or unfit for food, or which contains such ingredients or preservatives as may render it unfit for food, shall be marked by the inspector in such manner as is provided by the regulations, and shall thereupon be deemed to be condemned as unfit for food and shall be disposed of as provided by the regulations.

10. Any person slaughtering, or permitting the slaughtering of, animals and selling, or offering for sale or transportation, for export a carcass, or any portion or product thereof, which is unhealthy or unfit for food is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment.

2. Every one who is convicted of this offence after a previous conviction for the same crime shall be liable to two years' imprisonment.

11. The provisions of sections 3 and 4, and of sections 6 to 10, both included, shall apply to such establishments only as are from time to time designated by order-in-council.

12. All articles prepared for food in any establishment and packed in cans or similar receptacles, or in any package whatever, shall be subject to inspection during the whole course of preparation and packing ; and all such packages shall be marked with—

(a) the initials of the Christian names, the full surname, and the address, or, in the case of a firm or corporation, the firm or corporate name and address, of the packer ;

(b) a true and correct description of the contents of the package :

Provided, however, that if it be established to the satisfaction of the Governor-in-Council that such marking would hinder the sale of any of said articles in the British or foreign markets, he may exempt such articles from the provisions of this section.

13. All fish, fruit, or vegetables used in any establishment where these articles are prepared for export, shall be sound, wholesome, and fit for food ; and any such articles or products thereof found in the said establishment unsound or unwholesome shall be confiscated and destroyed as provided by the regulations.

14. An inspection and close supervision of the sanitary conditions of any establishments shall be maintained as provided by the regulations.

2. The inspector shall refuse to inspect or mark articles in any establishment where the sanitary conditions are not in accordance with the regulations.

15. In the event of the provisions of this Act, or any regulations, or the lawful instruction of an inspector not being complied Rith in any establishment, the Minister may withdraw the inspector therefrom, and may refuse to it the inspection, marking and certification of the articles prepared therein, and may cause the establishment to be closed.

16. No person shall offer or accept for export, or shall export any articles subject to inspection under this Act, unless its requirements regarding inspection and marking have been complied with in respect to such articles.

2. No clearance shall be granted to any vessel carrying any carcasses, or any portions of products thereof, unless they are duly marked in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

3. The provisions of this section shall not apply to meats intended for consumption on board the vessels by which they are shipped from a Canadian port.

4. At the request of the owner of any establishment, the inspector in charge thereof shall issue certificates of inspection for any carcasses or portions or products thereof intended for export. Such certificates shall be in such form as is provided by the regulations.

5. Notwithstanding anything in this section, the Governor-in-Council may, whenever it is deemed necessary or advisable to do so, authorize the export of any such articles without inspection

17. No article subject to inspection under this Act shall be offered or sold for export, or exported, under any name intended or calculated to deceive as to its true nature.

2. No package containing any article subject to inspection under this Act shall be marked with any label, brand or mark which falsely represents the quantity or weight or contents of such package.

3. No package containing any article subject to inspection under this Act shall be marked with any label, brand or mark which falsely represents the date when the articles or goods contained therein were marked.

18. Every person who, not being an inspector, wilfully alters, effaces, or obliterates, or causes to be altered, effaced or obliterated, wholly or partially, any mark on any article which has undergone inspection, shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars.

19. The Minister may appoint inspectors and other officers for the carrying out of the provisions of this Act, but such appointments shall be confirmed by the Governor-in-Council within thirty days of the date thereof.

2. No person shall be appointed as a veterinary inspector until he has passed such examination as is deemed necessary by the Governor-in-Council.

20. The Governor-in-Council may make such orders and regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, as to him seem necessary for the carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

2. Such orders and regulations shall have the same force and effect as if embodied in this Act.

3. Every such order or regulation shall be published twice in The Canada Gazette.

4. Any such order or regulation may be proved by the production of a copy thereof certified by the Minister; and such order or regulation shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been duly made and issued on the date thereof.

21. The certificate of the inspector or other officer appointed under the provisions of this Act shall, for the purpose of this Act, be prima facie evidence in all courts of justice and elsewhere of the matter certified.

22. Any inspector or other officer appointed under the provisions of this Act may, at any time, for the purpose of carrying into effect any of the provisions of this Act, enter any place or premises, or any steamship, vessel or boat, or any carriage, car, truck, horse-box or other vehicle used for the carriage of articles subject to the provisions of this Act, but shall, if required, state in writing the grounds on which he has so entered.

23. Every person who refuses to admit, or who obstructs or impedes, an inspector or other officer acting in execution of this Act, or of any order or regulation made by the Governor-in-Council or the Minister thereunder; and every person who aids and assists him therein, shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars; and the inspector or other officer may apprehend the offender and take him forthwith before a justice of the peace to be dealt with according to law; but no person so apprehended shall be detained in custody, without the order of the justice, longer than twenty-four hours.

24. Every person who moves, or causes or allows to be moved, any animal, or any article in violation of the provisions of this Act, shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars.

25. The provisions of the Criminal Code respecting the bribery and corruption of officials or employes of the Government extend to all inspectors and other persons appointed to carry out the provisions of this Act.

26. Every person who violates any provision of this Act, or of any regulation made by the Governor-in-Council or by the Minister under the authority of this Act, in respect to which no penalty is hereinbefore provided, shall for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars.

27. Any inspector or constable may, without warrant, apprehend any person found committing an offence against the provisions of this Act, and shall take any person so apprehended forthwith before a justice of the peace to be examined and dealt with according to law: but a person so apprehended shall not be detained in custody, without the order of a justice, longer than twenty-four hours; and any inspector or constable may require that any animal or any article moved in violation of the provisions of this Act be forthwith taken back within the limits of the place whence it was moved, and may enforce and execute such requisition at the expense of the owner of such animal or article.

28. Every offence against this Act, or against any order or regulation of the Governor-in-Council or of the Minister, shall, for the purposes of proceedings under this Act, or of any such order or regulation, be deemed to have been committed, and every cause of complaint under this Act, or any such order or regulation, shall be deemed to have arisen, either in the place in which it actually was committed or arose, or in any place in which the person charged or complained against happens to be.

29. Every penalty imposed by this Act shall be recoverable, with costs, before any two justices of the peace, or any magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace, under Part XVI. of the Criminal Code.

30. The administration of any part of this Act may be assigned by the Governor-in-Council to any Minister other that the Minister of Agriculture, and in such case the Minister to whom such assignment is made shall have the same powers with respect to the part of this Act to him assigned as the Minister of Agriculture now has.

31. The Governor-in-Council may suspend the operation of any of the sections of this Act until the first day of January next.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Cheese continues very strong, though there have not been any startling price changes during the week. The feeling everywhere seems to be quite firm, and quotations are looked upon as likely to be higher at any time.

Finest Ontarios are selling this week at about the same figure as was quoted a week ago. To-day, 13⅜c. will be accepted for this grade. Townships are selling about 13½c., while for Quebecs holders are receiving 13⅛c. These figures are considered very good buying prices, as there will likely be an advance in the near future. The make during October has not been particularly large, but then it never attains great proportions.

New Zealand butter is freely talked of in the trade. It is said, indeed, that one or two local houses have lots on the water now, due here shortly. If they have, it is likely store butter, as it is too early for this fall's make of New Zealand butter. To make anything on this line, the importers would have to be in a position to sell around 28c. or 29c. To-day's quotations offer a range of 28c. to 28¼c., but the latter figure is not easy to secure.

Dairy continues extremely scarce, and dealers are asking 24c. to 25c. for what they have to offer. Receipts last week were 8,014 packages, against 10,178 packages same week a year ago. Total receipts since May 1 this year amount to 344,899 packages, compared with 534,648 packages same period 1906.

Exports last week amounted to but 973 packages, which is quite a lot, however, when compared with exports for the preceding week, when 33 packages were shipped. Same week last year 7,202 packages were shipped. Since May 1 this season, 66,761 packages have been exported, while during the same period in 1906, 346,393 packages were shipped.

W. H. Halford, Montreal agent for the St. Charles Condensing Company, paid a visit to the factory in St. Charles, Ill., last week, and dropped in upon The Canadian Grocer upon his way back.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The returns of the Department of Trade and Commerce for July, just issued, give some instructive comparative figures of Canada's exports of hams and bacon to Great Britain. In July, 1906, the exports of this character were of the value of $953,784. In July of this year, they amounted only to $742,238. For the first four months in 1905, the exports to Great Britain were of the value of $4,151,118 ; for a similar period in 1906, they were worth $3,919,130, a decrease of $231,988. For the first four months of 1907 they amounted to $2,552,687, a decline of well over a million and a quarter dollars from 1906, and more than one and a half millions less than the value of the exports for the first four months in 1905.

These figures mirror with a fair degress of accuracy the decline of interest taken by the Canadian farmer in the hog-raising business. It is a regrettable fact, but one whose truth is not lessened by repetition, that the average farmer in this country looks upon his hogs as a mere by-product, so to speak, of the farm, and takes a proportionate degree of interest in their welfare. The Danes are ahead of us in every point in the game, and with absolutely no valid reason. Canadian bacon can maintain its quality with that produced by any other country in the world, but none the less, Danish bacon is given the preference in the English market, simply because the Danes have made the business a science and have forced the great consuming market to recognize Danish quality as the standard by which other brands may be compared. The respective positions occupied by Denmark and Canada as purveyors to the English market, could be reversed without any fear of Canada being unable to hold up her end with credit. So desirable a consummation, however, can only be brought about by a general revival movement among the farmers, stimulating their interest in the business of which Canadians have every reason to be proud.

Some of the packers are paying a little more for live hogs this week. Average prices are $5.90 to $6.10, f.o.b. ; $6.25, fed and watered, and $6.50, loaded on cars. Receipts at Canadian points have been light, the high price of feed retarding deliveries, but at prices quoted, the packers report receipts satisfactory.

Heavy deliveries from Denmark are the feature of a situation that is tantalizing in the extreme. A slight improvement in the Old Country market has induced a somewhat more hopeful feeling among the packers on this side, but it has not been sufficient to allow them to do more than return thanks sparingly. 57s is now about the average quotation on bacon in the English market, this being 1s better than last week. This advance, however, is not sufficient to allow Canadian packers to market their products at a profit

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Lard is higher this week, as will be seen in quotations. The market is quite firm at the advanced figures. Pork is firmer in feeling, though prices have not been advanced. Smoked meats are selling fairly well.

BUTTER—Butter is very firm, and prices have again advanced, and receipts are very light. This latter condition is attributed by some to the bad condition of the roads, caused by heavy rains, which interfere with the proper delivery of milk to the creameries. Dairy butter is very scarce on spot, and prices for it are firm. There is some talk of bringing in New Zealand butter; in fact, it is said that one or two houses have already imported some. The local market would have to rule between 28c and 29c to cover the cost of bringing this butter into Canada.

PROVISIONS.—The market is considerably quieter this week with a slight decrease in prices in one or two lines. Bacons, for instance, are down from a quarter to half a cent, and backs, which have been exceedingly scarce for a couple of weeks, have also dropped half a cent under more plentiful supply. Lard, on the other hand, is even firmer than it was a week ago. Fresh meats remain unchanged, under a quiet demand.

BUTTER.—The market is firm, though the supply is slightly larger than last week. With butter at such top-notch prices, people are becoming more economical, the dealers say, and are not using so much butter. This, of course, immediately reflects on sales. Prices are unchanged.

POULTRY.—The poultry market has fluctuated very widely this year. Last week it was overloaded. This week there is anything but a large supply. Coupled with this, the fact that the quality of fowl is very poor, has complicated things somewhat. Farmers do not seem to have yet learned that they cannot readily dispose of poor quality fowl. Turkeys are an exception, for those which have been received are particularly good, much better, in fact, than were procurable last year. Prices are unchanged.

BREAD IN THE MAKING

Description of the Processes, Methods and Machinery Employed in an Up-to-date Factory.

Grocers who hand out bread over the counter, scores of loaves of it weekly, and who weigh out pounds of standard and fancy biscuits in a similar period of time, scarcely ever give a thought to the way in which these goods are turned out or the processes which are gone through in the making. To these and to the trade generally, a description of the methods of a modern bread and biscuit factory should be of particular interest.

A few evenings ago, at a few minutes before midnight, a representative of The Grocer walked up Soho Street to the bread and biscuit factory of George Weston, Toronto's "Model Bakery." Bread, it should be known, is made only at night, so that it may be delivered to the customer with the maximum of freshness in the morning.

Outside, excepting the midnight hum of the city, everything was quiet. Inside, matters were much different. A walk through parts of the factory to get at the origin of things revealed busy bread-makers, in white suits, rushing here and there, cavernous mouths of numerous ovens belching forth heat waves, and racks of shining, newly-browned loaves, enough, it seemed, to feed three or four Torontos. When it is known that the regular nightly output of this establishment is from fifteen to twenty thousand loaves, with an increase of five thousand or so on Friday night, it will be seen that a quantity of bread which would naturally astonish a layman may be viewed here any night around 12 o'clock.

The First Process.

In this establishment the process of bread-making, proper, begins on the second story. On a large platform at one end quite a respectable mountain of flour in bags was built up. In front of this were two huge dough-mixers, into which the flour is dumped, and the other ingredients, yeast, sugar, salt, etc., in a much less quantity, of course, are added. It may be interesting to the uninitiated to know that, roughly speaking, the proportion of yeast to flour is about one pound to a barrel. Different varieties of bread, of course, require somewhat different ingredients, and for the fruit bread, for instance, currants, raisins, and other tasty stuff of the kind that small boys love, are added in profusion.

These mixers do all the stirring and kneading much more thoroughly and in shorter time than could be done by any number of human hands. When it is understood also that an average of 800 barrels of flour per week is made into dough in these mixers, it will be seen just how much they have to do.

The "Rising" Process.

From the mixers the dough is dumped into immense shallow wooden tubs, the prototypes of the pans our grandmothers used to use, to rise. They are on wheels, so that they may be readily moved about, and at the hour the writer made his visit the greater part of the floor-space in this department was occupied by row after row of these gigantic tubs.

Not all the material, however, goes directly into these tubs. The dough for one or two varieties of bread which are of finer texture than the ordinary, is previously run through what is called a "breaking" machine, which, being supplied with a series of steel rollers, rolls all the air, "all the life," as the bakers say, out of the dough, and provides for a silky sort of texture in the bread substance.

The dough is left in the tubs for from five to seven hours for the "rising" process and it is here, of course, that the yeast gets in its fine work, the chemical action producing a surprising change both in the appearance and nature of the dough. This is the biggest step in the evolution of the loaf.

When the "rising" process is complete, one of the tubs is wheeled alongside a chute leading to the lower story, and the dough is cut up into huge chunks with wooden paddles and is tossed, just as a small boy would throw a cushion across a room, into the chute and so down below. It's really astonishing to see the way this light dough is handled, but the scrupulous cleanliness of everything—floors, tubs, tools, and not least, employes' hands and clothing—takes away any suggestion of indelicacy.

"Scaling" and "Moulding."

The dough is shot down to the floor below and falls directly into a "scaling" machine, which, by the way, is very interesting to watch. At the rate of 1,500 large loaves per hour, a set of steel fingers or jaws in this machine, reach up and bite off from the mass of dough in the hopper a handful (or mouthful) exactly large enough to make a sixteen-ounce loaf. The machine can be set to select any weight of dough, but, unfortunately, it is not altogether infallible, and a set of scales is kept at hand to try to keep it, as far as possible, doing its duty, and to provide against the difficulty which some Toronto bakers have experienced recently through the matter of short weight.

From the "scaling" machine, the shapeless chunks of dough slide down a short chute into a "moulding" machine. This apparatus, which takes the place of our grandmothers' hands, pats and rolls the dough into flat-bottomed and round-topped, though squat imitations, of the ordinary loaf of commerce.

As yet no machine has been built, which will "form" several special varieties of bread. The "Jennies" and "Jumbos" and "Twists" and "French Rolls," for instance, have to be rolled and patted and punched and pressed and twisted into shape by hand. And a most interesting process it is, in another department, to see the white-aproned and bare-armed bread-makers standing in front of huge flour-dusted baking boards and "forming-up" these various special loaves at a rate the household bread-maker would laugh at as impossible.

Most people who didn't think about it would suppose the labels were stuck on the loaves like postage stamps; not at all. The process is much simpler. As the shaped loaves come from the moulding machine they are placed in small pans, one loaf to a pan. The labels are placed previously in these pans, upside down, and thus stick to the loaf. It keeps one man more than busy simply placing these labels.

The loaves in pans are placed in large, many-storied, wheeled racks, and trundled over to the ovens.

About the Ovens.

This brings us to the culminating process in this loaf-evolution, the actual baking. The Weston plant comprises twenty ovens, twelve by fourteen feet in size, and a much larger steam oven. These ovens are fired by coke and are kept at a temperature of about 500 degrees. The bread is inserted and removed by long-handled paddles and these are manipulated in such a way that they pick up and bring out a pan of bread as if they were supplied with fingers. The steam oven is specially designed for the baking of several special lines. The loaves are shoved in, without pans, directly on the hot bricks, and during the baking process a jet of steam is passed over them, the whole producing a very shiny, light-crusted surface, which looks as if it had been given a coat of furniture polish.

Ready for Delivery.

From the ovens the fat, brown-crusted loaves are again placed in the racks, special lines are wrapped, the fruit loaves in parchment tissue, some special lines with bands around the middle, and all placed in a storage room, those for shipment in hampers, ready for the early morning delivery.

This, then, ends the story of the evolution of the loaf of bread, but mention of several of the thirty varieties made by this firm will be of interest. Who would imagine, for instance, that "Jennie" was simply a large loaf with an elbow punch in the middle, or that "Eureka" was a loaf with a silky internal substance, the result of the dough being run through the "breaking" machine mentioned above. "Aunt Mary" is a line that makes one think at once of Whitcombe Riley, while "Mother's Bread," a line in great demand, is a "home-made" loaf, in which all the very best materials that can be procured are used. Jumbos, French Flake, Sandwich, Vienna Rolls, Bostons and Round Tops are a few of the other special lines which are ordinarily turned out.

The firm employ thirty-five wagons in their city delivery and beside the quantity sold in Toronto, about 81,000 loaves weekly are shipped to smaller towns outside, the district supplied running from Windsor to Cornwall.

HOW BISCUITS ARE MADE

The Weston factory also includes a well-equipped biscuit-making plant, and this The Grocer representative visited on another afternoon, operations here being conducted during regular hours of the day. This department has been in operation for four years, and has proved itself remarkably successful. How the business is growing may be gathered from the fact that this year's output will be a hundred per cent. larger than last. Indeed, the plant is much overcrowded and cannot keep up with the orders received.

One of the first departments seen here was, strangely enough, a repair room, where all the returned tin biscuit boxes were scraped till all the paper was removed, washed, relabelled and fitted with clean glass fronts.

The early processes of biscuit-making are much similar to that described in the making of bread, except that the dough goes through rather more preparation. On the afternoon in question "Social Tea" biscuits were being made.

The dough, after being thoroughly kneaded and put through the "breaking machine," was taken to a long "cracker" machine, this one, by the way, being the latest of its kind in Canada. Here it is fed between a series of rollers, which reduce it to a uniform and proper thickness, and then, after having any residue of flour removed by a revolving brush, the sheet of dough, uniform in width and of endless length, is run below a set of dies. These drop down at regular intervals and cut out and stamp with name and pattern about 160 biscuits. The stamped biscuits then drop onto an endless belt, which moves them out and automatically drops them into large, flat pans. The filled pans are transferred directly into the over.

A Revolving Oven.

The oven is not at all like the ones our grandmothers used to use, as are the bread ovens, but is a large structure, occupying a section of two floors of the factory, and containing a revolving framework, which resembles nothing so much as one of the well-known Ferris wheels. The framework in this case, however, carries shelves instead of cars. This oven is automatically revolved at any required speed and is so regulated that the biscuits are put in, go round the circuit of the wheel and are taken out again at the same door, perfectly cooked.

How They Are Packed.

From the oven the pans go to the packers. This, too, is an interesting process. The biscuits are shaken onto a moving belt alongside which a number of young women are sitting. These gather the biscuits as they pass down the line and pack them in the boxes, doing the work in a surprisingly rapid way. These filled boxes are then stacked in a storeroom ready for shipment.

Other Varieties.

These processes are followed for biscuits of regular form. Different varieties, of course, require different treatment. For instance, there are the lemon and chocolate "sandwiches." The two thin biscuits composing these are brought from the oven to the girls who sit before appetizing-looking little mounds of filling. The proper thickness of this is spread deftly over one biscuit and another clapped on top. The little "Midget-roll" biscuits are made from thin sheets of cake-like material, the dough of which has been squirted out of a flat-mouthed pastry bag. After baking, these are spread with jelly, rolled up and then cut off at the desired thickness. Others, such as the "Butter Scotch Wafers" and "Macaroons," are made in a special machine, which presses the almost-liquid dough into the required shapes.

Cleanliness Prevalent.

One striking feature about the Weston factory is the remarkable cleanliness that exists everywhere. The attempt seems to be made to keep the premises and machinery in the best possible condition.

The present factory was built in 1897 and at that time was the only up-to-date bakery in Toronto. Since that time business has increased to such an extent that the plant is entirely inadequate and this enterprising firm is seeking a site for a new and larger factory, which will probably be erected some time next year.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Western Crop Reports Satisfactory—A Record High Price for Flour—Further Advance in Rolled Oats—Situation in Quebec and Ontario.

Reliable reports from the west continue to give the lie to rumors claiming to be authoritative, but in reality emanating from stock speculators and other interested parties with axes to grind. "The grain," said the Toronto Globe correspondent early in the week, "has matured well. The reports from far and near show that the aggregate yield for the whole grain-raising country is likely to be large, and there are those who assert that the quantity will be equal to about 75 per cent. of that secured last season. The quality will be the important consideration, especially in view of the steadily rising markets.

"A recent estimate of the cost of freight and handling for wheat strikes an average of 11c per bushel for the whole west. This is based on an average freight rate of 15c per cwt., or 9c per bushel, and 2½c for handling. If this estimate be accurate, it means that the average price to the farmer for contract wheat all over the prairie country is exactly $1 per bushel.

"The new wheat is still grading very high, when one considers the conditions under which it was produced. The total inspections at Winnipeg for yesterday and the day before were 459 cars, and of these 328, or about 71 per cent., were up to contract. This means that 328 cars in two days contained wheat which would answer for delivery on contracts. In other words, over 300,000 bushels of wheat, which would bring the farmers an average of about $1 per bushel, reached Winnipeg in two days. And the deliveries are small at present in comparison with those of other years. But the significance of $300,000 worth of wheat being passed by the inspectors in two days at the close of an admittedly unfavorable season should not be allowed to sink out of sight at a time when returns from agricultural activity in the west are being anxiously awaited. These figures do not take account of the lower grades, of which there were 131 cars.

"The approximate value of the two days' receipts of wheat, however, would be more than $400,000, calculating the capacity of a car at 1,000 bushels, and eliminating the cost of freight and handling.

"The circulation of $200,000 per day among the farmers will not continue for the whole year, of course, but that figure is likely to be exceeded before the present rush of wheat to the markets abates. The conversion of the crop into money may be said to be proceeding in a most satisfactory way, and there is no doubt that millions of dollars will have gone into the pockets of the farmers by the time navigation on the lakes closes. Even then only a small proportion of the wheat will have come out. Experience has shown that the railways do not carry very much of the wheat to the Lake Superior ports before the freeze-up comes, and the proportion will probably be smaller than usual this year on account of the lateness of the threshing season.

"The fact that wheat of any kind is bound to bring a remunerative price this season is the comforting feature of the situation, and there is no occasion for concern over the possibility of the general quality of the grain being below that of previous years."

On Wednesday, October 9, the inspections of wheat at Winnipeg exceeded those of the corresponding day last year, for the first time in many weeks. The total for the week, however, was much behind last year's figures for the corresponding period. 234 cars were inspected, as against 207 in 1906. The grading was as follows: No. 1 hard, old, 3 cars; No. 1 northern, old, 7 cars; new, 67 cars; No. 2 northern, new, 51 cars; No. 3 northern, new, 48 cars; No. 4 northern, new, 10 cars, and other grades, 40 cars.

The following are the prices of the chief grades at Winnipeg on Wednesday, October 9, with the comparative values for the same date last year:

No. 1 hard	$.77	$1.13⅜
No. 1 northern	.75⅛	1.12⅜
No. 2 northern	.72¼	1.09⅜

Even wheat that does not grade high enough for milling purposes is worth as much this year as No. 1 hard was in 1906.

Flour and Cereals.

Flour took a jump of 40 cents during the week, and according to the opinions of not a few millers, is liable to take wings again at any minute and soar upward till it is out of sight and somebody is out of pocket. Manitoba wheat is now quoted around $6 for 60 per cent. patents; $5.90 for 85 per cent. patents, and $5.50 for strong bakers. The comparatively prohibitive nature of these prices is shown by the fact that the average increase over last year's quotations at about the same time is from $1.50 to $2 per barrel. The present prices are probably the highest on record in the history of the trade. Offerings of wheat, though improving, as noted above, are still light, and millers are having some difficulty in obtaining supplies.

In cereals the situation is about on the same basis. Certainly it is no better. Many of the mills are up against it in earnest. They have either got to secure supplies from some source or other, or temporarily suspend operations. Thus it is not unnatural that they should be willing to pay almost any price to get the grain, for even at the highest quotations there is little danger of them being unable to sell the manufactured article at a profit. Prospects are for stiff prices, and a possible advance.

The value of Canada's exports of wheat flour to Great Britain for July of this year amounted to $350,063, and for the same month in 1906, $364,692. For the four months ending July, in 1905, the exports to Great Britain were of the valur of $459,658; for the same four months in 1906 they were $1,277,477. The similar period for this year, however, shows a falling off, the value of the exports amounting only to $1,098,640.

Confectionery.

Christmas is without doubt the big season of the year for confectionery. Easter time runs a good second, but its sales cannot at all approach the mark set each year in December. Just now energetic grocers are sending in their orders and making plans to corall a big share of this trade about six or seven weeks hence. Manufacturers tell us that they are beginning to be rushed with Christmas orders already and the prospects are that this season's business will be far in advance of any previous year. The trade for the last three months of the year is fully fifty per cent. greater than that done in any of the other three periods of similar length during the twelve months.

And all this business will be done in spite of advances which have taken place within the last few fdays. With the advance of chocolate and cocoa, registered last week, there naturally follows an advance in the best class of confectionery. Recent advances in nuts and flavorings will also reflect on these goods. While confectionery of the best quality has felt the result most directly, there has been an increase of from 10 to 30 per cent. in all lines.

Naturally the grocer will want to know how this will affect him. To the man who handles really first-class goods the wholesale advance should not make any material difference. Confectionery is more or less a luxury, and people who buy really high-class goods will be ready to pay a little more for them. The young man who has been buying seventy-five-cent boxes of chocolates for feminine consumption, will have to pay eighty-five or ninety for them. Dealers handling cheaper goods, however, will perhaps feel the advance a little more keenly, for they can scarcely increase the prices on small quantities of these goods enough to provide for even the smallest percentage of advance.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR.—One of the mills has advanced another 20c, but this week there was a slightly easier feeling in flour. Hopes are entertained that the market will not advance any further, but its actions will probably be ruled by the crop, its size, and its movement. Demand, according to reports from the mills, continues very strong, both local and export.

Quotations are naturally too high to admit of any appreciable export business being transacted. Domestic consumption, in any case, being strong enough, even at present prices, to take care of most of the output.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Canadian Summer Fruits Disappearing From the Markets—Frost Closes Out Several Lines of Vegetables—Fish Situation Easier.

The impending Thanksgiving has had considerable effect during the week in brightening up business. The demand, already good, has been materially stimulated.

Summer fruits are practically out of the markets. Grapes of course are plentiful and with an above-average crop the supply should continue so for some time, but peaches, and the early varieties of apples and pears, have almost disappeared.

California dried fruits are coming in plentifully in various lines. Evaporated apricots and peaches, for instance, are being fairly well stocked, and the demand is becoming excellent. Jamaica oranges are in good supply and have taken the place of the California variety, which has practically disappeared.

The frosts of a few evenings past have had rather serious effect on a few of the tenderer lines of vegetables. Tomatoes, for instance, are now entirely done, and the frost has also finished the beans and rather seriously touched the peppers. Other hardier lines will hang on for a few weeks longer.

Rather conflicting reports come to hand regarding the New Brunswick potato crop. Recent advices from St. John are fairly encouraging. Last week they say the prospects for saving the potato crop were brighter than they have been at any time this season, but the weather since has thrown the farmers into a panic again. On Saturday most farmers started in digging and found that the rot had not worked nearly the damage that was feared. Some found a hundred barrels of good potatoes to the acre. The red varieties are not injured in the least, and the hardier white varieties are turning out well. The total yield is away above the average, but as about half are rotten, it looks now as though there would be about seventy-five per cent. of a full crop.

Fish are somewhat more plentiful this week and the situation promises to improve from this time forward. Atlantic salmon is practically absent, but shipments of the British Columbia variety along with two or three other lines, have improved the supply considerably. Cod and halibut continue exceedingly scarce. Demand for oysters is opening up and trade is brisk.

MONTREAL.

FRUITS.—Canadian fruits, peaches, pears and plums, are pretty well a thing of the past to-day. Grapes are still selling freely. California fruits are becoming firmer. Apples are moving much more freely, as the season advances. Crabs are quoted to-day at $4 a barrel. New dates are expected any day. Bananas are firm, being exceedingly scarce.

VEGETABLES.—As the fall season closes in, sales at market are falling off and supplies are dwindling. Potatoes are better this week. Some poor lots from New Brunswick sold as low as 54c. a bag, in car lots. Good stock is being placed at 70c. to 75c. Corn is firmer, owing to scarcity. Spinach is lower.

FISH.—Haddock are very scarce and prices asked are rather high. Many grocers are taking in place of this line market cod, which are very similar. Other lines of fresh fish are coming in freely. New frozen salmon is now offered. Boneless fish are selling freely, while haddies, which are scarce still, have again advanced. Salmon is scarce. Green cod are coming in more freely, as are also herring. Demand for oysters has been good, but the scarcity interferes with trade. Dealers have advanced prices on bulk. Malpeques are very high.

FRUITS—The market is brightening up noticeably in view of Thanksgiving, and early fall trade and demand continues excellent. Canadian fruit, except the late varieties, has almost disappeared. Quinces, however, appeared this week. Peaches are still quoted, though there is no quantity of them, and the quality is not of the best. The later varieties of pears are coming in in fair quantity. Grapes are quite plentiful, though prices are firmer. The banana situation seems a little easier this week. One local firm is offering as a special, 500 bunches of good quality stands, at $1.07. Regular prices, of course, are considerably higher. Jamaica oranges of fine quality are offered in quantity and the crop seems to be very good. These have taken the place of Valencias, which are no longer quoted. Almeria grapes are now coming in quantities, and California dried fruits are also making their appearance.

VEGETABLES—The frost of the last few evenings has played havoc with two or three of the more delicate lines. Tomatoes, for instance, while they are still on the market, have been pretty badly bitten and will disappear in a day or two. Peppers and beans have also suffered severely. The heavy demand for cranberries has already made itself felt in a substantial advance during the week. Sweet potatoes, also imported, are being sold freely, the quality being superior. Dealers continue to report optimistically on the vegetable situation in general, crops being considerably larger than earlier reports would indicate.

The Canadian Atlantic Fisheries

It is Estimated That Nova Scotia Alone Loses $100,000 Annually Through Poor Methods in Handling Her Catch of Pickled Fish—Reform, Happily is in Sight.

The administration of the Canadian Fisheries is in the hands of the Marine and Fisheries Department, and is carried out through inspectors and overseers appointed by the Government. These inspectors and overseers in addition to their other duties supply the figures which appear as the fisheries statistics in the annual fisheries blue-book. They frequently do not give the accurate and desirable information which the importance of the fishing industry demands. At various times the Government has appointed special commissions to investigate conditions in certain localities, relating to various branches of the fishing industry. As far, however, as the Maritime Provinces are concerned, matters have been allowed to drift along without much attempt to improve the conditions or conserve the various branches of the industry for our fishermen and merchants, and it is felt by everyone interested in the welfare of the fisheries, that it is time something was done to remedy the present most unsatisfactory state of affairs.

The Government's establishment of fish hatcheries, bait freezers, dog fish reduction works, demonstration of the Scotch method of curing herring, etc., are certainly to be commended. They have, however, been more or less abortive, owing to lack of system, the only partial carrying out of the various things attempted, and the seeming impossibility of eliminating politics. Twenty-five years ago lobsters were so plentiful on our shores that fishermen were making good wages catching them at fifty cents per hundred count. During the early part of the present season they were so scarce that fishermen were unable to make living wages with the price at $40 per crate in Boston. This condition has been brought about by the illegal wholesale destruction of the small-sized and seeded lobsters by the fishermen and packers, in consequence of the law not being enforced by the officers of the department. The conditions in regard to the oyster industry are, if anything, worse than those under which the lobsters are being exterminated. Practically nothing is being done to prevent the depletion of the oyster beds, to say nothing of any effective steps to increase the supply of these valuable shell fish. The clam beds in various parts of the Maritime Provinces are being depleted, in many cases to supply bait for foreign fishermen, whereas, under efficient laws properly carried out, a continuous supply could be maintained to the advantage of all concerned. Unless in the near future, therefore, some radical change is made, these valuable branches of the fishing industry will practically cease to exist. New and stricter regulations are required as well as effective means of carrying them out.

In connection with this article, and the reform advocated therein, it is interesting to note that at the meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, in August, of this year, the following resolution was proposed and adopted:

"That this meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade endorses the movement for the appointment of a fisheries board to act under the department of marine and fisheries for the regulation and control of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries; and that steps be taken to have this important matter acted upon at the next session of the Dominion Parliament."

The special committee on the modus vivendi also reported as follows:

"The special committee on the modus vivendi beg leave to report that it is highly in the interests of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries that the Dominion Government abrogate the same, until such time as the Government of the United States is disposed to negotiate a new treaty."

The report was signed by S. Y. Wilson, J. W. Stewart, and F. C. Whitman.

The Loss on Barrel Fish.

It is a recognized fact by all concerned in the fish trade of Eastern Canada, that the existing conditions under which pickled fish are handled are most unsatisfactory. The Dominion Government recognized this, when in 1903, J. J. Cowie, the Scotch expert, was employed to demonstrate the fact that the herring caught on our shores could be made to give much better returns if cured and packed under the Scotch method. Aside from the question as to whether the large expenditure made by the Fisheries Department has been justified by the results so far obtained, and aside, too, from the question of the proper method of curing, there is one point that all will agree upon, namely, the absolute need of improving the packages. From time to time individual efforts have been made to supply first-class herring and mackerel barrels, but as there was no recognized standard, practically no good was accomplished. The pickled fish industry has continued to be handicapped by the use of trashy packages, with the resulting low standard of the pack, and consequent loss to all concerned. This condition of affairs not only means loss and endless trouble to the merchant and his customers, but unquestionably means a loss to the fishermen. It would be a conservative estimate to put the annual loss to the Province of Nova Scotia on account of the poor methods used in handling the catch of pickled fish at $100,000. Not only is there the actual loss on account of the low standard or rather lack of any standard, either as regards the cure or the package, but there is also the consequent stagnation of the trade, resulting from the endless trouble and loss to the wholesale dealer, jobber and retailer. Time and again Halifax wholesale houses have received letters from grocers saying that they do not carry herring and mackerel, owing to the impossibility of guarding against the loss which results from leaky packages. At the present time even if the fishermen wanted good packages, they are unobtainable. The Fisheries Committee of the Halifax Board of Trade believe that Canadian barrel factories should be established to put on the market a full supply of first-class inspected packages, fully up to the Scotch standard, and that these should be helped by Government bonus.

The Fishery Board Idea.

The idea of a fishery board for the proper preservation, protection and development of the fishing industry, is one that has proved its worth. One hundred years ago the pickled fish industry of Scotland was in practically the same unsatisfactory condition and position as is that of the Maritime Provinces to-day. A popular agitation brought about the appointment by the Government of Great Britain, of Royal Commissioners for the betterment and control of the industry of Scotland. These Royal Commissioners were succeeded by what is now known as the Fshery Board for Scotland which, if judged by results, is the best and most effective method of fishery administration in the world. A few statistics showing the growth and development of the pickled herring industry of Scotland substantiates the above assertion. In 1811, the earliest date at which statistics are obtainable under the commissioners administration, the quantity of herring cured and branded in Scotland was 89,934 barrels. In 1831 it had developed to 414,574 barrels. In 1867 the number of barrels cured was 804,090, and in 1902, 1,803,159 barrels, while in 1906 the total number of barrels cured was 2,111,006, exclusive of the enormous quantity used fresh and for smoking. Observe by the foregoing that the first twenty years of board administration resulted in the annual catch being nearly quadrupled, that it was again almost doubled in the succeeding thirty-six years, and that the performance more than repeated itself in the following thirty-five years. This enormous growth has continued right up to the present day with every indication of continuing in the future. It should also be stated that the improvement in the quality of the product has kept pace with the growth of the industry, and that to-day Scotch cured herring leads the world both in value and volume. The laws enacted upon the recommendations of the board are simple and effective, and have together with the thoroughly proficient and capable staff of officers under directions of the board, brought the industry in Scotland to its present valuable condition.

Experience of Foreign Countries.

Twenty-five or thirty years ago the Government of Norway awakened to the possibilities of improvement in their fishery, and sent capable men to all the European countries to study the situation and report. On these reports it was decided to adopt the Scotch system, including the board. As a result the Norwegians have large modern steamers going all the way to the coast of Iceland to operate, and the quantity and quality of their product has increased proportionately with that before mentioned under the Scotch Fishery Board.

About seven years ago Iceland adopted the fishery board system patterned after the Scotch, with even a more complete system of inspection than is carried out by any other government, inasmuch as they grant a certificate with every parcel of pickled or dried fish for export to a foreign country. This experiment has proved so effective and correct that the trading in European countries is actually done on these certificates.

In Holland the Government has made special efforts to increase their fisheries under bounties, etc., but they have not made the progress attained in the countries that have adopted the board system.

In the United States, the administration of the fisheries is carried out through separate State Commissions, whose efforts have resulted in the immense development of various branches of the industry, notably in regard to oysters. Laws have been made to suit the various local conditions, and so effectively carried out, that oyster culture is now on a systematic and scientific basis; the output constantly increasing, and the value well up in the millions of dollars.

It is now desired by concerted action on the part of those interested to bring the Dominion Government to see that their present progressive policy for the encouragement of the fisheries could be worked out to better advantage to all concerned, by the appointment of a Canadian Atlantic Fisheries Board, on the same lines as the Scotch Fisheries Board, which has control of the Scotch fishing industry. Said board to work in conjunction with the Fisheries Department in all matters affecting the betterment of the conditions of the Atlantic fisheries A fisheries board representing all interests would thoroughly investigate and advise the department in regard to such matters as the depletion of the lobster and oyster fisheries, the destruction of dog fish, the proper distribution of the output of the fish hatcheries; the supply of bait, etc. The board must necessarily be a non-political body. It would be under the control of the Fisheries department in the same way as the Scotch board is under the control of the Secretary for Scotland, in that it would have the appointment of the chairman, which chairman and the vice-chairman, are in Scotland the only two paid officials. The Scotch board consists of nine members—the chairman, three members to represent the fishermen, three for the merchants, a scientist and a legal advisor.

APPLE PRICES.

The early apples shipped from Montreal during the week ending Sept. 14 brought on an average from $3 to $5.75 in the Liverpool market. Shipments for the week following sold for practically the same prices. The highest price noted was $6. The demand for good fruit was very steady, but inferior stock was neglected.

The returns from Glasgow for the same week were somewhat higher, prices ranging from $4.25 to $5.50. A few apples of fine quality sold as high at $8.

Reports have been received from the secretary of the Co-operative Fruit Growers' of Ontario that many of the co-operative associations are holding their winter stock for $1.50 per box, f.o.b. shipping point, No. 1's and No. 2's, wrapped and tiered. Offers of $1.25 per box have already been received. Other associations have sold their entire output of winter apples at $3 per barrel for No. 1's, $2.70 to $2.80 for No. 2's, and $1.75 for No. 3's, disposing of their culls at 50 cents per barrel. Some are holding off for $3.50 for their No. 1's and No. 2's.

Orchards are being sold in Nova Scotia for $2.25 per barrel on an average as picked from the trees. American dealers are reported paying $3 for Gravensteins, kings and spies in the Annapolis Valley.

The price asked the American dealers in Northumberland and Durham counties by the buyers who now control the output, was $3 to $3.50 for No. 1's and 2's. It has not been learned whether many sales were made at these prices. The buyers, representing firms in New York and Chicago claimed that they would be unable to realize any margin of profit after paying the freight and the duty of 75 cents per barrel.

Word is received from Washington that apples are changing hands in the important orchard districts of the States on a basis of $3 to $4 per barrel f.o.b. for No. 1's and No. 2's of standard winter varieties, with such choice kinds as northern spy, jonathan, grimes' golden, yellow newton, etc., running as high as $5, and in some cases still higher.

FISH—The market is somewhat easier this week, owing to receipts from British Columbia. Pacific salmon, qualla and halibut is now quoted locally several cents below the Atlantic varieties. Cod and whitefish continue exceedingly scarce, though straggling shipments are received. Oysters, bloaters and kippered herring, with the high prices of other fish, are selling exceedingly well. APPLE CROP PROSPECTS IN ONTARIO, QUEBEC AND LOWER PROVINCES

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has issued the following report on the fruit and vegetable crop prospects throughout Ontario, Quebec, and the Lower Provinces :

The recent rainfall throughout Ontario and Quebec has relieved somewhat the gloomy outlook caused by the long continued drought. It arrived too late to produce any marked effect upon early and fall apples, which will be undersized in the majority of instances. The winter varieties, however, are now growing rapidly. It is hoped they will reach a good average size and acquire a fair color.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the fruit dropped less and reached a larger size in well cultivated orchards, even in the driest sections. This is a grand object lesson. It is indisputable evidence in favor of the conservation of moisture by clean cultivation.

Rainfall in Nova Scotia, New Brunsan exceptionally wet season in the two ues intermittently. In fact, it has been wick, and Prince Edward Island contin- latter sections. Dry weather has prevailed for some time in the lower mainland of British Columbia, but in the inland valleys the precipitation has been rather heavy during the months of August and September. As a consequence the fruit is ripening slowly.

Heavy winds and equinoctial gales are reported from the Maritime Provinces and parts of Ontario. Considerable fruit has been blown from the trees, but as far as can be learned no great damage has been done.

A slight frost is recorded in the Niagara Peninsula, not sufficient, however, to injure the grapes. The growers in this section will be fortunate in harvesting their late grapes before more serious frosts occur.

Apples.—The winter apples throughout Ontario are now growing rapidly. Should the present favorable weather continue into October the late varieties will likely reach a good average size, but early fruits are past the intervention of favorable weather conditions.

The outlook for September, as noted in the different sections throughout the Dominion, is as follows :

In counties bordering on Lake Erie fall apples are light to medium, with the exception of Spies and Baldwins, which are reported very nearly mediu n.

In the counties on Lake Huron and inland to York County, fall apples are light to medium ; winter apples on the whole will be an average crop, though Greenings are reported light to medium, and Spies a medium to full crop.

In the counties bordering on Lake Ontario, north to Sharbot Lake, and Georgian Bay, the majority of correspondents report fall apples to be a medium crop, and winter apples a medium to full crop.

The prospect for Prince Edward County apples is a little brighter since the heavy rains ; but the fruit will be small compared with the usual size from this county. Throughout Northumberland and Durham counties along Lake Ontario the trees are heavily loaded with exceptionally clean winter fruit.

In Ottawa and the St. Lawrence Valleys to Lake St. Peter and in Southwestern Quebec, fall apples are very nearly a medium crop, while winter varieties are light to medium. The local market will absorb all the apples in this section. Scab or "spot" has developed rapidly on the Fameuse, particularly in unsprayed orchards, during the past month.

New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island will not have enough apples for local consumption.

Hants, King's, Annapolis and Digby counties, Nova Scotia, report a medium crop of fall and winter varieties. The fruit is of good size and unusually clean. Although this is generally known as

IS THE BANANA DESTINED TO SUPPLANT THE APPLE?

In one of the reports recently issued by the Dominion Government attention was directed to the banana being a serious competitor of the apple, and the likelihood of its displacing the apple when prices for the latter are exceptionally high. In view of this supposition it might be well to direct attention to the enormous consumption of bananas in the United States and Great Britain. It is estimated that 35,103,379 bunches were used in the States last year. The banana trade of the United Kingdom is, of course, small in comparison. Nevertheless, according to the following statistics from the September Crop Reporter, it will be seen that the growth of the trade has been relatively much greater in the United Kingdomthan in the States.

Comparing the trade of the two countries in the five-year period, 1902-6, imports for consumption in the United States increased only 38.5 per cent., while the increase in the United Kingdom amounted to 127.2 per cent. The following statement shows in detail the growth of the banana trade in the past six years:

WALL PAPER REPUTATION.

Dealer, aim to make your store THE correct place for people to buy their wall paper. Once you have established a reputation for this, it is not so difficult to keep it up. Take any city you like and you will find there three or four stores of outstanding importance in their particular lines. These are the correct places to patronize if you want to be in the style. Prices are undoubtedly high, but the public is willing to pay high prices just to be considered correct.

In the wall paper business this reputation means a great deal to the ultimate success of a merchant. To secure it three or four things are essential.

A good selection of goods is very necessary. You must have fashionable lines to show your customers. They must be brought to understand that what you are showing them is the right thing in Montreal or Toronto or New York. Then they will trust your judgment and will refer their acquaintances to you.

A clean, bright show room, with the latest facilities for displaying goods and with comfortable chairs for your patrons, is needful, if you would have the good word of your customers. Politeness and courtesy in your treatment of these customers must be added to make a strong combination.

A continuity of business on the same scale as that on which you set out becomes necessary. It is all very well to begin well, but unless you keep up your record, the public will lose confidence in you.

their "off year," and some orchards in consequence are not bearing, the crop on the whole is fully up to the average in quantity and far above it in quality. Indeed, it is generally believed that the exports from this section will be at least 10 per cent. greater than last season.

The only condition to be considered in connection with the fulfilment of the bright prospects is the equinoctial winds.

British Columbia will have slightly more than the average quantity of apples, this year. The heavy hailstorms which visited part of the Okanagan valley will reduce large quantities of fruit, in the orchards affected, to the No. 2 grade.

Pears.—Early and late pears will be light in nearly all sections. In British Columbia, however, the crop is generally above the average.

Plums.—The Japan varieties are usually failures this year. The European varieties are below the average, while the American plums are a medium crop in the commercial plum sections of Ontario. The excellent plum prospects for British Columbia have been slightly lowered in the inland valleys on account of the unusual rainfall during the past month.

Peaches.—The crop is very light this year. Early St. Johns have been marketed and have brought high prices. All varieties are now ripening fast and are running into one another. Canning peaches are very scarce. The Elberta is the main crop this year in the commercial peach sections.

Grapes.—The rot has not developed to any serious extent, though it is present in many places. A medium to full crop will be harvested in the Niagara district.

Tomatoes.—Tomatoes are making a very good showing after the rains. A good crop is being harvested, although the rot has been quite destructive. Should the frost hold off until the entire crop ripens the quantity harvested will be much larger than was anticipated early in the season.

CLEAN CANNING FACTORIES.

Government Inspector Finds Pretty Satisfactory Conditions in Western Counties.

The inspector of the Provincial Board of Health, Dr. R. W. Bell, who has recently returned from an inspection of twenty-three factories situated in twenty-two towns in the counties of Middlesex, Lambton, Essex, Kent, Elgin and Norfolk, gives a pretty satisfactory report. The factories in question had not been previously inspected by officers of the Board of Health. With the exception of four or five factories, the inspector found them in pretty satisfactory condition. What Dr. Bell objected to in the questionable factories was simply the manner of disposing of the refuse, which was thrown outside and allowed to ferment, causing filth and bad odors in the vicinity of the factory. In every case the managers promised to remedy the matter at once. The inspector found that most of the people employed in these factories were local residents, not foreigners, and seemed to be particularly cleanly people.

When the factories in the Niagara district were visited last year, the chief objection was to the help. The canners in the west seem to be free from the difficulties of securing local help experienced by the Niagara men, and in consequence, are not forced to house their employes. This was the feature that seems to have caused most of the trouble in the Niagara district.

ADVANCES IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Flour, Grains, Sundries and Shipping Tariffs All Increase Materially—Good Outlook for Large Winter Business.

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

An advance of forty cents a barrel in the price of Manitoba flour in three days, "is going some," say the local grocers. On Wednesday last both Manitobas and Ontarios advanced twenty cents, and on Friday, Manitobas took another leap of twenty cents. This makes the price of Manitobas $6.95 a barrel, and Ontarios $6.10 to $6.20.

Oatmeal advanced forty cents again on Friday, and increases in other lines are reported.

In the provision line, beans and barley have also advanced, and Ontario oats are now selling at sixty cents a bushel, an increase of four cents. None of the new crop is yet on the market, and it is hoped the prices will go down when this year's product begins to arrive.

It is estimated that the wheat crop in New Brunswick this year will amount to 500,000 bushels, which is larger than ever before. Buckwheat is very scarce, and none of the Western product has yet been received.

Prices of chocolates and cocoas took another boost on Wednesday. The amount of this latter advance was two cents per pound. The total increase in these lines amounts to 50 per cent. during the last five weeks.

A car of Canadian grapes was received here Thursday by A. L. Goodwin, and the price was dropped from 45 and 50 cents to 35 cents flat. This is as low a point as grapes may be expected to touch, as the crop was not heavy.

The outlook for a successful winter port business during the season of 1907-08 looks very bright. At least, one additional wharf and warehouse will be available, and the list of sailings for the different steamship lines show an increase in the number of steamers that will come here. It was thought arrangements would be made to have a floating elevator brought here from Montreal to help carry on the work, but this idea has been abandoned and the C.P.R. has guaranteed to furnish grain to all steamers that use the new wharf where there will be no conveyor ... is winter.

The Common Council at their meeting on Monday, Oct. 7, adopted the following resolutions favoring an increase in the tariff for freight handled during the winter, and cutting down the rate for steamers which ply here the year round. Formerly the summer rate was higher than that charged in winter.

The section relating to winter port rates was as follows: Your Board having considered the matter of tariff for this winter's business, would recommend that in view of the fixed charges and the expenditures at the Union wharves, St. John West, being in excess of the receipts, the tariff rates on the winter port business be revised in the following particulars, that is to say: That the rate for cattle be increased to three cents each (present rate being two cents each); that the rate on general goods be increased to ten cents per ton (the present rate being five cents per ton); that the rate on deals, timber and lumber loaded from barge or otherwise be ten cents per 1,000 (the present rate is charged only on lumber over the wharf).

The following recommendation, dealing with summer rates, was also passed: Your Board recommend that the winter tariff rates apply at the west side berths during the summer season on all through goods for Quebec, Ontario, Western Canada and the United States, imported by ocean liners which are engaged in the winter port trade.

The question of harvesting the potato crop is still troubling the farmers in various sections of the country. A Jacksonville (Carleton county) man who was in St. John a few days ago, said the crops in Carleton county were excellent, but the great trouble was in the harvesting.

No doubt readers of The Grocer who have read about the big Red Rose Tea warehouse in St. John, "the largest tea warehouse in Canada," will learn with interest of the fine residence which the proprietor of this concern is now having built on Mount Pleasant avenue, in this city. When completed, this building will be one of the finest and most luxuriously appointed homes in St. John. The structure is composed of the best stock brick, with reddish freestone trimmings. The roof will be of slate, finished with an artistically designed steel cresting. The interior will be finished in quartered oak, and other varieties of hardwood, and the plumbing will be of the most modern and approved type. The building throughout will be amply lighted by large windows fitted with heavy plate and leaded glass of appropriate design. The height from the peak to the ground is forty-two feet. The building is practically square, the average measurement of the sides being about 58 feet each. A splendid lawn and many shade trees surround the house. Mr. Estabrooks and his family expect to move into their new home on or about the first of May next.

THE NEW COMMANDMENTS.

1. Thou shalt not in any wise boast, brag, bounce or bluster, or the wise man will hold thee in low esteem.

2. Thou shalt not permit thy wife to be living at the rate of £200 a year when thy business is not yielding more than £199; nor shalt thou withhold from her the business information which, as a helpmeet, she is entitled to receive.

3. Thou shalt not mock the unsuccessful man, for he may be richer in his poverty than thou art in thy boasted abundance.

4. Thou shalt not carry the counting-house into the domestic circle, nor in any wise spoil the children's hour by recapitulating the bankruptcies of the day.

5. Thou shalt not hob-nob with idle persons, nor smoke with them, nor encourage them, nor approve their evil life.

6. Thou shalt not keep company with an unpunctual man, for he will certainly lead thee to carelessness and ruin.

7. Thou shalt not forget that a servant who can tell lies for thee may one day tell lies to thee.

8. As to hours of slumber and sleep, remember the good old rule:

Nature requires five,
Custom gives seven;
Laziness takes nine,
And wickedness eleven.

9. Neither a borrower nor a lender be, but give where well bestowed right cheerfully.

10. Be honest in copper, and in gold thy honesty will be sure.

Of Interest to You

When a grocer sells cheap baking powders he invites dissatisfaction. The cake being spoiled by the powder, all the ingredients will be classed as inferior, to the discredit of the grocer who sold them. The sale of lower-cost or inferior brands of powders as substitutes for the Royal Baking Powder, or at the price of the Royal, is not fair towards the consumer, and will react against the reputation of the store.

Royal is recognized everywhere and by every one as the very highest grade baking powder—superior to all other brands in purity, leavening strength, and keeping quality. It is this baking powder, therefore, that will always give the highest satisfaction to the customer; and a thoroughly satisfied customer is the most profitable customer that a dealer can have.

Ask your jobber for Royal Baking Powder. In the long run it yields more profit to the grocer than the low-priced alum brands.

TOBACCO INDUSTRY IN CANADA

Protection is Required—How the Industry Has Grown in the States—Canada's Share of the English Trade.

"You cannot imagine the room for development there is in the tobacco business in Canada. It is quite possible to make tobacco growing and exporting one of the great industries of the Dominion, and if the Government were to act with the producers and dealers it would be no time before a business amounting to over a million dollars annually would be placed on a firm basis."

This is what J. M. Fortier, the tobacco man, Montreal, was telling The Grocer about the situation in tobacco circles in Canada to-day. Mr. Fortier firmly believes in the possibilities of the tobacco trade in Canada, and as he has been in the business for years, what he has to say is worth listening to.

"Let the Government act in unison with us," said he, "and we shall show astonishing results. We can grow tobacco in Canada, and we can grow it in sufficient quantities to supply the English market, which now draws its supplies principally from the United States. There is no reason why we should not have the bulk of the trade now controlled by the Americans, with the exception of that tobacco known as Bright Virginia.

"First of all, we have a preferential tariff. I believe the duty on tobacco going into England to-day is something like 3s. or 3s. 7d. Allow us a preference of 10 per cent. on this raw leaf tobacco, and we will be in a position to export many millions of pounds.

"Some years ago, there was no such tobacco industry in the United States as there is there to-day. All their good tobacco was imported under a 35c. a pound duty. The Americans, however, were quick to recognize the possibilities of improvement in the tobacco business in their own country, and passed a law putting a duty of $1.85 upon all cigar wrapper tobacco coming into the country.

"The firms who were selling tobacco to the States perceived that they could make big money by growing it there, and finding the climate satisfactory, they began the cultivation of the weed. Millions of dollars have been invested in the enterprise, and hundreds of thousands of acres are under cultivation to-day, which, but for the increased duty on imported tobacco, would probably never have been touched. The situation in Canada to-day is very similar.

"We are now importing large quantities; if we were protected, even to the extent of 35c. a pound, as the Americans were before 1892, we would encourage practical tobacco growers to come to Canada, and would attract capital for investment in the industry.

"This 35c. a pound the Government is now collecting—10c. a pound on the raw material, and 25c. a pound on the manufactured tobacco—as an excise duty. Now, if the Government were to collect the 35c. a pound on the raw material, the protection would exist, and they would get the same revenue.

"At the present time the annual growth of tobacco in the Dominion is in the neighborhood of nine to ten million pounds. In Quebec Province there are under cultivation something like 5,000 or 6,000 acres, and this province supplies five or six million pounds annually of Canada's entire growth. Ontario grows in the neighborhood of four or five million pounds, while in British Columbia it is probable that they produce something like 200,000 pounds a year of the finest tobacco.

"The tobacco we are growing is very much like what the States to the south are producing. Our Rose Quesnel, for instance, is similar to the Little Dutch variety, grown in Ohio. Quebec produces what is known as seed tobacco, while Ontario is known chiefly for the White Burley tobacco. All of what is grown in Canada is used in the country by such concerns as the American Tobacco Company, Rock City Tobacco Company, Dominion Tobacco Company, St. Laurent

"But the Government must take an interest in the situation before we can make any progress. If they will begin a campaign to educate the farmers to the possibilities of tobacco growing, in time we shall be producing tobacco in every province in the Dominion, and we shall have captured a great share of the trade of England, which amounts to one hundred million pounds a year.

"As it is to-day, interest in the industry is limited, and tobacco growing is not understood by the farmers. A man will plant in the spring; tend the tobacco all summer; then, after harvesting it, will probably go about his work incorrectly and lose the result of his four or five months' effort, securing poor tobacco which might have been of the finest quality if curing had been properly done.

"It will come in time," said Mr. Fortier, "but the Government possesses the power to expedite matters."

PROSPERITY IN NOVA SCOTIA

Good crops and Good Prospects for Business Prevail to Counter-balance General Advance in Prices—Something About Lobsters.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, Oct. 14.

Prosperity reigns in the Province by the sea, and on every hand there is a most marked development. New industries are springing up in many of the cities and towns, the mill and the mine are working overtime, and the farmer and fisherman are reaping a harvest. Scarcity of labor is a great drawback, and on every side is heard the cry for help. The collieries are the greatest sufferers for the want of labor, as sufficient men are not available to operate the mines up to their capacity. Business appears to be expanding, and there are general good times all around. There need be no idle men in Nova Scotia to-day, and in the majority of cases employers are paying a fair wage for a fair day's work. Many of Nova Scotia's best sons have been attracted by the "lure" of the West, just at a time when their services are required at home, and where the opportunities are just as great.

The grocery trade in Halifax has been exceptionally good this season, and the volume of business transacted is fully up to the average of the best seasons. In fact, some of the dealers say that business was never better. Many of them have been obliged to enlarge their premises to meet the growing business, and, on the whole, they are well satisfied with the outlook. Collections are good all round, and there is no complaint regarding present conditions. The high cost of living is now a matter for serious consideration, and the business man in many cases has been obliged to keep down his profits as fine as possible. In all lines there are advances, and this bears heavily on the consumer. In flour, meat, milk, eggs, butter and other articles, the increase has been very heavy, and on this score there is a general complaint. Wages have not advanced in keeping with the increased prices of food products, and there appears to be no remedy in sight for the existing conditions. Fish is another article that commands a high price. Notwithstanding the large catches, there is a ready sale for all that is marketed. Codfish, which sold at retail a few years ago for five and six cents per pound, is now worth nine cents, almost double the former figures.

Lobsters are almost at a prohibitive price, and the demand for export is very heavy. Quite recently there was more than $200,000 worth sent forward to France and England in a single shipment. The largest exporters of lobsters from Halifax are the Robert Simpson Company, Limited, M. Neville & Sons, James Fraser, Leslie Hart & Company, and F. Smith & Company. These lobsters bring $17, f.o.b., a case in Halifax. Years ago the United States was the largest customer Nova Scotia had for canned lobsters. Now the neighboring republic is taking second or third place. England and France now lead in the purchase of the crustaceans. The quantity of lobsters caught remains almost stationary from year to year. If anything, there is a decrease. On the other hand, however, the canning factories have increased very rapidly, so that it is difficult to get the quantity of lobsters wanted. Steps will soon have to be taken to more adequately protect this valuable shell fish. The regulation regarding size is said to be openly disregarded by many fishermen, and the close season is not always respected.

The Government is establishing lobster hatcheries in places where the most good can be derived from their operation. The first hatchery on the upper eastern shore will be located at Chester, and the work of construction will soon be started.

The export of live lobsters to the American market during the open season is also very heavy, and these command a very high price. Hundreds of crates are shipped weekly from Halifax and Yarmouth direct to Boston. The demand is always good and the prices are very satisfactory. The lobster industry is carried on in the spring before farming and other fishing is resorted to, and this puts money into circulation at the time of the year it is needed most.

The apple crop in Nova Scotia this year is away above the average. All the fruit is of exceptionally good quality and high prices prevail. The demand for apples for export is heavy, and every week thousands of barrels are going forward from this port, principally to the English market. The failure of the crop in England this year has benefited the Nova Scotia grocer, and the latter is making hay while the sun shines. Nova Scotia fruit has also met with great favor in South Africa, and several thousand barrels have been shipped to that country so far this season, and more will follow. There has been an abundance of pears on the market this season. The demand was light, and prices low. The bartletts grown here are not anything extra, but clapp's favorites are very fine, and they command a good figure.

There was a very good crop of berries, for which a ready market was found.

Potatoes promise to be a good crop all round. They are now selling at fifty cents per bushel, but the price will be much lower later on, when the Island stock comes in.

The crop in Prince Edward Island is very heavy this season. There will probably be a large quantity of potatoes exported, as there is a prospect of a shortage on the New England markets. Other vegetables, such as parsnips, turnips, beets and carrots, are in good supply.

There is a good demand for butter, eggs and cheese, but prices rule very high. The butter markets attract the most attention, as the product is very scarce, and those who have stocks of butter are holding back, anticipating even higher prices. Good dairy is quoted from 23c for large, and from 24c to 25c for small. Creamery in boxes is worth from 26c to 27c. Cheese ranges in price from 13c to 14c. Fresh eggs are very scarce. Nearly all those handled now are Island stock and worth about 21 cents on the Island. Fresh stock, when available, sells at retail from 28c to 30c.

More of the retail grocers are advertising now than ever before. Most of them make a specialty of certain lines, and, being attractively displayed, they catch the eye of the consumer.

"Yes, advertising pays," said a prominent retail grocer of this city to your correspondent. "I did not realize it before, but now I find that it brings most satisfactory results. Trade that would not otherwise have reached me has been brought about by advertising. I can tell this in my daily business transactions. New faces are to be seen in the store, the goods purchased are those featured in the advertisement, and people from all parts of the city are attracted. This is noted by the addresses left for the delivery of the goods. As a rule, other purchases are made at the time, and all this brings about business which in no other way could be secured."

R. T. Holman, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., recently conducted a bread-making competition to introduce a new brand of flour. The bread was displayed in the firm's grocery window, and attracted much attention. The first prize, a barrel of flour, was won by Mrs. Frank Croke; the second prize, a half barrel by Mrs. R. Robblee, and the third prize, a quarter barrel, by Miss W. Rooney.

The plum crop in Nova Scotia did not turn out as large as expected, there being a shortage in several varieties. There was a fairly good yield of burbanks, but the other varieties were very scarce. Very few plums are now on the market, and the price has been advanced, 60c to 70c being asked for a six-quart basket.

The market is fairly well supplied with poultry, but prices rule high. Turkeys are quoted at 24c per pound, retail, while the best chickens are selling at one dollar per pair. The partridge season is now open, but birds are very scarce, and those offered for sale are worth one dollar per pair.

The oyster shipments from Prince Edward Island this year are far below the average. They are very scarce and command a high price. The yield this year is small, and the bad weather has

The manufacturers here have advanced the prices of cocoa and chocolates, some as high as ten per cent. The increased cost of the raw material is given as the cause. There is also a scarcity of cocoanuts, and the manufacturers of confectionery, who use large quantities, find difficulty in getting sufficient to supply their requirements.

Late advices from St. John's, Nfld., say that trade in that city is very dull, and all the business men are complaining. The late season is said to be the cause for the present conditions. There has been very little sun, and it is impossible to dry the fish. There is very little money in circulation from this season's catch, because the fish already disposed of have been sold in the outports, and the fishermen are remaining at home to cure later-caught fish, before coming to the city to make purchases. Everything he has bought to date, he has ordered to be sent by steamer or rail, and these goods are the present necessities, and distinct from the regular winter supplies.

Transactions in codfish between the fishermen and exporters are slow. There is a good deal of fish yet to be marketed, because the catch on the coast has been large this year. The price varies from $4 to $6 per quintal, according to the quality of the fish.

Said one merchant the other day:

"I did not know I could write an advertisement until four or five years ago I found out by accident in this way: I had finished trimming a window and found I did not have any painted advertisement card for this window. Being in a hurry, and believing that a window display should always have an advertisement card of some kind in it, I sent over to a department store for a carpenter's blue pencil and wrote what I had to say. It took; they stopped. I wrote half a dozen more of them; crowds blocked the sidewalk. Been writing them ever since.

"At any hour of the day you can see from twenty-five to two hundred and twenty-five men and women reading what Tom has to say to-day. It is necessary for the police to clear this walk at times."

The till was opened and all the silver which it contained was stolen. The safe contained $200 to $300 and was not locked. Fortunately the thief believed the safe to be locked and began trying combination to open the door, thus blocking his own purpose by locking the door.

In the heavy gale that visited St. John on Tuesday, October, 8, the plate glass window in W. A. Simond's grocery, on Union street, was blown in and his stock damaged considerably by the driving rain.

The storm was one of the worst seen here for years, trees, electric light and telephone wires being blown down, vessels wrecked and a number of buildings badly damaged.

  For you, it seems, are healthy.

Within the lowly boarding house
  The unresisting boarder
Who paid as promptly as he could
  Might get you with each order,
And as the lady of the house,
  A sort of female Nero,
Looked on while he consumed the dish
  He felt he was a hero.

No longer, prune, are you despised,
  Athletic, sport and scholar
Will pass up pie, preserves and cake
  And for the prune dish holler.
The man who would be well and strong
  And have his brain the clearest
Will say when he sits down to eat,
  "Please pass the prunes, my dearest."

It seems too bad and quite a shame
  That we have chewed, protesting,
At prunes so long and never knew
  Their beauty in digesting.
We might have guessed that they were good
  When trying to ignore them,
Because, as we remember now,
  We never hankered for them.

The wholesale grocery business of H. W. Laird & Co., of Regina, has been sold to Campbell Bros. & Wilson, of Winnipeg. The business will be managed by H. G. Smith. H. W. Laird will go into business in other lines.

Talking About Prices——

Are you sure you are buying at the closest prices? No! Well, why not get our prices? Ask any of our travelers or ask us by mail. We are offering SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS in all grocery lines, particularly in Canned Goods, New Raisins, Currants, Figs, etc.

We have a large stock of everything for a grocery store. Our motto is: "All the best goods at the right prices, and shipped same day as order received."

Remember that to make money you must buy right. Don't forget to send for our list and prices.

Less Cost—Best Goods—Prompt Deliveries

ARE THREE REASONS WHY

every Eastern Townships merchant should buy his groceries in Sherbrooke.

First. Freight charges from Montreal or Quebec eat into your profits. But if you order your goods in Sherbrooke, you pay freight only from Sherbrooke to your store. You can save from $10 to $25 a month by reducing your freight bill in this way. Besides, we guarantee our prices as low as Montreal or Quebec houses, F.O.B. Sherbrooke.

Second. We guarantee every line we offer to be of the highest quality. We buy the very best of English, French and Canadian groceries. We are direct importers of Valencia Raisins, Prunes, Candied Peels, Cleaned Currants, Nuts, etc. We offer Canadian Canners', Ltd., Canned Goods at list prices, F.O.B. Sherbrooke. Our goods are unexcelled anywhere.

Third. If you place your order with a house hundreds of miles away, you have to wait a long time before it's delivered, while if you send us your order it hasn't got to travel so far. We will ship same day, and you'll get the right goods, at the right price, at the right time.

Keep your freight bills for a month and figure out what you could save by sending us your orders. We have an established reputation, which we live up to. Send us a trial order NOW.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN AUSTRALIA

The Tariff Situation—No Provision Made for Canadian Preference—Some Convincing Figures—Salmon Imports—The All Red Route.

Sydney, Oct. 1, 1907.

The principal topic of conversation in Australian commercial circles at present is the new federal tariff, by which the duties on imports have been materially increased all round, with a ridiculously make-believe preference to Great Britain. What preference there is in this direction has all been ingeniously made up with largely-increased duties in other directions. There is a veritable storm of opposition raging, but the Government—a rabidly protectionist one—are adamantine, and it is not likely that the duties will be modified.

The question of preference to Canada, which has not been provided for in the tariff proposals now before the people, is engaging a deal of attention, and we understand here that the matter of a settlement has been delayed owing to your Sir Wilfrid Laurier's temporary absence from your seat of Government. The proposal to extend preference to Canada is almost universally approved of. Mr. Ross, your commercial representative at Melbourne, has, on behalf of the Dominion, and acting on important cable messages from his Ministers, submitted a definite schedule of items upon which Canada seeks a tariff preference as a preliminary to the conclusion of a commercial treaty between the two countries. This schedule is identical in most respects to the one discussed in London at the time of the recent Imperial conference between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and our Prime Minister, Mr. Deakin. It consists, as I suppose you know, of in all 30 items of your most important manufactured products, among the principal of which are the following: "Apparel, agricultural implements, harvesters, furs (dressed and undressed), printing paper, various timbers, furniture, snowshoes, boots and shoes, denims."

In the event of a satisfactory deal being made between the Dominion and the Commonwealth, Sir William Lyne has decided to send Sir Wilfrid Laurier a list of Australian exports on which it would be expected Canada would in turn grant a preference in her market. That a satisfactory ideal will eventuate is the personal opinion of Mr. Ross, who is decidedly optimistic regarding future trade relations between Canada and Australia. He suggests that great settlements are growing up on the Pacific Coast of Canada, which, if granted preference, would ultimately mean splendid markets for Australian products and manufactures. The whole matter is to be brought before the Cabinet almost immediately, and it is safe at this juncture to say that Ministers are favorably impressed beforehand with Canada's suggestions.

It is recognized that a principal factor in the coming discussion on your proposals must be, as to what extent our concessions, if any, shall be. Your new tariff, introduced last December, I believe, contains a preferential tariff applicable to goods from the United Kingdom and most British possessions. In order to extend its operations to Australia it is only necessary that a reciprocal arrangement be arrived at and the question, therefore, is—what is Australia prepared to offer in return? Our Ministers recognize the fact that reciprocation with Canada would be a different thing altogether than reciprocation with South Africa. Our trade with the latter country is by no means extensive, while that with Canada, though not at present large, consists almost altogether of direct imports from your country. Australian imports from and exports to Canada for 1904 and 1905 (the latest I can procure at the moment, but sufficient to give an idea) were as follows:

	1904.	1905.
Exports to Canada ..	29,352	43,288

The imports are shown as direct from Canada, whereas your goods are imported here to a greater extent than appears from these figures, the total for 1905 being $379,125, instead of $230,981. Our principal imports from your country in 1905 were fish, £54,524; timber, £56,641; agricultural implements, etc., £43,329; machinery and machine tools, £14,375; apparel and textiles, £21,161; boots and shoes, £8,135, etc. Exports to the Dominion from Australia during the same period included wool, £10,918; coal, £4,049; hides, £5,368; sheep and other skins, £4,086; onions, £1,516; timber, £4,207; butter, £1,185; frozen meat, £2,792, etc.

For the purpose of giving some idea of the possibilities of expansion in trade between the two countries, take one article of interest to the grocery trade. The fish imported into Australia from Canada consists mainly of high-quality tinned salmon from British Columbia. Wholesale houses here sell this salmon to the grocers and storekeepers at about 8s per dozen tins (1 lb. squat tins.) Red Alaska 1 lb. tins sell in the same market at 6s 3d to 6s 6d per dozen. If the Canadian article were admitted, say free, the difference in the above prices would be reduced by fully one-half, and a direct result would be a largely-increased consumption of the British Columbia fish.

DO YOU WANT A NEW CUSTOMER

A resident of the United States is looking for some place to locate a summer home, and has asked the MacLean newspapers for advice. They want, they say, one in which they can live from May to November, preferably in Canada, near a lake, if possible, and within easy reach of good trout fishing, not nearer to a post office and telegraph station than twelve miles, nor farther than forty, not too far north to prevent raising of vegetables for their own use. If they could find trout, partridge or pheasants and deer, elk or moose, each in its own season, so much the better. They desire to build a comfortable log house and would need one for the man and his wife whom they would leave there the year round.

The family is well known and highly respected in the public and social life in the United States and in Great Britain, where they at one time had a temporary residence. Being also wealthy, they would become valuable customers for the retail trade in any locality where they may decide to settle. If any of our readers or Boards of Trade have a place that fills the requirements described above, will they kindly send particulars to the editor for transmission?

OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS COMPANY SHOWED PROFITS OF $630,685 FOR YEAR

This is the Year of Big Profits in Flour Milling—A Description of the Big Ogilvie Company's Plant.

This is the year of big flour milling profits.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Limited, was held October 10th, 1907, at the head offices of the company, Mr. C. R. Hosmer, president, in the chair.

Present: Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G.; E. S. Clouston, H. S. Holt, F. W. Thompson, Shirley Ogilvie, F. W. Evans, C. H. Black, Henry Joseph, C. Simpson Garland, H. Gordon Strathy, A. J. Brown, K.C., Col. Labelle, W. A. Gandle, S. A. McMurtry, treasurer, T. Williamson, secretary, etc.

Mr. Hosmer submitted the financial statements for the year, showing:

Net profits	$630,685.57
Which were disposed of as follows:
Interest on bonds	$60,000.00
Dividends on preferred stock	140,000.00
Dividends on common stock for 1½ years	131,250.00
Officers' pension fund	10,000.00
Transferred to rest account (Bringing this account up to $1,250,000).	239,000.00
Property reserve account	100,000.00
Balance carried forward at credit of profit and loss account	148,806.95

Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director, in seconding the adoption of the reports, spoke, in part, as follows: It gives me great pleasure to state that the results for the year have been most gratifying. The financial statements submitted are based upon the most conservative lines, and the results obtained have been reached after making full and ample provision for all contingencies.

The milling business during the past year has had the benefit of favorable world's market conditions, and your company has naturally shared in this prosperity.

The present year opens up under most promising conditions.

The various mills and other properties of the company have never, in my opinion, been in a higher state of efficiency, and the company is just commencing to reap some of the benefits of the extensive improvements that have been carried on during the past three or four years.

I would like particularly to refer to our new plant at Fort William, which is admitted to be, both as regards the mill and elevator, second to none in the world, both of which are now in successful and profitable operation.

Respecting the Northwest crop, I may say that threshing has sufficiently advanced to enable me to reiterate what I have already stated, that, in our opinion, the total crop this year will approximate from sixty to sixty-five million bushels of all grades of wheat. Of this quantity, we figure there will be about thirty-five million bushels of good milling wheat, most of which will be required by Canadian millers. The net financial results to the country, as a whole, by reason of the higher prices for all agricultural products throughout the world, will, I think, closely approximate those of last year. Under these favorable circumstances I believe the fundamental conditions of the country are sound.

The following gentlemen were re-elected directors of the company for the ensuing year:

Mr. C. R. Hosmer—President.
Mr. F. W. Thompson—Vice-President and managing director.
Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G.
Sir H. Montagu Allan.
Mr. E. S. Clouston.
Mr. H. S. Holt.
Mr. Shirley Ogilvie.

And the following officers were appointed:

Mr. W. A. Black—General manager western division.
Mr. S. A. McMurtry—Treasurer.
Mr. T. Williamson—Secretary.
Mr. W. A. Gandle—Assistant secretary.
Mr. F. H. Anson—General superintendent.
Lt.-Col. A. E. Labelle—Local manager.
Mr. George A. Ceslett—Fort William, manager.

The George Creak Audit Company were appointed auditors for the ensuing year.

The company own their offices in Montreal, Winnipeg and St. John, N.B., besides other properties in Montreal, also stables and machine shops in Montreal, Fort William and Winnipeg.

The Montreal mills are all operated by water power and are fitted up with auxiliary electric power as well.

The Fort William mill is operated by electric power, generated from the famous Kakabeka Falls, located 18 miles from Fort William.

The Winnipeg mill is operated by electric power from the Winnipeg Power Company and has auxiliary steam plant.

The mills in Montreal have unexcelled water and rail connection with all points, domestic and foreign, with sidings on the Grand Trunk, Canadian Pacific and Intercolonial railways.

The Fort William mill is situated at the chief port of the Great Lakes and on the main line of the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways, while the Winnipeg mill is also on the main line of these roads.

The most of the wheat for the Montreal mills is loaded from the company's own elevator at Fort William and shipped through to Montreal without breaking bulk—many millions of bushels being brought down annually.

The company grind exclusively only the choicest selected Manitoba wheat, and its brands are recognized as leading standards in the world's markets.

The company also maintain their own office in New York for the West India trade, as well as offices and warehouses at Toronto, London, Sarnia, Ottawa, Ont.; Vancouver, B.C.; Quebec, Que., and St. John, N.B.

W. H. Halford, of Montreal, called at The Grocer office last week, while returning from a visit to the St. Charles Condensing Co.'s plant at St. Charles, Ill. He reports that the company is working strenuously and expect by the first of the year to be caught up with their orders. Mr. Halford, who, by the way, is the Montreal representative of S. T. Nishimura, the tea importer, mentioned that in spite of the high prices in Japan teas which had ruled since the opening of the market, the firm has had an increase in their import orders.

LUDELLA TEA

The way the Tea market is running lately it would be a heart-break to keep putting out the fine quality which we do in our Ludella quarter-dollar packet, but we don't have to live on the profit of this particular article, and consequently we keep on putting out the best value in 25c. Tea that is going to-day, and we don't forget that you need a fair margin either. Buy Ludella Tea and you will be selling the finest that it's possible to produce for the money.

HEINZ

There's magic in this name now, and it did not come there by luck either. It came with good, hard, ceaseless care and work on the part of the manufacturers, with the result that anything with the name Heinz on it is a standard that all competitors are striving to equal in both quality and attractiveness. Get in behind this power for good which is in every store where the 57 varieties are shown. It will work wonders if given a chance, and the only way to give it a chance is to keep Heinz goods to the front. It will be a magnet and will draw trade for you.

QUAKER

That's a name that you hear in connection with many eatables, but none merit this good name so much as the Canned Fruits and Vegetables which are grown and packed by the Quaker people around Bloomfield, in Prince Edward County. RESIGNS FROM ACTIVE MILITIA.

Lt.-Col. Davidson, of Davidson & Hay, Limited, Gives Up Military Command.

Considerable interest has been manifested among the trade during the last few-days over the resignation of Lt.-Col. John I. Davidson, of the firm of Davidson & Hay, the Toronto wholesale grocers, from his command in connection with the sixteenth infantry brigade Col. Davidson has occupied such a prominent position in connection with the Canadian militia, that the resignation has come as a considerable surprise in many quarters.

The local daily newspapers connect Col. Davidson's resignation with the fact of the recent promotion of Sir Henry Pellatt to a full colonelcy over the heads of a number of lieutenant-colonels, one or two of which were his seniors in service.

It is a well-known fact, however, that the official period of Col. Davidson's command has long expired.

In regard to this matter it may be interesting to note that when the command of the Coronation Contingent was offered to Lt.-Col. Pellatt in 1897, he was told he would go to England with the rank of colonel. It was considered important that the Canadian Contingent, by far the largest colonial contingent sent to England, should be commanded by an officer ranking at least as high as officers from other colonies with smaller contingents. For some reason this was not carried out, and the matter was allowed to stand until the Queen's Own Rifles was formed into a two battalion regiment. Lt.-Col. Pellatt has now been promoted to the rank of full colonel, with a lieutenant-colonel in command of each battalion, and this seems to have come as a fulfillment of the promise made by the department ten years ago.

Col. Davidson was to have taken a prominent part in the Thanksgiving Day military manoeuvres at Hamilton, and his resignation will probably necessitate some reorganization.

Good Tea means Good Trade

The grocer who values his trade will make sure of his tea. Nothing can take the place of good tea. It's the grocer's staple. He must watch it.

MINTO BROS., 55 FRONT STREET EAST, TORONTO, ARE TEA SPECIALISTS

Do You Realize

The time has arrived when the grocer must face fixed higher prices? The situation was never stronger than at the present moment. Many of the lower grades are quite off the market and there is little prospect of easement. Do YOU realize this?

A Remarkable Fact

It appears, at first sight, strange that prices should go away up whilst at the same time the world's general production is steadily increasing. The fact is, the unexpected has happened in the appearance of Russian buyers for British-grown teas.

A Great Awakening

Russia has at last awakened to the true value of British-grown teas. Teas which should usually be destined to reach the Canadian market are being eagerly competed for by Russian buyers. Canada must, therefore, pay higher prices or lose the quality tea.

If you wish to secure the best possible value the market can offer, write Minto Bros., 55 Front Street East, Toronto. We are tea specialists.

Bulk Teas Never before have we given closer attention to the selection of originals. Very early in the season we realized the situation and made contracts with the growers, and are, in consequence, in a position to make you some tempting offers. Write us !

Our Standard Blends Many grocers—men who know their business—are regularly buying our Standard Blends. You get a better selection and finer flavor for your caddie than the "single shop" grocer can possibly secure by his necessarily limited buying.

Our Package Tea What are you doing in package teas? We give you in our "Melagama" the package tea of excellence. It is quality first, quality second and quality always. It shows fine profit and always gives satisfaction. Lay in a stock and see your trade advance.

Your Tea Sales

The Grocer's "goodwill" depends largely on his tea trade: Consumers are very critical of the "cup that cheers," and judge the grocer and all his goods by the quality of the tea he sells. It is therefore imperative that his teas should be of such "stand out" character that he can meet all opposition.

We know that competition is very keen and we have always recognized that the retailer has no easy task in combating the attacks on his tea trade.

We are solely a Wholesale House, and rely entirely on the Retailer for our trade, and thus his interests and ours are identical. It is therefore to our advantage to help the Retailer, and as our sales this year have shown a very large increase, we feel sure we can help many a Retailer to likewise increase his sales in both package and bulk by handling our teas. Write us for samples and prices, and be convinced of the exceptionally fine quality we can offer you.

Persons addressing advertisers will kindly mention having seen their advertisement in this paper.

"The Real Thing"

"What does it profit the retail grocer in the end to push the "nearly as good" article? While he has been making one-sixth of a cent profit for two cents worth of extra work his neighbor grocer has been handing out "the real thing," and lots of it. His customers come in and ask for it, and recognize it because it bears a well-known brand which even the children know as a guarantee of excellence.

At last there comes a time (it always comes) when the "nearly as good" article reaches the end of its string. It may have been put out of business, or it may have been skinned in quality until it is a business suicide to handle it any longer. Has the trifling extra profit paid for the trouble of pushing it instead of selling it—for the unknown, but none the less certain, percentage of dissatisfied customers—and finally for the up-hill work of beginning all over again with another new brand of goods? Well, hardly!

In the meantime, the dealer who handles "the real thing" still keeps passing called-for goods across the counter under the same old brands.

"The real thing" in Canned Fruits and Vegetables are:—

"CANADA FIRST"	"KENT"
"LITTLE CHIEF"	"LYNN VALLEY"
"AUTO"	"MAPLE LEAF"
"LOG CABIN"	"LION"
"HORSESHOE"	"THISTLE"

"GRAND RIVER" and "WHITE ROSE" Brands.

These brands have been on the market for over a quarter of a century.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Less work and better results

If Allison Coupon books merely reduced work, they might, in some small establishment, be considered a dispensable luxury.

But you can entirely disregard the time and labor-saving element, and still the system more than pays for itself in the cutting out of ACTUAL MONEY LOSSES, the increased satisfaction to customers and the large trade it entails. Hundreds of merchants that are using this system, could not at any price, be induced to revert to the old fashioned method.

ALLISON COUPON BOOKS

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10 - no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No. pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere.

LIVE SALESMANSHIP

A straight talk to the travellers of a large manufacturing house.

The qualifications essential to the successful conduct of any business are here outlined.

By L. A. Sears.

I desire to say only a few words to our traveling salesmen. I cannot give all of you cards and spades on selling goods; I think some of you boys have already acquired a tact in approaching customers that is as successful as anything I can tell you. That capacity comes from the exercise of simple horse sense and sincere, honest dealing. If you go to people naturally, without any frills and state your business, they will take you as you are. There is just as much knowledge of human nature on the other side as on this side. Do not lose sight of that; do not think that you alone are a judge of human nature. The other fellow knows human nature just as well as you do. Be honest and frank with him. Be direct in telling your story and tell it in as few words as you can. If you do not suit him this time, maybe you will the next time. He will size you up. The fly is about as wise as the spider.

I desire to address myself principally to-day to some thought that I trust may be of interest to our managers as well as to our salesmen. In my study of this business I find that the manufacturing department can be divided into about three lines of effort. I know from what I have absorbed from the founding and history of this company that these goods we manufacture are calculated to be the best we can possibly produce. I consider that the very maximum of our ambition is the best. Of course, it is necessary to have quantity, it is necessary to have volume of business. Volume of business is as necessary after you have secured the quantity, as the quality. We cannot maintain the salary of our forces, we cannot maintain the expenses of this business, unless the volume of business is maintained and gradually increased, because expenses are hard to hold down. We cannot hold them down. These boys, as they go along in their efforts in life, must be advanced in position and salary, not only to show our appreciation, but also to put them on a footing where they will be satisfied. So it is impossible to run the business on a fixed expense. The expenses will grow, and the business must grow accordingly.

Three Propositions.

So, I take it, that first we must make the best goods we can produce.

Second, we must increase the quantity.

Third, we must make them cheap enough and sell them cheap enough to be in the battle along the firing line.

These are the three propositions. The manufacturing department must know they are in line, know they are producing good stuff and at the minimum expense.

The selling department of this business must know enough about conditions outside to be satisfied that we are getting all the conditions will warrant and selling the product in a reasonable volume, as compared with our capacity of producing. All of these things are collective and correlative; they must be hinged together, and we must be consistent in our efforts at both ends of the line.

You must not forget that all these departments are so intermingled that, to be effective, all should be brought up to the highest degree of efficiency. In growing the crops, delivering them in the proper condition, selecting, sorting and packing, the proper classification of the grades and quality in the warehouse, the proper labeling and shipping of the goods in all the departments, discriminating judgment must be used at all times.

The character of the pack is sometimes a little different. You cannot absolutely mold it in molds. But there is a constant mind on it at all times to produce goods that will have uniformity and that will absolutely suit the trade. So it is that if there is a failure in any of these departments, which must be more and more classified and worked distinctly and separately, this will mean disaster to the whole business. It makes a break which is irreparable in many cases. If the people who have charge of the growing of the crops fail to get out contracts in sufficient quantities for the seed that has been provided, you may rest assured that that mistake will develop later on. If the selecting and grading of the goods in the receiving department is defective, you may rest assured that that defect will come out somewhere in the line. If there is a defect in the processing department, in the packing department, that is going to come out. If there is a defect in the selling department, if you do not get as much money for your products as other people get and as much as you should get, that is going to come out. If you are faulty in making your collections, that is going to come out. The "murder will come out" somewhere along the line.

Mr. Sears is the general manager of the Sears and Nichols Company, Ohio. Like many other vast organizations, this company holds an annual convention of its managers and salesmen, in order to receive suggestions, bring out complaints, and induce a healthy spirit of patriotism among its employes. The paper reproduced on this page is one read by Mr. Sears at the last annual meeting of the company. Its writer, before he reached his present position, was widely known throughout America as a salesman of unusual force, intelligence and originality. He knows the game from A to Z, and his advice is probably more worth listening to and more authoritative than that of any other traveler on the road or off it to-day. His address, while essentially applicable to the peculiar needs of his own company, is also of wide general interest to all salesmen, clerks and other men engaged in every walk of commercial life.

The Best or Nothing.

The best is none too good. The best effort is none too good. If this business is not worth your best effort, it is not worth any effort. If it is not worth your highest degree of concentration, your highest brain capacity, your highest physical capacity when necessity requires, it is not worth anything. It is a failure to begin with; it is a failure before you start. If it is not worth your application to the last point of your ability to stand the effort, it is not worth anything. That is the measure of success. If you fail after giving it your unqualified effort, mental and physical, it is an honorable failure.

It has been said (and I think truthfully said) that "good enough is an enemy of the best." We should have that as our motto on the wall; we should stick that sign up in the same way as the "Don't spit on the floor" sign. "Good enough is an enemy of the best." When you think this over it expresses a whole lot of truth. Therefore, we never want to say, "This is good enough."

A business proposition stands on three legs, like a stool—Labor, Capital and Management. Labor it is not necessary to qualify. It does not begin and end with the man who cleans the utensils in the factory; it does not begin and end with the man in the office, who tries to look after things. It is the entire working force from beginning to end, nental and physical.

Capital is not necessarily the money in the bank, the resources of the business, or, what we consider as money, the implements in the factory and its equipment. Capital is the goodwill you produce; Capital is the amount of honesty and sincerity of effort you put into the business. You may not realize it, but honest, sincere effort is one of the groundworks of Capital. It is Capital, I want to tell you, and if you do not realize it you have a small idea of what your investments are and what your success will be. Every one of you boys not interested in this firm financially, but employed on a salary, with every day of honest effort, I want to assure you, you have made an investment in its Capital that will sooner or later be repaid. Every day and every week which you put into this concern in indifferent work is that much Capital wasted.

Management and Duty.

Management is not entirely confined to the people who sit in the office, to the people who assume to be head of the business because they are president or manager. They do not comprise the whole thing. They are apparently in control, and they may decide a question that someone has to decide: but the management is the whole working force, clear down the line to the man sweeping in the back alley. That is Management. Employes, from the people throwing off the goods into the receiving building up to the point where the goods are distributed to the consumers and getting the money back with which to pay your debts—all have something to do with the Management. If we do not have the co-operation, the assistance and loyalty of every single man along that line of effort, no Management is good enough, no head big enough to make the business successful. So I want you boys to feel that you are a big part of the Management of this business, and any suggestion, any idea, or any point which you may think of value, it is your duty to come to the recognized manager of this concern and advise him of it and give your reason for it. If you find a frail brother, who by lack of attention is injuring this business, it is your duty to tell the manager of this business. That is what I feel is your duty. There is but one road to success, and that is by constant vigilance and concentrated effort.

This ambition, which I have touched on before, is not entirely fixed on the money value of this business. We have always hoped to build up a business and make it a heritage to somebody who will be worthy of it. The young men and the old men connected with the business, whether they have acquired any stock or whether they are only working on a salary, should have it in their minds that it is their business and their heritage to some extent. They want to learn to say We. When you go to your customers, say We; do not say "my firm;" say We. I said we when working on $8 a week. I always said it. I would not work for any firm unless they would let me say We. I would not do it. I want to say We and feel as though "We are it." Make the business good and command the respect and attention due you. That kind of a spirit will make you We. If you keep at it, in honest and sincere work, we will make you a part of the business, if you want to be a part, and if you have not this ambition to become We in this business it is time you were going into the clergy or into some other business where you do not have to become a partner or member of a corporation in order to make a living.

TAPIOCA FIRMER.

Latest cable advices from Singapore report the tapioca market up 1-6 from lowest point, which is equal to an advance of ⅜c lb. From the advance it is evident that bear sellers have withdrawn, and the holders are not interested at the ruling prices. Offerings are said to be practically nil.

Mathewson's Sons have got out a fine label for their Quaker Baking Powder cans. The label is neat in design, is excellently printed, and presents a very rich appearance. It is red and gold, embossed, and has the figure of the Quaker, and also Mathewson's diamond "M" trade mark in gold and white. A gold band encircles the top and bottom of the can. Mathewson's Sons control Quaker brand goods.

MACLEAN NEWSPAPERS AGAIN VINDICATED— SUCCESSFUL ENDING TO A LONG FIGHT

With the installation of a new president of Toronto University, the campaign inaugurated by The Canadian Grocer some years ago reached a successful conclusion. For years The Canadian Grocer, the other MacLean publications, and numerous dailies and weeklies throughout the province, have dwelt upon the thoroughly unsatisfactory condition into which the Provincial University had fallen. In the first place, it was pointed out that it was governed by a large organization composed of doctors, lawyers, dentists, musicians, clergymen, professors, etc., only a few of whom had sufficient ability to make themselves known outside of their own little circle of friends. A comparison was made with McGill University, where the governing body was composed of such men as Lord Strathcona, Sir William Macdonald, E. B. Greenshields, R. B. Angus, Sir William Van Horne, James Ross and others—all of them big men and some of them men whose names are known throughout the English-speaking world.

The MacLean Company was attacked in the press for the stand it had taken; even some professors at the University, in their lectures to the students, made sarcastic references to Colonel MacLean, the president of the company. The MacLean Company made no response, but continued the agitation. Then it was charged that the lime light thus thrown on University affairs had stirred up the people throughout the province, that the Government dare not vote the money necessary for the increased demands for higher education. This was just what the MacLean papers expected, and they said that as soon as the University was put on a proper basis and the confidence of the people restored that the province would treat it generously, for they wanted a university second to none. The justice of the MacLean papers' contention gave backbone to the undergraduates, who were in touch with and saw the rottenness of conditions, and they began to talk and write. The result of this movement was a thorough investigation of University affairs, which made it increasingly evident that something had to be done. The reorganization asked for was carried out. Confidence was restored, the province, through the Legislature, gave more than the most sanguine friend of the college even hoped for. One-half of the annual succession duties are now devoted to the up-building and support of the University. These, it is said, will soon amount to a million a year, and should make the University one of the greatest in the world. The province can afford to maintain it in that position.

While the people of Ontario and the MacLean newspapers are congratulating each other on the successful termination of this agitation for improvement in higher education, the far more important demands of the primary schools must not be overlooked. These were once adjudged the best in the world but are now far below what they should and might be. The people can for a time safely leave university affairs with President Falconer and his new board, and give their attention to the public schools. As only a few will eventually get to the university, the others should be given as broad an education as possible. They cannot get this from teachers at $300 or $400 a year. They need big broad-minded devoted men and women who will give their lives to teaching. For such men and women salaries of not less than $1,000 a year should be paid. The other half of the succession duties should be spent in augmenting the public school teachers' stipends and in improving their training schools.

This does not mean that the children should be given more subjects or devote more time to study. The present list is quite long enough. The teacher, to be tempted with higher salary, is one who will not only give them a more thorough training in these subjects, but more particularly influence and inspire them—by personal example and association with them in the school, in the playground and in their homes—to attempt things worth while in their particular walk of life, and, above all, to train them to become useful, loyal, thoughtful and honorable citizens.

This is the second great educational fight which has been won by the MacLean newspapers. The matter is not mentioned because of any desire for self praise, but to show what national influence can be wielded by good newspapers with circulations that seldom exceed 10,000. The other instance was the Royal Military College. It had sunk to such a low ebb that drunkenness and immorality were common among the men. The chief officials were related to the then Premier of Canada, who laughed at the charges. The Government had to investigate. The report of the commission, admitting that the charges were true, was withheld by the Government and was finally said to be lost. The MacLean newspapers had a copy and published a synopsis. It raised such an outcry that the commandant had to resign. The college was reorganized and is to-day the best training school in Canada.

EXPRESS SITUATION IN N.B.

Merchants in St. John, N.B., are greatly interested in the prospect of a working agreement between the Dominion and American Express Companies that will bring about a better express system between that section and the United States than now exists. At present the business is hardly of the express nature because the American Express Company has no rights on the C. P. R. trains and the Dominion Express is shut out from the American trains. The result is that goods between here and the United States go over the Shore Line to and from the border.

The C.P.R. is now in control of the Shore Line and can if it so desires, terminate the working agreement the American Express Company has with that road. It is said, however, that a reciprocity agreement of some kind is likely whereby the American company will retire from the territory and the Dominion will handle all the business, giving it to and receiving it from the American company at the border. This would prevent the delays that now occur and express goods would travel as rapidly as do mails and passengers, instead of being a day behind.

WINDOW DRESSING AND DISPLAY

Display of the Halifax Cold Storage Company at the Recent Halifax Fair—Striking Exhibit of Package Fish.

As a comprehensive display of one of the most important industries of Nova Scotia, the exhibit of the Halifax Cold Storage Company at the recent Halifax Exhibition was particularly interesting in its prominent location in the Fisheries Building attracted a great deal of attention. The two pyramids in the building comprised over 1,500 "Ocean Brand" packages which rose to a height of 25 feet. The cold storage division, while perhaps not so striking, was an equally interesting object lesson in the great variety of fish shown, not only from the natural history standpoint, but from the still more important consideration of the availability of wholesome food fish at all times and seasons of the year, by means of up-to-date methods of refrigeration.

A Fine Display of Package Fish.

Upwards of a hundred species were shown in this exhibit, a larger variety, it is understood, than has been shown at any of the largest fairs on either side of the Atlantic. The different species were all plainly ticketed and the exhibit brought before the visitor a good idea of the methods and apparatus used in fishing, the manner of utilizing and preparing the catch and the collection and distribution of fish by wholesale or retail. The scope of the operations of the Halifax Cold Storage Company has been recently extended by the erection of a duplicate refrigeration plant at Port Hawkesberry, in the Strait of Sans, and the company are making every preparation to supply the trade.

P. T. McGrath, formerly editor of the Evening Herald, has severed his connection with the paper and will start the Evening Chronicle. Mr. McGrath is one of the most forcible writers we have.

CHATHAM.

The Chatham Fruit Growers' Association suffered a serious loss last week when the drying room of their cold storage plant was completely destroyed by fire. The warehouse, immediately adjoining the drying room, was, fortunately, saved, thanks to the unremitting efforts of the fire department. It contained material valued at $1,000, ready for shipment. The loss was for about the same amount, with no insurance.

The association have decided to rebuild at once.

For some time past there have been rumors current that, following the lead of dealers in other cities, the Chatham milkmen would jump the price of milk to seven or even eight cents per quart. It was pretty generally understood that the matter would come up at a meeting last week, and there was a sudden rush of patrons to purchase tickets in anticipation of the time of high prices and famine. The increase in price did not materialize, however. The meeting lacked a quorum, only two members of the retail milk dealers' section putting in an appearance. The price of milk, consequently, remains, for the present, at least, 6c. per quart.

But bread has gone up—or, rather, the weight of bread has gone down. In the past, the bakers have been supplying a 1½-pound loaf at 5c. retail. Though there was no whisper of any meeting having taken place, concerted action materialized—to all appearances, spontaneously—the first intimation the general public had of a change being the presence of "20 ounces" labels on their loaves. The price remains the same, but the weight is 4 oz. less. The pronounced increase in the price of flour, from $2.50 to $3 per 100 lbs., is pleaded in justification of the move; and in all fairness, the plea seems a good one.

Thamesville bakers have also met the increased price of flour by reducing the loaf from 1½ to 1¼ pounds. The change took place Oct. 21.

S. Mather has purchased the bakery in Tilbury, until recently conducted by J. R. Palmer, who is now starting a large wholesale bakery in Chatham.

Miss Martha Hanley, of Thamesville, has joined the staff of E. A. Mounteer's confectionery.

The exterior woodwork of the John McCorvie & Sons' grocery, in the I.O.O.F. temple, has received a new coat of paint, adding quite a bit to the attractiveness of its appearance.

The sugar beet season in Kent is now at its height. The crop this year is a good one, being as usual pretty well divided between the Wallaceburg and Mount Clemens, Mich., factories. The largely increased crop, and the fact that it is a substantial success in a year when other crops have suffered much from frost and rain, tends to strengthen the claims of those in the business, that the sugar beet will ultimately be the staple crop of Kent. Beets along the Thames are transported by scows, those near the Wallaceburg factory by wagons, and from more distant points by cars. About 12 cars of beets leave Chatham every day for Mount Clemens, and Wallaceburg fares about the same, or better.

Prices for grain and feed, though there has been a slight easing off lately, still continue pretty high. Just how this will act upon farmers with stock on their hands is as yet uncertain. With beans at $1.60 per bushel, an even dollar for wheat, and $1.57 per hundred for barley, and hay at $15 up, the outlook is rather gloomy for those who contemplated wintering their stock. Many farmers feel that they cannot afford to feed their hogs. There are others however, who maintain that the scarcity of feed will boost the price away up, and that there will be more money in proper feeding than in hasty selling. Probably they are right—provided all act upon their view.

Canadian fish for Canadians is announced as the watchword for a new fish company operating along the Erie shore. J. P. Black, for seven years connected with the Wolverine Fish Co., of Detroit, has cut the cables which bound him to that concern, and started an independent business under the name of the Lake Erie Fish Co. Mr. Black has been buying fish along the north shore so long that he is in close touch with the fishermen and thoroughly understands the needs of the wholesale trade. It is the intention of the new company to cater first to the Canadian trade, leaving the surplus to the American dealers and consumers, who have hitherto secured about 100 per cent. of the fish caught in our waters. There ought to be a big opening in the western peninsula for a concern run on these lines.

The Bradley store during the past week has shown a very striking Toasted Corn Flakes display in their corner window. The window faces on two streets, and possesses natural advantages of which the designer has made the fullest possible use. In front, the boxes are arranged in the form of an arch, other boxes being grouped further back to secure a harmonious effect. The display is helped out by many red and yellow tissue streamers, radiating from a common centre in the rear to various parts of the two arches. The display was put up by Mr. Davidson, of the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Co., of London.

The agitation on the part of the grocers for the repeal of the clause in the market by-law, prohibiting retailers from purchasing stuff on the market before ten o'clock, will apparently be unavailing. The matter, when it came before the City Council some time ago, was referred to the Property Committee, and the latter on Monday night reported recommending that no action be taken. The City Solicitor advised that the amendment could not be passed, and it was further urged that permitting the retailers to buy would deplete the market before the public had a fighting chance.

What force there is in this last argument is doubtful. There is scarcely a Saturday morning that the general public do not pay higher prices for produce on the market than they pay later

LIMITED COMPANIES.

I notice with regret the growth of a large limited company in one of the cities. As one who has had considerable experience of the methods employed by these companies in the payment of their clerks and other matters relative to the welfare of their employes, I am sorry to see such firms obtaining such a hold on the trade as they are doing in many places.

With almost unlimited capital at their command, they are able to open up branches in all directions, and often, are the ruin of small traders in the district they select by the elaborate stock they are able to carry, and by cutting prices. They are able to keep branches going which under normal circumstances should not be paying expenses, but which, through, immense capital and questionable methods of doing business, are made to return handsome profits.—Pembroke Correspondent.

in the day for the same day's produce at the groceries. The tendency of the market people is to maintain prices till late in the morning. The proposed amendment would scarcely result in the clearing out of the market by ten o'clock; but it would make things easier for such grocers as desired to purchase, for the accommodation of customers, before that hour.

Another step will shortly be taken in regard to the much vexed question of peddlers and transients. Since the city magistrate has refused to convict on the ground that a $100 license fee is prohibitive, the council—or at, least, a number of aldermen—intend reducing the fee to something like the old figure. When this is done further efforts will be made to enforce the by-law.

Efforts will be made to reach the objectionable peddlers in another way. They are chiefly objected to on account of the fact that they compete with merchants on King street. A merchant who has to pay from $50 up per month for store rent, plus lighting, plus fuel, plus help, can't afford to sell ripe yellow bananas at 25c. for three dozen, as Gaspar Favata does from his inexpensive push cart. The council intend to meet the difficulty by excluding peddlers from King and certain other streets, on the ground that they obstruct traffic. If a merchant who pays taxes can't keep a packing box on sidewalk or pavement for a few minutes, neither, they argue, can a banana man keep a push cart there for hours at a stretch.

EDMONTON.

An interesting subject to both the wholesale and retail merchants in the city was brought up for discussion at the last regular meeting of the Edmonton Board of Trade, It was the question of the further establishment of Edmonton as a distributing centre. After considerable discussion of the members of the board, it was decided that the best way to do this was to encourage the retailers in every line to purchase their goods direct from the wholesale house in the city and not from the representatives of houses outside of the city.

The question was introduced by F. T. Fisher, former secretary of the Board of Trade. He stated that he knew of several cases where retail dealers in the city had purchased their goods from commercial men, who represented outside firms, when they could have secured the goods as cheaply and of as good a quality from wholesale firms that had branch houses established in the city. He deplored this practice and stated that the only way to make Edmonton a distributing centre was for the retail merchants to patronize the local wholesalers.

Geo. Stockand, one of the local wholesalers, thought Mr. Fisher had exaggerated the condition of affairs somewhat. He agreed that Mr. Fisher's method was the best way to make Edmonton a distributing centre, but he thought the wholesalers were being well patronized by the retailers. In the past few years there had been a great decrease in the number of commercial men who had been coming to the city, for the local wholesale houses had been getting all the trade. He thought Edmonton had advanced remarkably in the last few years as a distributing centre and that there would be an even greater advance in the future.

The retail clerks of the city met last evening to consider the formation of a Protective Association. After some discussion and addresses by those interested in the matter, it was decided that such a society should be formed.

J. A. Kinney, organizer of the district, was in the chair. Clerks from the leading stores were present and in short speeches spoke of the advantages to be derived from the proposed association. It was shown that an association of this kind would be the means of strengthening the relations between the employer and the employes, and promoting unity of action among the retail clerks generally. Another feature of the association is the insurance of $5 per week offered to its members in case of sickness.

It was finally agreed that another meeting should be held the following week for the purpose of completing the organization. A committee was appointed to canvass all the retail clerks in the city in order that all might be invited to join in such an organization.

GUELPH.

Last week was generally conceded to be the limit in quietness in the grocery business in Guelph. We all felt it. There may be more of them, but we are not anxious to see them. The high prices for produce and other things may be the cause, but even Saturday did not improve things much.

The Penny Bank is the latest thing in Guelph, but the grocery clerks won't have many pennies in it this winter.

The dust nuisance is again with us, and for the extra expense it would be, the watering carts might as well be kept going. The Retail Merchants' Association might attend to it, if they are not too busy on the banquet business.

The campaign for a municipal abattoir is being energetically pushed by the medical health officer, Dr. Robinson, and we may expect good results.

Is butter so dear in Guelph that the cost exceeds that of the bread it is spread on? It would appear so from two items in the report of the Guelph general hospital board. The expenditure for butter was given as $1,166.38, while bread and flour together were credited with an outlay of $595.87.

Jas. Metcalf, of Buffalo, has bought the stock and fixtures of Mrs. Lee's store, on Queen street, and will continue it as a grocery store.

In one grocery store in Guelph was found just thirty empty vinegar barrels this week, and in another eighty glass-front tins of Christie, Brown & Co., and those grocers claim to be short of money.

Alf. Sweetman, traveler for the Guelph Paper Co., has accepted a position with the R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers.

J. B. Bender, Berlin, has opened up a first-class grocery store, with all modern fixtures, and H. J. Aherns, the Five Point grocery, has sold out and retired from business. L. Schaffer, formerly with Smyth Bros., as head clerk, is the new proprietor.

Jos. Dreigman, formerly with Peter Anderson, has accepted a position with W, H, Fielding.

"Honesty is the Best Policy," I saw this sign in a grocer's office the other day, and it made me smile. And yet there is something in it all right. But there are mighty few grocers who live up to it. Yet nearly all claim it as their one good point to sell honest goods at honest prices.

A grocer buys a cash register and says as I have heard them and the salesmen for them, say, "Now, that will keep the staff honest," and they both know that all the cash registers in the land won't keep a clerk honest if he doesn't want to be honest. A cash register is a good thing all right, but not to keep clerks honest. Then, after the grocer himself thinks he is protected, he goes to the same staff of clerks that he wants to be honest for him and asks them to sell XX vinegar for XXX; to take 40c, 50c and 60c tea out of the same tea bin, and thinks nothing himself of taking a line of goods and dividing into two prices. The clerk has a hard time sometimes with customers, who almost make him lie to sell them, and a boss who tells him he's got to lie if he wants to sell goods. It is a wonder there are any honest clerks at all. But just the same I am glad to know there are some, and when a clerk just comes right out and says he doesn't do business like that, the boss, even if he is inclined that way himself, and even if he doesn't actually say so, he admires him for the stand he has taken, and generally considers him the last man he wants to part with.

The Old Boys reunion is off with a jump. At a large mass meeting held the other night in the opera house, a permanent set of officers were elected, with J. M. Duff, manager of the Bank of Commerce, as chairman. There is lots of opposition to it among the churches, but it will eventually be a success, as such a fine set of officers will down the opposition before August, 1908.

LINDSAY.

Owing to its geographical situation and the rich farming land surrounding it, Lindsay is essentially an agricultural town. While there are enough manufactories to make things lively, it is from the soil that Lindsay has attained her present very satisfactory position.

While there have been dearths of crops in other counties, Victoria county has had a fair crop of grain. Fall wheat has reached the dollar mark in town.

The system of rural telephones which have spread in a network over Victoria county, are excellent aids to business men.

The apple crop is fair in this vicinity, and picking is in progress at present.

The lightweight butter nuisance has been prevalent at the local market.

That a strictly cash grocery business would fall short of success in Lindsay, owing to the close competition in business is the general opinion here. Besides that, the stores do a big business with farmers and villagers in the country, who, as a rule, are reliable men, and to whom credit is a great and almost necessary convenience.

There are, of course, "examples" in every community, but a few years in business will open a grocer's eyes as to who can be trusted for credit and who can't.

For thirty-three years Robt. Spratt and Jas. Killen, under the firm name of Spratt & Killen, have conducted a thriving grocery business in town. Seldom, indeed, have two partners been together in business so long. A branch of their business that is an important one and in full boom at this season of the year, is hay-baling. The firm own a steel hay-press and have engaged two men to work it. Hay is bought in quantities right in the farmer's mow, and the press taken around to it. Hay, in this way, was bought at $15 a ton this fall. The firm handle a very big business in this line. They also own a granary and ship grain to the Old Country and elsewhere.

For the past week local grocers have been scouring the country for apples. Jos. Brown shipped a carload to Western Canada from here on Friday. Another merchant, of Port Perry, shipped three carloads to Glasgow, Scotland, last week, and is shipping three more this week, two from Port Perry and one from Janetville. This dealer says that when he started out to buy apples nearly every orchard yielded less than what was estimated. Now they yield even better than what was expected and the quality is excellent. The growth in the apple crop has been phenomenal.

With hay at $16 to $18 a ton, and oats at 52c. and 53c. a bushel, livery men are kept hustling to make ends meet.

INGERSOLL.

This is the between-time season with the grocers. This week will witness the end of the peaches and the grapes, which always add activity to business, and no further rush is anticipated until the opening of the Christmas trade. Judging from all accounts this has been a very satisfactory season to the grocers, although there has not been as large a turnover in the fruits as in previous years. It is, nevertheless, surprising the amount of grapes and peaches that have been disposed of by the local dealers, notwithstanding all that has been said about their "steep" prices and the increased cost of living generally.

It is not probable that any more grapes will be received after this week. They are now at their cheapest price. On Saturday the price was cut down to twenty-three cents as a "special" and this week they were made the even twenty cents per basket, which created something of a "run" on them.

"The travelers are coming in from all directions," were the words addressed to your correspondent by a leading grocer to-day. The appearance at the door of a well known Knight of the Grip prompted the remark, but unless he carried a line somewhat out of the ordinary, it is doubtful if he received an order. All the travelers in the country seemed to have been turned loose and headed towards Ingersoll this week. Of course it is the thriving, hustling places they like to reach, where everyone is busy, and their drafts are never returned, and it goes without saying that Ingersoll is just such a place. Commercial men generally have a kind word to say of Ingersoll, and the most of them know from experience that they are certain of an order when they arrive here. But when the whole bunch of them drop in like a swarm of bees on a summer's day the dealer is bound to get a little confused. This is what has been happening thisc week. The travelers have been as thick and as aggressive as one could imagine, and everyone of them wanted a Christmas order. All kinds of samples from dainty confectionery to new brooms have been exhibited to the grocers and if they have not on order sufficient stock to carry them over the Christmas rush and into next spring it is no fault of the drummers.

"Don't be a knocker." This phrase might be regarded as a proverb of modern days. Very few people seem to realize that it is a duty which they owe themselves as well as the community in which they reside, to do a little boosting whenever an opportunity offers. The man who has a kind word to say of his place of residence is usually farsighted, and optimistic. Strangers are very apt to judge a place by what the residents have to say about it. If they are happy and contented and prosperous looking and never hesitate to attach an adjective to their town when alluding to it, the inference is that it is a pretty good place. Grocer H. D. McCarty is one Ingersoll citizen who has his faith pinned to the town and he does not refrain from airing this opinion. Mr. McCarty returned a few days ago from a visit to Uncle Sam's domain, during which he had an opportunity of comparing several American towns with Ingersoll. Of course the Americans are justly lauded for their enterprise, but of the three towns which Mr. McCarty visited, all of which were about the same size as Ingersoll, he stated that this town shows up to advantage by the comparison. While he saw many handsome private and public buildings the towns were lacking the evidences of commercial activity and stability which characterize the larger provincial towns in Canada. The first thing Mr. McCarty did when he got home was to tell the people that no better town than Ingersoll could be found anywhere. This is the proper spirit, and coming from a shrewd business man it is worth something. If others would only boost and never "knock" what a great brigade of city builders there would be at work.

Thirty-five cents a pound for butter! This makes one think of fewer slices of bread and a thinner layer of butter. Fortunately for the consumers, however, this price has not yet been reached here, but it was through no fault of one of the vendors at the market on Saturday. The party in question, a good lady from the country, was firm in her demand at first, but after realizing that the bulk of the sales were being made at thirty cents per pound she, too, unloaded at this figure. But the incident well illustrates the oft-repeated assertion that some people never know when to stop asking.

Oatmeal is rapidly following the high price of oats and the housewife will have to use economical methods in preparing the porridge now. During the past month the price of rolled oats has advanced over a dollar a barrel. Six pounds are now being sold for a quarter retail.

Apple picking and packing operations are being brought to a close in this section. The crop has been a very good one, and it is probable that as many, if not more, than last year will be exported.

The heavy frost on Sunday night came as a shock to some of the farmers and dealers. One dealer stated that in many cases the apples were seriously frozen, although he did not think that the ones still on the trees would be permanently damaged.

A shilling a pound was the price ask- for spring chickens at the market on Saturday. The offerings were fairly plentiful, and by the pair the prices ranged from sixty to eighty cents.

Last week's number of The Canadian Grocer was greatly admired by local readers. There was a fund of valuable information between the covers, as well as interesting correspondence from all parts of the Dominion.

BARRIE.

Just now the merchants are very busy and all say that for such a bad year they are surprised at the amount of business that is being done. The farmers also wear a smile as they ride into town on a load of grain, hay or produce, for they know that their ton of hay will realize from $20 to $22, their bushel of wheat will bring from 95c to $1.05, their oats 55c, and barley 75c per bushel.

John Hobley, who was a partner in the firm of Hobley Bros., who have lately sold out, has accepted a situation with the Barrie Gas Company as head bookkeeper.

Trade was very brisk on the Barrie market on Saturday, butter bringing 28c to 30c, eggs 23c to 26c, spring chickens 10c pound, ducks 75c to $1 per pair, turkeys 12c to 14c per pound.

The Barrie merchants are talking of forming a Retail Merchants' Association. to put down price-cutting, etc.

LONDON.

In wholesale lines business is very good, but retailers report trade only fair. Brokers report advances in almost every line of goods, particularly teas, which continue to show a soaring tendency. Raisins have advanced a shilling and remain very firm, and currants are going up.

President Harry Ranahan, of the Retail Grocers' Association, is still confined to his bed through illness, and under the most favorable circumstances will not be able to get around again for a month at least.

G. S. Brock has disposed of his grocery business on the southwest corner of Richmond and Kent streets, to Mr. Stevenson, of Chicago.

A number of local grocers, including Vice-president Shaw, Ed. Ryan, A. G. Johnson, F. H. Robinson, H. G. Glanville, with J. McNee, of "Jap" cigar fame; M. Millman, of Elliott & Marr, and J. P. Hickey, of Grafton's, attended Delaware fair on Wednesday last and had an immense time. A duck supper at Komoka wound up a most enjoyable outing.

During the latter part of last week oats were sold on the local market at the highest price ever known—$1.80 per cwt. As high as $18.75 was paid for hay. Horse owners are gathering autumn leaves for bedding.

Local grocers report the price of rolled oats and oatmeal to have advanced 25 per cent, and the increase has already gone into effect. Ten-cent goods now sell at 13 cents, or two packages for 25c. The higher priced articles advanced in proportion. Already the big grocery stores of this city have been notified that all breakfast foods, wheat and otherwise, will go up a few cents the first of next month. Dealers state that the high price of oats is responsible for the boost in oatmeal, but they do not attempt to explain the proposed raise in other grain foods. St. Thomas and other nearby places have suffered a raise of 50 per cent. on oat breakfast foods. It is expected by local grocerymen that another 25 per cent. advance in oatmeal will have to be made shortly. The increase affects both packed foods and those in bulk.

The prediction is made that the price of milk will go up to nine cents per quart before the winter is over, owing to the high price of fodder.

During the past week one local canning factory received seventy tons of pumpkins. The price paid has been $4 a ton, and the money made by the farmers on the deal, some $280, was not enormous, but in most cases it was a straight "pick-up." Usually a great number of pumpkins are left to rot on the fields. This year the canning factory's maw has taken all that could be brought in, and then has not been satisfied. Tomatoes also came in freely while the warmer weather lasted.

A new variety of fruit has made its appearance on the market and in stores about town, and by its remarkable resemblance to black cherries is causing some funny mistakes. The new fruit is called "garden huckleberries," and according to Vice-President Dearness, it is the berry of a variety of the nightshade.

What is arriving in London is grown by some farmers in the neighborhood of Mount Brydges. They state that the plant grows much like a tomato, but bears a heavy yield of the large black berries. The plants are grown from seed each year, and require but little attention. The resemblance to cherries has led a good many people to test the fruit uncooked, and the result is, to say the least, disappointing. Cooked, however, the fruit resembles black currants, and is said by housewives to make excellent pies.

Farmers around London do not appear satisfied with prevailing high prices for all commodities, but are resorting to short-weight methods in order that they might get rich quicker. Many complaints in this connection are made daily and the authorities have been asked to do something.

The Montreal correspondent this week takes up conditions as he has found them at Westmount, one of Montreal's suburban towns.

The question has arisen in Edmonton as to whether retailers are giving their business to the local wholesalers in preference to outsiders. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade, it was pointed out that unless this is done, Edmonton cannot occupy the position as a distributing centre, for which it is eminently fitted.

"Honesty Among Clerks." The Guelph correspondent has some observations on this subject that are worth reading.

Chatham, among other subjects, touches on the following: The rise in bread prices; the sugar beet as the staple crop of Kent County; Canadian fish for Canadians; window dressing; the 10 o'clock market bylaw; transient traders.

J. F. Cairns' new store in Saskatoon was opened with all honors.

MONTREAL.

Westmount, a suburb of Montreal, yet to all intents and purposes and for all a stranger can tell, part of the city, is a busy town in some ways. Rather, it is a city, for some ten thousand people reside there. It is not a hive of industry, however, but is more a residential place, and a centre of social activities.

There are about ten grocers in the town, but the grocery business does not appear to be the easiest road to wealth in Westmount. From what one can learn, it is very difficult to transact a paying business. It is simple and easy enough to sell groceries, and the best are called for, but when paying up time comes round everybody seems to be away from home. One grocer said that his years of experience made him believe that many of the residents of the town lived above their income. At any rate money seems to be much more scarce in Westmount trade circles that it is in Montreal itself, and who would say there is plenty of money obtainable in Montreal?

C. E. Box has a neat store on Sherbrooke St., near Victoria Ave., where he does a nice business. He has been there some five years or more. A. A. Perry, formerly ran a store on the same site. The latter gentleman, who recently gave up the grocery business, was one of the first to open up in Westmount, or Cote St. Antoine, as it was then known. Walter Paul had a branch at the corner of Greene Ave. and St. Catherine St. and Mr. Perry had been a clerk there. After the place was burned out he started himself. His successor is E. J. Quinn, a big Irishman, who appears to find selling groceries an easy task.

Wm. Elliott and Samuel Smith are two grocers who have grown up with Westmount. Their stores are within a stone's throw of one another, the former carrying on business at the corner of Green and Western Avenues, while the latter's store is on St. Catherine St., opposite Quinn's store. They have been at least ten or twelve years in the field. The largest store in Westmount is that of Dionne & Dionne, on St. Catherine St. Their staff is a big one, and the store is up-to-date in every particular. A butcher shop is run in connection with the grocery.

Wm. Biltcliffe has a store on Victoria Ave., while W. J. Falle has a place on Prince Albert Ave. Both do a nice trade. E. Gervais, J. H. Goter and Demers Bros. are the others. The last named firm is down on St. Antoine St. and are dependent for their success more upon Montreal, as they are on the outskirts of Westmount.

A great deal of apartment house trade comes the way of the Westmount grocers. Sometimes this is paying, again it is not. Transients frequently run up a bill for a week's groceries and leave their address without settling up. A good many are losing money in this way. Then, the regular slow-pays seem to be numerous. One grocer has at least $2,000 outstanding debts which he does not know how to collect.

Most Westmount grocers favor the early-closing movement. As far as The Grocer could learn, only one store remains open every evening. The majority close daily except Saturday at seven p.m., and some put up their shutters two evenings a week.

One thing which strikes a person forcibly in connection with the grocery stores in Westmount is their neat appearance, and the cleanliness of everything and everybody. There is a freshness, too, which seems to be in the air. Westmounters give a good deal more attention to the arrangement of their stock, and to window displays than do the city grocers. They believe in the trade-bringing power of the window and change their display frequently. At the moment E. J. Quinn has an attractive Balmoral Jam window, one which was dresesd by a clerk in the store. Several have windows advertising Fairbank's Sunny Monday soap. Others are giving particular attention to fruits.

There is a great deal of credit, in fact, the greater number of grocers do almost entirely a credit business, except for what transient trade they catch. All are forced to keep a set of books. Conditions are much different to what they are in Montreal, and it would be very difficult to transact a good cash business in Westmount.

Cash may gain a stronger hold later on, as the population increases. As one grocer said: "Westmount is growing, and while at one time we knew every one of our customers, to-day we cannot say we are acquainted with nearly all of them."

They are abreast of the times in Westmount. Already some are preparing for the Christmas trade. One grocer is getting in a large shipment, direct importation from an English confectionery manufacturer. Every fall he makes a specialty of fancy biscuits and confectionery, and says he does a fine business. The outlay is not large, when the quality of the goods purchased is taken into consideration.

It is too bad that more grocers do not take up confectionery at this time of year and push it vigorously, as it is a line which can be made to pay. Profits are large and the initial capital required for investment is not as great as that necessary to secure equal profits on many other lines.

Confections of quality, when nicely displayed and of moderate price, will always sell freely at this season.

SASKATOON.

The new addition to the J. F. Cairns' store on Twenty-first street, was opened on Friday night. About two hundred people responded to the invitation of J. F. Cairns, and attended the housewarming. The interior was nicely decorated and suitably arranged for the occasion, while the floor was in good shape. Jackson's orchestra attended and discoursed excellent music, which added greatly to the enjoyment of all present. The programme included 20 dances, besides extras, and those who took part in the light fantastic tripped along to their heart's content. Refreshments in the shape of cake and coffee were served to the guests during the evening, and choice Havanas were enjoyed by the gentlemen. Mr. and Mrs. Cairns, aided by their staff at the store, were untiring in their efforts on behalf of the large number of friends and patrons present.

The new annex is divided into two sections, one 42 feet by 75 feet, and the other 22 feet by 32 feet. The front portion is the grocery department, and the other is the boot and shoe section. The second floor will be occupied by the ladies' ready-to-wear and dressmaking departments.

The Heagle Cigar Co. have opened a factory here and have placed their goods on the market. They will manufacture three leaders, "The Hub," "The Onoto" and "The Saskatchewan Capital." amongst various other brands. They make a specialty of high-grade goods, and will control the local trade, besides doing an extensive outside business when their goods have become known. At present, with only a quarter of the staff they purpose putting on, they are turning out 2,000 cigars daily. This firm, which has a factory in Virginia, Minn., recently purchased the Regina cigar factory, also, and intend moving that part of their business here and making Saskatoon the distributing point.

Good butter and eggs are scarce. Only a few bananas are on the market, but fall apples, crabs and grapes are abundant.

QUEBEC.

The general grocery trade continues active and it is likely that fall trade will show a very satisfactory total on the books of the wholesale houses. A number of advances are noted this week. Barley pot and barley pearl are 30 cents higher and sell now at $2.75 and $3.75 per bag. Crown Brand syrups have advanced 15 cents per ten-pound tin. Davies' pure lard is 10 cents higher and quoted at $2.60. The same advance is remarked in prices of Ingersoll lard. Premier chocolate and breakfast cocoa have also advanced a few cents. A decrease is noted in Valencias, selected and layers. Cleaned currants are sold at 7 cents, showing a decline of one-fourth-cent. The retail trade is very good teas and sugars continue to be in good demand.

Despite the advance on canned goods, trade is more active than it has been for some weeks. Wholesale houses have registered good sales. Canned oysters are 5 cents higher and are quoted at $1.45 per dozen of 1-pound tins. Tomatoes, which were sold at from $1.17½ to $1.20, are now worth from $1.25 to $1.27½. Pears have advanced from $1.65 and $1.67½ to $1.90 and $2.10. Apples are 35 cents higher and are now sold at $3.25 for gallons. The only decline noted is for peaches which are now quoted at $2.35 per two-pound boxes.

A new milling company has just been formed in Quebec with a total capital stock of $10,000. The name of the company is "The Carrier Milling Company."

On account of the high prices and steady advance of flour, it is almost decided that bread will be two cents dearer next week in Quebec.

At a meeting of the Fire Committee the contract for fodder for the horses of the fire brigade was awarded to Colvin & Co., of Montreal. The other party tendering was C. A. Paradis, of Quebec.

There is an active demand for butter, cheese and eggs, but supplies are getting into very small compass. Prices are: Choice creamery butter, 28c to 29c per pound; second choice, 27½c to 28c; fresh dairy butter, 25c to 26c. Colored cheese is sold at 13c and 18⅛c and white cheese from 12⅞c to 13c. Fresh eggs are paid from 25c to 26c.

The fruit and vegetable trade is good. Large arrivals of apples came to hand this week. They are the first of the season and command the following prices: Greening apples, No. 1, are quoted at $3.75 per barrel; No. 2, $3.25; Russet, No. 1, $3.75; No. 2, $3.25; Spy, No. 1, $4.25; No. 2, $3.75. Red globe onions have advanced 25 cents and are sold at $3.50 per bag.

This week saw the first arrivals of eels, which are quoted at $7 per barrel. Trout is worth $13 per barrel and cod fish $6 for No. 1 and $5.50 for No. 2. Fresh fish is very scarce on the market and merchants are having a hard time getting supplies.

Lard is firmer and prices have advanced slightly. Business is reported brisk for the season of the year. Quotations are 14½c for small and from 13½c to 14c for large.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

J. D. Ryan has received a large shipment from Jacob & Co., the Dublin biscuit manufacturers. Mr. Ryan is one of the largest contributors to the exchequer of the country, his payments to the customs being larger than any other one house. He has the agency for some of the finest goods on the market and his stores are stocked with the very best. Mr. Ryan is a man whose word is worth one hundred cents to the dollar, and no man needs his note.

Baird, Gordon & Co., one of our progressive firms of fish exporters, are operating a large freezing plant for bait for their customers along the shore. They have over 50,000 squid in the freezer at present, and when bait is scarce, there is no telling the value these frozen squid will be to this firm's customers.

Cods' tongues, a very dainty morsel, are receiving a good deal of attention at Baird, Gordon & Co.'s freezer. If they can be shipped away in ice blocks the firm has a standing offer from New York to ship all they can get. One has to try a Newfoundland cod tongue well fried to realize what they are like.

Frank McNamara, one of our young wholesale merchants, has worked up a wonderful business in a short time, showing conclusively that a young man with energy, perseverance and attention to the wants of his trade, can, even in the face of the severe competition there is in this country, work up a big paying business. Mr. McNamara is one of those who believe in keeping in stock the goods his customers call for. He is also a firm believer in the merchant knowing what he wants when he sends his order in. His agencies are among the best, both American and Canadian. Mr. McNamara takes a trip away every year and thus keeps up with the times.

THE BEAN SITUATION IN KENT

(By The Grocer's special correspondent.)

There have been no very recent developments in the bean situation in Kent county. The one certain fact is that a high price has been reached, with rather small deliveries. The question is, will the price decline?

First, as to the extent of the crop. Last year's crop was, in round figures, 900,000 bushels. This includes the entire bean-growing area of the province, comprised, for the most part, within the counties of Essex, Kent, Lambton, Middlesex and Elgin. Early indications were that a larger acreage this year had been devoted to beans, and estimates of a crop from 100,000 to 600,000 bushels in excess of last year were freely hazarded. The big frost of July 2nd changed the entire aspect of affairs, however. Though the tales of universal and irredeemable disaster at first sent out were not justified, the bean crop was badly hit, and, after deducting the loss by frost, in some cases complete, in others partial, and after allowing for replanted beans coming to maturity, the crop of 1907 will total approximately 80 per cent of the crop of 1906, or, a little over 700,000 bushels.

Local dealers have been buying one-pound pickers at $1.60, with comparatively small deliveries.

In Detroit, cash beans, delivered this month, are $2.15 for choice hand-picked. But it is pointed out as significant that for November beans of the same grade the price quoted in $1.95, for December $1.89, and for January $1.88. Evidently the Michigan people think the price of beans will go down. The high price now is for immediate delivery. The Detroit prices are on beans that cost ten cents per bushel more to pick than Canadian picked beans, as they are picked so much more closely. They have also to be put up in cotton grain bags, and delivered in Detroit. The expense in Detroit for inspection, commission, etc., is about 5c per bushel, which, of course, reduces the price very largely to the farmers of Michigan.

But, while there may be a drop in price, there is little prospect that beans will go very low this year. The price quoted here, $1.60 for one-pound pickers, is a very fair one, and the dealers have no intention and apparently no desire to carry a very heavy stock at this figure. So far as can be judged, old beans have been pretty well picked up. A few are still held by the farmers, in hopes of the price going still higher, and there is little doubt that the same hope is actuating the farming community in holding the major portion of their 1907 crop. In fact, there is one man who has not only his 1906 crop, but likewise that of 1905, stored, together with his crop of this year, making a total of about 2,000 bushels, altogether. Dealers state, however, that they would hesitate very much to dabble in beans three years of age, in view of the prospect of a depreciation in quality, and consequently in value.

While it would be unwise to attempt to make a positive forecast at present, the general opinion is that, though beans may go a little higher yet, they will ultimately, and in the early future, fall below the present price. The fact that other crops, for which extra high prices were quoted, have already taken a slight downward trend, tends to confirm this expectation. Last spring there was, indeed, a prophecy that beans would jump to $2 this fall. If they do so, however, it will be a case where the unexpected comes to pass.

JOBBER VS. MANUFACTURER—WHICH IS RIGHT? SUBSTITUTION THE DESTRUCTION OF TRADE

The manufacturers of goods for the grocery trade more and more each year are going direct to the retailer with their wares, and more and more are ignoring the jobber. In the first place, there always have been jobbers who refused absolutely to have anything to do with goods which are not staple, or for which there is not a wide demand. Secondly, in recent years a great many jobbers have been going into manufacturing more or less extensively on their own account, or at least are having certain kinds of goods put up under their private labels.

The manufacturer points out that he was compelled to go direct to the retailer in the first place, because of the jobbers' refusal to handle his goods. He advertises and pushes his goods by various devices and in time builds up a direct business with the large retailers, on whom principally he concentrates his energies. By and by a demand for his goods begins to reach the small retailer.

Constant Fighting.

Partially, in retaliation, the jobbers a number of years ago, began to enter the manufacturing business on their own account. More and more they are coming to have brands of their own of many kinds of goods and with which they are seeking entirely to supplant other manufacturers' brands. Within the last few years, jobbers' associations have been formed all over the country, having for their principal purpose the destruction of the manufacturer who persists in selling direct to the retailer after his goods have acquired a foothold sufficient for the jobber to want to handle them. A few of them may be said to co-operate with the manufacturer, rather than antagonize him, giving their customers a free choice between their own brands and other manufacturers' goods.

Others will attempt persistently to have the retailer take the private brands instead of the goods he desires. Still others will substitute their own brands for goods which have been ordered, or, if they do not wish to go quite that length, will make the substitution of other goods than their own, which they have been carrying. This applies to orders received through their own salesmen. There are a few jobbers who do not give orders received from manufacturers' salesmen even this consideration. It is their practice to accept many of these orders which they have no intention of filling. They place the orders on file, beyond that utterly ignoring them, offering no explanation in any direction. The retailer, waiting patiently for his goods, feels that in some way the manufacturer is to blame.

Jobbers Losing Ground.

We believe the jobber who refuses to handle goods in any way until an unusual demand for them has been created, —perhaps not then—is losing ground. The retailer is practically forced to handle goods for which the manufacturer may have created a demand in his territory, and if he cannot get them through one jobber, he will go to another, no matter how close his own jobber may be to him. The minute a retailer does this, he begins to divide his trade —he has "broken the ice" of trading exclusively with one jobber or set of jobbers, and no one can tell of whom he will be buying goods in another year. It has been demonstrated to us repeatedly that the jobber who will handle or ship any goods for which there is a demand, even though he may have private brands of his own, stands much closer to the retail trade than the house which constantly tries to substitute private brands and refuses to handle any manufacturers' goods until practically compelled to do so.

A factor in the situation which cannot be ignored is the influence of this specialty or manufacturer's salesman, hundreds of whom all over the country constantly are lending their efforts in behalf of these jobbers who will ship any goods desired and against those who attempt to substitute. What the outcome of the entire situation will be is difficult to predict, although the present tendencies are plain enough—the jobber so far as he is able, is becoming a manufacturer; the manufacturer, on the other hand, is forced by the attitude of the jobber to become more and more a jobber of his own goods.

The establishment of a [illegible] jobbing business is a retaliatory measure which the manufacturer has not attempted yet, but which presents itself as a somewhat remote possibility.

LESSONS FROM THE WEST.

The Experiences of 1907 Will Be Invaluable in Years to Come.

The manager of one of the largest manufacturing companies in Winnipeg, writing to a friend in the East recently, expressed the opinion that the valuable experience gained by the conditions prevailing this year more than offset the difficulties and reversions with which the West has had to contend. He said also:

'I might say, in connection with the West that, we Western people, feel somewhat chagrined at the unfavorable reports, which, from time to time, have gone East relative to the conditions of the West. When the events of the year 1907 are taken into consideration; namely, the snow blockade, causing untold loss in the delay of deliveries of merchandise, along with the cold and backward season, as well as the large undertakings that were in course of construction, and also the unusual stringency in financial circles, we feel that all branches of trade have shown great resource and persistency in tiding over these difficulties.

"Notwithstanding all these reports, and the fact that our cereals will grade very much lower this year than last, the prices that we will obtain for these lower grades will be greater than those which we obtained for the highest grades in the year 1906.

"While collections have been exceptionally slow, and unusual renewing of paper the result, I am pleased to say, that this condition is easing considerably, and anticipate a general cleaning up of all outstanding liabilities as soon as threshing is complete, and wheat movement becomes general.

"Our experience has not been without its lessons, in view of the fact that a halt has been called on a great many 'wildcat' speculative propositions. Merchants also have been taught the lesson that those engaged in mercantile pursuits have no licence to speculate in real estate on margins, and the greatest lesson is that the retail merchants through pressure being brought to bear upon them by the wholesale houses are insisting on payment of old accounts as well as recent indebtedness on the part of the farmer, so as to enable them to reduce to a mimimum their liabilities with the jobber.

"While not wishing to be too optimistic, I feel that the results of 1907 will be looked back upon as a general stock-taking on the part of all the inhabitants of this Western country, and the experience gained will stand us in good stead for many years to come."

INSURANCE COMPANIES ORGANIZE.

The two insurance companies which have been organized to do business with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, are now in a position to issue policies. These companies, which are mutual organizations, are called the Eastern Company and the Western Company, respectively.

The following appointments have been made:

Eastern Canada Company—Head office rooms, 10½ Board of Trade building, Montreal; Col. J. H. Burland, President; R. R. Samuel, Secretary.

Central Canada Company—Head office rooms, 628-632 Traders' Bank building, Toronto. Mr. P. H. Burton, President; B. L. Anderson, Secretary.

Mr. Wiliam Lauder, for some time secretary of the Sprinkler Department of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, and presently engaged as chief inspector of the New York Underwriters' Agency, Toronto, has been engaged as automatic sprinkler expert and inspector, and will commence his new duties at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. E. P. Heaton, the manager of the Insurance Department of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, has been elected to represent them on the Board of Directors of both companies. Mr. Heaton will continue to occupy the position he has filled during the past three years.

NEW WAREHOUSE AT MONCTON.

Grass & Dawson, Moncton, N.B., are erecting an up-to-date, commodious warehouse, of brick and concrete construction, at the rear of their present premises on Main Street. The warehouse is constructed on a siding of the I.C.R. and will, when completed, give ample room for the handling of the firm's growing trade.

CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH CANADA MAY CONTROL THE ENGLISH BACON MARKET

An Interview With W. H. Barnes, Head of the Canadian Packing Company in London, England.

W. H. Barnes, of London, England, head of the Canadian Packing Company, was in London, Ontario, this week. Mr. Barnes has for some weeks been looking into the conditions and possibilities of the provision trade in Canada, and has been in touch with large farmers, hog and cattle raisers, and the leading cheese-makers. In the course of an interview with The Canadian Grocer, he said:

"From a thorough study of conditions in Canada, I am persuaded that there will be a sharp rise before long in the prices of all cereals and foodstuffs. Beef will reach a figure never known before, and the cities will feel the pinch severely. My idea of it is that there has been too much of a rush to the cities and towns, and that the solution can only come through a return to the farm, the foundation of Canada's trade and prosperity."

Mr. Barnes has been looking into business possibilities in the interests of his company. His conclusion is that hog prices are too high, and that Canadian packers as a body could not possibly exist were it not for the home trade. To develop this home trade is therefore desirable, and Mr. Barnes states that the Canadian Packing Co. have under consideration the establishing of branch stores throughout the principal cities and towns of Ontario, where their products will be handled. The success which has attended their store in London, Ont. has been one influence in determining upon this step. The company also intend making some alterations to their factory, but will not enlarge their refrigerating plant until after the winter.

"It was due to the efforts of Sir John Carling that we were induced to settle here fifteen years ago," said Mr. Barnes. "We were offered various inducements to settle elsewhere, but declined all these and settled in London, where we have the advantages of both railways. We have lately extended our business to Port Huron, where we are doing a business of from 1,000 to 1,500 hogs weekly for purely local trade. This is our first American factory.

The Old Country Market.

"I am afraid that Canada will never control the English bacon market under present conditions," he continued. "Last week this country killed 29,000 hogs for export, Denmark killed 42,000, and Ireland 3,000. The Danish and Irish bacon will be on the London market fourteen days after the killing, the Canadian requires six weeks. The result is that we have to figure on a market six weeks away. If Canada wants to obtain the reins of the bacon market in England, the example of the cheese men will have to be followed, and the market studied. Breed the class of hogs demanded in the British market. The present system of buying is erratic. It doesn't give the farmer any idea of what the English merchants want, and the same price is paid alike for good and bad."

Mr. Barnes states that the weight of hog required is from 160 to 200 pounds, and that it would mean much to the trade if the farmers would breed this class of hog. He, however, believes that the price of foodstuffs is in part responsible for the light weights, and advises the growing of more foodstuff on the farms. "When the farmers recognize the importance of growing hogs to the correct weight, they will have more money in their pocket," was his view of the situation.

Government Inspection.

Mr. Barnes is a thorough believer in government inspection of cattle as a safeguard against tuberculosis and allied diseases, but hopes the government will protect the packers against arbitrary inspectors.

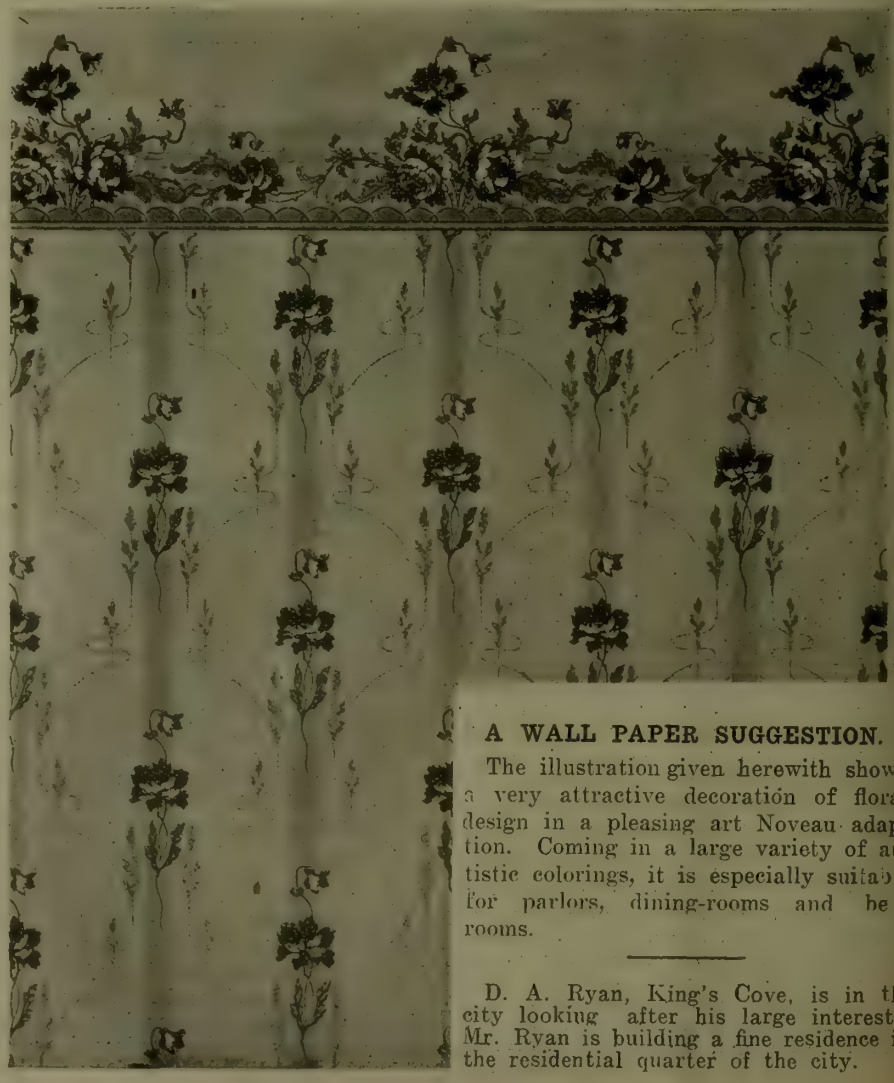
While in Canada, Mr. Barnes has made arrangements to handle Canadian cheese in large quantities. Fifteen years ago, he says, the London representatives of his firm represented the famous Allengrove cheese combination, controlled by D. McPherson, of Lancaster, Ont., and handled 3,000 boxes weekly. Mr. McPherson is now chief inspector of dairy products and has given Mr. Barnes introductions to various large cheese firms whose products the Canadian Packing Co. will handle.

GOLD MEDAL FOR SOAP CO.

The Standard Soap Co., Ltd., Calgary, Alberta, manufacturers of Golden West Soap, were successful in obtaining the gold medal at the New Westminster Fair, for the best display and quality of their various products. This is the second year in succession that they have obtained the highest award at British Columbia's annual fair, and is evidence of the rapid progress that this company has made in the west. Considering that their factory has been in operation less than two years, their success is remarkable. Apart from their laundry soaps they have now a very large toilet soap business, comprising over 30 different varieties.

The Standard Brokerage Co., Ltd., Vancouver, B.C., have the agency for this company in British Columbia.

W. S. Laflamme, of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, is receiving the sympathy of his many friends in the trade on the loss of his father, who died in Morrisburg. Mr. Laflamme returned from the funeral early this week.



A WALL PAPER SUGGESTION.

The illustration given herewith shows a very attractive decoration of floral design in a pleasing art Noveau adaption. Coming in a large variety of artistic colorings, it is especially suitable for parlors, dining-rooms and bed-rooms.

D. A. Ryan, King's Cove, is in the city looking after his large interests. Mr. Ryan is building a fine residence in the residential quarter of the city.

MERIT OR POLITICAL PULL.

The postmastership of Toronto is still vacant, and there is a scramble among politicians for the place. It has hitherto been given as a reward for political service, and under Sir William Mulock and some of the present permanent officials, the post office has been used to a more or less extent as a political machine. The consequence is that the entire service is in a most inefficient state which will tax all the energies of the present Postmaster-General to put in a satisfactory condition.

Business men who have influence with the Government should urge that this appointment should go as a promotion to some of the permanent officials and not to a politician. The United States Postmaster-General has recently set an excellent example in this respect, and he had harder prejudices to overcome than the Postmaster-General of Canada will have. In the States nearly all public appointments are given as the reward for political service, and when a change of Government takes place, it is followed by a complete reorganization of the entire public service. The New York postmastership is one of the most important in the world, has large salary and perquisites, yet it has been given to one of the permanent officials, a man who began in the post office as a postman over thirty years ago.

The efficiency of the service demands that a similar policy should be followed in Toronto. There are, no doubt, many young men among even the postmen who could fill the position with greater success than any politician who can be appointed. The efficiency of the service demands some plan of steady promotion of deserving men, the men who do their work better than their fellows. If a country postmaster or a postman show ability, they should be given the first vacancies in the higher ranks, In this way a young man may begin in a country store post office and rise step by step to be postmaster in one of the big cities and end as Deputy or even Postmaster-General. This is the right system, and when it comes we will have a much more efficient service.

CASH VS. CREDIT.

Our correspondent in Ingersoll recently wrote us as follows:

"The question of cash versus credit, which has already been touched upon by some Grocer correspondents, is one of long standing, and a difficult one to solve. Many an assignment has been traceable to the credit system, and, on the other hand, many a success is attributable to the same system. As to the practicability of the strictly cash system, this is undoubtedly governed by the local conditions and the line of business. Observation very often reveals a singular fact in this connection—that some merchants will make a success out of a strictly cash trade where others would fail on the credit basis. The judgment of the merchant, to my mind, must be regarded as being an important factor. He should study his customers closely and guard against large accounts.

"It is surely better business to refuse a customer and have the goods on the shelf, than to take chances when one is dubious and eventually be the loser. Merchants are in business for their living, not their health, and when they are satisfied that a customer belongs to the "no pay" ranks, they should have backbone enough to refuse him. But to take up the question of an entirely cash business. This is probably more applicable to the dry goods and other lines than it is to the grocery business. Groceries are everyday necessities, and, owing to the irregularity with which orders are sometimes given, it would be almost impossible to insist upon the cash every time. The telephone is also a great business-getter, for the grocer, which is another reason why the dealer cannot insist on having the cash. It may be an entirely new customer at the 'phone, about whom the grocer knows nothing. The money, he is told will be sent in during the day, and not later than Saturday night. What can the grocer do but take a chance on getting his money, and, in the meantime, make enquiries. In the small towns, especially, I agree with the Pembroke correspondent that it is impossible to insist upon the cash system. Many dealers are paid every week or every two weeks; occasionally only once a month, and they regard this system in much the same light as cash. It is cash to them so long as they know they will not lose.

"Financing in the average home nowadays, is no easy problem. There are times with most people when funds are low, and to be refused an order simply because they could not pay at the time, would likely have a disastrous effect on the dealer. What the dealers need is plenty of judgment and the inclination and ability to ascertain the responsibility of the persons to whom credit is given. In many lines of business where the sales run into a large amount and the articles purchased are luxuries, there is no reason why the cash should not be forthcoming, as they should not be purchased unless the buyer is prepared to pay for them, but with groceries, which comprise the staples of life, it is vastly different."

NEEDLESS KNOCKING.

Western Canada has had to stand much needless and senseless knocking during the last six months, and the fact that it has survived this experience with so little hurt is the best proof of its stability. It is now possible to estimate the real situation, with a fair degree of accuracy, and everyone knows now that there is no reason for alarm. The crop is smaller than last year, but it is worth quite as much money, while the expense of handling it is much smaller than last year. Moreover, being a small crop, it can be handled promptly by the railways, and the farmer wil get his money with very little delay. This has been an unfavorable year the world over, but in spite of adverse circumstances, the West has come through it remarkably well.

The knockers were wrong, but they did their utmost to make trouble. Surely the experience of this year will go a long way towards discounting their pessimism in years to come.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Beans—Advanced.
Coffees—Firmer.
Dairy Produce—Higher.

Montreal, Oct. 24. 1907.

Fall trade is becoming quite brisk as the holiday season approaches, and from now on wholesalers expect to be kept pretty busy shipping orders of goods required for the Christmas trade and New Year trade. The jobbers are handicapped in their efforts to please retail customers to a great extent by the fact that many lines which are imported are late in arriving. They are doing the best they can, however. Suger is unchanged at last week's prices, demand being good. Refiners do not anticipate any price changes at the time of writing. Teas are exceedingly firm, and holders feel that they have good value in any teas they possess, even though they be of the cheapest quality—and few cheap lines are obtainable to-day at good buying prices. Canned goods are moving from packer to wholesaler, and thence to the retail man. Corn, peas and tomatoes, first shipments, have been received. Syrups are selling freely. Molasses is quiet. Valencia raisins are firm, while Californias are somewhat easier, as packers on the Coast realize that they must lower quotations a little if they are to get any share in this year's trade. Valencia raisins are so much cheaper than the American that everybody is buying them in preference. New York has this year bought four times as many boxes of Valencias as in former seasons, just because California raisins are too high. Nuts are steady. Beans continue to advance and very high prices rule to-day. Coffees are firmer. Spices continue easy. Dairy produce is still advancing, with the exception, perhaps, of cheese, which is steady.

Payments are average to good.

SUGAR—There has been a steady consumptive demand for sugar at unchanged prices. It does not appear at the moment as though there would be any change one way or the other in prices.

TEA—Teas continue very strong and scarce. Japans are firmer than they have yet been, and lower grades are not obtainable in many instances, even at high prices. The market in London seems to be firm also, as teas on which bids were made from Montreal at certain prices, were advanced before actual sale. According to figures received in Montreal exports of tea from Japan up to Sept. 30 this year amount to 20,705,084 pounds, against 19,421,340 pounds for the same period last year. This increase does not necessarily mean that shipments from Japan this year will be more than last, because while a year ago considerable stocks were held. This season everything is being shipped out of the country.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—The markets are firm as a whole. First shipments of this year's Valencia raisins continue to arrive and are of excellent quality. Some dealers are expecting to do a good trade in Malaga raisins. Currants are slightly easier this week. The Jacona, the second direct Mediterranean vessel, laden with 550 tons of currants, has left Cadiz, her last port of call, and is due here Nov. 10. The total shipments of currants to all points from Greece this year up to Oct. 1 amount to 47,984 tons, as against 49,465 tons for the same period last year. A decrease of 1,481 tons. Total shipments of currants direct to Canada up to Oct. 1st. amount to 1,710 tons, as against 1,476 tons for same period last year, an increase of 234 tons. A feature of this years' trade in dried fruits is the increase in the amount of Valencia raisins shipped to New York. Last year there were between 25,000 and 30,000 boxes shipped to that market, as against over 100,000 boxes so far this year. The cause of this is the big increase in prices asked by the packers for California raisins, despite the reports of an abundant crop. There has been a slight drop in Californias, which are now quoted at 8c. for fancy, and 7¾c. for choice Coast prices.

Walnuts are very late, there will probably be none in New York for Thanksgiving, while locally they will be very late for holiday trade. Tarragona almonds are back to old prices, having fully recovered from their recent drop. Owing to their inability to raise money for buying purposes, some California houses are at a loss to fill orders for prunes, which were booked months ago.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—First shipments of corn, peas, and tomatoes are being received by local wholesalers, who are in turn sending them to their customers. Canned goods lines, generally, are quiet, and after new goods have been entirely delivered, interest in this market will not be great.

TORONTO—Demand is strong for all lines, but the exact percentage of delivery on orders which will be made by the canners, cannot at present be determined. Prices on catsup are not yet announced.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
All prices firm and high.
Canadian Fruit—About exhausted.
Grapes—Frost damaged.
Teas—Very low stocks.
Sugar—Steady.

Toronto, Oct. 25, 1907.

The wholesale grocery markets are less active this week, due partly to the fact that the present time is a between-seasons period for many lines, and partly because not only these lines, but most others, are harder to find than the Lost Chord. Retailers are finding it difficult to get any article that they can offer to their customers without apologizing for the price that goes with it. Some of them have fairly heavy stocks, that have been bought at comparatively low prices, but these are the fortunate ones, and are not disposed to do much price-cutting under the circumstances.

"It is daily becoming more and more evident," said a well-posted merchant the other day, "that retailers, in their transactions, have been of two classes—speculators, who bought in excess of their needs, or conservatives, who did not buy at all and are now wishing they had. The jobber is naturally with the under dog and is straining every nerve to help out the unfortunate who failed to get under cover. It is an almost impossible task in most lines, and when the efforts buck up against prohibitive prices, the jobbers are generally reaching a decision that it may pay to wait a few weeks and see how the consumer will stand the prevailing quotations. If consumption ceases, holders of goods are likely to weaken."

All teas are in very small compass, and it is safe to say that no large stocks of any kind are held on this market. Coffee is quiet, the fluctuations in New York during the past week not having affected the situation here. Sugar is unchanged in price under a quiet demand. Syrups are moving out fairly well, the inquiry for molasses being about nominal Currant shipments from Greece to all points tup to Oct. 1st of this year show a decrease of nearly 1,500 tons from the similar period of 1906, though the exports to Canada alone show an increase of 234 tons for the same period. Walnut prices in New York are higher than they have been in years, the situation in that market being almost without a parallel, both by reason of the high prices, and because the outlook for early November shipments of new crop walnuts has never before been so unfavorable. Spices are dull and unchanged. The bean crop is coming in slowly, but a considerable proportion yet remains to be pulled, It is thought that the farmers are holding onto stocks with the view of keeping up the high prices and perhaps securing a further advance.

TEA—Nothing of particular moment has transpired during the week. A plausible explanation of the recent advance on all grades of India and Ceylon teas from 8d per pound down, which has been puzzling the local market is embodied in a report from the controlling centre received early in the week, which says: "The gradually improving tone of the past few auctions has culminated in a sharp advance in prices for all descriptions up to 8d per pound, the activity being especially marked in medium teas, which have for so long been selling at a low figure. With the total deliveries continuing to show a falling off compared with last year, this movement at first sight does not appear easy to explain, but an examination of the statistical portion reveals the fact that for the nine months ending 30th September, the imports, in spite of the comparatively high market for common tea prevailing throughout, were some two and a half millions less than in 1906, while clearances were about one and a half million pounds smaller, thus indicating that supply has been hardly level with demand. As regards medium teas, the better enquiry has every justification for the average of Assams to date this season is nearly ½d per pound below last year. The future tendency of the market is, of course, largely dependent on the total Indian crop available for the United Kingdom, and if this proves to be about the same as last season, the present general basis of values seems justified." The same report goes on to say: "Board of Trade returns continue to record a satisfactory rate of deliveries for home consumption, although re-exports were some 1,500,000 pounds less than last year, the falling off being again chiefly on Russian account. It may be noted that, in spite of advices of a shortage of only two millions in Indian shipments to this country to 31st August, the actual deficiency landed here to the end of last month was over 6,000,000 pounds."

COFFEE—Coffee has fluctuated considerably on the New York market during the past week. On Wednesday of last week it dropped 5 points. The total sales on this day were 14,500 bags, the market closing easy. The day following options opened higher, May, June and July being up 10 points, and the other months gaining 5 points over the previous day's close. The market closed quiet with a business for the day of 15,250 bags. On Friday trading was slow, March and December showing most activity. The closing prices were unchanged on January, August and September, and down 5 points on all the other months. On Saturday the market broke badly, options opening with prices down 10 to 15 points, closing prices showing a decline of 5 points on March, April, October and November, and a drop of 10 points on the other months. The day's business was 23,000 bags.

The election to the Presidency of the State of Sao Paulo, Brazil, of Dr. Albuquerque Luis, the present Secretary of Finances, has met with general approval from the supporters of the coffee valorization scheme. Dr. Luis having been the prime mover and principal supporter of that movement in the state, of which he has been elected president. In selecting him for this high office, the people of Brazil have at the same time given a very clear indication of their own feelings in regard to the valorization. The other candidate was Dr. Campos Salles, a former president of Brazil, and a prominent man in the affairs of the country, and in electing Dr. Luis over the head of so formidable a competitor, the country has declared itself to be practically unanimously in favor of the valorization.

Willett & Gray, reviewing the situation say:

"The position of mild coffee is exceedingly strong. The price of Bogotas has advanced to 14 cents, and interior Javas to 20 cents. It is claimed by parties well informed that the present crops of mild coffees will yield much less than any of the previous crops of the past 20 years. This is certainly remarkable and fully confirms that apart from the Santos coffee districts, there has been a distinct decline in coffee production, instead of an increase, and without the occasional large Santos crops, like 1901-02 and 1906-07, the price of coffee would be on as high levels as during the 10 years from 1886 to 1896. The only place in the world where coffee culture keeps pace with consumption is in San Paulo, and it is in the interests of the coffee trade the world over that it is kept up, otherwise there would be nothing to stand in the way of coffee prices going up from double to treble of present figures.

"The trade continues buying cautiously from hand to mouth and assures a sound position thereby. Even with this careful buying the deliveries from the seaports to the interior for the first four months of the season will be considerably in excess of the same period last season."

SUGAR—Prices are still unchanged, with Acadia 10c below the average basis. There is a quiet and even demand for refined, but not such as to cause any immediate likelihood of a change. A fair demand is reported throughout the States, but business is on a purely hand-to-mouth basis, actual consumption being largely met by withdrawals under old contracts. The same report states that important revisions of the selling methods have been made in the Western States.

"Up to the present," it says, "the selling value of beet granulated refined has been considered as from 10c per 100 lbs. to 30c per 100 lbs. below the selling value of cane granulated, although such a large difference as 20c to 30c has been known not to exist in intrinsic merits. The present crop of beet granulated will, therefore, be sold at Kansas City and eastward at a difference of 10c per 100 lbs. below the basis of the American Sugar Refining Co.'s selling basis at New York. For Denver and westward, where prices are governed by San Francisco quotations, the difference is now 20c per 100 lbs. for beet granulated below cane granulated, and subject to variations."

Willett & Gray, reviewing the situation in raws, said of the week ending Oct. 14:

"Local markets and conditions are ignored for the moment and all attention is directed to the European sugar markets as influenced by the maturing beet crops.

"The week opened with beet sugar at 9s. 8½d., declining to 9s. 4½d. at the close with contracts quoted at 9s. 3¾d. for November, 9s. 4d. for October-December, 9s. 6¾d. for January-March, and 9s. 8d. for May. The latter are at or near the low point at which purchases would seem advisable. The decline noted is the direct result of the very favorable weather for maturing the crops and in anticipation of a quite full crop estimate by Mr. F. O. Licht now due."

This estimate is now to hand, but does not come up to the expectations of the report just given. It places the outturn at 6,580,000 tons, which is 130,000 tons less than the actual outturn of last year. The principal decrease is said to be in Russia.

DRIED FRUITS—The Jacoma is expected in Montreal about Nov. 10 with a full cargo of Mediterranean fruits, of which over 500 tons are reported to be currants. A report on the New Persian date crop is just to hand. It says:

"The critical period of the crop is always just at the time when it is ripening, which is the later part of August, and early in September. This year the weather was exceedingly hot, which is very favorable, and the dates, therefore, are fully matured and of excellent quality. The crop of Halowis, however, is acknowledged to be 50 per cent. smaller than last season; our agent advising in one of his recent letters that in some groves there were practically no Hallowis obtainable. The crop of Khadrawis is also smaller than last year. Sayers are about the same. The heavy demand for the better grades of dates, and the shortness of the crop, have forced prices this year considerably above those of last season, and naturally people must be prepared for a higher range of prices on dates, especially Hallowis, this season. This, however, will be more than offset by the great improvement in the quality. Our agents state that the fards will be of excellent quality, and the crop conditions have all been favorable."

Opening prices on new crop Persian dates to arrive in New York some time this week, have been fixed at 5½c on Standard Hallowsss, 4¾c for Khadrawees, and 4½c for Sairs. The comparative figures for last year on the same brands were considerably lower, quotations being 4⅜c to 4¾c on Hallowees, and 4¼c to 4⅝c on Khadrawees, and 4½c on Sairs.

NUTS—The walnut situation is rapidly assuming an acute stage. Importers are agreed in saying that it is unprecedented. Walnuts in the shell are higher than they have been in years, and the prospects for new crop walnuts for early November shipments from abroad have not been so unfavorable in the last ten years. Some idea of the extraordinary strength of the market may be gathered from the fact that one lot of 500 bags of Cornes walnuts changed hands on the New York market recently four times in ten days, each seller netting a profit of from ¼c to ½c. The last sale brought 11½c.

"In cables from France," says a report, "walnuts there withdrew offerings for first half of November shipment on Marbots, Grenobles and Cornes walnuts. One advice stated that shippers in some instances have sold short, and others are finding it difficult to secure stock from growers at some advance over the early opening basis. The local interest in new crop nuts is centered in the first shipments of Naples, and some goods now in transit and due are meeting sale at 14c laid down in New York."

Importers in New York have not as yet made any prices on Grenoble walnuts to arrive.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The Sieward Milling Company writes the following review of the rice situation from New Oreleans:

"With a continuance of good weather, threshing will shortly resume and become general. The crop has been greatly damaged in quality; how much in quantity we hope soon to ascertain, as we are making a close personal investigation of the entire belt. That there will be an immense amount of low grade and damaged rice offering shortly is a foregone conclusion, and with the restrictive demand and the tendency of the trade to use a better quality we anticipate lower prices in this direction. We are imbued with the fact, however, that choice rices will comamnd the attention and prove attractive to buyers at an advance over

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday Oct. 24, 1907.)

An active demand is reported for practically all lines of general groceries, excepting canned goods. The price of these latter is so high that orders are being cut in half and it is probable that although the jobbing houses have been unable to get the supplies they ordered, they will have enough of most lines to tave care of their trade.

The wheat crop is now beginning to move in considerable volume and the effect on collections is already being felt. High prices are saving the situation.

CANNED GOODS — Practically all lines of canned goods are now in stock, with the exception of gooseberries and gallon and 2-lb. apples. The high range of prices is killing the canned goods business and there is much dissatisfaction among all branches of the trade. We quote:

LOSSES IN GROCERIES.

Fire Underwriters Declare Wholesale Grocery Risks Unprofitable.

It is a moot question whether wholesale groceries make good risks. Many still contend that they do ,even in the face of the heavy losses that have occurred in this class during the last four years. Many prominent fire underwriters have pointed out that the premiums from this class of risk are not in proportion with recent losses, and in proof of this assertion submit the following startling list of the more expensive wholesale grocery fires from March, 1904 to September, 1907, compiled from the fire record of the Journal of Commerce:

DO YOU WANT A NEW CUSTOMER?

A resident of the United States is looking for some place to locate a summer home, and has asked The McLean newspapers for advice. They want, they say, one in which they can live from May to November, preferably in Canada, near a lake, if possible, and within easy reach of good trout fishing, not nearer to a post office and telegraph station than twelve miles, nor farther than forty, nor too far north to prevent raising vegetables for their own use. If they could find trout, partridge, or pheasants and deer, elk or moorse, each in its own season, so much the better. They desire to build a comfortable log house and would need one for the man and his wife whom they would have there the year round.

The family is well known and highly respected in the public and social life in the United States and in Great Britain, where they at one time had a temporary residence. Being also wealthy, they would become valuable customers for the retail trade in any locality where they may decide to settle. If any of our readers or Boards of Trade have a place that fills the requirements described above, will they kindly send particulars to the editor for transmission?

Whale oil is quite a little higher in price, and as the stocks in Europe are low, it looks as though the whaling factories may pay expenses this year and have something over.

Notice to Canadian Importers and Merchants

The Harbor Commissioners of Montreal take pleasure in announcing that the upper stories of the first group of seven of the permanent sheds in the Harbor of Montreal are far enough advanced to place them at the disposal of Canadian Merchants and Importers of large consignments of salt, cement and other cargo suitable for storage.

This adds at once 350,000 square feet of space to the already enlarged handling facilities in the central part of the Harbor and ought to go far towards relieving the fall congestion.

FREE STORAGE

By arrangement, therefore, with shipping companies, and subject to permit of the Harbor Commissioners this splendid additional space becomes available and storage can be arranged for this autumn for consignments, which will be allowed to remain until the end of the year free of charge.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The feeling in cheese lately has been somewhat easier, and prices have been fairly steady, with a weaker tendency noticeable at times. The make has been very good, considering the season, while export trade has been quite satisfactory. It will be noticed that the shipments last week were nearly 25,000 boxes in excess of what they were for the same period in 1906. Gradually the total shipments for the season are creeping up to the level of last year's exports, and it now begins to look as though there might be some chance of an equal quantity being shipped.

Dealers would not be surprised to see lower prices, but they are firm at present quotations. For finest western cheese they are asking between 13¼c and 13⅜c, which figures may be reduced within the next few days, as, while holders are not anxious to let go, they are sometimes induced to sell the best they have under the ⅜ mark. Townships are bringing 13⅛c to 13¼c, but the latter figure is considered a good price to pay to-day. Quebec cheese is offering around 12⅞c. For October make an extra ⅛c can be obtained in most instances.

Not a great deal of attention is being paid to local trade by large dealers, as they are having their hands full looking after their export interests. Retail grocers find the present figures high, and they are not buying except for immediate requirements, that is, with the exception of those who must have a certain amount of cheese and who will buy, no matter what the price.

During the week ending Saturday last 69,668 boxes of cheese were received in Montreal, against 73,891 boxes for the same period last year. Total receipts for the season amount to 1,839,397 boxes, against 2,033,168 boxes for the same period in 1906.

Exports during the week amounted to 84,326 boxes, against 60,532 boxes shipped same week last year. Total shipments for the season so far amount to 1,726,424 boxes, against 1,930,331 boxes for the same period in 1906.

Whether or not there will be a scarcity of butter this winter is what dealers are cogitating at present. From indications, butter will not be sufficiently plentiful to supply the demands of the trade. Stocks held are not large, estimated in the neighborhood of 60,000 packages, and receipts are not satisfactory. Meanwhile prices are firm and advancing almost every few days. To-day there is a fairly good range offered, from 28c, in some instances, to 29½c. It is around 29c that sales are made. Export business last week was nil, not a package leaving Montreal for the other side. Same week a year ago 7,066 packages were shipped. Our prices are too high to interest Old Country buyers. There is little worry, however, about the trade with Great Britain, as it is almost impossible to supply the demand in Canada.

Some small lots of foreign butter have already found their way into this market. Some Irish factory butter has been sold, but it is not up to the quality desired here, being pale in color, and poor in quality. It is understood that several fair-sized lots of Irish, Siberian and New Zealand butter are on the water now, bound for Canada. The receipt of these parcels will help to relieve the situation somewhat.

Everybody wants Canadian butter and grocers would rather pay a higher price for it, and secure a stock, than take the imported article at better figures. The increase in demand in Canada this year has been wonderful. The export trade since the opening of navigation has been very small, only 66,761 packages having been shipped, against 353,459 packages for the same period in 1906. Dealers have devoted their whole attention to the wants of home customers, and beyond following the English market, have barely taken notice of England this season.

Dairy butter continues exceedingly scarce, and another advance is to be recorded this week. To-day it is impossible to obtain good dairy under 25c or 26c, the figures at which first-class creamery was selling but a short few weeks ago.

Receipts last week were 8,188 packages, against 10,014 packages same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 were 353,087 packages, against 544,662 packages same period in 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

With conditions that at last enable him to get his product across the water, and break level on the transaction—perhaps even make a little money—and with prospects looking brighter every day, it is no wonder that the packer is feeling convalescent this week and is beginning to sit up and take notice For the first time in almost two months Canadian hogs are bringing as bacon in the Old Country a price commensurate with profitable handling. Best is quoted around 60s., and though the present cost is not far below this, there is sufficient margin to prevent actual loss, which, comparatively speaking at any rate, must be regarded as satisfactory. The advance and present strong market in the Old Country is attributable to the light receipts of American bacon, which for the week under review, have been 9,500 boxes—or about 5,500 below normal. Prices offering for American bacon were evidently lower than the cost of the hogs, and the packers refused to export their product at a loss. Domestic consumption in Canada has unfortunately not yet attained that strength per capita which will place our packers in the same enviable position.

Danish deliveries on the English market were the same last week as the week before, 36,000, and the energetic Danes promise 40,000 for the first two weeks of November. It is doubtful whether the consumptive capacity of English men, mighty bacon-eaters as they are, is keeping pace with the consistently increasing quantity of the Danish product that is every week marketed in their country. If it is not, it means just so much more American or Canadian or Irish bacon crowded out to make room for it.

The packers are paying this week the somewhat stiff price of $6.10 to $6.15 f.o.b. depending on localities and $6.35 fed and watered. The domestic situation is very strong, Canadian cuts moving out freely under a heavy consumptive demand.

The hog markets on the other side have been unsettled, following the grain markets and other speculative interests. The New York Journal of Commerce, in their weekly review of the American situation, say:

"The past week has witnessed a reversion in the speculative feeling that was gaining ground the previous week on the bull side of the market. The opening prices, however, were firmer with grain, but lasted only a day or two, with more activity in the options, only to be turned down with the grain markets after middle week and dragged down by Wall Street conditions and fear of a tighter money market. This was in face of continued good export demand for lard, which had cleaned up the light production in the East and Middle West and left exporters to draw on Chicago for their supply, home consumption having cleaned up the outside markets, as more pure lard is used under the new Government inspection. Exporters also came in midweek for bacon at the West for the first time in weeks, but towards the close the trouble in Wall Street scared both exporters and speculators out of the market, leaving it to decline under packers' selling and liquidation by outside longs, both in October and January, in which there was a moderate speculative interest. The local market was also cleaned out of bellies, and nothing could be had except jobbing lots, as no stocks were held here and current production is light. Hams have dragged both in demand and prices, though an attempt was made at the West to force them up in sympathy with the speculative list early in the week, but did not succeed."

Total arrivals of butter in Great Britain for 1907 are expected to be smaller than they have been for many years.

BUTTER—The butter market continues to climb, a cent advance all round being noted this week. The fact that consumers at the head of the lakes are laying in a supply before the close of navigation is, perhaps, as much responsible for the advance as any other factor, though scarcity is, of course, the primary cause.

MILK SUPPLY.

The scarcity of milk at the present time provides the grocery man with opportunities for introducing condensed milk and evaporated cream to many consumers, whose attitude is sometimes one of indifference to preserved milks, while the fresh article is freely obtainable. The proprietors of the "Butterfly" brand of "Condensed Milk," "Evaporated Cream," "Unsweetened Milk," and "Thick, Rich Cream," are drawing the attention of the Canadian trade to their products, and their agents in Hamilton and Winnipeg report increasing sales of these lines, showing that the use of condensed milk is on the increase. Fussell & Co., proprietors of these brands, have several factories in the highlands of Norway and Austria, and their export trade has assumed large proportions. They have been shipping to Newfoundland for some years, their goods having been recently introduced to the Canadian trade. Their products are all first-class and have been put through several tests in proof of quality. The British Government contracts for large quantities of this milk, yearly, and the German and Norwegian Governments have also made contracts for supplies. John W. Bickle & Greening, of Hamilton, are agents in Ontario, and Carman, Escott & Co., of Winnipeg, look after the trade in the West.

LARGEST TEA SHIPMENT.

Chas. H. McDonald, one of St. John's N.B., tea importers, has just received a shipment of 945 half-chests of Formosa, China teas. This is possibly the largest shipment of teas of this kind brought into St. John this year.

Clark's Canned Meats

One reason why my canned meats enjoy such a reputation for quality lies in the fact that I do nothing in my factory but cook and pack meats.

All animals are slaughtered at public slaughter houses; are then inspected by city inspectors and have then to pass my own Inspector.

I am therefore doubly certain that the meats I pack are the best offered on the Canadian market.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Flour and Cereal Mills Working Overti me to Catch Up On Orders—Shortage of Oats Becoming Serious—High Chocolate Prices.

"I could stop taking orders, and run from now till Christmas," said a large miller, this week. And it is the same story everywhere. The cereal men are as busy as the flour millers, but have to look harder for their supplies. On the whole, however, deliveries of the raw material are improving. Some dealers complain of car shortage at Owen Sound and other points, and many of the smaller mills have undoubtedly lost considerable time through lack of supplies. All the oat millers of any account are on easy street, if a plentitude of orders can be taken as a sign of prosperity. The situation is rapidly resolving itself into a scramble for supplies, which is the more unfortunate in that export demand for Canadian oat products is stronger this season than it has been in years, owing to the poor quality of American oats, and scarcity of the crop in that quarter. Domestic consumption in both flour and cereals is strong enough to render Canadian millers altogether independent of the foreign markets, and business is controlled from this end of the wire almost entirely. One cereal miller has raised his export prices 2s. all round, and does not anticipate any decline in business as a consequence. All indications point to a banner year for the manufacturer IF he can make good on orders.

The visible supplies of corn, wheat and oats in Canada and the United States are about as follows :

	Oct. 21,'07	Oct.21,'06	Oct.21,'05
Corn bu.	42,612,000	37,165,000	27,189,000
Wheat bu.	4,379,000	3,739,000	3,790,000
Oats, bu.	6,530,000	9,088,000	25,270,000

Wheat increased 602,000 bushels last week, as against an increase of 864,000 bushels the corresponding week of last year. Corn increased 47,000, and last year 59,000 bushels. Oats increased 395,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 419,000 bushels last year.

The world's wheat shipments last week were 13,312,000 bushels, compared with 13,408,000 bushels the previous week and 12,735,000 bushels a year ago.

Inspections of grain at Winnipeg at the end of last week were 345 cars, as against 298 for the corresponding day last year. The grading was as follows : No. 1 hard, old, 1 car ; No. 1 northern, old, 1 ; new, 73 cars ; No. 2 northern, old, 2 ; new, 90; No. 3 northern, new, 73; No. 4 northern, new, 26; winter wheat, new, 11, and other grades, 68, all new.

Confectionery.

"One of the features of the confectionery business apart from the general prevalence of activity is, of course, the strong market in raw material," says a short editorial in the Baker and Confectioner. "Not only in sugar and chocolate, but in other lines, there has been a large increase in strength of the market. Some manufacturers claim that it is almost impossible to get an adequate supply of some grades of chocolate and that unless something transpires to relieve the situation that the business will be placed in a most serious position. The immense growth of the consumption of chocolate is responsible for the trend of affairs."

The moral of this is—buy your supplies now, before prices go higher.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Although a further rise was expected in some quarters in flour this week, none has occurred up to the time of writing. The market continues strong. Export, as well as local, demand is brisk, buyers apparently not bring frightened by the high figures quoted.

FLOUR—Prices are unchanged and fairly steady. There is next to no export business passing, domestic consumption being very strong and apparently willing to take all the output at prices equal to, if not in advance of, the highest export quotations. Most of the larger mills are running night and day shifts, and are booked weeks ahead on orders.

CEREALS—Prices are about unchanged, but demand is so heavy that an advance shortly would surprise no one. A local miller recently raised his export prices 2s all round, and this fairly represents the general attitude of independence towards the foreign markets. Most of the millers report more orders than they can well handle, and say that the question of supplies may become serious if deliveries from the west do not improve, and more adequate transportation is provided for forwarding supplies from eastern points.

HOW THE RISING WHEAT MARKET AFFECTS FLOUR PRICES IN MONTREAL

A Montreal flour dealer, in speaking to one of the Montreal papers recently, gave some interesting facts and figures to show how the high price of wheat has affected flour in that city. Said he:

"Not since the Leiter deal some years ago," he said, "have we experienced such a decided advance in the wheat market as has taken place during the last three months. On Oct. 6, 1906, No. 1 northern, Fort William, was 74½ per bushel; on Oct. 7, 1907, No. 1 northern, Fort William, was 111½ per bushel, an advance of 37½c per bushel.

"Although the wheat market has advanced rapidly, flour has not appreciated in value as rapidly as the raw material, viz., wheat. The large milling companies, compelled as they are to carry a large stock of wheat, and holding considerable stocks, were able to place their flour on the market on a lower basis than the market price of wheat warranted at the time. This gives the large companies a decided advantage over the small millers, who do not carry large stocks, and, at the same time, the consumer benefited thereby.

"We must give the large milling companies credit for not being avaricious and taking advantage of the advantage in the price of wheat, although we know of no law, either human or divine, that would prevent their taking the legitimate advance warranted by the state of the wheat market.

"We find, on Oct. 6, 1906, that the price of the two leading grades of flour sold in this market was as follows, viz., highest grade, $4.60, and the second grade, $4.10. On Oct. 7, 1907, the price of the highest grade was $5.90, and of the second $5.30, or an advance of $1.30 on the first, and of $1.20 on the second grade. We find that the advance in wheat is equal to 36¾c per bushel, or $1.62½ per barrel.

"It is also well known that the keen competition—in fact, what some might term the suicidal competition—existing between the large milling companies, i.e., they have adopted a policy of booking orders for the different flour dealers throughout the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific for months ahead, and guarantee the price; that is, if the market price advances, the flour is delivered as per contract; if it recede, well, the consumer gets the benefit of the lower market. Without doubt, the large milling companies are now delivering flour all through the Dominion, which was sold on the basis of $1.00 per barrel under the present market value.

"Quite a number of the dealers and makers bought largely when the ruling price was $5.10 and $4.50. It was a safe deal for the purchaser; if the price advanced, the flour is delivered; if it receded, he got the full benefit of the reduction.

"Under present conditions, however, this policy works decidedly against the interests of the small miller, who carries only a very limited stock of wheat, if any.

"But the farmer, whose crops have turned out satisfactorily, is very fortunate, indeed. On the whole, although the wheat crop in our Canadian Northwest is possibly 50 per cent. less than last season's, the financial results of the entire crop of wheat will be fully equal to last year's. Still, it bears hard on some farmers, who have almost lost their entire crop.

"Apparently, this is a very hard year for the consumer. If present market values of wheat are maintained, undoubtedly we will see higher values for flour. The world's crop, apparently, is short, and chances are for a higher market price, and a yet considerably higher price for flour as soon as the large milling companies begin to grind wheat which costs them present market value. Some of the large millers, no doubt, are milling wheat that they purchased equal to 75 cents, Fort William, a year ago; yet the higher price they have paid since brings their average cost possibly to 10 or 12 cents under present ruling price.

"We should, however, give the large milling companies credit for not taking from the consumer the last cent warranted by the market. We can hardly give them all the credit, however, for it is, thanks to the keen competition between the large milling companies, or to what we might baptize by the name of cut-throat business, that the consumer derives the benefit. It should be the consumer's wish that the large milling companies always continue to work in directions diametrically opposite."

THE LATEST IN BOOKLETS.

A biscuit booklet, which resembles a de luxe edition rather than a catalogue, has just been issued by Christie, Brown & Co., of Toronto. The booklet, which is covered in a fawn stock and tied with red silk cord, includes photographs in colors of the factory and stables, and delightful reproductions, in natural colors, of the various lines of boxes and tins, and the biscuits and cakes manufactured by the firm. The catalogue contains no reading matter except the names of the goods displayed, which tell their own story in a particularly valuable way. The reproductions are done by three-color process and are so natural that some of the lines displayed actually make one's mouth water. The booklet bears the imprint "Produced by the Toronto Engraving Co."

A copy of this unique catalogue may be procured by the trade by request from Christie, Brown & Co., and mention of The Canadian Grocer.

DRESSED CARCASSES WILL BE ADMITTED UNDER CERTAIN SPECIFIED CONDITIONS

A Further Provision of the New Meats and Canned Foods Act.

The custom prevailing among farmers throughout Canada of slaughtering animals, particularly swine, upon their own premises, and selling the dressed carcases on the local market, is one which entails more or less loss to the producer. Before the advent of packing establishments, the domestic trade was supplied by the local butchers, who were, of necessity, compelled to provide for future supplies, and, as a result, the local markets were created. Conditions have changed, however, the local dealers no longer supplying the domestic trade, which has passed into the hands of the packing houses, which are now the distributing centres for meats. Packers can afford to and actually do pay higher prices and sell at lower values than the local butchers, for reasons which are obvious when one considers that profits are represented by the by-products. The packers are adverse to buying dressed carcasses, as they represent smaller profits in by-products; again, dressed carcasses are imperfectly handled by the farmer, the meat in many cases being bruised and unsightly, this, as well as improper chilling, being deterrent to good prices. Animals, especially hogs, require scientific chilling, otherwise those parts which enter into the process of curing become sour and unfit for market. Packers prefer to buy their meats on the hoof, and for the reasons set forth above, are able to pay higher prices for them.

In view, however, of the large trade carried on in some parts of Canada, more particularly during the fall and winter, in dressed pork, as well as in other dressed meats, attention may be directed to one of the requirements of the regulations made under the new Meat Inspection Act, which is likely to have a considerable effect on the business above referred to. The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa having assumed the responsibility of inspecting and practically guaranteeing the healthfulness of all meats and meat products sent out by the packing houses, must, of necessity, protect itself by making sure that no diseased carcasses are permitted to enter these establishments. The most effective way of preventing the entry of such diseased meat is, of course, the careful ante-mortem inspection provided for by the regulations, but in view of the large trade carried on in dressed carcasses and of the fact that both farmers and packers have been in the habit of handling meats in this way, the officials in charge of the enforcement of the Act have decided to admit to the establishments under inspection dressed carcasses under such conditions as will enable them to judge with reasonable certainty, as to whether the animal, prior to slaughter, was free from disease. Provision has, therefore, been made for the admission on inspection, of dressed carcasses with the head, heart, lungs and liver held by their natural attachments, such carcasses to be inspected before entering the establishment, and, if found fit for food to be so marked and admitted for packing purposes, while if found to be diseased, to be condemned and tanked.

This being the case, it is incumbent upon every farmer bringing dressed hogs or other animals to market to remember that unless the carcasses are dressed in accordance with the regulation mentioned above, namely, with these organs left in their proper positions, it will not be possible for the representatives of the packing houses to buy such carcasses for use in any of the establisments coming under the operation of the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

The presence of the buyers or agents of these establishments on our local markets has always been, at least, to some extent, a safeguard against possible attempts by local combinations of butchers and others to depress the price of dressed meats, and it will be well for producers to bear in mind the new conditions, and when, for any reason, they are unable to market their stock on the hoof as they should undoubtedly do whenever possible, to dress their hogs, as well as other animals, in such a way as to meet the requirements of the new Act.

TRADE NOTES.

The Canada Spice and Grocery Co. have closed the branch of their business in Regina.

The firm of Fisher & Stait, grocers, of Port Arthur, is succeeded by Fisher, Stait & Vigars.

The assets of Paul Bertrand, general storekeeper, of Monetville, Ont., are advertised for sale.

The assets of P. Charland, grocer, of St. Cyrille de Wendoves, Que., have been sold during the week.

Dixon & Co., who have been running a general store at Bannerman, Sask., have sold out to H. Davis.

Forde Brothers have opened a bright new grocery and provision store at 285 Bank St., Ottawa.

A. & C. LeVasseur, general storekeepers, of Fannystelle, Sask., have assigned to C. H. Newton.

The Southey Supply Co., general storekeepers, of Southey, Alta., have assigned to H. B. Chandler.

Daniel Burgess, who has been conducting a general store in Maple, has sold the business to H. C. Bailey.

Cheyne & Son, of Melita, Man., are taking over the grocery business formerly conducted by T. H. Evans.

Finkelstein & Muscovitch, who have been conducting a general store business at Ethelbert, Man., have sold out.

C. E. Gutteridge, who conducts a general store at Neudorf, Sask., suffered serious loss by fire during the week.

Morton Phillips & Co., Montreal, are presenting their customers and friends with a neat copy of the Canadian customs tariff in force during 1907. It is a very handy book of reference.

A. Irving, who for some time conducted an up-to-date grocery at 964 Bathurst St., has bought out the business which has been run by A. J. Greenway at the corner of Brunswick and Sussex Sts. He should do a thriving business.

Armand Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., and Col. A. E. Labelle, of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, have returnsd to Montreal from a hunting and fishing trip spent in the north country. Both are members of the Club Chapleau, and put up there during their trip.

J. Duggan, grocer, on Yonge St., Toronto, is sporting, among other up-to-date equipment, a bran new delivery wagon, which was especially built for him by Cruickshank & Son, of Weston. The wagon is fitted with special equipment to facilitate rapid delivery, with rubber tires and with a special axle, which needs oiling only twice a year. Duggan's driver is wearing a smile these days in consequence.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK IN THE WEST
AN OPTIMISTIC VIEW OF THE SITUATION

R. J. Gay has just returned to Toronto, after a four months' tour through out western Canada, in the interests of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Gay has been in close touch with the biggest and smallest of the business men of the West and has seen through their eyes the business outlook of the country.

He first touched upon the attitude of the west toward the eastern financial institutions. "While a great many," he said, "were unable to see why the banks loaned so much money out of Canada when it was needed so much at home, yet, with the exception of the real estate and land speculators, all were agreed that the tight squeeze the west is now getting is the best thing that ever happened the country."

The credit system in vogue among the western merchants has been the curse of the country. It has had an extremely unhealthy effect. The people were land crazy. Instead of laying by, after a good year, sufficient surplus in the bank to meet current expenses till the succeeding harvest was marketed, they would prefer to buy another quarter-section or another town lot, and the merchants might wait for their money. The merchants were forced to be bankers and to imperil their own standing to carry the accounts of speculators. And the worst of it was the land was being bought at prices which represented not its real value. But any appreciation in value had been discounted for ten years or more. Had the banks or loan companies been extending the credit they could have regulated matters to protect themselves, but the merchant, not being a credit institution was forced to take his chances with the rest.

Since the banks shut off further credits many have found themselves in a tight corner. The clerks in the towns are getting advances of two or three weeks' salary at a time to make payments on the lots they have bought on the crest of a boom. The merchants are trying hard to collect their book debts and to get along with as little new goods as possible. One small grocery business, conducted in a room about forty feet by ten feet, had book debts over $18,000. Last year the merchant paid little attention to the collection of small accounts. To-day nothing is too small to be overlooked.

And then, too, they are cancelling orders all along the line. "A traveler," said Mr. Gay, "whom I met in the west told me when I got home that he had done a good business with the western merchants, but since he had come back to Toronto a host of his orders had been cancelled. Of course," said he, 'it is better so, for if we make them take the goods we may get only 25c on the dollar for them, but if we let them off, next year we will get double orders."

The merchants have determined to clean up their stock on hand before they buy more goods and orders after orders have been cancelled. They are going to force the people to be less bound by the dictates of fashion and more by the principles of economy. Many are also determined to do nothing but a cash business or limit the time of credit to 30 days. They say they are not supposed to be bankers. If a man wants credit, let him get it from a bank or a loan company. If he is entitled to it he can usually get it. At any rate, the merchants are not going to take all the chances. Dozens of stores are doing only a cash business now and are doing a land-office business. It is common to see a large sign in front of a store, reading, "We do business for cash, and for cash only." One merchant said: "The squeeze hasn't hurt me much. I've always done a cash business. When I came here first they gave me only six months to stay, but I'm here yet and my business is as healthy as that of any of them."

If the wholesalers don't push the merchants too hard most of them are going to pull through all right. An early spring will lift a cloud of depression from the west, as the sun lifts a fog on a clear day.

Mr. Gay says that if this year can be weathered the recuperative powers of the west will do wonders. Next year double orders will come east to the factories. The factories will have great quantities of goods on hand and instead of paying out for production, they will be paid for marketing them. The farmers have learned their lesson. They are likely this year to have as large a return as formerly for their grain, and instead of speculating in land, they will deposit a balance for current expenses and henceforth pay cash. They will be more careful to weigh matters before enlarging their business. They now know that if they don't look out for themselves they cannot expect help from either merchant or banker. They will be more provident as a result and less inclined to leave their machinery in the snow all winter as many have done in the past or to be otherwise wasteful or extravagant. These things should make the scales of supply and demand of money balance more satisfactorily and it should be found that the squeeze is the best thing that ever happened the west."

DOUBTFUL ECONOMY.

The country grocer was issuing instructions to his new assistant, a lad of nine years.

"It's only by looking closely after the trifles," said the proprietor, " that a profit can be made in these days of close competition."

"Yes, sir," came from the boy.

"For example," continued the grocer, "when you pick the flies out of the sugar, don't throw them away. Put 'em among the currants."—Modern Grocer.

Canadian Fruit Practically Out of the Market—Business Brisk in Foreign Lines —Fall Fish Trade Under Way.

"Canadian fruit is dead," said a prominent man on the street this week. "Peaches are done, only a few late varieties of pears are left, the frosts have frozen the grapes on the vines and will prevent further shipment and apples are not much of a feature." Notwithstanding this, the market is pretty active under good demand and foreign fruit is coming in freely. Almeria grapes for the winter trade are a feature just now. The quality of the early shipments has been excellent, but recent advices say that superabundant rains in Spain will seriously affect the quality of later arrivals. Cranberries seem to be scarcer than usual this year, and prices have gone up steadily for a couple of weeks as the demand opened. Florida fruit is arriving in small shipments and Bahama oranges and grape fruit are in fair supply.

The vegetable market continues firm with no particular feature. Several lines have been cut off by frost.

The opening of the fall fish trade has provided for brisk business, which is likely to continue all winter. Large shipments of British Columbia salmon are being received and this, with a more plentiful supply from the east, has made the situation considerably easier. Reports from various sources report the outlook for a good winter's business very encouraging.

MONTREAL

GREEN FRUITS—A fair business is being transacted in green fruits, but there are not the lines offering to warrant a brisk trade. Jamaica oranges are in fair demand at lower figures. The receipts are not large yet, and the quality of the fruit is not first grade. A few late Valencias are being disposed of at fair prices. Lemons have not changed. Old stock is being cleaned up gradually, while new Messina lemons will begin to arrive shortly. The supply of bananas is slightly better, but prices have not changed materially. Considerable interest is displayed in apples, which are moving more freely. Some dealers are having trouble in moving their apples owing to the scarcity of cars, and are beginning to grow fearful lest they lose on their transactions this fall as the frost is setting in in earnest.

VEGETABLES—There are few price changes to record this week, as the market is dull and uninteresting. This is the between season period. Canadian lines are becoming scarce, and Southern stuff has not yet begun to arrive. Meanwhile, interest flags, and business is scant. Canadian onions are quoted this week. Though it is a trifle early to give the price. Potatoes are firmer. The poor stock, which appeared on the local market a few weeks ago, is about used up, and conditions are better. This year's potato crop is considered an average one by most dealers.

FISH—An easier feeling prevails in the fish market this week, due to the free arrival of several lines which have been scarce of late. Cod and haddock are cheaper, as a result of increased supplies, while lake fish are quoted at better buying prices in some instances. Dressed bullheads are being actively pushed by some houses, while others are featuring newly received frozen salmon, and new smelts. Demand for boneless and prepared varieties is healthy. Kippered herring are scarce, but haddies are coming in more freely. Some fine Labrador herring is now being offered at firm prices. Supplies of green cod and salt salmon are fair. Despite high prices oysters seem to be selling as well as usual. It is difficult to obtain regular supplies of malpeques. Many are buying caraquets, which are selling at a fair price.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS.

Important Subjects to Be Discussed at Next Meeting.

A. Laniel, president of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, in an interview with a representative of The Canadian Grocer, intimated that the next meeting of the association would be one of unusal importance. He stated that the members were to be notified by letter, to insure a full attendance.

The first subject which will be considered is the relations between the Retail Grocers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association. Mr. Laniel did not state what he considered the probable outcome. There are three possible arrangements: To remain united, to separate entirely, or to separate financially while still retaining the fraternal relationships.

Also, to be considered is a mutual arrangement for more uniform prices among the grocers. Mr. Laniel stated that, owing to the almost unprecedented advance in the prices of general grocery lines some understanding must be reached among the grocers in order to save many of the smaller dealers from being driven to the wall. Butter, for example, which a short time ago could be purchased for 24½ cents, now costs 28 and 29 cents. Consequently, a grocer who was fortunate enough to have a large supply of butter laid in, could sell under the purchasing price of his less fortunate neighbor and still make a profit.

"Another question which will probably come under discussion at this meeting," said Mr. Laniel, "is the one of arranging some definite line of demarcation between the retail grocers and the retail butchers of the city."

Questioned as to what arrangement could be made, he replied, that the grocers belonging to the association would probably agree not to handle smoked and other meats, and the butchers not to handle canned goods and grocery lines.

There has been some friction of late between the two classes of tradesmen, each laboring under the more or less mutually justified impression that the other was exceeding the limits of his legitimate business and encroaching upon the bounds of a territory that was, or should be, outside his commercial sphere.

The next meeting will take place on November 7.

WANTED—FULL PARTICULARS.

And Details as to Price and Date of Delivery.

A Winnipeg broker in conversation with The Canadian Grocer, one day last week made a few observations on the practices of eastern shippers who write western brokers asking them to sell their goods to the western wholesale trade.

"A broker can't sell goods to the Winnipeg wholesale houses unless he knows the price and is in possession of a few other necessary particulars," said he. "The buyers in the Winnipeg wholesale houses refuse to be both buyers and sellers, but I find it hard to convince eastern shippers of the truth of this statement.

"Here is a case in point: I had a letter this morning from an Ontario canner wanting me to sell for him a car of gallon apples but giving me no particulars as to the price or date when delivery can be made. I went to the buyer in one of the wholesale houses.

"'Do you want any gallon apples?'" I enquired

"'I do. What's the price and when can you deliver?'

"'What will you pay for them?'

"'It's not my business to set the price. It's yours. Write or wire your shipper for a price and then come and see me.'"

Vexatious delays are frequently caused by the practice of which this Winnipeg broker complained, and eastern shippers lose many sales by their neglect to furnish Winnipeg brokers with full particulars.

NEW GROCERY.

A new grocery store called The Maple Leaf Cash Grocery, has just opened at 2012 Queen St. east, Toronto. The proprietor is J. Shelton, who is well known in the grocery business throughout Ontario. The Grocer wishes Mr. Shelton every success in his new enterprise.

H. H. Manders, of the staff of J. Stetson, one of the up-to-date Point grocers, of Montreal, will be married on Wednesday next to Miss McLaren, of Lanark, Ont.

NEW BRUNSWICK CONTINUES FIGHT AGAINST SHORT WEIGHT BUTTER

Flour Firm and Steady—Crusade Against Short-weight Butter in Full Swing—Some Claim Shrinkage is responsible.

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

St. John, N.B., Oct. 22, 1907.

There was no change in the price of flour during the past week, although in the present state of the market dealers say they would not be surprised how soon prices may again take a jump. Oatmeal is at present considerably higher than flour. Indeed, local men say it has now reached the highest point for many years. Roller oatmeal is now worth from $7 to $7.10 a barrel, and standard oatmeal is quoted at $7.25 and $7.35 a barrel.

American pork advanced 25 to 30 cents a barrel and lard jumped a half-cent a pound. Canned goods of all kinds are very high, the latest list of prices showing large increases.

Butter and eggs are holding very firm and the creameries have advanced their prices to 29c a pound for 2-lb. prints.

In the produce market last week, beef again eased off in price a little, though pork, owing to the demands of the packing establishments, is half a cent dearer. Potatoes are coming in rather more freely and have dropped 25 and 30 cents a barrel.

Western beef is now quoted at 9 and 9½ cents a pound wholesale, and country beef at 4 to 7 cents. Potatoes are held at $1.25 to $1.60 a barrel; carrots and beets are selling at $1 to $1.25 a barrel, and turnips from 70 to 80 cents a barrel.

A Hartland correspondent writes: "So far the week has been favorable to potato digging and the yield is fair. W. P. McMullin and H. H. Smalley, whose farms are close to the village, planted 27 and 19 acres, respectively, and as each are getting good potatoes enough to pay their heavy fertilizer bill, their hired help, and to have enough for their own use and seed, with a trifle of cash to spare, they say it is getting out of a decidedly "off year" easily. Another farmer sold $200 worth from four acres, and has enough for his own use beside. The stock is now reaching the market in prime condition and in consequence of the increased demand the price is boosted to $1,"

The annual fair at Loch Lomond, which was held on October 16, was very successful. The exhibits of live stock and vegetables were exceptionally good.

At a meeting held in Sussex Monday evening it was decided that an exhibition should be held next year by the Sussex and Studholm associations. The dates decided on were from September 28 to October 3. A committee consisting of E. O. McIntyre, S. J. Goodliffe and S. C. McCully was appointed to interview the Government regarding a grant.

Preparations for the approaching winter port season of 1907-08 are going forward now and the indications are that all will be in readiness when the first steamer arrives here some time about the latter part of November.

It is probable that grain shipments will not be as heavy this year as was thought a while ago, as the storage in the west and the high prices asked, will probably result in smaller shipments.

According to the railway companies, there will be plenty of cars available this winter for the large import and export business that is looked for.

At a meeting of the civic treasury board last week it was decided to employ an accountant and engineer to obtain facts and figures as to the condition of the harbor properties, for the benefit of the harbor committee appointed some time ago, at the suggestion of the Minister of Railways. This action was taken as a step toward valuing the city's harbor property, with the view of having the Government take over the control of the harbor, as the burden of building new wharves and of dredging is becoming greater than the city can bear.

The Evening Times is continuing its crusade against the packers of short-weight butter. Following the article quoted in last week's issue of the Grocer, a St. John daily published another dealing with the question, and also used a letter contributed by R. H. Cother, butter-maker, for the St. John creamery, in which Mr. Cother claims that shrinkage is responsible for the short weight in butter. This statement is confirmed by several other persons.

On the other hand it is contended that mere shrinkage would not account for as much shortage as is shown in a considerable portion of the product of the New Brunswick creameries. It is suggested that it would be better for the consumer if the creameries abandoned the flat two-pound print and sold the butter in larger bulk by actual weight.

The article recently quoted on this subject in The Grocer was the subject of universal discussion, and the view was freely expressed that the duties of the inspector of creamery products should be performed without fear or favor.

Another matter of considerable importance is the practice of several of the out-of-town creameries that ship considerable butter here, of buying up old butter whenever they can get it and doctoring it up and mixing it in with their own product. This merchant said that he had been offered a good figure not long ago for a lot of "cooking" butter, by one of these creameries. He had noticed very often that the prints sent out by the creameries were very "streaky," two or three different colors of butter being worked into one print. Very often shipments of this class had been returned to him and he had lost good customers on account of it.

Upon weighing some of the one-pound prints of butter that are sent here by farmers and small dairies, some were found to be of the correct weight, while others were shown to be from one to two ounces short in weight. It is known that in many cases these so-called pound prints are never weighed by the producers, but are put up mainly by guesswork, and strange to say the guesses are nearly always in favor of the producer. In some instances prints have been sold for a pound that weighed no more than three-quarters of a pound.

James Barry, inspector of weights and measures, has been giving his attention to the question since the subject was brought to public notice.

Interviewed by a representative of The Grocer, Inspector Barry stated that both in Fredericton and St. John he had been told by dealers that butter put up in farmers' dairies was frequently short in weight. He found some in this city that was notably short.

With regard to creamery prints he found that some were from one hundred to two hundred and fifty grains short. There are seven thousand grains in a pound. He also found some that were overweight. From this he was led to believe that carelessness in packing rather than a desire to cheat was the cause of any shortage in weight. Unless the prints were carefully molded they might easily be under or over-weight. He confirmed the statement in Mr. Cother's letter that the butter shrinks somewhat in weight when it has had time to dry out. In his opinion there is more likelihood of short weight in dairy prints, because the ordinary household scales used by the farmer are very often incorrect.

It has been suggested that dealers should buy this country butter by actual weight, and sell it the same way. It may further be suggested that the same plan should be followed with regard to creamery butter, giving the seller the benefit if there is overweight, and protecting the customer if there is underweight. If the customer would always insist on having the butter weighed the remedy would very soon be effective.

The inspector found that sometimes dealers, when a customer asks for a pound of butter, cut a two-pound print in two, and sell each half without weighing it. He warns them that they should not trust to their knife, but to the scales, to tell whether the print was exactly divided.

$3,000,000 WORTH OF APPLES FROM THREE COUNTIES OF NOVA SCOTIA

Flour Advancing— Fish Markets Active—P.E.I. Potatoes Arriving—Heavy Apple Shipments to the Old Country—A Record Crop Probable.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 22.

The flour markets continue very unsteady, and prices are still advancing. During the week just closed there was an increase of 25 cents per barrel on all high grade flours. Some of the dealers here have very large stocks on hand, and as much of the flour was ordered before the prices advanced they stand to make good profits.

Prices on all canned goods are higher than last season, and condensed milk has been increased 25 cents per case. American beef is about one dollar higher, but pork is steady, no recent advance having been made.

FISH—The fish markets are as usual very active at this season of the year, and large catches are now being placed on the market. During one day last week, vessels arriving here landed in one day alone seven thousand quintals of cod and about 2,500 barrels of pickled herring. All the fish markets are very active, and there is a good buying demand. Fresh fish are fairly plentiful, but the catches of fall mackerel are very small. The price of mackerel is very high, due to the demand for this kind of fish. On the American market No. 1's are quoted at $30 per barrel.

VEGETABLES—Prince Edward potatoes are now coming on the market. They are quoted at $1.25 per three-bushel bag. Nova Scotia potatoes are worth from 50 to 60 cents per bushel. Some large shipments are now being made to the Havana markets, one steamer sailing last week with a full cargo. Parsnips are quoted at $1.50 per bag, carrots at $1 per bag, and turnips at 80 cents per bag. Tomatoes are about done, though there is some green stock still on the market.

FRUIT—The apple export business is booming. Large quantities are being shipped weekly to the British market. The stock here is of very poor quality and it is almost impossible to get good No. 1 Gravensteins. All the best fruit is being sent out of the country. Gravensteins are quoted here at $3 to $3.50 per barrel, and $2 to $2.50 for second grades.

A co-operative fruit packing company has been incorporated in Kings County, composed of a number of the largest growers in the Valley. They intend to pack their fruit under one brand and to place on the market apples so carefully graded that every barrel can be guaranteed to be up to the standard. The officers are: President, Henry Chute; secretary, S. C. Parker, John W. Chute is the manager.

It is reported that Fred S. Fisher, of King's County has refused an offer of $4,000 for the fruit in his orchard. During the past week over 50,000 barrels of apples were shipped from this port to the British market.

The orchardists of the Annapolis Valley are happy in the feeling that this year's apple crop will be the greatest for nearly a century, if it does not, in fact, eclipse any previous yield. At the present time only an approximate estimate can be made, and there is a difference of opinion necessarily regarding this, but the lowest estimate puts the yield at 600,000 barrels, and those also in a position to know fairly expertly, go higher, and one gentleman, whose knowledge is thoroughly practical, gives it as his opinion that the yield this year will exceed all predictions. He places it at 750,000 barrels.

This will mean $2.50 a barrel at least to the grower, who will thus obtain this sum individually per barrel, and collectively, will get this year the very large amount of $1,875,000, or perhaps two million dollars.

This, it must be remembered, represents the price paid to the orchardist, while on the market the price will be over a dollar more for No. 1 apples, so it is moderately safe to say that the amount taken out of apples from the three counties of Kings, Hants and Annapolis, will this year be considerably over $3,000,000.

EGGS—A REVIEW.

Some Features of the New-laid Season Now Closing.

The egg situation, under the season's prevailing conditions of scarcity and high prices in all lines of foodstuffs, is somewhat precarious. Dealers receipts, by this time, have become very small, and will shortly be cut off almost entirely.

Firms which have been receiving from three to five hundred cases weekly during the summer, say that their supply has dwindled very considerably and that from now on their receipts will not be larger than five to ten cases weekly. With this fact in view it will be seen that the new-laid egg will shortly be a non-entity on the wholesale market. People with fat pocket-books can, of course, secure the article right from the hen during the whole winter, but for the ordinary householder the strictly fresh egg season is practically over. The closing of the season will be felt even more seriously this year than usual, for with the high meat prices prevailing people have been eating eggs instead of meat. This is one good reason for the high prices which have continued in the egg market all summer in spite of the fact that the supply has been fairly good.

A peculiar feature about this year's egg is the fact that the shell has been noticeably thinner than usual. Many eggs are covered with a shell not thicker than a sheet of fairly heavy paper and the shells in general seem considerably thinner than in former years. The cause of this peculiarity is almost impossible to discover. Some dealers attribute the cause of this peculiarity to the poor quality of the feed supplied the hens under the summer's prevailing high prices. During the summer, however, hens have to depend to a great extent on what feed they can scratch up for themselves, and this reason seems inadequate.

Egg Preservation.

The various methods of egg preservation, some of which are of very ancient usage, and others of recent years, are being almost altogether superseded by the cold storage system. This method has proved itself exceedingly valuable by reason of its simplicity, its utility and its low cost. The cases of eggs are simply run into the cold storage warehouses and left to the attention of the low temperature, which does the work well. Eggs will keep satisfactorily under these conditions for from three to sx months and even at the expiration of the latter time may be used for almost any purpose to which the fresh egg of commerce is usually put.

June is the great egg month. After the winter's rest, the fowls have by this time gotten well to work and seek the nest frequently. Receipts during this month are probably larger than at any other time during the year. The June egg is the dealers' standby. It is the June egg, also, which is being taken from storage at present to take the place of the newly-laid variety.

This year's pack of eggs has been only fairly good in common with small supplies of all kinds of produce. Whether the supply will equal the demand at the end of the winter months is rather a problematical question at present, but with the high prices which are certain to prevail it looks as if matters will even up in some way.

ALMERIA GRAPES.

W. H. Despard, of White & Co., Toronto, has returned from New York, where he has made heavy purchases of Almeria grapes. He says the quality this season is the finest seen in years, and that the grapes in consequence will be excellent keepers.

White & Co. are very busy these days in their new corner. They are making a specialty of handling deer, venison and all sorts of game.

E. J. Slocombe, who has been for some years associated with Rickett & Son Co., black lead manufacturers, at Bristol, Eng., has recently located in Toronto as a manufacturers' agent.

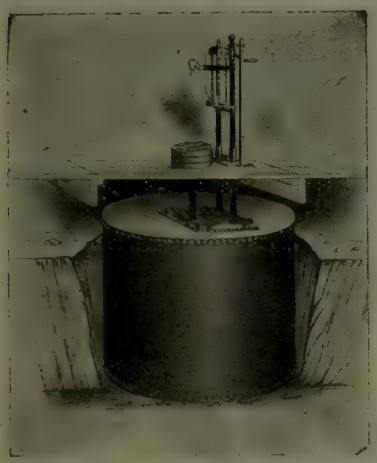
Bowser's Bring Business



Cut 6
UNDER THE FLOOR TANK
Perfectly Simple—Simply Perfect

People buy goods where the service pleases them most. If a woman buys oil in your store and the can gets her hands and dress dirty, or if the gallon is short measure, or the oil dirtv, or you keep her waiting too long, she is very apt to buy somewhere else next time. If she buys her oil across the street from you because they have a Bowser she also buys her other supplies there and your tin oil tank has lost a good customer.

Put in a Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tank and your customers will be pleased with the service. So will you. It will add to your trade by adding satisfied customers.

Then, consider the saving in oil, time and labor, the neatness and the convenience. The Bowser is the best investment a grocer can make. It pays the biggest interest.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

Three Lines To Dollartown !

In the line of grocery specialties, there are three articles which you ought to know of, Mr. Grocer! They are for drinking purposes;

Pure Cider Vinegar

in bottles or kegs; and

Pure Tomato Catsup

These three lines are regular magnets for the dollars. Purity and flavor, combined with a high grade appearance make these goods sell on sight.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

"The Real Thing"

"What does it profit the retail grocer in the end to push the "nearly as good" article? While he has been making one-sixth of a cent profit for two cents worth of extra work his neighbor grocer has been handing out "the real thing," and lots of it. His customers come in and ask for it, and recognize it because it bears a well-known brand which even the children know as a guarantee of excellence.

At last there comes a time (it always comes) when the "nearly as good" article reaches the end of its string. It may have been put out of business, or it may have been skinned in quality until it is a business suicide to handle it any longer. Has the trifling extra profit paid for the trouble of pushing it instead of selling it—for the unknown, but none the less certain, percentage of dissatisfied customers—and finally for the up-hill work of beginning all over again with another new brand of goods? Well, hardly!

In the meantime, the dealer who handles "the real thing" still keeps passing called-for goods across the counter under the same old brands.

"The real thing" in Canned Fruits and Vegetables are :—

"CANADA FIRST"	"KENT"
"LITTLE CHIEF"	"LYNN VALLEY"
"AUTO"	"MAPLE LEAF"
"LOG CABIN"	"LION"
"HORSESHOE"	"THISTLE"

"GRAND RIVER" and "WHITE ROSE" Brands.

These brands have been on the market for over a quarter of a century.

PLEASING THE PARTICULAR PUBLIC

Although this country may easily be said to be a "land flowing with milk and honey," there is a distinct national taste for the real thing in Canned Goods. Thus the discerning grocer will take great pains in selecting the brand he intends to handle, in order to get the "real thing." That is only another way of saying

of Canned Fruits and Vegetables

which is universally successful in satisfying the particular public. Reasons! Lots of them. Best fruits and vegetables grown, to begin with, then canned in such a way that the exquisite flavor is perfectly preserved.

To the Wholesale Trade of Canada

GENTLEMEN,—

Herewith please find estimates of the value of the Cereal Crop for the season of 1907-08 against the season of 1906-07:

SEASON 1906-07
Wheat, 90,000,000 bus. at 65c. average price paid the farmer at country points in Manitoba and the Territories		$58,500,000
SEASON 1907-08
Wheat, higher grades, 40,000,000 bus at 88c. (est. average price for the year paid the farmer at country points, Manitoba and the Territories)	$35,200,000
Lower grades 30,000,000 bus. at 60c. (est. average price paid for the year at country points, Manitoba and the Territories)	18,000,000	53,200,000
Decrease		5,300,000
Oats, 75,00,000 bus. (est. yield of oat crop for the year 1907-8 at country points in Manitoba and the Territories), at est. increased value per bus. over previous year of 10c.	7,500,000
Barley, 15,000,000 bus. (est. yield of Barley crop for the year 1907-8 at country points in Manitoba and the Territories), at est. increased value per bus. over previous year, 5c.	750,000	8,250,000
Increased crop value as against 1906-7		$2,950,000

It will thus be seen at a glance that the increased returns for Oats and Barley will more than offset the loss on Wheat. Yours truly,

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Less work and better results

If Allison Coupon books merely reduced work, they might, in some small establishment, be considered a dispensable luxury.

But you can entirely disregard the time and labor-saving element, and still the system more than pays for itself in the cutting out of ACTUAL MONEY LOSSES, the increased satisfaction to customers and the large trade it entails. Hundreds of merchants that are using this system, could not at any price, be induced to revert to the old fashioned method.

ALLISON COUPON BOOKS

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

WHAT TO DO IN NOVEMBER

Pertinent Hints for Spare Moments This Month.

How to Get the Early Christmas Business.

The earlier people can be persuaded to do their Christmas buying the better for all concerned. And this fact applies to the grocer just as well as to the jeweler and the stationer and the fancy goods man. If the regular supplies of Christmas goods can be sold earlier there will be more time to look after the special lines, and the last-minute orders which are bound to come along a few weeks later.

November, then, is the month to get busy with Christmas goods. Fill your advertisements with quotations on ingredients for mincemeat, and Christmas cakes and puddings. This means raisins, currants, peels, spices, nuts, icing sugars, etc. Get the housewives impressed with the idea that Christmas is coming and coming mighty fast and they'll come in to do the buying.

These goods ought also to be gotten out and put in a place where they can be conveniently gotten at. A window display of seasonable lines for the Christmas baking should stir up some business. A card something like the following, displayed in the window or in some prominent place in the store should also be a help.

For CHRISTMAS CAKES AND PUDDINGS
We have the Ingredients in Mouth-Watering Qualities.

The candy business is one of the big features of Christmas. It will pay the grocer, no matter how small, to give attention to this and to order several special lines for the last week's trade. Try a case or two of Christmas crackers, if you have never sold them before, and see if you can't get the community wakened up to using these things. They are an easy thing to display, and with an assortment of candy give a store a decidedly Christmasy appearance.

The fly season is now over. If you haven't had a fall store-cleaning, now is the time to do it, before the Christmas goods come in, and the Christmas rush is on. And while cleaning up don't forget to rub the fly specks off the canned goods and paper packages with a damp cloth. It will brighten the goods up immensely and make them considerably more saleable. While doing this, also, it's a good time to change goods around on your shelving. Don't keep the canned goods and the breakfast foods and the extracts in the same place for month after month. Move them around occasionally and they'll give the customer an impression of change and newness. Differences in arrangement are always noticed and always realize well for any trouble spent in that way. Put your new canned goods on the shelves when they come in, instead of leaving them in the cases down cellar. And let the people know that they are new. The idea of freshness is always attractive. You might tell them by a card like this :

NEW CANNED GOODS.
From the Orchard to the Cannery.
Then Direct to us.
As Fresh as we Can Get Them.

It's just at this time of the year when the public seems to grow tired of the many varieties of manufactured breakfast foods and turns to the old reliable oatmeal porridge. For a good many people the cereal forms the major part of the morning meal, and for these a cold, ready-cooked breakfast food is not a very substantial foundation with which to face a frosty November morning. Grocers ought to provide for this. Rolled oats is a pretty standard article, but one that will pay emphasizing occasionally. Now is the time to push it. A suggestion may make many a sale. Then, too, if you are loaded up with a stock of the manufactured foods in packages, why not run them as specials for a few days and clear off what you won't be able to dispose of during the winter? Two or three of these lines, of course, are always in demand, but every grocery has packages of several lines which are not asked for once a fortnight. These might well be gotten out of the way. A suggestion like the following should stimulate the demand for rolled oats:

PIPING HOT PORRIDGE.
Comfortable on a crisp morning. We have the oatmeal for it, and its pretty good, at .....

Comprehensive plans should be made during November to corral and handle the Christmas business. Methods of Christmas store display and window dressing should be thought out, and the materials procured in advance, so that these matters will occasion as little trouble as possible later on. Arrangements should be made for special delivery service during the busy week or two preceding the holiday, and the extra clerk or two which may be necessary during the rush should be provided for a week or two in advance. The Christmas season is a harvest for the grocer. Every preparation should be made to take advantake of it.

CHEERY FALL OUTLOOK.

Montreal Wholesaler Chats About Business Prospects.

"Wholesalers are very optimistic about fall business," said Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Co., to The Canadian Grocer this week.

"All over Canada business seems to be brisk, and orders which are coming in are very satisfactory. We are late this year in the delivery of many of our futures, which we thought we would have placed in October, but which we now find carried over to this month. Shipping these will keep the wholesale trade very much engaged during the best part of this month, when taken with their regular trade.

"Collections we find very good, speaking generally. A few weeks ago the alarmists rumors about the crops in the West had an effect upon the money situation as it affected the grocery trade, but now that a good crop is assured things are better all round, and our collections in the Northwest show the improvement that has taken place. In the Maritimes, and in Quebec and Ontario we have little trouble with our customers. Crop prospects did not effect their payments one way or the other.

"As for what is left of the year, I believe we shall do a fine business for the months of November and December. Wholesalers have still some holiday selling to do, and they will be kept busy handling this and their staple trade."

TRADE NOTES.

Vancouver is to have a big Pure Food Show during the first week in November.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DRESSING

A Good Fruit and Vegetable Display—Window-dressing in Newfoundland—Profit by Other People's Success—Design and Display.

Some weeks ago a photo of a window dressed with Gillett's goods was shown in this department. This week we reproduce another—not because of the merits or otherwise of the goods displayed therein, but because the Gillett people know how to get the public interested in what they have to sell, and how to keep them interested. This knowledge is the result of long experience in business, profitably employed. There is not much chance or guess-work about it. And one inevitable result of acquiring knowledge and experience yourself is the necessity of imparting some of it, with or against your will, to other people. Thus the Gillett Co., who have learnt by practice how best to display their goods and force the attention of the buying public, are today spreading the results of that experience among their less fortunate brethren. Much of success in business lies in studying other people's methods. Adapt to your own business the successes of your competitors, and avoid their mistakes, and no rut that was ever dug will be deep enough to hold you.

The Gillett window shown here is in the store of T. J. Allan, of St. Johns, Newfoundland, and was designed by T. J. Shortall, Mr. Allan's head clerk. It shows care and thought, considerable artistic feeling, and a good sense of the principles of lay-out and design. Mr. Allan says that it attracted as much attention as any window he ever saw in St. Johns, and though his may conceivably be a prejudiced opinion, the window undoubtedly merits the attention of all grocers who are open to ideas and suggestions for making their own windows a more effective magnet of drawing custom and keeping it.

Design and Display in Harmony.

A Fruit and Vegetable Window.

A MONTREAL WINDOW.

The value of an attractive window as a medium of creating trade was shown recently at P. Campbell & Co.'s store, Montreal, when a special bargain day was arranged, and made known by the medium of hand-bills, and a window specially dressed for the occasion. In an end corner a stock of vegetables was arranged so that the different colors blended, and red poppies set between the green foliage added considerably to the effect. At the bottom of the window were placed the various special lines advertised, all being ticketed. At the back were plates of first-prize apples, these fine specimens of fruit being much admired. In the centre was a mammoth squash, tied round with red ribbon. It weighed considerably over 100 pounds and proved a great drawing-card.

At each side were smaller squashes, and at the back, on a raised platform, were tall palms and ferns, which completed a fine picture of fruit, flowers and vegetables.

Shelves at the side were hung with bunches of grapes, while the whole staging on which the goods were shown, was covered with fancy green paper. Green was also the color used to drape the window-frames.

Needless to say the window was a great attraction, many coming from a considerable distance to see it.

The day's trade was doubled, and the special bargain day has been the means of winning many customers. The window was arranged by one of the clerks, K. Harrison.

M. Rosseau, general storekeeper, of Warwick, P.Q., suffered serious loss by fire last week.

GROCERY NEWS FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

OTTAWA.

For want of time your correspondent has not sent any Ottawa news for weeks and while greatly interested in the news from other points of our province, has regretted his inability to join in the dance until now.

Reports from the trade generally are good. Since the summer season is over and families have returned to the city business has been brisk. Prices of most lines are very firm. Butter, eggs, fruit, flour, bread and milk, articles which are practically necessities of life, are reaching figures beyond what housekeepers have ever been accustomed to pay for them, so that it is no pleasant duty when serving the public nowadays to have to explain the reasons for these advances. On the other hand, no one seems to be suffering, as consumers seem to buy as freely as when values were much lower.

The cost of feeding horses is an item of considerable worry to dealers this year. With hay at $20 to $22 a ton, and oats 52c to 55c a bushel, it is just about double as expensive this year as it was last.

The Grocers' Association of this city is just as live an organization as ever. With President Forde in the chair for his third term, the work is going on most successfully. Perhaps just at present the most important matter ever taken up by the association, and what looks as if it will be an accomplished fact in a short while is the credit and reporting department, which was agitated for last winter, and which has been in the hands of a committee who undertook to prepare a system and report. The committee, consisting of Messrs. Forde, Atkinson and Ellis, reported at the last meeting that they had made a careful study of what was, to their mind, desirable, and that they had taken the matter up with a reliable firm, consisting of a broker and solicitor, through whose office the work could be done systematically. The plan of the Ottawa association is to have a report as to the standing of every customer of each member of the association, on file in this office, the same to be arranged in a card system, and intelligible only by a code known to the members of the association, who pay for this branch of its work. It will readily be seen that when a dealer is asked for credit, instead of inquiring from sources not always reliable, by 'phoning or otherwise, he can secure the information he wants privately, quickly and in a businesslike manner through the code adopted.

The committee also reported in favor of all members placing accounts for collection through the same office, at a rate of 10 per cent. for collecting, no charge to be made for solicitors' fees in the event of a suit being entered. The question of the cost of the reporting was left in the hands of the committee to further confer with the firm undertaking the work, and to report later before being finally decided upon. Should this system be adopted and found to work well, it is the intention of the association to endeavor to get the whole branch interested and in that way a report of practically all accounts in the city will be secured. The Ottawa association thinks this idea far ahead of so-called black lists, as used elsewhere—in fact, numbers here would not hand in names of customers with amount of accounts and other necessary information, when the same was handled by another member of the association, as it left room for talk and was not businesslike—but when it was understood that the information will now be gathered by a trustworthy firm and by code, no member raised any objection, but everyone seems to be quite willing to facilitate the work in every way, should it be undertaken.

The early closing of stores, which went into effect in the spring, has been found a success—conditions of doing business are what may be termed "ideal," when one looks back and thinks of the past. Nearly all stores close at 6 p.m. on ordinary week days, and at 9 p.m. on Saturdays. I say nearly all, because after the by-law was passed for the hours above stated, and after it had been in effect for some time, it was declared void by the court, through some technicality, although the decision was appealed. A very few stores remain open until 7.30 on ordinary nights and close at 9 p.m. Saturdays, on account of a general by-law passed by council for Saturday night alone. Ottawa merchants speak highly of this movement, and those who opposed it are its warmest supporters now. And surely OTHER CITIES CAN DO THE SAME, IF WE CAN.

At present one of the liveliest topics in grocery trade circles is the market question. Ottawa has a market by-law which prohibits dealers and hucksters from buying before 8 a.m. in the summer months, and before 9 a.m. in the winter season. This is an old by-law apparently introduced to gain aldermanic favor. It is of no real use, as it has been constantly violated. The Grocers' Association pointed this out to the council and asked for an open market. Since that time one of our city papers has sent reporters to the market and proved the truth of the association's statement, but added fuel to the flames by showing up the negligence of the inspectors; so that the whole question is to be threshed out shortly by the property committee. In the meantime your Ottawa correspondent would like to know, through your columns, from the different towns, if they have any market regulations which prohibit buying before certain hours by dealers. Any answers to this request in next week's Grocer will be appreciated by Ottawa.

It looks as if the capital will have a new station and hotel built by the Grand Trunk Railway, at a cost of two or three million dollars. The site chosen is just now causing considerable controversy, it being on Major's Hill park, one of the oldest and most beautiful land-marks in Ottawa, and one which, although possibly very fine for the railway people, does not meet with the approval of the public generally. They want the station and hotel, but do not see the necessity of the Dominion Government (which controls the park allowing the company to secure the park site, especially when other good ones are available.

THE BEAN SITUATION.

To the Editor.

Your Chatham correspondent has made light of the failure in the bean crop all through his letters since the frost of July 2nd.

The section of country immediately along the lake shore was not hurt by frost, but north, again, more than 50 per cent. of the crop was completely destroyed. True, a great deal of this land was planted again, but not nearly all.

Then the extremely dry weather of July and August kept the early beans which were left from filling, so that the best part of them will not run on the average more than 12 bushels to the acre.

The dry weather affected the late planted ones, too, and, worse still, at harvesting time, in October, we had continuous rains and the beans lay on the ground wet for days, and, in a great many cases, for weeks. The result is a bad sample, and many fields will only make feed beans. These late ones are not threshed yet, and are not dry enough in the barns to thresh. How can the farmers market them?

The whole situation then is this: The whole acreage will not average over 8 bushels to the acre of marketable beans.

Then why should the farmer not get a good price for his crop?

Messrs. Forde Bros. are opening on Bank street; the new firm will consist of F. W. Forde, grocer, of Rideau St., and his brother, A. E. Forde, for some time with the Western Canada Flour Mills Co.

BARRIE.

Never in the past year has the market been so well supplied with produce as it was on Saturday. Signs of Thanksgiving were very evident in immense quantities of turkeys, geese, ducks, and chickens. The prices of turkeys ranged from eleven to fourteen cents, geese ten to twelve, ducks eight to ten, and chickens nine to ten, while old fowl brought eight cents. Potatoes were in demand and sold from seventy to eighty cents per bag. A few loads of hay appeared, but were picked up very quickly at twenty dollars a ton.

The general talk with the farmers and townspeople, nowadays, is the high prices of everything prevailing throughout the country. On all sides may be heard this complaint, but wait till this winter is over.

Armours. Limited, have adopted a new idea of demonstrating, so as to do away with jealousy among the grocers who handle their goods, and want a demonstrator in their own store when one comes to town. This week one of their lady demonstrators was at work in Geo. Vickers' dry goods store, one of Barrie's best stores, demonstrating the different lines they manufacture, and turning these orders over to the merchant from whom the customer usually bought.

Two noticeable factors in the grocery trade took another jump this week, one being cheese, which now lands that article at fourteen cents fo.b., here. Flour has now reached the $5.20 mark for half Manitoba milled here.

Chief King was on the warpath this week, and was around to various merchants looking for short weight butter and bread.

The request of the bakers of this town to have the standard weight of bread reduced, was refused by the Council last week. The bakers, they say, having a remedy under By-law 561.

Complaints are very numerous among the merchant here, about the way their merchandise has been arriving by the Grand Trunk. Every day seems to bring forth a complaint. Fruit, especially, is tampered with, and also confectionery. Only a few days ago a man in the employ of this company was arrested for stealing a case of canned tomatoes from Allandale transhipping sheds while en route for Collingwood, but he was acquitted. No wonder this thing continues and the merchants suffer.

CALGARY.

There has been a decided improvement in the grocery business during the past week. Retail merchants report considerable increase and the wholesale houses say that, considering the stringency of the money market at the present time, and the general conditions of trade throughout the country, collections are phenomenal.

The firm of Copas & Emmerson, who have been in the grocery business here for many years, is about to undergo a change. Mr. Copas, the senior partner, has sold out his interests to Mr. Emmerson, who will in future carry on the business alone.

The retail clerks have recently organized under the name of the Retail Clerks International Protective Association, local 642, Calgary. The objects of the association are to shorten the hours of work and secure a weekly half-holiday during the summer months. No attempt will be made to interfere with the question of wages. The organization is already strong in membership, and is thoroughly representative of the different trades.

Messrs- Codville & Co. are adding two more storeys to their already large warehouse, making five storeys in all. The company will, in addition to this, on the first of November, install a spice factory, which will be carried on in a separate building under a competent specialty man. The latest and most improved machinery known to the spice business is being installed, and the company will import all spices direct from the growers.

The merchants, generally speaking, are feeling the benefit of having the local wholesale houses. They realize the fact that they can buy and sort from local houses to better advantage than from the east. The general stringency of the market makes this more clear for it shows the great advantage to be gained by turning over capital once a week instead of every six months.

California fruits are firm, with a slight weakening in raisins, owing to the phenomenal crop in Spain.

There is a strong desire on the part of local grocers to close the stores at six p.m. and give the employes the benefit of the long evenings, but the movement is being retarded by the fact that a few stores continue to remain open after that hour.

PRIZES FOR WINDOWS.

Most grocers have been putting in special window displays for Thanksgiving, and all of them will be making a special effort for Christmas. The Canadian Grocer offers three prizes for the three best photos of window displays sent in between now and December 25. Don't wait till just before Christmas to enter this competition. Start right away and try and get all three prizes. It has been done before, and may be done again. The awards are made strictly on merit and the decision of the judges must be regarded as final.

Every clerk should know how to dress a window. If there is one who doesn't, now is the time for him to get busy, and surprise both himself and his boss. This remark may be ambiguous, but it is well meant.

EDMONTON.

There has been a big increase in the number of grocery stores doing business in the city during the last year, and all are apparently doing well. "There are more retail grocery stores doing business in Edmonton than in any city of its size I was ever in," said one prominent wholesale grocer to The Canadian Grocer representative recently. "There is no great increase in the central portion of the town, but on the side streets and on the outskirts of the city many new stores have been opened. These are the merchants who are objecting so vigorously to the enforcement of the early closing by-law."

R. Bruce Inglis, an enterprising grocer of this city, has adopted a new scheme in the arrangement of his store. He has abolished the counter system and has, instead, the counter placed close to the wall. By this means he can come closer to his customers when dealing with them, and they, in turn, can examine the article they are buying more closely. This gives greater satisfaction, both to the grocer and the purchaser, and the plan is proving a great success. Mr. Inglis is also doing an extensive business in soliciting orders at the house and filling them each day.

At the convention of the W.C.T.U. of Alberta and Saskatchewan, held in Edmonton recently, the ladies placed themselves on record as being opposed to the sale of brandied candies and ices by grocers, confectioners and others. They claimed that this often caused a craving for liquor. They intend to follow up this agitation under the violation of the law of selling liquor without a license.

LONDON.

Brokers report business very fair. Teas are still advancing, having gone up ½d. the past week, which is 1½d. to 2d. in three weeks. Indias and Ceylons and lower grades show the greatest advance. Coffee prices are well maintained. Refined sugars are unchanged, and raws very firm. Imported fruits of all kinds are firm, but Jamaica oranges are rather easier. Tapioca keeps fluctuating.

The outlook is for high prices for canned tomatoes the coming winter, and for this various causes are assigned. It is not so long since the retailer could afford to sell tomatoes at three cans for a quarter; later the retail price went up to ten cents per can straight, but from now on the best goods will likely be sold for two for a quarter, and, possibly, 15 cents per can. In the United States, canned tomatoes can be bought at 87½ cents per dozen cans, while in our own Province the figure quoted by the Consolidated Canners is $1.27½ per dozen, or 10 cents higher than a year ago.

The first cranberries of the season are being received by local wholesalers. The price ranges from $12 to $15 per barrel, and they sell retail at 15c per quart.

It has long been matter of wonder to Londoners that they have to pay 15 cents per pound and higher for beef. While the quoted price of cattle on the market is from 3½c to 4½c per pound. Butchers, however, claim they often lose money and none of them are making a fortune, because between the price the farmers gets and that which the butcher charges, about half the weight of a beef is lost, and, in addition, there is the cost of handling.

Oranges, nuts and imported fruits, generally, promise to be high the coming season. Oranges, especially, will be up in price, chiefly on account of the lateness of the Florida crops, which are at least three weeks later this year than last. The wholesale prices this year will range from 15 to 50 cents a box higher than heretofore, according to the value and quality of the fruit. English walnuts, too, will be away up for the same reason, while California raisins will be high, because the crops are late this year, and there is a great demand for the fruit. Grape fruit will go up somewhat, as also will bananas. There is still some hope, however, for the lovers of fruit who are only possessed of moderate means, for lemons and Spanish raisins, it is said, will be cheaper than they were a year ago. One will also be able to procure almonds at a lower rate, while hickory nuts will be on a par with the prices of last holiday-time.

The supply of Thanksgiving turkeys this year is very light, due mainly to the early date on which the holiday comes.

MONTREAL.

The bettering of working hours in the retail grocery trade is a matter which is being given considerable thought these days. It is getting to be a serious question, viewed in more lights than one.

In the first place, there is the effect upon clerks. The retail grocery business is the only one of its class, which retains long hours. Wholesalers close early, and so do the retail butchers and other like trades, generally. The result is that a totally different class of young men are taking up the business of grocery clerks. Bright, energetic, young men who formerly acted as grocers' clerks, are now going into other lines, equally remunerative, and much less labrious. It is becoming more and more difficult to obtain trustworthy clerks.

But there is another phase to the question, the effect upon the grocery business itself. "It is something quite out of the common," said J. Scanlan, one of Montreal's veteran retailers, "to find the son of a retail grocer taking up his father's business. And in the long hours one finds the sole cause, for the business itself is as fascinating as any other."

It is the general opinion that if the hours were uniformly shortened to a reasonable day's work, the beneficial effect upon the grocery trade would quickly be noticeable.

The Grocer called upon Alex. Foreman, manager of the grocery department of the S. Carsley Co., and found him, as usual, very busy. He was not too busy, however, to take up questions of interest to the trade. Said he, speaking of ways and means of attracting trade:

"A bargain sale either greatly increases, or greatly decreases one's number of customers. Which result is obtained depends entirely on the quality of the articles offered. We find that on bargain sale day the number of sales is more than 50 per cent. larger than on other days, and a good proportion of these are to new customers. If the lines offered are thoroughly good, the new customer soon 'gets the habit' of coming at all times."

"Further," said Mr. Foreman, "these sales should be run systematically; every leading line of goods should have its turn upon the bargain sale counter."

Most other grocers agree with Mr. Foreman, that bargain days are to be classed among the best schemes for drawing trade.

The question of window dressing has always been one of importance to the retail grocer. Grocers, however, hold conflicting opinions on the matter. J. B. Berthiaume, who has done business in two totally different sections of the city, thoroughly believes in window dressing at certain times.

"Where there is a lot of hustle, and consequently a lot of floating trade," he said, "window dressing is of great importance. Practically everything which I put in the window while I was on the main street, tastily arranged, was sold, and better lines not so displayed, often were not." The best kind of windows for display are corner windows flush with both streets. The reason for this is that the light falls well back into the window and thus makes the display stand out. If the window is set even the slightest distance back from the street the display is to a large extent deadened. But in the quiet, residential part of the city, systematic display is largely lost labor. Customers have formed the habit of coming to the store and scarcely notice what is in the window."

Another grocer spoken to was much in favor of systematic window dressing. He believed in getting one of the clerks thoroughly interested in window displays, and then letting him follow out his own ideas as far as practicable.

INGERSOLL.

What should a merchant do towards providing accommodation for waiting customers? This is undoubtedly a very debatable question and at the same time one that is worthy of serious consideration. A casual glance into a busy store, particularly on a Saturday night, will suffice to convince one that many customers are wearily standing while waiting their turn to be waited on. Frequently it happens that a customer who feels the fatigue of a shopping expedition, becomes impatient, more especially on account of the strong desire to rest, and leaves the store. Most of us have learned from experience how trying it is to be compelled to stand with aching limbs in a crowded store, when the foremost thought is to reach home and enjoy a well deserved rest. No matter how rigid the system that governs the policy of a busy store, there are times

AN ILLUSION DISPELLED.

There has been some talk lately of Thomas J. Lipton establishing a chain of retail stores throughout Canada. The following letter on this subject from Mr. Lipton himself tells its own story:

City Road, London, E.C.,
12th October, 1907.

Thomas J. Lipton,
39 Pearl Street, New York.

Mr. W. Melville, special representative for North America:

Dear Mr. Melville,—I have your letter of the 27th ult., and note you say some grocers have the feeling that I may at some future time open retail stores in Canada. I am very sorry there should be any feeling of this kind, as I have never thought of such a thing and have no intention whatever of opening retail shops in either Canada or the States. My business in those two countries is only in the wholesale trade, and as a tea planter and grower I will offer my teas through the trade, but I will have no other method of introducing them.

You can make any use you like of this letter.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) Thomas J. Lipton.

without number when it is impossible to give all customers that prompt attention which they desire. Failure, however, to do this is no reason why the merchant should not put forth some effort looking to their comfort until such time as their wants may be supplied. Professional men have cosy and inviting reception rooms, where their patrons are given every opportunity to feel at home while waiting. Nothing so elaborate, of course, could be expected from the ordinary merchant, but a chair here and there would be appreciated to a marked extent by many customers. This plan would no doubt be advantageous to the merchant. It would not only minimize the probability of customers leaving the store before they had been waited on, but it would also facilitate the work of the store. A crowded store is not without considerable confusion, especially if the customers are obliged to stand, and the work of the clerks is hampered to no small degree. It may be that the merchant is delighted with the crowded condition; to him it speaks volumes when viewed from the street. But there is another way of looking at this state of affairs. Are there not many people who will look into a store in about the same manner that a man will look into a barber shop? If there are many ahead of him, he will invariably go somewhere else. A crowd can be more easily handled when seats are supplied, and if the merchants in general would adopt this plan to a greater extent they would doubtless find the result highly gratifying to themselves and their patrons.

The spasmodic advertiser and the regular advertiser will soon be making a bid for Christmas patronage. The one is familiarly known, while the other, figuratively speaking, is but a casual acquaintance. Which one has the better chance to reap the greatest benefit, all things, of course, being equal? When and when not to advertise is a question which many merchants have evidently not been able to answer to their own satisfaction, but one thing is certain if they do not advertise at any other season of the year, they will break forth into printers' ink at Christmas time. If it has been a policy of economy that has kept them in the background for the preceding months, they have apparently never given thought to the fact that they are paying short term rates for their advertising, which are always considerably higher than the yearly contract price. Then, how can they get over the contention that if it is profitable at the Christmas season, it is just as profitable at other seasons. Too many merchants have haphazard methods in connection with advertising. They are forgetful of the fact that systematic attention to advertising is just as essential, if the desired results are to be attained, as is careful buying. Advertising is a department by itself and it is better not to advertise than to neglect it. A merchant is soon known by his advertisements. If they are attractive and reliable, backed up by honest goods and fair treatment, they will nine times out of ten prove remunerative. Money spent in advertising is simply an investment and the returns are interest, which every merchant should exercise all legitimate means to make as large as possible.

Now that the season has opened when the major portion of merchants are advertising, they should not overlook the importance of giving this branch of their business the closest possible attention. Brevity with the emphasis in the proper place is an indication of successful advertising, and coupled with this the merchant should insist on a change of ad. regularly. If the medium he is using is a daily publication, he should change at least every other day, and if possible every day. Stale advertisements are indicative of indifference and a lack of enterprise, but the public usually take notice of the merchant who talks from day to day.

PEMBROKE.

I must congratulate The Grocer on its splendid Fall number, with its great store of interesting reading, more especially the splendid paper on, Cocoa and its Production. I should be glad to see more such papers, on the thousand articles which the grocer handles and of which he is often sadly lacking in knowledge. I think that it is almost as necessary for a grocer, as it is for a druggist, to know the properties of the goods he dispenses. One often finds a clerk or a storekeeper recommending to a customer an article of which he knows little or nothing, only because it has a better profit, than another article better suited to his customer's needs.

I am glad to see also the interest taken in window displays. Be the stock of a store ever so small, there is a good chance for a man to display his abilities. I don't know whether the editor intends to offer any more prizes for window dressing, but if so, I wonder if he would mind me making a few suggestions. First, to give a fair chance to all would-be competitors, I should suggest that all windows should be dressed with staple lines in teas, coffees, sugars, rice, sago, tapioca, etc. All grocery stores keep these everyday lines, and if a man can make an attractive display with these goods he can be pretty sure to make a good show with a big stock of fancy goods at his command. I should debar any show of proprietary goods, for I certainly think every man should advertise his own goods in preference to some maker's, who cuts him down to the barest item of profit. I should like to hear what your readers, prize-winners and others have to say on this subject.

Prices on the market this week have again advanced for eggs and butter, and very little of either was offered. Eggs brought from 25c to 28c per dozen, and butter 30c to 32c per pound, while a few tubs sold at 27c per pound. Fowl were all the way from 60c to 75c a pair and geese sold at 70c to 75c each. A few turkeys were offered at 75c to $1, and orders placed for the Thanksgiving bird at 80c to $1. Potatoes were scarce and sold at 80c per bag, and onions from $1 to $1.25. Vegetables were scarce, except turnips, most of the farmers having brought in their spare stock. Feed is high, hay taking a jump of $2 a ton, which brought the price to $22. The price of flour still seems likely to advance, the present price asked in the local mills being $5.70 a barrel for Hungarian Patent, and $5.20 for Strong Bakers.

Hunting parties have been busy getting together their supplies, also the lumber camps are being formed, which promise to keep the merchants busy shipping.

PRESTON.

To the consumers of groceries of all kinds, and especially of foodstuffs made from grains and farm produce, the present condition of affairs is indeed a proposition demanding more than a passing thought. It is probable that in no district is the situation more serious than it is here in Preston and the county of Waterloo. Prices are advancing all the time in every line, but more rapidly in the items mentioned above, and the grocers are being continually made the recipients of loud complaints.

In Waterloo county the population is very dense. There are many thriving towns and they are increasing their numbers all the time and rapidly. The local press are boasting of the several hundred more people they have this year than last, yet the farming community is standing still or going back. There are no more farms in this district than there were ten years ago and they are not producing any more stuff, yet there are several thousand more people to feed.

With the demand already greater than the supply, and increasing constantly, there is only one result to be expected, viz., an increase in price. Your correspondent interviewed several merchants in the town and they all had practically the same thing to say: Prices are going up and the people will have to pay them. One grocer, who has been doing business here for the past ten years, made one or two interesting comparisons, as follows.

Foodstuffs made from grain have increased over 25 per cent., and are going higher still.

Eggs formerly selling at 10 cents a dozen or three dozen for 25 cents, are to-day worth 28 cents and have never been below 18 cents all summer. We have to import from outside points over half what we sell.

Butter used to sell at 12½ cents and now it is 27 and 28 cents and has not been below 20 cents for a year, and this winter will be 30 cents and higher.

Chickens that used to sell at 8 and 9 cents a pound are now very scarce at 15 cents a pound.

There has been a general increase all around in price and also in complaints from the consumers. But the people are all busy, and wages are very good, so that it simply means that some of the luxuries indulged in will have to be curtailed. The people have been living too fast. Groceries were the last to be advanced and the people are now beginning to feel it.

Speaking generally, of the grocery business during the past summer and this fall, the opinion is unanimous that it has been the best season the grocers have had for many years. The profits have not been exceptionally great, but the volume of business has been largely increased. Everyone is doing well and have more money in the bank than heretofore. It is a good omen and the grocers look with optimism to the future.

A very interesting event took place in Galt on Saturday, Oct. 26, when W. E. Pautler, one of the leading grocers in Preston, was united in matrimony to Miss May Harth, of Galt. The ceremony took place in St. Patrick's church and was performed by Rev. Father Craven. It was of a quiet nature, being witnessed only by the members of the two families. The bride was becomingly attired in a navy blue traveling suit with hat to match, and was attended by her friend, Miss Rose Buchler, of Galt, who was similarly gowned, while the groom was supported by his brother, Anthony, who is associated with him in business. After the ceremony, the wedding party partook of a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of the bride, and the happy couple left on the 9.45 train to spend a few days in Woodstock. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and valuable gifts, and their hosts of friends will wish them a long and happy married life.

BRANDON.

Perhaps some of our fellow grocers in the east would like to know someting about the trade in Brandon. Brandon is a city of about 12,000 and has 23 grocery stores. Everybody seems to do a good trade and is well satisfied. Business has been a little quiet here this last three weeks, but that is because the farmers are so busy with their threshing and other work. Prospects are good, however, for fall trade. The crops are pretty good around Brandon and as wheat is over a dollar a bushel, the farmer will do about as well as in most years.

Flour has advanced to $3 per sack at the mills here and rolled oats are quoted at $3.10. We get the bulk of our fruit from the west, mostly from Washington, but a lot from British Columbia and California. There are two wholesale fruit houses here and they turn over a lot of goods. One firm has sold over one hundred carloads of fruit this summer and the other firm sold 27 cars during September. We are getting lots of Ontario grapes, pears, tomatoes and crab apples, mostly from the Niagara district. Grapes are selling retail at 35c. a basket, or 3 for $1, and that is as cheap as they ever get here.

The stores in Brandon enjoy the summer half-holiday. We have had this holiday for the past three years and find it works most satisfactory, and the merchants are satisfied that they do not lose a dollar's worth of business by observing it. I do not see why every town in the Dominion does not have this half-holiday in the summer. All the clerks have to do is to ask the merchants, because I notice that the employer enjoys this holiday as well as the employe.

If any of our eastern readers have an idea that we are behind the times out here, it would pay them to take a trip out west and get their eyes opened. They would see for themselves how progressive we really are. The western merchants are game for anything new and have nice stores, as a rule.

A lady came into one of our prominent grocery stores the other day and was heard to remark: "My, what a lovely store you have. I am more than surprised at your prices, because I always heard that everything was so dear out west, but the few little things I have purchased would cost just as much in Montreal." She said she was traveling through the west and came from Montreal.

The butcher shops and fish stores are piled full of wild geese and ducks now. The geese are selling at 75c. each and the ducks at from 50 to 75c. per pair. Prairie chickens are very scarce this year.

A grocer in Edmonton has adopted a new style of counters.

Ottawa wants to know, through The Grocer's correspondents, whether their respective towns have any market regulations which prohibit dealers from commencing to buy before certain hours. This is a live question in Ottawa just now, and any outside help will be appreciated.

Stratford indulges in a few caustic remarks on the general high prices of all foodstuffs. "Let's boost everything up 100 per cent," he says, "and then we'll all be rich and happy."

The Peterborough correspondent talks about window dressing and describes an attractive local window.

A new correspondent in Brandon describes local conditions in an interesting manner.

Barrie merchants complain of their goods being tampered with during shipment via Grand Trunk.

Calgary feels the benefit of local wholesale houses, and grocers there report collections exceedingly good.

The Woodstock correspondent tells of a new idea in butter making which has been tried at a creamery near that town.

The Ingersoll correspondent discusses the advisability of providing store facilities for waiting customers, and gives a few hints regarding advertising.

Winnipeg grocers enjoy the benefit of a well organized "credit report," in which dead-head customers all over the country are listed.

The city authorities are very strict about the merchants keeping their back lanes and yards clean and free from old paper. As a result of this there were ten of our business men up before the magistrate recently, and they were warned that if it ever occurred again it would cost them $50. It is not the merchants' fault, as a rule, because Brandon has more than its share of foreigners, and their youngsters come around at night and upset the rubbish, hunting for decayed fruit, etc.

WINNIPEG.

The Canadian Grocer has received from the Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, of Western Canada, a copy of one of the latest credit reports. About half of this report is for the particular benefit of the members in Winnipeg, and an examination of its pages is a revelation of the valuable work which is being done. Page after page is devoted to the lists of slow pay customers in Winnipeg, the information being received by the secretary from the association members in this city. When a new customer asks credit of a city grocer who is a member of the association—and nearly every grocer in Winnipeg is now a member of it—he can at once refer to the credit list furnished him by the secretary, and if the customer is listed there he knows that some other dealer has found that this customer has a habit of leaving bills unpaid. If the dealer wants any further information, he can get it very quickly by telephoning Secretary Coulson, who then makes careful special inquiry for him.

The country members are beginning to make use of this credit report, and a great many country delinquents are listed therein.

There is considerable indignation expressed by city grocers at the manifest unfairness of an early closing law which compels legitimate grocers to close at 6 o'clock each evening, and a Sabbath Observance Act, which compels them to remain closed on Sundays while the city is full of restaurants and lunch counters, which never close, and which carry a line of canned goods and other groceries. The grocers do not want to remain open after hours. They appreciate the advantages of compulsory early closing, but they object to these restaurants and fruit stands selling groceries after hours. This is a matter which might well engage the attention of the Grocers' Association in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg grocers are finding difficulty in raising the retail prices on the many lines of groceries that have advanced in cost during recent months. Rolled oats, for example, are being sold in most stores at cost or less. Wholesale prices have advanced by leaps and bounds, but the consumers are not yet accustomed to the new range of prices which must be charged, and foolish competition among dealers is keeping the price down. Canned goods are also being sold practically at cost.

Bright & Johnston, wholesale fruit merchants, have moved into their new building on Bannatyne avenue east. This building is on the site of the one destroyed by fire last January.

PETERBORO.

The grocers of Peterboro, as a rule, appreciate the advantages of tastily decorated windows, and along George street, the main thoroughfare in the city, are to be seen several groceries where the window displays are bound to catch the eye of the passer-by. At the present time, White & Gillespie have an arrangement in one of their windows that is attracting much attention. It is a miniature house, built of Fels-Naptha soap bars, the interior being brightly lighted, showing a neat little lady in the form of a doll bending over a tub of suitable proportions to harmonize with the surroundings. This is only one of many well dressed windows in Peterborough groceries. Reference to others will appear in later issues.

Grocery stores, like many other things in this world, are judged by their appearance. The window of a store is the portion of it that looms large before the person passing on the street. If the window is attractive, a favorable impression is created. If it is slovenly or perfect cleanliness is not in evidence, the impression is just the opposite, and one is not likely to enter and make purchases. Therefore it follows that it is up to the grocer to see that his windows are arranged in such a manner that they will attract customers. Nature makes the flowers bright and attractive in order that the bees will be attracted and the necessary pollenizing done. As regards being attracted where things are bright and pleasing to the eye, human beings are much like bees. The grocery that is bright and attractive will attract the people. Then have the goods inside at prices commensurate with a reasonable profit, treat your customers courteously, and the business will stay with you.

Fire broke out in the store of W. H. Hamilton, grocer, Simcoe street, early Sunday morning and destroyed between $2.000 and $3,000 worth of stock in addition to the damage done to the building which has not yet been estimated. The origin of the fire is a mystery. It is supposed to have started either in the ceiling of the second storey, or in the floor of the third. The fire brigade did good work in checking the blaze. About a ton of tea was destroyed and the other stock damaged consisted principally of canned goods. The loss on the stock is covered by insurance in the Royal Insurance Company, and the building is insured in the Hartford Insurance Company. The blaze will not prevent Mr. Hamilton from carrying on his business, as the front of the store was not hurt by either fire or water.

The largest consignment of potatoes ever brought to Peterborough by water was brought in last week on a scow from Rice Lake. There were 1,500 bags in the cargo, and the tubers were disposed of to Peterborough grocers and private parties. They were shipped by S. J. Isaac, of Harwood, Rice Lake. Jas. Bell, the Hunter street grocer, purchased 500 bags, being the largest individual buyer.

Great dissatisfaction exists in Peterborough concerning the assessment for 1908. The total assessment is over $2,000,000 higher than last year, and the fact that 324 appeals have been entered, goes to show that the ratepayers are not pleased with it. The number of appeals entered is the largest in the history of Peterborough.

J. J. Cocks, who formerly conducted a grocery at the corner of McDonnel and London streets, now occupies larger quarters at the corner of George and Dublin streets. He has a large and well stocked grocery at his new stand, and reports a substantial increase in business. Mr. Cocks is a progressive grocer, and since entering business for himself a few years ago, has met with considerable success.

Grocers should now be beginning to think about their Christmas advertising. There is nothing like judicious advertising to get trade around the holiday season, or at any time for that matter. Let the people know what you have to offer them. They have no other way of finding out.

The last meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board for the present season will be held on Wednesday of next week. The price paid at the last meeting of the Board was 12 13-16 cents.

Great interest centres here in the discovery that butter can be made from the butter fat separated from ordinary whey by running it through a cream separator. The experiment has been tried and proved successful at two cheese factories in this district, and a sample of the butter made at one of them was sampled by the salesmen and buyers at the last meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board and pronounced the equal of that made from cream. About fourteen pounds of butter can be made from 1,000 pounds of whey. The discovery will prove of great value to cheese factories.

Peterborough grocers last week had a visit from Mr. E. V. Moore, of the Canadian Grocer. The Grocer is a welcome visitor at many local groceries, and, as a result of Mr. Moore's visit, the paper's prestige has been considerably increased. Mr. Moore made many friends among those in the trade.

The annual meeting of the George Matthews Company was held here last week, when the reports showed that the business is steadily extending. A third retail store has been opened in Peterborough, at the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets.

Despite the stringency of the money market, trade continues active in Peterborough. The majority of the local industries are running full time, with full staffs, and state that they will not have to lay off any of their employes.

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED.

Many favorable comments were heard here among the grocers regarding the special fall number of The Grocer. It was chock full of meaty information, and, as one grocer expressed, "it is just what the doctor ordered." Peterborough Correspondent.

ST. CATHARINES.

It is a lamentable fact that the fruit growers and tomato producers have met with severe losses through the killing frosts that visited St. Catharines and vicinity recently. Whole fields of green, ripening, and ripe tomatoes were totally destroyed, and the vines were killed. The grape crop did not suffer so severely, but a large amount of damage was done. Even where fires were made by proprietors of vineyards, a goodly number of grapes were frosted. But the frosted grapes could be utilized immediately. In low lands the tops of the potato vines were injured, but report says that the tubers have not been frozen, but will be partially stunted. Corn was injured to a slight extent but the frost was not severe enough to injure the apples, of which the crop will not be heavy.

Among the live grocers of St. Catharines are Richard P. Bradley & Son. The business was originally started by the son, George R., who was a postage stamp dealer and collector. He was then a minor. Believing that the time was ripe, he embarked on a small scale in the grocery trade, connected with his stamp business. His trade increased so favorably that he induced his father to give up the trade of builder and contractor. The father took his son's advice and entered into a co-partnership, under the name of R. P. Bradley & Son. The firm moved from the junction of Centre and Court Streets to a central position on St. Paul, the leading business street of the city, and from that time on the firm has increased the business by leaps and bounds and to-day they are classed as leading grocers in the city. Mr. George R. Bradley is still under thirty years of age and has proved himself a good financier.

WHO'S WHO, AND HOW

At the Top of the Heap in Groceries

Examples of quality in human goods.
Graduates in the grocery trade.

J. M. Bothwell, Barrie's Pioneer Merchant.

J. M. Bothwell was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1848, and came to Canada in 1871. After a short stop in Toronto he came to Barrie, where he engaged in the florist and gardening trade for a time, then going into the flour, feed and grain business, which he carried on for a number of years, adding to it a general grocery stock. In 1880 he erected a fine three-storey brick block.

In this building, a view of which is shown here, he installed in the west half of the first storey one of the most complete lines of fancy and staple groceries to be seen in any store in Canada. He also continued the grain business until about ten years ago, when the Grand Trunk freight and grain storage sheds were burned. Finding no room for his stores, he gave it up, and devoted all his attention to the grocery trade.

J. M. BOTHWELL, OF BARRIE.

Besides the Barrie Block, he erected about fifteen years ago a fine two-storey block of stores in Allandale, now Ward Six, of Barrie, and occupies the largest of these as a branch of his Barrie store, where he also carries a fine line of groceries and crockery.

His one aim is to satisfy his customers, and he has built up a large trade by his careful business methods.

His two sons and a well-conducted staff are to be found always on hand and eager to please, while at the Allandale branch a capable manager, who understands his business is employed, who has in charge also a well-trained staff of salesmen.

Mr. Bothwell boasts of a large tourist trade, Lake Simcoe and the surrounding points drawing yearly a large crowd of summer residents from Canada and the States. Besides his business, he is interested in a number of companies and societies, among them being the Lake Simcoe Hotel Company, Ltd., operating the Queens, Barrie's best hotel; the Barrie Tanning Co.; the Simcoe Agricultural Company, and the Barrie Horticulture Association, of all of which he is a director. He has recently completed a three years' term as mayor, during which time the town has seen marked improvements to the parks, streets and sidewalks. Mr. Bothwell is a staunch member of Allandale Presbyterian church, in which he holds a prominent office.

CHEESE SEASON CLOSING.

The cheese season is rapidly drawing to a close. The majority of the cheese factories will have ceased operations by the second week in November. A marked decrease in the output in comparison with the corresponding period of last year is already noticeable, and this is due in the main, to the cheese factories having been starved for milk. The unusually stiff prices offered by the milk shippers diverted a considerable quantity of milk to the milk stations, which under normal circumstances would have gone to swell the receipts at the various cheese factories throughout the country. The present weekly sales of cheese probably do not exceed 55 or 60 per cent. of the sales in October of last year.

Circumstances this year seem to have militated against a big cheese production. Not only have the high prices diverted into other channels, milk supplies, on which the cheese factories have hitherto had the monopoly, but the excessive dryness has been responsible for a heavy shrinkage in the milk production generally, which has not been offset, as some people imagine, by the late fall feed in the pastures. Cheese quality, however, has, on the whole, been excellent, and the make for October, so far from showing any deterioration, has been declared by some of the buyers on the country boards, to exceed in quality that of September. Cold storage stock is being unloaded heavily and speculators are realizing moderately good returns on their investment.

NO POACHING.

Confirming the letter from Mr. Melville, chief representative of Sir Thomas Lipton, for the United States and Canada, published elsewhere in this issue, denying the report that it was the intention of Sir Thomas to open a chain of grocery stores throughout Canada to compete with the grocery trade The Canadian Grocer sought an interview with Mr. Melville, Sir Thomas Lipton's chief representative for the United States and Canada, and received the assurance that any such report is entirely without foundation, for there is absolutely no intention of carrying on anything but a wholesale business for Canada, in the same way as the business has been conducted in the United States for a great many years.

The report may have arisen due to a misunderstanding of the trade, believing that the Canadian business was conducted by Lipton, Ltd., London, England, who have several hundred stores scattered throughout Great Britain, but the business in Canada is that of Thomas J. Lipton. We feel sure that the grocery trade will be glad to have this assurance.

HOLIDAY OPPORTUNITIES.

From this time until the beginning of the year there are many busy days for the retailer. Hustlers are even now preparing for the fall and holiday trade, and, by the way some of the most progressive are working, one would judge them to be after previous records, with the intention of breaking every one of them. Every grocer will have to suit his trade to his locality, but there are few who cannot do an increased business during November and December. Confectionery lines may be pushed with profit; fancy groceries will be in season, and larger supplies than usual may with safety be laid in; while staples will be in request as much, and more, than ever. Hints and suggestions are all that the trade paper can contribute toward the success of the retailers at this season. It is for every man to recognize his own opportunities. Perhaps there are some little church or social affairs coming off. Why not supply the confectionery? A good many of your customers are going to have Christmas trees; they will buy what they need to dress it, from you, so far as confections are concerned, provided you have the right lines. Then, of course, there are the usual Christmas cakes, mince pies and other pastry which have to be baked. The grocer who has the greatest variety of ingredients for these eatables from which the housewife may choose, will secure the largest share of trade, provided his lines are first-class. But let the people know you have the goods. Advertise from now on. Women are reading the advertisements in the papers more eagerly than ever. They are going to do a great deal of purchasing, and are anxious to obtain the best value possible. You may have the best in town, but unless you let the shoppers know about you and your goods, you might as well make up your mind to take a back seat at once. Fix up the store, give it a holiday air; stock up good lines to sell at moderate prices; advertise, and work harder than usual, and you will not miss the opportunities for increased business that are now coming your way.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Georgetown Fruit Growers claim to be receiving higher prices for their apples than is paid to any other company in western Ontario. If this is so, it says a good deal either for the quality of the fruit grown in that section, or for the ability of the Georgetown Fruit Growers as business hustlers of a high order. Most of their apples have so far been marketed in Iowa and Minneapolis.

The evaporator at the G.T.R. station, Georgetown, has so far been operating eight pareing and coreing machines with a capacity of 1,000 bushels of apples daily. Three tons of evaporated apples are shipped daily. The cores and peelings are dried and shipped to France, where they are utilized in the manufacture of champagne.

The effect of the strong and advancing prices on flour is not felt so keenly in St. John, N.B., as it is in Halifax, N. S. This is evidenced by the fact that a 1½-lb. loaf of bread in the former city can be bought at the rate of 3½ cents per pound, whereas Halifax residents are obliged to pay at the rate of 4 2-3 cents. Four and a half cents is the rate in Montreal. The saying is that "population is thickest where the staff of life is cheapest." This removes the last excuse for any town being under-populated. It is merely necessary for such municipalities to regulate the price of bread as circumstances dictate.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Beans—Higher.
Teas—Firm.
Fish—Revised.
Rolled Oats—Unsettled.

Montreal, Oct. 31, 1907.

Fall business is quite brisk, and jobbers appear to be quite satisfied with the outlook for the remaining months of the year, and with the month of October just closing. Some houses have broken all records for October business. Collections appear to be fairly good, better than they have been for a month or so, though some houses hold a different opinion.

Canned goods deliveries are being made, both to the wholesale by the canners, and to the retail trade by the jobbers. Sugars are steady, while molasses is slightly firmer. Teas are stronger than ever, and there has been another advance in blacks. Samples of Japan teas which have just come to hand do not seem to be of the best, though prices are very high. New prunes are quoted this week, but otherwise there is little of interest in the dried fruit market.

Coffees and spices have not changed materially since last week. There is some talk of advancing rice prices, but no definite action has yet been taken by the trade. Beans are exceedingly scarce, and high prices continue to be asked by holders.

SUGAR—Sugars are steady at unchanged prices. Demand continues about as good as it has been for the past month. Grocers are buying, but only for immediate use.

TEA—Teas are stronger than ever, and advances are reported in some of the primary markets. Blacks are reported one cent higher. China teas are also advanced, and buyers are having trouble in securing lots, as native holders will not allow them to select the grades they desire. According to one report received, as much as 25c a pound for black siftings has been paid at Colombo. Japan teas, judging from the most recent samples, are of unsatisfactory quality, but the prices asked are higher than ever.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Rough weather delayed the first steamer with new dates, which is now moored at New York. Supplies are already on the Montreal market, though large lots have not been received. From advices received from New York it would appear that figs are about as low as they will be seen this fall. In raisins there has been a sharp advance in Sultanas abroad. Valencias have not changed materially since last report, Malagas are in good supply locally, and appear to be selling satisfactorily. California prune prices are somewhat easier, but buyers are not over-anxious to take hold. One local dealer this week received a car of Oregon prunes, which he reports of good quality, though high in price. Old prunes are being cleaned up around 7c to 8c, regardless of sizes. Almonds in the shell are exceedingly scarce locally. Filberts are also in short supply. New Taragona almonds are selling 13c to 14c. Other nuts are unchanged.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The market in rice continues firm. There is an unconfirmed report of a drought in India, which, if true, will likely affect the local market. Some local jobbers talk of an advance, but nothing has yet been done.

Tapioca continues high, with little or no business being done. Supplies are practically cleaned up.

BEANS—The demand for beans continues strong, with very few offerings. There is about a 70 per cent. crop of beans, with but one-third A1 stock, the balance being 4-lb. to 12-lb pickers. High prices are likely to be maintained.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Canned Goods—Active movement.
Sugar—Dragging market.
Sultanas—Advancing.
Oysters—Heavy demand.

Toronto, Oct. 29, 1907.

Notwithstanding the almost prohibitive prices on many lines of foodstuffs, wholesalers at this centre declare almost to a man that when the books are made up their volume of business for October will be well ahead of transactions for last month. They admit, however, that it will take some hustling to beat October's business of last year, which was an exceptionally good month in every way. Opinions differ as to the effect on collections and business generally of the tightness in the money market, but there seems no doubt that collections have been affected pretty heavily. Curiously enough, the general report is that money is easier to get from country points than from city customers, a state of affairs which is generally reversed. The high prices, according to some houses, are affecting sales very noticeably, retailers being chary of buying too heavily in the face of such stiff prices, having in mind the hostile attitude of their customers towards recent advances on certain staple lines.

Deliveries on canned goods are being made to the retailer, and some houses claim to be in a position to make 100 per cent. delivery on orders. It is now generally understood, however, that the Canadian Canners will be 25 to 30 per cent .short on tomatoes, and about 20 per cent. short on corn. On other lines the market this week is without feature. Many complaints are heard embodying various uncomplimentary opinions of the system of handling and forwarding freight that seems to obtain in Montreal. The Bellona, which arrived about two weeks ago with a full cargo of Mediterranean fruits, is apparently taking all the time she wants to unload. This unnecessary delay is exceedingly annoying to houses who have on board shipments which it is essential should be forwarded at once. The slackest sort of system seems to prevail at the docks, and frequently the transportation facilities appear quite inadequate to handle the consignments.

TEA—No further estimates have come to hand with regard to the total Indian supply available for the U.K., but rumors of all sorts have been and are being made the basis of considerable speculation on the London market. A further advance of almost ½d. per lb. being registered on India and Ceylon low and medium grades. The total quantity of Indians offering for the season to date (and these figures include South Indian teas since Aug. 1st), are 419,760 packages. As against 442,866 packages for the same period in 1906. The total amount of Ceylon advertised since Jan. 1st, is 1,015,604 packages, a decrease of 44,355 packages from the total for the same period in 1906.

Mail advices from London, under date of Oct. 17th, say:

"Persistent rumors of a shortage in the total Indian supply available for the United Kingdom, coupled with the knowledge of small holdings in the country, combined to bring about a certain amount of excitement at the opening on Monday, and although this abated somewhat at yesterday's auction, the week's sales close at an advance of fully ½d. per lb. on late quotations, the average of Indian and Ceylon teas being now ½d. per lb. above that for the corresponding period last year. The larger quantity on offer next week may, however, prove rather a strain on the buying powers of the trade, in spite of the free business passing, although future sales of from 45 to 50,000 packages should about meet requirements.

"The details of September transhipments, given overleaf, show the large increase of 754,000 lbs. in the quantity of Indian tea sent to the United States and Canada. As has been previously explained, this is owing to the new arrangement whereby optional shipments for America are now in nearly all cases entered for London thus partly accounting for the deficiency in the landed receipts as compared with the Calcutta figures of exports—referred to in our circular last week."

COFFEE—Elsewhere in this issue is given a report from a well-known firm, indicating higher prices for coffee in the near future. The opinion is considered sound by the trade here, and a further report, received later than that referred to above, says, referring to the Santos market, especially:

"The market is very strong, and cables from Santos say there are plenty of buyers at present prices, being only a very slight decline from former figures. In fact, bids a fraction below the market are refused. With railroad freights going up and steamer rates for coffee from Brazil likely to be put on a higher level in the near future, this, with a falling off of receipts in November, will add to the resisting power of the Santos market, and, therefore, it is improbable that prices will be influenced to any further extent by the financial troubles."

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Wednesday, Oct. 30.

BUTTER—Market continues strong

CHEESE—No change, market quiet.

EGGS—Demand brisk at old prices.

PROVISIONS—No change. Lard and smoked meats very firm.

Locally, the situation is quiet and unchanged.

Willett & Gray say of the Rio crop:

"The information received lately from prominent firms in Brazil is to the effect that the current Rio crop has been largely overestimated, which is more and more apparent as the harvest is completed. The receipts so far for the season in Rio are 200 000 bags, behind the movement for the same time two years ago, and even if there should be some increase, it is doubtful if the total outturn in Rio will exceed that of 1905-1906."

Spot coffee on the New York market is held very firm, without much change in values.

SUGAR—The local market in refined sugar is a dragging one, prices having been absolutely without change since July 9th, a period of well over a quarter of a year, with the exception of the decline in Acadia granulated on Aug. 24th. There has, therefore, been no speculation, and transactions have been regulated by actual consumptive requirements, which now show a considerable falling off after the recent heavy demand.

The situation may be described as a waiting market, and by some people it seems to be regarded as probable that the next change will be a decline, but it does not appear that there is any indication in that direction, or, in fact, either way.

In raws, the situation will for some time be largely governed by the state of the weather conditions on the continent, and reports to date show favorable weather for growing crops.

The first estimates of the European beet sugar campaign for 1907-8 have come to hand from two sources, as follows:

For all Europe:

	Tons.
Estimate of Otto Licht.....	6,520,000
Estimate of F. O. Licht.....	6,580,000

These figures may be compared with the actual outturn of the last campaign, 1906-07, which amounted to 6,717,000, indicating a probable falling off of say 150,000 tons.

The Cuban campaign has been over now for some weeks past, and stocks on the island are diminishing every week. At last reports there were only 43,000 tons left.

Receipts for the week at the three Atlantic ports were 47,485 tons, with meltings of 41,000 tons, leaving a stock on hand with refiners and importers of 218,197 tons.

Willett & Gray estimate the total cane sugar crops of the world at 7,196,000 tons, as compared with 7,361,936 tons for 1906-7, and 6,733,626 tons for 1905-06.

Their estimate of the total beet crop of the world for 1907-08 is an even 7,000,000 tons, compared with 7,150,010 tons for 1906-07, and 7,217,366 for 1905-06.

DRIED FRUITS—Brown & Dureau wrote to The Canadian Grocer from Melbourne, Australia, under date of September 28th, as follows:

"The total production of Lexia raisins this season is estimated at 2,750 tons, of which 1,500 are required for home consumption. The principal shipments to other countries have been approximately : London, 700 tons ; New Zealand, 200 tons ; Canada, 250 tons.

"In Sultanas the total production is about 2,150 tons, of which 1,400 tons are required for home consumption. Exports to date are about 650 tons, of which London has had 250 and New Zealand 225 tons. Some small parcels have been sent to Canada, where quality and flavor were very highly commented upon, but price considered high.

"Last season we also produced about 1,400 tons of currants, but as our consumption is about 6,000 tons, it will be some time before our growers can overtake this."

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Little interest is being displayed in canned goods. Wholesalers are still receiving stocks, and are making deliveries to the retail trade. Demand for various lines is practically nil. Below are given new prices on catsup and baked beans.

TORONTO—Prices on baked beans and tomato catsup have been given out by the canners. Without exception every line is dearer than last year, the beans from 5c to 10c per dozen higher, and the catsups from 10c to 50c. Prices are as follows :

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Wednesday, Oct. 30, 1907.)

Prices continue to soar in nearly all grocery lines and in some the advance has been so great as to seriously affect the demand. It is estimated that the average increase in Winnipeg prices, as compared with those of a year ago is from 20 to 25 per cent., and in many lines it has been much greater. Canned goods sales show a marked decline, owing to the big increase in price. Cereals are advancing rapidly. Another sharp advance in rolled oats will be noted this week. It is said by the milling interests that there is not 10 per cent. of milling oats in the west this year and if this be true the highest level of prices has probably not been reached yet. In spite of the high prices charged for oats this paper has reliable information to the effect that buyers are in the west trying to get a large shipment to send to Australia. If Australia can import our oats at present prices, there is little likelihood of any decline in the price of rolled oats for another year.

CANNED GOODS—Buying is still very light, owing to the high prices and there is much grumbling among the wholesale and retail branches of the trade. New prices are announced this week on blueberries. The wholesale houses have been unable to get full supplies of salmon and retailers who do not place their orders early are apt to be disappointed.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The situation is unchanged since last week. No new season Ontario fruit is yet on the market. Last season's Ontario fruit and a line of California fruit are offered for immediate delivery. The jobbers are holding back at present, owing to the high prices asked by the evaporators for Ontario fruit, but there is no doubt that the opening prices for new season goods will be at least 10¾c, and probably higher.

JAMS—Upton's jams have been reduced to 50 cents, one of the few declines to be noted this week.

HONEY—New Ontario honey is commanding a high price. We quote :

CEREALS—Rolled oats have been advanced again and the general opinion is that the end is not yet. Milling experts say that there is not more than 10 per cent. of milling oats in this season's Western Canada crop, and if this be so even higher prices may be expected. The package lines of rolled oats have also been sharply advanced, the "Banner," "Premium," "Beaver," and "Quaker Oats" lines (family size) now being quoted at $5.25 per case. "Quaker Oats" in 2-lb. packages now commands a price of $3.85 for case of 36 packages.

TRAVELER MAKES CHANGE.

Henry Milton, who has been connected with retail firms in Millbrook and Sudbury, has joined the traveling staff of James Turner & Co., Hamilton, and will look after their interests in the territory lying west of Hamilton to Wiarton. Mr. Milton has had a very lengthy experience in the retail business, having followed it in the Old Country as well as in Canada.

Mr. Milton will start out right away and is advising the trade by mail of the date of his intended calls.

CORRESPONDENCE

Almost every paper in the country has, during the past month, printed articles and small "squibs" on the "Rise in prices" and the "Cost of living." A short synopsis of the question as it has to do with Stratford will not be amiss.

With the very shoes on our feet dearer by half a dollar than they were twelve months ago, and the soaring in the price of food we eat attaining to heights that compel a diet of bread and water, it is cheering to observe that one item in the prescribed expenditure remains normal. Wall papers cost no more than they did three years ago, despite the fact that countless variations and improvements have been added in the interim. The busy housewife can at least rest assured that she can beautify her home, as far as the walls are concerned, at the same cost as she could thirty-six months ago.

"Cheer up, the cost of porridge isn't likely to go up this coming winter, despite the fact that oats, like other foodstuffs, have gone up in price. Not only the materials for the Scotchman's favorite dish, but other cereals and breakfast foods, which have their origin in wheat, oats, corn and barley, are not likely to go up in price." Your correspondent obtained this information from a local business man. He said, "Take a trip to-day through the country and you'll find the barns well stocked with all kinds of grain. This talk of short crops is to a large extent exaggerated." Would that we could believe the above statement, but the remark has little significance, for the next man the reporter asked concerning the likelihood of the prices in goods advancing was a grocer, who said that the goods had already advanced. In part he said that "the man who can afford to sleep in mornings late enough to be able to go without his breakfast is a lucky one. Owing to the advanced prices of grains, the manufacturers of breakfast foods, especially oatmeal, have sent up the wholesale price on these articles, with the result that we have found it necessary to charge the consumer more. The packages which formerly sold at 10 cents will go up to 15 cents, while 25-cent packages will advance to thirty cents. The price of oatmeal in bulk has gone up about 50 per cent. The wholesale price was formerly $2.30 per cwt., but now it is $3.25, and instead of getting seven pounds for the quarter, the people will only get six pounds for their twenty-five cents, and the present prices (wholesale) will likely force us to make still another advance in the near future."

The bread situation in this city remains the same as a month ago, or in fact, as it has been for months past. In other cities the price of bread has advanced.

Bonbons and choice chocolates have gone up in price, and no doubt there will be less cases of toothache reported.

The milk outlook is satisfactory, as the dealers have practically agreed that the price shall remain at the present figure, but cream has advanced by double figures at a time.

Eggs are still soaring, as high as 30 cents per dozen being asked on the market Saturday, though they were sold in some instances for 27 cents. Butter remains about the same price as last week, viz., 27 and 28 cents per pound. Experts say that this is a good time to use storage eggs, which are practically as good as they were when they were put in storage last April when theye are sold about 25 cents wholesale. But it is not a good time to buy storage eggs for fresh ones, with the price at 30 cents a dozen.

The hotel-keepers have advanced the price to the farmers and others for stabling, and it is said that before very long they will also boost the price of drinks. The prices in certain lines of liquor have advanced and the hotelmen feel that they would be justified in raising the price to the consumer, but the consumer is of the opinion that the stuff is plenty high enough as it is. As one man remarked: "Wasn't it bad enough that butter and eggs and other such luxuries should rise in prices, without taxing us more for beer and whisky and other necessities of life?"

It is now stated that some of the carters want to raise their rates. Let's boost everything all around 100 per cent. —wages and the cost of living—and then we'll all be rich and happy.

WOODSTOCK.

It is safe to say that most of the people of this district will not have their customary Thanksgiving turkey on Thursday of this week. This is not because there is an unusual scarcity of them, but because they are not yet developed sufficiently, in a great many cases, to allow of their being eaten. The season was late in all respects, and turkeys are late in sympathy. Citizens, then, who are not millionaires will do without roast turkey on Thanksgiving, and it is said that in many cases, roast little pigs will be made to do duty. Pigs are a glut on the local market, and it is hard to get rid of them. It is said that one well known farmer had two litters of small pigs, and knocked them on the head, in preference to raising them. His idea was that the cost of feed was so great it would not pay.

An interesting experiment was tried at a cheese factory between Tillsonburg and Courtland the other day. The proprietors had the idea that the process of cheese making failed to abstract from the milk all the butter fat, so for two days they put what was left when the cheese was made, through a cream separator. What they got out was churned, and in two days fifty-six pounds of butter were made. The result of the experiment was significant, more so as it is said that the butter was not to be distinguished from the article made under ordinary circumstances.

The change of the New England and Courtland cheese factory from company control to private ownership, leaves only the Tillsonburg factory, in the southern section of the county, operated under the co-operative system. A few years ago, this was almost exclusively the prevailing method of conducting cheese factories, but apparently it has proved unsatisfactory, and one by one the various factories are reverting to private management until the system has been practically abandoned It appears that the ability necessary to success could not be obtained from boards of directors whose attention was largely occupied by managing individual enterprises, and the affairs connected with the company became a side issue, and were more or less neglected.

John Wilson, of Dereham township, is suing the C.P.R. company for $1,500 for damages, in a peculiar action, resalting from the shipment of a car load of turkeys which Mr. Wilson shipped by the railway company's agency last fall. The turkeys were shipped on the first of December, and the plaintiff says they were to be sent across to England on the first boat, in time for the Christmas trade. They were delayed, and did not reach the Old Country in time to be sold to good advantage, and he claims that the $1,500 is what he lost through the alleged negligence of the company. It is expected that the action will be tried before a High Court judge in December.

Butter is selling at thirty-five cents a pound in Woodstock, and housekeepers are seriously alarmed at the idea of such prices. Eggs are 25 cents a dozen. The price of butter is due to the milk shortage, which may be traced to the shortage of feed, which was due to the backward season. Thus one thing leads to another, and the poor housekeeper has to pay the piper. There is another cause of the scarcity of butter, and that is that more of the district's supply of milk this year has gone into cheese than hitherto, and not as many of the creameries have been operated. Then, again, a considerable quantity of milk has been shipped into Toronto to dairies there, while the condensing factory at Ingersoll consumes huge quantities of it.

AUSTRALIAN FRUIT FOR CANADA

Grocers in That Country Agree on Special Prices for Our Markets—Particulars Regarding the Antipodian Goods.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Canada recently over the prospect of an extensive trade being done between this country and Australia in several lines of fruit. In view of this the following extracts from a letter to The Grocer from D. H. Dureau, a member of a prominent firm of brokers in Melbourne, will be read with interest:

"One of the advantages of Australian fruit is its great keeping quality. A few years ago some shipments were sent on consignment to London, and, owing to very low prices then ruling for other fruits, were not readily sold. Our crop the following year was a failure, and the fruit was re-shipped from London and distributed here, it being for all practical purposes equal to the new seasons.

"The fruit is grown chiefly at Mildura, in Victoria, and Renmark, in South Australia, both of which have extensive irrigation schemes, and with this artificial watering, the soil and climate are particularly suitable for the growth of these fruits.

"In addition, excellent peaches, pears and apricots are grown there in increasing quantities.

"The Growers' Associations this year agreed, on our recommendation, for special prices for Canada, prices for home consumption being very much higher. It is to be hoped that preferential tariffs will be agreed to between the Government of our countries. We understand that your commercial representative, here, Mr. D. H. Ross, is at present negotiating with our Minister of Customs to this end, and we may here remark that in our opinion, your Government could not possibly have a better representative."

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

An easier feeling has characterized the cheese market since last report and prices have been on the downward road. Of late there has not been much demand from the other side. Old Country houses appear to have fairly large stocks on hand, and they are not overanxious to buy at the prices which rule here to-day. Consumptive demand in Great Britain appears to be quite good, and it would seem that if present demand continued, stocks held there will soon decrease to such an extent as to make imperative the buying of Canadian cheese, despite the advanced figures which by that time may be ruling on this side.

Considerable cheese, which has been held locally on English account, has been shipped, and such lots have helped to make the export figures come up to the usual standard.

Some are asking a price for finest western, which would have been laughed at two weeks ago. As much as 13c is demanded, but this figure is rather above the average, since so many will part with their holdings around 12½c to 12¾c. Townships cheese brings anything from 12½c to 12⅞c, a very good range. The middle price is 12⅝c. For Quebecs the price hovers between 12½c and 12⅝c.

It is possible that there may be further declines in the course of the next few days, judging from present feeling in the trade, but on the other hand there may be a little spurt before the close of navigation. It is improbable that there will be a much firmer feeling in the market any time before the beginning of February, if this improvement does not occur before the last boat leaves port.

Last week receipts of cheese were 51,610 boxes, as against 69,686 boxes previous week, and 68,052 boxes same week 1906. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 1,891,007 boxes, against 2,101,220 boxes for the same period last year.

Butter.

Butter continues firm. prices not having changed greatly during the week. If anything, they are slightly higher. Quotations run from 28½c for fine creamery in boxes, to 29c for tubs, though some are selling at figures even higher. Dairy is selling at from 24c to 26c.

The marked scarcity of all varieties of butter which has been felt all season, is likely to continue. Dealers have on hand about enough to go around, but they have none to spare. It appears that farmers this year are using more butter for themselves than in former seasons, storing away larger amounts for winter use. To render matters worse, the make during October has not been a large one.

There has been more or less talk of foreign butter being placed on the Canadian market, but the quantity which has found its way here already does not amount to much, and it has not met with the greatest favor in the trade. Such Irish butter that has arrived, from what can be ascertained, is no better than our dairy, being the common Irish factory. It costs 25½c laid down here. Irish creamery does not seem to have yet been attempted, but there is no telling what dealers may do if the market continues to advance.

If conditions of to-day prevail in January, it is quite likely that considerable New Zealand and Australian butter will be brought on to Montreal.

It is possible, however, that there will be a break in prices this month, as the butter received during November, being stable goods, is not always up to the standard desired, and as good prices are not obtainable for it as for September and October make. Much depends upon the situation. If butter is very scarce, and storekeepers are forced to take what they can get, firm prices will likely rule, Dairy is not arriving from the west as freely as it has been. Western grocers are paying good prices for anything that is offered them, and makers are not keen about shipping on to the east when there is such a good demand right at home. Sales are reported west of Toronto at 24c, which would mean a selling price of 26c.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 7,006 packages, against 8,188 packages previous week, and 7,949 packages same week last year. Since May 1 receipts have been 360,093 packages, against 652,611 packages for the same period, 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

With deliveries to Canadian points totalling between 30,000 and 35,000, and with the English market paying around 61s. for best, Canadian packers are able to sustain the optimistic feeling induced by last week's conditions. The exceptionally heavy deliveries of hogs that always pour out of the country at this season has this year not exceeded the average figures of 1906 to any marked extent. This week may be regarded as the second of the three weeks during which the rush is at its heaviest. In another seven days or so its main strength will be expended, and the packers are naturally making hay while the sun shines.

The present favorable conditions in the Old Country market, due principally to the marked falling off of American shipments and somewhat decreased deliveries of Irish, are not expected to last. The conditions of the English market previous to the past two weeks has been such as to offer no inducement to American packers, to make shipments. Deliveries of American bacon fell off, in consequence, several thousand boxes below normal, and this stringency soon had its effect on the English market, which advanced about 4s. At the present average price of bacon, America can recommence shipping again at a profit, and her deliveries will fall upon a loosely-supplied market, with double strength by reason of her unwillingness to make shipments for the past fortnight. The usual result of unloading stocks upon a rising market will, in this instance, so say the packers, be reflected in a decline of from 6s. to 7s. in the Old Country within the next ten days.

Prices paid by the packers this week have not altered, $6.10 being offered f.o.b. country points, and $6.35 fed and watered. Danish deliveries for the past week were 36,000.

Provisions on the Chicago market have been unsettled, fluctuating in sympathy with the grain market. The average of receipts for the week has been moderate. Packers have sold pretty freely. The Journal of Commerce, reviewing the situation for the past week, says:

"The past week has witnessed much more activity in the option market for hog products than hitherto on this crop. This was stimulated by financial conditions and by the decline in the grain markets, which turned late bullish sentiment the other way, led by the packers, who have been quite free sellers of futures at declining prices on fear of a further stringency in the money market. This has been due to the fact that this is the season of the year when packers are heavy borrowers at the banks, and it is supposed that some of them had not made their arrangements. The result was liquidation by them and by outsiders, without stimulating cash business, except in lard for the U.K., of which exporters took more the past week than for a long time, as packers' consignments had previously been supplying those markets. Other products have ruled dull and hams easy at the West and entirely neglected here, though city bellies have been well cleaned up by the local trade, as production has continued very light. owing to high prices of hogs."

PROVISION MARKETS

BUTTER—The prices in the country boards have been about the same as during the past two weeks. Receipts are light and dairy butter is exceedingly scarce. There is a good demand for fresh rolls and tub butter. Very little dairy butter has arrived from the West. The prices there are continuing so strong that dealers are not anxious to ship east. Some foreign creamery has been offered but the quality is not good enough to satisfy the trade who are taking hold very freely.

PROVISIONS—Pork prices continue about the same as last week, with very little business passing. The increased demand for beef, the supplies of which have recently been of good quality, accounts for a slight drop in mutton and lamb.

BUTTER—An advance of another cent on the better lines is noted this week. There seems to be no relief for the present serious situation, and prices will probably go considerably higher. Dealers say that there is a probability of Australian and Siberian butter being brought in before the winter is over. The fact that the butter supplied is universally good is the only redeeming feature.

AFTER RAILWAY COMPANIES.

Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild Complains of Delayed Shipments.

Montreal wholesalers are feeling sore over the delays which have been caused in the delivery of goods, particularly seasonable lines, owing to the lax methods of railway companies which have neglected to provide proper facilities for the handling of goods accepted for transportation.

Following is a copy of the resolution passed at a recent meeting of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild: "That whereas, owing to the failure of the railway companies to provide sufficient cars and engines and adequate terminal facilities, and for other reasons, they have been unable to properly handle the business offering during the past year, and in consequence, cars of goods have been delayed in transit and when finally landed in the terminals have remained there for weeks before the consignees could secure delivery, the result being that in many cases the wholesale grocer has been unable to secure his goods until the season during which they were salable had passed,

"Therefore resolved, That the companies should be urged to take such steps as may be necessary to enable them to handle the business for the coming fall and winter with more regard to the rights of shippers than has been the case during the term complained of,

"And further resolved, That this Guild is of opinion that when, as a result of the non-delivery by the railway companies within a reasonable time, of goods entrusted to them for carriage particularly when such are seasonable goods the consignors have suffered loss owing to the impossibility of selling such goods when the season has passed, the companies should be compelled to indemnify the consignees the amount of their loss"

The firm of J. H. Langlois & Co., general storekeepers, of St. Scholastique, Que., have dissolved.

Clark's Canned Meats

One reason why my canned meats enjoy such a reputation for quality lies in the fact that I do nothing in my factory but cook and pack meats.

All animals are slaughtered at public slaughter houses; are then inspected by city inspectors and have then to pass my own Inspector.

I am therefore doubly certain that the meats I pack are the best offered on the Canadian market.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Strong Market for Wheat and Oat Products—Saskatchewan Wheat Returns—Winnipeg Inspections—Some Side-lights on Confectionery.

Prices on both wheat and oat products remain about unchanged from last week, but there is no indication of any weakening tone in the markets, for either the raw material or manufactured product, which, if anything, continue bullish in character. The flour men are not booking many orders ahead, in view of the unsettled condition of the wheat market, but domestic demand is very strong and increased export enquiry is reported. Prices on rolled oats are expected to be revised about the end of the first week in November, a large number of sales of the raw material having been made for November delivery.

The Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture has received returns from about 1,000 correspondents all over the province, and from these returns have estimated Saskatchewan's total wheat crop at 30,000,000 bushels. The first returns received by the Department indicated a crop of 35,000,000 bushels, but this was thought to be in excess of a conservative estimate warranted by the conditions, and a second census was taken, which resulted in the first estimate being decreased by 5,000,000 bushels. The acreage under crop, according to the last official estimate, is 1,965,774, indicating a total production of 29,486,610 bushels. It may be that the final returns will show a deviation from the average of fifteen bushels, and an accurate estimate will not be possible until the final returns from the thrashers are compiled about the end of the calendar year.

It is expected that the crop this year, which is almost 7,000,000 bushels below that of 1906, will bring in actual cash value, as much as, if not more than last season's total yield.

Wheat inspection at Winnipeg at the end of last week showed some improvement over previous days' returns, but the average was still considerably below that of previous weeks. 332 cars were inspected, of which 2 cars graded No. 1 hard; 59 cars, No. 1 northern; 84 cars, No. 2; 43 cars, No. 3; 16 cars, No. 4; 26 cars were winter wheat; the remainder, 97 cars, fell below contract grade. Last year 430 cars were inspected.

Confectionery.

Confectionery is the grocer's side-partner.

It drums up business for him in quarters that he cannot reach himself.

It is the prince of side-lines.

But—It pays to handle only the best.

Opportunities neglected is money wasted.

Can you afford to do business as your grandfather did. Though if the truth were known they may have been more up-to-date in this respect than the present generation.

Your neighbor may be ploughing along in the same old rut, but that's his business. The point is: Can YOU afford it?

Think it over.

ROLLED OATS—It is impossible to give prices which will meet the views of all sellers. As will be seen, there is a wide range, some jobbers asking $6 a barrel, and others up to 7.75. Buying appears to be very slight, most grocers being either well stocked, or under contract which lets them out of the high prices, which the man who is caught short is forced to pay.

FLOUR—No change has been made in prices, but millers report the situation as very strong, with values, if anything, showing an advancing tendency. Prices are too high and domestic consumption too heavy, to admit of much export business being done, though enquiry from the foreign markets is improved from last week.

Broomhall estimates the world's wheat exports to all countries for the past week at 10,800,000 bushels, against 13,312,000 the previous week, and 12,528,000 last year.

The Montreal Board of Trade has decided to advertise Montreal as a manufacturing centre, and will place advertisements in London papers to attract English manufacturers to the field here.

R. M. Fulton, who has for some time past conducted the grocery store at the corner of George and Townsend streets, Sydney, C.B., is offering his business and good-will for sale, having decided to leave Sydney for a while.

J. K. Chambers, of the Salada Tea Company, Toronto, who is an enthusiastic member of the York Hunt Club, and Geo. J. Mitchell, of the J. J. McLaughlin Co., are members of a party which left this week for a ten days' hunting trip in the Parry Sound district.

Walter Paul, of Montreal, who knows all about groceries and a little about other things as well, has just opened a branch store at the corner of University and Burnside Place. To anyone who knows Mr. Paul, (and who does not), it is almost unnecessary to add that the new store bids fair to become one of the brightest and best equipped in the city.

W. A. Muir, of the Fowler Canadian Co., Hamilton, Ont., was lately in Sydney, C.B., investigating the possibilities of that market for his firm. The Fowler people deal in beef, pork, etc. Mr. Muir is enthusiastic over the prospects, and declares Sydney to have the makings of the best provision market, in proportion to its area and population, to be found in Canada.

$10,000 DAMAGES.

Alfred Craigie, candymaker, of Toronto, commenced an action before Justice Magee in the jury assize court on Monday, to recover $10,000 damages against McClure and Langley, manufacturers of grocers' sundries, and specialties, and agents for Tobler's milk chocolate. The plaintiff alleges that a certain line of chocolate which he purchased from the defendants turned out to be bad.

HIGHER COFFEE EXPECTED.

Report of Nordlinger & Co. Anticipates Advance—Santos and Rio.

In their regular monthly review of the coffee situation, Henry W. Nordlinger & Co. say: "The receipts at Rio and Santos during the last half of September increased only moderately over those of the first half of that month. In recent years the heavy movement of the crop occurred during the last half of September or first half of October, after that a gradual falling off took place. This year may be an exception to that rule, because the railroads in the State of Saa Paulo, which reduced their freight rates 20 per cent. during the heavy movement of last year's crop —which reduction has been in force since then—have given notice that on November first this year they will advance the freight rates to about the previous figures. This will no doubt induce the planters to hurry forward their coffee to shipping ports during the rest of this month. It is but natural to expect that a sharp falling off in the receipts will be encountered after that time.

"Ideas with regard to the size of the current crop may be influenced by the larger receipts above referred to, which again will be modified later on when they show the falling off expected by us.

"Santos coffee, of which there is no doubt a considerable shortage in the production this year as compared with the requirements, has been ruling very firm and at no time during the present crop season were any large quantities on offer. The premium paid for Santos coffee over the price ruling for Rio exceeded in a great many cases 1 per cent. per pound, grade for grade, and this premium is likely to be increased still further.

"The Government holdings are apparently kept intact, and it is the general impression that none of that coffee will be sold unless a much larger price is reached. There is, however, enough coffee to go around for all purposes at the present time, but these conditions will only govern as long as the receipts are large. It must not be overlooked that the available visible supply will be cut into perceptibly toward the end of the fiscal year. If we are not entirely mistaken in our ideas with regard to the size of the crop, higher prices are bound to rule later on, unless the Sao Paulo Government is willing to meet some of the trade demand.

"In making this assertion we have in mind only actual Santos coffee. Options, which are based on the import cost of Rios and Bahias, and primarily on the prospects for the growing crop, may not respond to the same extent. Furthermore, it is almost certain that speculators will not enter the market for a bull campaign with the present enormous visible supply, no matter how small they believe the current crop to be. Even the trade is not willing to stock up; it has shown remarkable powers of abstention for over a year past; but this makes the position so much stronger, as it insures an uninterrupted and steady demand distributed throughout the year.

"Importers and jobbers who have sold against their stock (and there are many of them) will buy, and are buying back their options as they make sales of the actual coffee, thus lending some support to values on the Coffee Exchange.

"With regard to the growing crop reports have reached us that the flowering up to the end of September was very moderate. The trees, however, have a splendid appearence, being full of leaves, and we have received news recently that the flowering so far this month shows some improvement, which they may extend; in fact, promises still better results during the rest of this month. The weather is fine, the trees are strong and whatever flowering takes places will most likely turn into fruit. A larger crop than was produced this year may therefore be reasonably expected. How much larger depends entirely on the extent of the flowering during the next two weeks.

"Pending the above mentioned developments, it seems advisable to pursue a conservative course. Cables will no doubt reach here, off and on, reporting conditions as the respective senders may construe them. These cables are often sent for the purpose of influencing the market, and should be accepted with due allowance.

"With regard to mild coffee crops, we can only reiterate our previous estimate of 3,000,000 bags (exclusive of Bahia and Victoria). This estimate, although seemingly a low one, is based on the shortage of the crops in Central America, Venzuela and East Indies, as reported to us by reliable correspondents.

PRICES ON ALL FOODSTUFFS ADVANCING IN NOVA SCOTIA

Bread Selling at 7 Cents a Loaf—Butter Scarce—Eggs at 30 Cents a Dozen—$1,000,000 of Apples Damaged.

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 28

The high price of all food products here has caused quite an agitation, and during the past week the daily papers have been filled with long articles, regarding the prices charged. Bread advanced one cent per loaf, and is now seven cents for a loaf weighing one pound and a half. The high price of flour is given as the cause for the advance. Potatoes are quoted at 40c to 50c and the quality is only fair, there being quite a lot of rot.

BUTTER—The butter situation is now attracting considerable attention in this province. The receipts are very small for the season of the year, and the price is bounding upwards. The situation is one that the jobbers cannot understand. They say that the price is unreasonable, as the cattle are still feeding on the after-grass, and that the shipments outside of the province are practically nil. The demand is not out of the ordinary, and there is no explanation for the shortage. One commission firm in this city recently sent out letters to many farmers with whom they had dealings, asking them to send their butter in, but the replies received were that they had no butter. The best creamery butter in prints is now retailing at 32c per pound and it is likely to go higher.

There is very little diary butter in small tubs on the market, and what is offering is quoted at 26c to 28c. During the past week the advance has been about two cents per pound all round. From the present outlook the jobbers will have to purchase butter outside of the borders of Canada, as they say that no large stocks can be purchased at any reasonable price.

There is considerable complaint here now regarding short-weight butter. Creamery prints are sold in two-pound blocks, and during the past week the output of four of the creameries was found wanting, some of the blocks being from one to two ounces short in weight. There is great complaint on this score, as the consumer wants full weight at the prevailing high prices.

EGGS—Fresh eggs are scarce and the choicest stock is worth 30c per dozen. The case eggs offering cannot be relied upon, and there is very little fresh stock coming on the market. The receipts from points in Nova Scotia are unseasonably small, and it is thought that the dealers in Prince Edward Island are holding their stock for higher prices.

APPLES—The recent storm in the Annapolis valley caused damage estimated at $100,000 to the apple crop. There is still a good crop and from four to five hundred thousand barrels are to be had for shipment, with prospects of good prices. President Bigelow, of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association, estimates the varieties by barrels as follows:

Gravensteins	85,000
Ribston Pippins	90,000
King's	70,000
Baldwins	70,000
Golden Russets	50,000
Nonpareil	60,000
Other varieties	50,000

Speaking of the markets, President Bigelow says: Prices opened at $2 to $2.50 from the orchard, uninspected. The largest growers ship their own fruit, and hold for higher prices. Our English market was seriously injured by the injudicious shipment of forty to fifty thousand barrels of green, half-grown Gravensteins in September, which have not netted $2 per barrel, and now windfalls are being shipped, which will add further injury to the market. Growers look for high prices during the winter owing to the world's short crop.

STICK TO THE STICKERS.

In the course of a conversation with a traveling man the other day, he said: "Whenever I go into a town and find a man there who has been a customer of one of our competitors for years, I at once lay plans to land him as a customer of my house, because I know he is a good customer for any house. He will, in nearly every instance, tell me that there is no use talking to him, as he has been buying all his goods of that particular house and has no reason for changing. I generally tell him that he is exactly the kind of a customer I want, for, if I can show him it is to his advantage to give me his business, instead of to the customary house, he will then be as loyal to my house as he now is to a competitor.

"I may not get my man for a year or so, but I eventually get him, and when I do, I know he will be with us for years, and we will get all his business, either by mail or when I go to his town, for he is a sticker."

Too many good business men are overlooking this point to-day. This traveler strikes right at the centre of big business building when he goes after the customer who is an old customer of a good competitor, for his trade is well worth much effort to land; while the dealer who is easily persuaded to give you an order on short acquaintance is just as easily persuaded to give the next man an order, and as a result you never feel that you can depend upon his regular business.

This idea should be just as valuable to the retailer as to the manufacturer or jobber, for the retailer will also find that the "sticker" is a good customer.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Good Demand for California and Forei gn Fruits—Vegetable Markets Supplied With Southern Goods—Fish Business A ctive With Opening of Season.

Apples are about the only Canadian fruit on the markets this week. Grapes are still quoted and a stray basket of pears is seen, but there is no quantity of either of these. To take the place of the Canadian varieties, California, Jamaica, Bahama, Florida and Spanish fruit is arriving in large shipments and the demand is generally good. New dates and figs are just coming in and dried peaches and apricots are also quoted. The Thanksgiving and Hallow'een business has been fairly good.

As Canadian vegetables drop off as a result of the cold weather, their place is taken by goods from the United States. Boston cucumbers and lettuce are being shipped regularly to market centres, and the quality is particularly good. The potato situation is unchanged since last week, though New Brunswick shipments continue to be not altogether satisfactory.

With the opening of the season, fish business is becoming exceedingly brisk. Cod and haddock continue scarce, and the close season for trout and whitefish which begins the first of the month, will curtail the supply of lake fish. The supply of bulk oysters is fairly abundant and good business is being done.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The market continues firm for this time of year. The first Halloeen dates have arrived and are being quoted at 6 cents per pound. Almeria grapes are quoted at from $4.75 to $6.50 per keg, Californias at $3. Fameuse apples, hand-picked, are $4.50 per bbl. Other varieties vary from $3.25 to $4.50. Nova Scotia cranberries are quoted at $10.50. Peanuts, "Bon-ton," roasted, are selling at 15 cents and others at 9½ cents. Nassau grape fruit is in good demand. Oranges are slow, while lemons are little better. Canadian grapes are about done, and Californias will not last much longer.

VEGETABLES—The vegetable market continues firm, although the bad weather has a dulling effect. Canadian cucumbers are done, and Boston hothouse are now quoted at $1.50 per doz. The season for Canadian lettuce is over, and the market is being supplied with Boston lettuce at $1 per dozen. Mushrooms are quoted at 90 cents per pound, and horse-radish at 20 cents per pound. Peas, fairly good, re-cleaned, were sold to-day in carload lots at $1.17. Sweet potatoes, fancy Vineland, are quoted at $3.75 to $4 per bbl.

FISH—Business in fish is becoming quite brisk, dealers reporting active demand for mostly all lines. There has been more stormy weather on the fishing grounds and supplies hape been affected in some lines. There is a scarcity of haddock and cod, which is evidenced by the advanced prices. With the coming of the cooler weather whitefish and lake trout are becoming scarce. Dore and pike are in good supply and are moving out freely. Fresh mackerel, new, are now being received. In smoked and prepared fish, the scarcity of kippers is being still felt, but bloaters and haddies are in good supply. Supplies of salt and pickled fish are not large, salmon being very short. Oysters are selling more freely. Prices generally hold firm.

FRUITS—Thanksgiving and early winter business is keeping the market active. Dried fruits are becoming quite a feature and the demand for new figs and dates and for evaporated prunes and peaches is excellent. Almeria grapes continue to arrive in good quality. Snow apples are being featured for the holiday trade and arrivals of spies, greenings and Delawares are fairly good.

TRADE NEWS AND MARKETS

IN THE GARDEN OF THE GULF

Farmers on Prince Edward Island this season are to envied, and why some should feel disposed to sell their farms and yield to the lure of the West, is hard to understand. In the first place, the grain crop will be one of the heaviest on record. Wheat will be about an average yield, but the oat crop will be almost double that of last year. Its is estimated that eight million bushels will be threshed, and that over one half of this will be exported; most of it has been secured in good order, and the quality is uniformly good, being well filled and heavy. The prices at present range from 48 to 50 cents, and the dealers say these are 10 cents higher than the state of the English markets will warrant. They also claim that the scarcity in the Maritime Provinces is keeping up the price here, and that once there is a movement from Manitoba, there is bound to be a drop. Even allowing for the possible fall in price, the amount of money that will come into the province for oats alone, will be considerable. if the transportation facilities are adequate.

Potato digging has not been completed yet. The shipments have been small, and the crop on the whole promises to be considerably heavier than last year, and the prices even higher. Twenty-five cents is paid at present. There has been considerable rot, and nearly all the earlier varieties—except the "Dakota Reds"—have suffered from the wet weather, but the old standard "McIntyres" have escaped, and farmers who have good dry fields of these will get good profitable prices for their stock. The tendency of late years has been to discard the "Reds" and pay more attention to the "Blues" and in the wet season this policy has been justified.

The hay crop—on the whole— is considerably better than last year when there was a big shortage, but it is still a little below the average. Last week, in the market, hay sold for $1 a hundred —a remarkable price for this time of year, especially in view of the fact that the crop of straw is so heavy.

Dairy products have never been so high in the Island's history. Cheese was sold on the board last week at 12 13-16 cents, 1-16 of a cent less than at the board meeting a fortnight ago. The dairy industry, that has been depreciating for several years, causing many farmers to reduce their stock of milch cows, is now coming up again and the prospects are that the industry will flourish as it never flourished before. Factory butter has reached the "top notch" in price, selling from 27 to 29 cents. Dairy or home-made butter is quoted at 25 cents for prints and 22 to 25 cents for tub.

While it is yet a little early to gauge the poultry market, indications are that the prices will be fully up to last year, and these were high. Last week geese sold from $1 to $1.30 each, chickens from 10 to 12 cents per pound, turkeys 14 cents per pound. These prices are likely to hold during Thanksgiving market.

Owing to the high price for oats and hay, the farmers will be tempted to ship the raw products off their farms, instead of manufacturing them into beef cattle. Last season, owing to the shortage of fooder, there was a great scarcity of good beef cattle in the province. The high prices for dairy products also had a tendency to cause more attention to be given to dairy stock and less to beef stock, and as a consequence, the Island butchers, this year, had the unique experience of being compelled to import cattle from the West. Eleven carloads, comprising about two hundred and forty-two head in all and averaging $61 apiece were brought in for the Island market this season. It is true, that cattle were exported from the Island to the Newfoundland market, but these were a smaller and inferior lot to those which the butchers were obliged to bring from the West. In beef-raising our farmers have an industry that is found to yield profitable returns if they devote due attention to it. The retail price of the best quality of beef to-day is from 8 to 16 cents, about 1 cent in advance of the previous year. Lambs are also bringing from $4 to $5 each, a price unheard of in the Island's history.

Henry Wellsteed, grocer, Toronto, has assigned to S. A. Sewall.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 29.

Isidore Martin, Mayor of Pembroke.

Isidore Martin, son of Major Martin, of Montreal, was born in the year 1861. In 1872, the family moved from Montreal to Pembroke, then only a scattered hamlet, where at the somewhat precocious age of 11 years, he started his business career with his father in the grocery trade. At the age of 21 he became a partner in the prosperous business which is now carried on under the name of Martin & Co., and of which he is senior partner.

Mr. Martin is an up-to-date and progressive dealer. His store is run on these principles, and is always kept full of seasonable goods. He is keenly alive to the advantages of a strict cash trade, but feels that owing to the peculiar position of the town, it is almost impossible to carry on such a system. He does the next best thing, and cuts credit down as low as he can possibly get it.

Mr. Martin started his public life some 12 years ago, when he became a member of the local Board of Health, of which he was chairman for one year. He has also been a member of the North Renfrew Licensing Commission for the last ten years. and chairman of that body for the last two years.

During the five years previous to his appointment as Mayor, which period he spent on the Council, Mr. Martin was largely instrumental in securing for the town a permanent engineer, who was so badly needed to help control the sanitary affairs of the town. It is only fitting, therefore, that after so many years spent in the public service, the townspeople of Pembroke should have bestowed on him the highest honor in their gift. With his accession to the Mayoralty, Mr. Martin seems to have gone to work with renewed vigor in the interest of the town, and is strongly supporting the establishment of a new system of waterworks, and the purchase of a suitable site for a public park, on the banks of the Indian River, which will add one more ornament to the beautiful town of which he is so able a Mayor and so justly proud.

In addition to his many duties, public and private, Mayor Martin still finds time to act as choirmaster to the Cathedral choir, and has also been elected hon. president to the local Choral Society.

ISIDORE MARTIN,
Mayor of Pembroke.

THE MAN WITH THE GROUCH.

There is no place for him. The world moves away from him. He is an Ishmaelite, in the bad sense of that term. Everybody hates him. He hates himself. Children are afraid of him. Grown people do not trust him. He is shunned by his own children and his wife is made sour and discontented by his grouch.

Cut it out! Sweeten up! When you find yourself getting a touch of the grouch, merely because trade is a little dull or collections are poor, think of the man with both legs cut off. You don't see him kicking, do you? Suppose you had your legs cut off, and your wife was an invalid and your children were all under ten years of age, would not that be worse than your present situation in life?

Brace up. Go to keeping store in such a way that people will want to come in and buy from you. Get a horse rasp and file off your grouch and then sandpaper it until it is smooth and nice and fit for decent people to come in contact with.

The man with the grouch either starves to death, or ought to. He has no right to have a grouch. Every man owes it to the world to be good tempered, to treat others with politeness, with pleasant manner and with a smile. Sweeten up!—Ex.

TRADE NOTES.

Rene Devilliers, grocer, of Skerville, Que., is retiring from business.

The assets of J. H. Pare, grocer, of Hull, Que., were sold last week.

Last week the annual meeting of the Imperial Ice Cream Company, Montreal, was held. It was reported that a good year had been experienced, and the company will be forced to enlarge their premises for the coming season to take care of the increased business. At a meeting of the directors, Andrew Shearer was re-elected president, and W. A. Cornell, vice-president. The vacancy on the board of directors, occurring through the death of Thos. Macfarlane, Dominion analyst, Ottawa, was filled by the election of Mr. Anderson, of Pointe Aux Trembles. E. G. Roy and H. G. Wade were re-appointed manager and secretary, respectively. Shareholders were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Pointe Aux Trembles and New York.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

"Batger's"

Strawberry Jam

If you carry this line of jam on your shelves it sells itself. The appearance of the new style glass jar is good and the Whole Fruit inside invites tasting.

It is made from the finest English garden strawberries and granulated sugar, by a firm that has been in the business for over 150 years.

Once tasted, Batger's Strawberry Jam will be ordered again. If you are not already selling Batger's, why not order a trial case of 4 doz. and see for yourself?

"The Real Thing"

"What does it profit the retail grocer in the end to push the "nearly as good" article? While he has been making one-sixth of a cent profit for two cents worth of extra work his neighbor grocer has been handing out "the real thing," and lots of it. His customers come in and ask for it, and recognize it because it bears a well-known brand which even the children know as a guarantee of excellence.

At last there comes a time (it always comes) when the "nearly as good" article reaches the end of its string. It may have been put out of business, or it may have been skinned in quality until it is a business suicide to handle it any longer. Has the trifling extra profit paid for the trouble of pushing it instead of selling it—for the unknown, but none the less certain, percentage of dissatisfied customers—and finally for the up-hill work of beginning all over again with another new brand of goods? Well, hardly!

In the meantime, the dealer who handles "the real thing" still keeps passing called-for goods across the counter under the same old brands.

"The real thing" in Canned Fruits and Vegetables are:—

"CANADA FIRST"	"KENT"
"LITTLE CHIEF"	"LYNN VALLEY"
"AUTO"	"MAPLE LEAF"
"LOG CABIN"	"LION"
"HORSESHOE"	"THISTLE"

"GRAND RIVER" and "WHITE ROSE" Brands.

These brands have been on the market for over a quarter of a century.

Malaga Raisins Seeded

An article appearing in last week's Grocer is evidently inspired by the selfish narrow-mindedness of a would-be monopolist. We, however, believe that

Competition is the Life of Trade and are willing to allow the consuming public to judge of the excellence of the Malaga Raisin seeded. The rich and delicate lusciousness of flavor and tenderness of skin, readily digested, will commend the Malaga Seeded Raisin to the consumers as the only fruit to use. The up-to-date grocer will study his interests and please his trade by introducing to them the Malaga Seeded Raisin. The price is reasonable, the fruit is prepared by the latest improved machinery, carefully packed and attractively put by, only, by

The Preferential Tea

is that grown in the sunny isle of Ceylon. On no other part of the earth's surface can the tea plant attain such a degree of perfection as it does in that balmy isle of the Indian Ocean. In fact, this has become so apparent in recent years that is the recognized standard by which all other teas are judged—and generally "found wanting." The popular taste demands tea from Ceylon; and all discerning grocers make it a point to meet that demand by always keeping a sufficient stock of Ceylon Tea.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

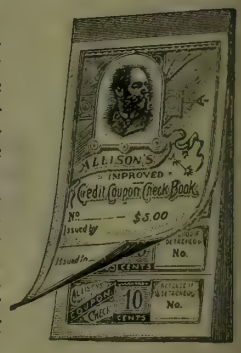
Less work and better results



If Allison Coupon books merely reduced work, they might, in some small establishment, be considered a dispensable luxury.

But you can entirely disregard the time and labor-saving element, and still the system more than pays for itself in the cutting out of ACTUAL MONEY LOSSES, the increased satisfaction to customers and the large trade it entails. Hundreds of merchants that are using this system, could not at any price, be induced to revert to the old fashioned method.

ALLISON COUPON BOOKS

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No. pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

CLEANLINESS IN THE GROCERY STORE

A Discussion of the question from the Customer's Standpoint.

(Cleanliness is one of the essential factors in any grocery that aspires to cater to the best class of trade. Dirt repels custom, purity attracts it. The following article is the first of a series appearing in the Woman's Home Companion, and presents in a graphic manner the question of "Cleanliness in the Grocery Store," from the buyer's point of view.—Editor's note.).

Do you know your grocer?

"What a funny question to ask!" exclaims Mrs. Brown, of Smalltown. "Why, of course, I know my grocer! He's John Jessup, and he married one of my old school friends, Mary Gordon. He's a member of the First Baptist church, and belongs to my husband's lodge."

And she thinks she knows her grocer.

"Really, I do not understand the question," replies Mrs. Oldfamily, of Dayton. "One is hardly expected to really know one's grocer. Doubtless he is a very worthy man—but I have never met his wife. I am not sure that he has a wife, but he has a fine stock of goods, and I never have trouble with my bills. When any mistake occurs he is most gentlemanly about rectifying it. He has one clerk who does nothing but tend the telephone, which insures prompt service."

And she thinks she knows her grocer.

"Why, everybody knows my grocer,' answers Mrs. Flathouse, of Chicago or New York. "I always trade with Green Brothers, no matter what part of the town we live in. They have a string of stores all over the city, and if you watch their sales you can save quite a little on your housekeeping. I always watch their 'ads.' in the morning papers, and whenever I see they are having a run on anything I just call them up by phone and lay in a stock. They give trading stamps, too. I supposed everybody knew about Green Brothers' stores."

And she really thinks she knows all about their stores.

And the grocers are perfectly willing that Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Oldfamily and Mrs. Flathouse shall never know them any better. For grocers, like other mortals, do not always improve on more intimate acquaintance. For instance, if you should come to know your grocer very well indeed you might find out that he does not keep his store half as clean as you keep your kitchen. Back of the door leading into the lavatory, where his clerks wash, you might find a towel that you would blush to own as a dish rag or a mop. You might learn that the delivery boy who has just been letting his horse eat sugar out of his hand is using that same hand to dig prunes out of a box to fill your order. You might know that the creamery butter, with its crisp white wrapping and stamp that stands for pure production, is kept in a cooler or refrigerator which is absolutely slimy within, though mirrored and white enameled without. You might ascertain that the lid from the cracker barrel has been lost and never replaced, though the store floor is swept vigorously night and morning, and the dust rises and falls again in one great germ-laden cloud.

These are a few, a very few, of the intimate details of his business life which your obliging grocer does not wish you to know. And that is why he sends a solicitor to your kitchen door every morning, why he assures you that your children will be served as honestly and promptly as yourself, and why he is highly elated when you put in a telephone and join his list of telephone customers.

Buying at Home.

The telephone and the order clerk or solicitor have probably done more to kill the housewifely instinct in women and further the ends of careless or unscrupulous grocers than any labor-saving household institution of the century. Even the most competent housekeepers can always find one thing more to do at home—and when the solicitor takes such a friendly interest in her needs and what her family likes, or the telephone can be used without changing from the house frock to a street suit, she is very apt to drop the habit of marketing. A New York grocer established one year in a new and prosperous residence district thus summed up his trade:

"We must make special appeal for the telephone and solicited trade, because our store and staff of clerks is not large enough to accommodate customers if they called every day to market. Two-thirds of our trade is secured either by telephone or by soliciting, and the women never come to the store except when they happen to be passing on some errand, or when there is some mistake in the bill. Yet it takes half our clerks to wait on the remaining one-third of the trade—women who come here every day, and who waste our time picking over goods, changing their minds, waiting for change, deciding between this brand and that."

"Then you do not care for the woman who wants to see what she buys for her family to eat?"

The man had a saving sense of humor, and replied;

"I can't say that we really care for her—but I don't mind adding that we respect her."

For several days the writer watched that store. The grocer spoke the truth. While half the clerks filled orders for two-thirds of the customers, which came in through solicitors or by telephone, the other half waited on the one-third or remaining customers in the store. In the latter class were precisely the same women day after day, and very few of these women were deeply interested in the quality of the goods purchased. They ordered in absent-minded fashion, as if waiting to meet some fellow-shopper. They conversed with the pretty cashier while the clerk filled the order, which they were not watching. If they offered any criticism, it was on an overcharge, but not one of them noticed that a young man with extremely dirty hands lifted dill pickles from an open barrel without the aid or consent of fork, dipper or any other utensil.

In a lovely, old-fashioned section of a great city the writer met a veritable aristocrat, attended by her colored servant, on marketing bound.

"I come way over here to get my groceries because it is an old-fashioned store. In the new stores they think it a waste of time to attend to the needs of a fussy old housekeeper like me. They all want to fill telephone orders."

She is one of the few women who still insist upon knowing their grocers.

Only a Sixth.

In another city there are twelve groceries to twelve thousand inhabitants, or about one grocer to every thousand citizens. In addition, the local grocers have the trade of the surrounding farming districts. A successful grocer of that city told the writer that half his trade was secured by telephone and one-third by soliciting. That means that three-sixths of his orders come by telephone and two-sixths by solicitors, which leaves exactly one-sixth to come direct from customer to grocer.

One-sixth of his patrons really know their grocer.

When shopping for a new frock, a carpet, enameled cooking ware, gloves, a veil, a book or a picture the average woman goes to the store that is immaculate, where goods are fresh and unmarred by soiled hands, and whose clerks are dainty in handling the wares. She refuses shopworn drygoods and house furnishings, but she will accept groceries that have been subjected to flies and dust and handled by clerks whose hands and aprons are disgustingly unsanitary. This is due largely to a fallacious belief that a grocery store cannot be kept clean.

H. E. Barnard, a well-known pure food authority, of Indiana, thinks that as a class grocers are not worthy of the trust reposed in them by their families.

"The grocery store or market is the distributing agent of the food manufacturer. It is probable that ninety-five per cent. of our food passes through the hands of the grocer or meat man. The prosperous merchant is usually awake to the fact that his business will suffer if his shop is not attractive and his stock fresh. But in every community there are some dealers whose meat blocks are unclean and covered with flies, whose refrigerators are slimy and foul smelling, whose back rooms are filled with accumulated filth, whose cellars are damp and dirty, whose dried fruits are wormy, whose fruits and vegetables are decayed and whose cat sleeps in the cracker barrel."—H. E. Barnard, State Food and Drug Commissioner of Indiana.

He has been conducting an investigation of grocery stores this summer. He wished to ascertain, not whether the pure food laws covering canned goods, bottled condiments, etc., are being obeyed, but whether the average retail grocery store is as sanitarily fit as its canned and packed goods are chemically pure. In this investigation it must be admitted that the canned and bottled and packaged goods seem to have come out ahead. The grocer and his atore often proved unsanitary, a menace to public health. Out of 481 stores inspected, only 17 were found in excellent condition, 170 were good, 229 were fair, 52 poor and 13 bad.

It is right to trade with the grocer who will give you the best returns for the money your husband works so hard to earn. It is only womanly and neighborly to trade with the husband of your best friend, whose interests you thereby forward. It is only businesslike to trade with the man who is honest and square in his accounts and who makes good every item on your bills. But it is also fair to yourself and your family that you should know your grocer, not only as honest in his accounts, neighborly in his intentions, and reciprocal in his relations with your husband, but as the man behind the counter, the man who alone or with the aid of helpers handles directly the food which you place on your table.

Clean Groceries.

When you have decided to become thoroughly acquainted with the grocer behind his counter, and with his store methods, you will know whether his cooler or refrigerator is sweet and clean or slimy with germs; whether he covers his bins or leaves them open for the entrance of dust, bugs and kittens; whether he has sanitary dippers for bulk pickles, fish, jellies, preserves, etc.; whether his clerks have clean towels and running water at their command; whether the boy who fills your order for butter, sugar, flour, tea and crackers is wearing the same checkered jumper that he had on when he curried his delivery horse; whether the wooden trays and pasteboard bags used for sending out lard, pickles, salads, butter, oysters, etc., are kept where they are free from dust—in fact, whether your grocer is spending any money at all in the interest of common decency, cleanliness and sanitation.

And when you have done your day's marketing in this spirit of investigation you will have taken the first step toward knowing your grocer and helping to secure sanitarily fit as well as chemically pure food. And you can help by starting a new leaf in your household account book, headed with these mottoes:

"I will know my grocer."

"Of two grocery stores, I will trade at the cleaner."

"Of two foods in a certain class, I will buy the purer."

"Having decided to buy a certain food backed by the guarantee of an honest firm, I will accept no substitute."

Make your customer the best possible price you can at first, and maintain it. If he wants to "jew" the price down tell him kindly you have made the best price possible, and stick to it—sale or no sale.

EFFECTIVE GROCERY ADVERTISING

CRITICISM, HELP AND SUGGESTION AS TO THE BEST METHODS OF PRODUCING IT.

Occasional Chats by W. F. Ralph.

Conviction in Advertising.

"It pays to advertis" said Mark Twain at a recent banquet. "When I was editing the Virginia City Enterprise, writing copy one day and mining the next, I tried to force this truth home in many ways. One day I received a letter from a subscriber saying he had found a spider pressed between the pages of his paper, and he wanted to know was this good or bad luck? I replied to him in our Answers to Correspondents column as follows:

"Old Subscriber.—The finding of a spider in your copy of the Enterprise was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door and lead a free and undisturbed existence for ever after."

It was just like our old friend, Mark, to turn even the corpse of a deceased spider into a good argument for his advertising columns. Of course, he looked at the matter from the publisher's point of view, whose business it is to sell space in which merchants may advertise their wares. But no matter from what point of view one looks at advertising in these hustling days, there is only one outcome of a lack of advertising, and that is stagnation.

Business is like water, in that it cannot stay still without becoming foul and stagnant. It has to keep on running in order to get anywhere. The water runs into a bigger body of water, and the business into bigger things.

That great bugbear of the modern retail business world—"Mailorderism"—gets in finer work and becomes more solidly established for every retailer who neglects to advertise. "Fight the devil with fire" is considered very good policy by many religious people; and in the retail business world it becomes more and more apparent that the only way the mail order octopus can be successfully rivalled is by good advertising.

The mail order man gets there by advertising, and so can the ordinary retailer if he goes into the matter properly.

Advertising means gaining the confidence of the public. And the advertising which does not inspire confidence is, therefore, poor advertising. The ad. which does not inspire confidence is a little better than no advertising at all; but what is the use of paying for space if one is only going to put into it something which is "a little better than nothing?" "Hit straight, hit hard, and let every stroke drive the stake in farther," is a piece of homely philosophy which I have read somewhere, and which is very applicable to the subject of grocery advertising. Let every ad. inspire confidence. To do this it must be written with conviction. If you have a line of goods which you know to be poor stuff, don't advertise them as if they were full of merit. You can't, in fact. The known lack of truth will make your words lack the ring of Don't write your ads. when you feel in the dumps. The time to write an ad. is when you are feeling good. When you are in that particularly fine humor that the whole world and everything in it looks good to you. Your tone of good humored confidence in yourself and your store will then permeate your ad. The phrases will ring brighter; the arrangement will come more logically, and the whole ad. will inspire the buyer with the confidence you feel yourself.

Did you ever go into somebody else's store to buy something when you were not very clear as to what you wanted? On such an occasion the confidence inspiring demeanor (or the lack of it) in the clerk, either sells you something which pleases you or sends you out wandering with no purchase made at all, or with a purchase you feel indifferent about. It's all in the salesman's demeanor. And if an ad. is not to be regarded as a salesman, what is it?

People always run away from a calamity howler in the flesh, and you may bet your bottom dollar that anything in an ad., which conveys an idea that your store is not entirely prosperous, will make the ad. that much less effective. Avoid the minor key. Keep the tone of confidence from the headline to the name plate, and it is an effective ad.

Another well known maxim is, "Nothing Succeeds Like Success." And another one is "Prosperity Attracts." These two truths should be engraved on the mind of every grocer who wants his path to run forever successward. In your ads., talk prosperity and success, and keep on talking them (backed up in every case by quality of goods and service), and the cream of the business will come your way as sure as steel will draw near to the magnet.

We have touched another point here: Backed up in every case by quality of goods and service. The backing is as necessary to the completion of an ad. as a match is to light a fire. The keystone of the successful advertiser's arch of prosperity is truth. If you can get the people coming your way by the means of advertising, the only way to keep them there is to give them the best value for their money.

Although originality in advertising is to be commended, it is too much to expect that every grocer should have a skullfull of original advertising ideas. Hence the necessity for studying the ads. of other people. Many a man who can originate but few ideas of his own, has a capacity for carrying somebody else's good idea a long way farther than the originator ever thought of.

C. A. Farmer

Groceries, China, Confectionery, Fruit.

The originator of bright ideas often reminds me of a hen. This feathered lady lays an egg. She then cackles loud her satisfaction—and leaves it at that. At certain times she will be struck with the notion to carry the idea a little further, and begin to hide the eggs with a view to bringing up a family. But, as a general rule, she lays the egg, cackles —and finishes with it. But the ingenuity of feminine fingers can turn that egg to a thousand and one uses which the layer of it never dreamed of.

As with the hen, so with many a human originator of ideas. A well-known advertising man of national reputation was once talking to a young friend of mine. At the conclusion of the conversation he said to my friend, "Thank you for an idea you have given me."

"What idea?" said my friend.

"Never mind what it is," said the ad-man. "Something you said gave me an idea which I may be able to use some time to my advantage. It dropped from you in such a manner that it is clear you didn't know you were anywhere near an original idea. It's of no use to you, as you don't know what it is; therefore, I'll keep it for myself. Thanks very much."

This advertising man can see a bright idea three blocks away, and whenever and wherever he sees one, he nails it. He is a successful man. He uses ideas whether they originate with him or with somebody else.

This doesn't mean that one needs to be a "cribber" to the extent of copying in detail someone else's worked out idea. In some forms of advertising, such a course would be suicidal. But if you, as a grocer, take a fancy to an advertising method carried out by another grocer miles away from your place of business, there's not the slightest reason why you should not appropriate that method to your own uses. You would, however, be a "cuckoo," as the saying is, to copy closely the ideas of the other grocer around the corner, simply because, apart from all other considerations, your own advertising would lack force by comparison. Nevertheless, if your immediate rival doesn't know enough to carry his own idea to its limit of usefulness it is up to you to better it if you can. In such a case the extended working out of the idea would constitute originality so far as your undiscerning rival is concerned.

and that space is well used. We reproduce it as a good sample. You will observe that the headline "Hogs" is just the name of the article advertised, which follows out the idea expressed in this column some time ago, when talking of effective headlines. The "quality" argument is brief and bound to impress the reader.

C. A. Farmer, of Perth, has sent in a bright little bunch of ads., which ring with real, good-humored confidence. We reproduce a few of them for the benefit of readers of this column generally. They are effective ads. in respect of headline, layout and talk, and are, therefore, "sound all the way through." Perhaps the addition of prices in the fruit ads. may have added a little to their effectiveness, but I realize that it frequently happens, price talk is better left unsaid.

HUNGARIAN BEANS FOR CANADA

Large Shipment of Extra Good Quality Expected to Arrive Shortly

And now it's beans that are being imported to fill the demand occasioned by the short Canadian crop. A large shipment of Hungarian beans, probably the first large shipment to Canada, is on the way and is expected by F. Dane & Co., Toronto, shortly. The shipment is coming direct from Buda Pesth and is in bags of 100 kilos, or 220 pounds. The bean crop in Hungary is abundant this year and as a result these goods can be placed on local markets at prices somewhat lower than Canadian beans. The quality is said to compare very favorably with the Canadian variety, and there seems some probability that these Hungarian beans will take the place, to some extent, at least, of home-grown goods.

TORONTO WHOLESALER MARRIED

Another member of the wholesale grocery trade in Toronto became a benedict on Saturday, Oct. 26th, when Albert S. May, with H. P. Eckardt & Co., was married to Miss Nina Foster, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed in St. Augustine's church, and afterwards the happy couple, accompanied by numerous friends, and in a cab decorated with several well-known trade placards, drove to the union station, en route to New York, where they will spend several days at the King Edward hotel. Mr. May is well known among the trade in Toronto, having spent eight years with R. S. McIndoe & Co., and also several years with Smith & Keightley, before taking his present position. He has also been the popular manager of the renowned Grocery Brokers' hockey team. The many friends of the couple remembered them with a magnificent lot of gifts. On their return to the city they will occupy a suite in the Dowling apartments, Queen street west.

E. O. Manchee, who has been with the Salada Tea Company in their head office at Toronto for six years, the last two of which he occupied the position of advertising manager, has taken a position in the departmental store of J. F. Cairns, at Saskatoon. Mr. Manchee is quite well known among the trade in Toronto, and best wishes go with him for success in the West.

GROCERY NEWS FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

EDMONTON.

The question of improvements to the market square to make it more of a trading centre for farm produce is occupying the attention of the citizens just now, and is of particular interest to grocers, both because it has a tendency to regulate prices and also because most of this business is done at the present time by the grocers themselves. It is proposed to fence the present market square and charge farmers and others who desire to drive into this square a fee of ten cents, so that the market will pay its own expenses, instead of being almost a total loss, as at present. Market buildings will be erected to shelter the market people and every facility afforded for the promotion of trade. Market days will be fixed, perhaps two a week, and all the business concentrated on certain stated periods known to all. instead of being scattered indiscriminately over the whole week. These proposed changes will mean much to Edmonton grocers. At present the grocers purchase such products as eggs, butter, vegetables and sometimes meat, direct from the farmer and market gardener, and sell them to the citizens at an increased price. The establishment of a market where the producer can meet the consumer will result in a slightly increased price being paid the farmer and a slight reduction in the price of the products for the consumer. The merchants will lose a certain amount of trade by the change, but the majority of the citizens are much in favor of the plan.

Another matter which is agitating Edmontonians at present is whether they are to have a cold storage plant. The Edmonton Produce Company have applied for certain concessions, free water, light, power and exemption from taxation for twenty years, if they establish a cold storage plant in the city. They also expect to get a grant from the Dominion Government, under the Cold Storage Act, and thus the plant would be partly controlled by the Government and city. It is claimed that this would tend to reduce the price of produce and make living cheaper in Edmonton. At the present time farmers and dairymen are selling their butter for from 15c to 17c per pound. As it cannot all be used in summer, the balance is shipped out, as there is no place to store it. In the winter when butter is scarce, it has to be shipped in from outside points, and the price them rises as high as 35c to 38c per pound. Many believe that the concessions asked for should be granted, as the consequent reduction in the price of produce would more than make up the amount the city would have to pay now. The question is still under consideration by the council.

The retail clerks of the city held another meeting a few evenings ago, and completed the work of the organization of the Retail Clerks' Protective Association. Merchants in the city are, as a rule, regarding the movement with favor and there is no likelihood of strained relations between the employer and employes, resulting from this action on the part of the clerks. Many ladies have joined the association and over 100 charter members have already enrolled.

It is anticipated that the electric line, work on which is rapidly nearing completion, will be in full operation from Chatham to the Lake in a month's time. Passengers will have to transfer at Charing Cross till the subway is completed. The opening of this portion of the line should mean a great deal for Chatham merchants. The Wallaceburg end of the line has certainly been a good thing, particularly in the rainy, muddy periods of fall and springtime when communication between country and city would otherwise be suspended.

Mr. McGeachy states that he has no intention of raising the price of milk, adding that feed is plentiful, and that an advance in the price of the lacteal fluid need not be feared at present. Nevertheless, the feed situation throughout the county is not by any means as happy as it might be. The large number of farmers' sales being held is pointed to as significant. Sales are more numerous than in many years past, and many state that the feed question is largely the actuating motive.

The merchants of Highgate have made a further advance in the direction of early closing. Beginning with the first Monday in November, they will close their stores at six o'clock every Monday night. They have already made it a practice to close at the same hour on Wednesdays and Fridays, so that the change will leave just three open nights in a week. This move for every other night off is in the right direction, and it is one to which customers, both in the village and in the surrounding country should raise no objection. Probably, it will prove the thin edge of the wedge, in the matter of early closing.

The banding together of the business men of a certain section to advertise their particular corner as a bargain centre was the experiment tried by the merchants of King St., east of the market. The scheme was inaugurated by Henry Primeau of the New York Cloak Store. "L'Union Fait La Force" was the motto of the combination, comprising eight mercantile establishments. The combination secured a page in each of the local papers, both Friday and weekly issues, in which each merchant ran an announcement of a few special bargains. Full page circulars were also distributed through the city. Friday night and among the incoming farmers Saturday morning. Grocer Wesley E. Parrott and confectioner E. A. Mounteer, were among those who joined in. Saturday proved a bad day, but despite that the merchants concerned report very good returns, particularly in the special lines advertised.

L. A. Cummings, the enterprising west-end grocer, is to have a letter box adjoining his store, at the corner of West and Gray Sts. A. B. McCoig, M.P.P., who had the matter in hand, has received word that the needs of this rapidly growing section of the city would be recognized by the post office department.

An echo of the recent push-cart trouble and the subsequent elimination of Gaspar Favata from the scenery of King St., is the following advertisement in a recent issue of the weekly papers. Ald. Potter, whose place of business is on Queen St., takes Gaspar's protest with a smile and points out that the competition was nearer him on Saturday than it used to be: "Mr. Pótter and the grocery stores on King St. don't like me to sell bananas on King St., because I give a chance to the people to buy bananas cheap, and the council has passed a bylaw stopping me selling bananas on King St., I want the people of Chatham to know that on Saturday next I will sell at my store at the corner of Queen and School Sts., good bananas—3 dozen for 25 cents. Gaspar Favata, honest fruit dealer."

Ald. Maynell has evolved a novel advertising scheme in connection with his men's furnishing business, which, though not so applicable, may, nevertheless, prove of interest to the grocery trade elsewhere. The scheme came to the surface with the commencement of the school term. The city possesses five educational institutes: the Collegiate Institute, Canada Business College, McKeongh and Central public schools and St. Joseph's separate school. Ald. Maynell induced the principals of the schools to select different "school colors," and advertised that he would give away buttons bearing these colors to all school boys and girls. The rush for buttons quite exhausted the supply. Besides the colors, the buttons bore a line or two advertising the wily alderman's business. For many weeks they were conspicuous, and even now are still frequently met with. Besides advertising himself and his business and stimulating school patriotism, Ald. Meynell secured from each applicant the name and address of a parent and the applicant's birth month—information which went to constitute a valuable mailing directory.

Last week the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association held their first meeting in several months. The meeting, which was largely attended, was called mainly for the purpose of getting together and reorganizing after the summer holidays. President John McCorvie, who occupied the chair, urged that it was greatly in the interests of the grocers to meet, if only for the purpose of becoming mutually acquainted. The merchants were in many cases practically strangers. If meetings were held regularly and well attended, many valuable ideas could be exchanged which would undoubtedly be beneficial to the grocers.

The present officers were unanimously requested to retain office till the first of the year. In addition, it was decided that all fees paid now will be applicable on next year's dues.

The clause in the market bylaw, prohibiting retailers from purchasing on the city market before ten o'clock, was the main topic of discussion. Instances of the inconvenience suffered through this clause were given by many of those present. This inconvenience is not limited to the grocers, but extends to their customers. Many of these, unable to attend the market, telephone or send their orders for butter, eggs, chickens and vegetables to their grocer. The latter is unable to purchase before ten o'clock. Often after ten o'clock he is unable to get what he wants. Either the customer does not get the desired article at all, or else he gets it too late for his Saturday dinner. The entire Chatham public paid for the market, but as a result of this objectionable clause in the bylaw, it has become a convenience only for such of the citizens as have the leisure to go there in person. The clause was inserted in the bylaw for the purpose of preventing buyers for shipment from depleting the market before the public at large had a chance to purchase. Hitherto this has been urged against the proposal to repeal the clause. Now, however, the grocers are asking an amendment, allowing any grocer the privilege of purchasin goods to the amount of not more than $5 for the purpose of accommodating customers. The retail merchants' association will be asked to lend its aid, and the president and secretary will bring the subject before that body at its next meeting.

The vexed question of cartage charges was also discussed at some length. The retail grocers feel that they are being unjustly discriminated against by the wholesalers in this regard. In the big cities the wholesalers deliver to their local customers by their own drays, this involving no charge to the recipients of the goods. But in shipping to outside customers, those in Chatham for example, they send out their goods by the station drays. On smalls, for instance, this means a charge of 12c. at the point of shipment, and this charge is duplicated when the goods are delivered here. The grocers feel that one charge is sufficient and that they should be put on the same basis as the home customers of the wholesale houses.

Though no action was taken at last week's meeting, the matter will probably be brought up later, with a view to inducing the wholesalers to change their methods.

An energetic campaign is to be inaugurated for the purpose of making the membership list of the grocers' section and the grocers' directory of the city of Chatham identical. At present, though the grocers' section is a large and growing organization, there are still many out of the fold. At a meeting, a list of these grocers was made out and handed to the members present. Efforts will be made by the members of the section to induce all their fellow grocers to join. The section is fighting some needed battles on behalf of the grocery trade, particularly against the objectionable transients and the harassing ten o'clock market bylaw, and all those who stand to benefit by the fight being put up should lend a hand.

The movement to open the market to the retailers before ten o'clock finds a strong advocate in Magistrate Houston, whose stand on the transient and peddler bylaws during the past few months has brought upon his head much criticism from the retailers of the city. "I see that the retail grocers are asking to be allowed to buy on the market before the hour," remarked Magistrate Houston to an interviewer on Saturday morning.

"I think this would be a good move in the interests of everyone. We would be enabled to get our groceries at an earlier hour from the grocers, and we would get them just as cheap and cheaper than we can buy them on the market. The grocers don't wish to be allowed to buy on the market because they make any great profit out of butter and eggs, but merely that they may be able to accommodate their customers. You will find that the grocers make little or no profit out of these commodities, and in most cases they carry them merely for accommodation."

The other side of the question is given in the following item in a local paper: "A number of local ratepayers, speaking to the Planet this morning, said that they thought the council should make no change in the bylaw prohibiting grocers and wholesalers from buying on the market before ten o'clock. They claim that this change would give the grocers control of the prices, and the market would no longer be for the people for whom it was originally intended." Indicative of the fallacy of this argument is the fact that the grocers throughout the city—not only on King Street, but in the remoter corners of Chatham—almost invariably sell market stuff at a lower price than do the market people themselves. Though the popular belief unquestionably is that prices are lower on the market, careful and impartial observation leads to the opposite conclusion. Nor could the market be very well depleted by the grocers before ten o'clock, for the marketers would unquestionably hang out till then for the sake of securing the inevitably higher price. At the present time the market, open to the grocers after ten o'clock, is rarely depleted by noon.

Members of the city council state that it would be difficult to frame a workable by-law giving grocers the desired privilege. In the first place it would be difficult to say just who were selling to the local trade, and who to outside packers and shippers. Further, the discrimination in favor of local merchants might invalidate the by-law.

Chatham lost a good citizen by the death of William James Bennett, who passed away at his home on Thames street, on Oct. 29, aged 54. Death was the result of a paralytic stroke sustained the previous Thursday. A native of Newcastle, Ont., Mr. Bennett came to Chatham with his parents while still young, his father, the late Thos. Bennett, being first a distiller and later conducting a flour mill. Mr. Bennett succeeded his father in charge of the latter enterprise, later going into the tobacco business, which he continued till his death. He is survived by a widow and three children. The funeral took place at 3 o'clock Oct. 31st, to Maple Leaf cemetery, the concourse being one of the largest in many years.

Oct. 29th saw a disastrous conflagration on Pelee Island, in which the commodious general store of A. M. McCormick & Sons was totally destroyed. The loss, understood to be pretty well covered by insurance, is estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000. A large stock of dry goods, groceries and hardware had just been put in for the coming winter.

Early closing in Chatham has received a considerable accession of strength through the recent action of the local druggists, who have decided, after Nov. 11th to close every night at 8 o'clock, Saturdays and nights before holidays excepted. Thamesville druggists have taken a step in the same direction, closing at 6 o'clock on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

There are rumors that the recent action of the city bakers in decreasing the weight of their loaves will be questioned on the ground that it isn't in accord with the strict letter of the law. Recently the bakers cut the weight from 1½ to 1¼ pounds. A clause in the city by-laws states that all loaves delivered in the city shall be in weight 1, 1½, 2 and 4 pounds respectively. The by-law nowhere specifies a 1¼-pound loaf. The bakers charge 5c for a 1¼-pound loaf, in preference to charging 6c for the 1½-pound loaf. If the course they have taken is questioned, a 6c loaf will probably be the outcome. Either price is the same in the long run. Bakers declare that with the recent rise in the price of flour, they make less on the new loaf than they formerly did on the old one, when flour was low.

The soaring price of butter is causing consternation among housekeepers. Creamery butter has retailed at 33c, while farmers ask as high as 30c, 28c being the rule.

A dealer explains thus: Last year cheese brought a good price while butter was not so high, consequently milk was diverted to the cheese factories. Again, the amount of milk produced this season was considerably less than usual because of the late spring and early failure of pasturage in the fall. Hay is dear, and many farmers are selling hay and cattle with the idea of deriving greater profit thereby, while others have to dispose of their cows because they have nothing with which to feed them.

Many were the encomiums passed by local grocers on the Special Fall Number of The Canadian Grocer. "A splendid number—the best yet," was the verdict of the local trade.

GUELPH.

Guelph owns her own gas and electric light plants, her own waterworks plant and also her own electric railway and all are good paying investments. The railway, perhaps the hardest to finance, shows for the past year on its operations a net gain to the city of $7,017.94, and this after spending $5,509 on the road and equipment. The railway and municipal board appointed by the Ontario Government to inspect all electric roads in the province, after making a tour of inspection state that the Guelph Radial Railway was the best equipped, had the best roadbed, and was the best managed that they had inspected. That ought to be satisfactory to the citizens of Guelph and also encourage other cities to go and do likewise.

A man came into the store about 7.30 o'clock the other morning rather hot, in spite of the chilly weather outside. He had been to both the C.P.R. and G.N.W. telegraph offices to telegraph a friend at Hamilton before the early train left there, but could not do so because they do not do business that early in the morning—not till after 8 a.m. It does seem strange that wealthy companies like these cannot afford to have an operator on all night, especially in cities.

We have talked grocer association to a good many in this city during the month, and hunted up one of the old Grocers' Association of 1899's constitution and bylaws, and the general feeling is that the old association was broken up on account af the cutting of prices among members. Now there always will be cutters and fellows who can't live up to an agreement, but are we going to do without an association just to oblige one or two. Why that is practically giving them their own way and we can form an association for mutual benefit. However, this grocers' association is on the move, and we want you. We expect to have it organized the first week in November and for the present don't intend to try to regulate prices or collect old accounts. The Retail Merchants' Association can attend to that. The objects at present are to get good speakers and hold regular meetings once or twice a month, and as we get together we can shape our future plans. Whether you are a price cutter or anything else come along. We need you and you may need us. Let us get started, anyway.

A move in the right direction came along recently, when a couple of the downtown grocers got together and got the rest to raise the price of the 25c. package of rolled oats to 30c., and this without much trouble. Why not fix up the starch, canned goods, and other cereals in the same way.

The high prices and high wages in the factories seem to be beginning to reflect on business, as some are shutting down for a week, and others for two weeks, while nine hours is all that some are working. That really means, Mr. Grocer, look out for your accounts. A grocer told me he had already refused several new accounts and most grocers have enough old ones. Now is the time to begin a cash business, even if you have to lose a few customers, for as long as your goods are on the shelf you can do business, but you can't do much with a long list of accounts.

A large, 20-foot sign of Jackson & Son, grocers, blew down during the storm of Saturday night, and it makes a person shudder to think what might have happened if it had come down an hour or so earlier when the street was crowded with shoppers. INGERSOLL.

Only a small per centage of the number of turkeys in this district were marketed for Thanksgiving. This state of affairs is accounted for by the fact that the turkeys were not in first-class condition, the farmers being too busy to devote the usual attention to them in preparing them for the market. Reports from the different surrounding sections still indicate that turkeys are fairly plentiful, and all signs point to there being enough for all at Christmas time, with the prices probably less than for the past few years.

Frequently one hears a merchant say that he is too busy to take any active interest in the public affairs of his town. It is an old saying, and doubtless a true one, that the busy man is the man to have as the representative of the people when their affairs are to be transacted. Shrewd men, who have made a success of their own business are the kind who are wanted to-day in municipal life, and the merchant of any town who honestly believes that he possesses the proper qualifications to materially assist his town in reaching cityward, should endeavor to devote a reasonable amount of his time to the interests of the community. Then, aside from the broader aspect of the question, merchants should "size up" the situation from their own standpoint. The merchants and manufacturers are the arteries on which the life of a town or city depend, and they should be public-spirited enough to put their shoulders to the wheel when ever an occasion presents itself in the hope of bettering conditions, not only for themselves, but also for everyone in the community. It too often happens that when only a limited number of business men are in a council many of these, on account of the lack of experience, are unfamiliar with many conditions. Merchants are invariably in touch with the public pulse, and their knowledge and judgment should be of much importance in dealing with the civic affairs. Aggressiveness is a good motto for modern times, and if more merchants would only reach far out with broader principles and greater energies their influence would doubtless be a factor that would mean expansion both for the community and their own business interests.

A few weeks ago I made a brief reference to the unusual number of commercial men who were calling on the enterprising merchants here in one day, and at the same time noted the fact that Ingersoll enjoyed a far-reaching reputation as a hustling town. On Monday of this week forty commercial travelers, representing many lines, were housed at one of Ingersoll's leading hotels, in addition to this number there were many more at the other hotels, which fact goes to show, that backed up by the great staple products, bacon and cheese, Ingersoll is regarded as a most important business centre, even if its population is not so large as some of the other Provincial towns. However, the great number of "drummers" who were here on Monday is indicative of the fact that the wholesalers and manufacturers of the Dominion attach considerable importance to the patronage which this town offers.

Advertising is a theme which is evidently receiving much attention from many merchants at the present time. Not a few merchants will plunge into printer's ink, but they neglect to enhance the appearance of their stores. There is much value in attractive window dressing and the successful merchant is aware of the fact that advertising and window dressing go hand in hand. Has your attention never been arrested by some attractive window display? It may have been out of your own town, and in some line other than groceries, but you stopped to look at the display. This is one way to judge the value of window dressing. If you stopped to look at the display of some other merchant is it not reasonable to assume that others will stop to look at yours? City merchants, especially, are alive to the advantages of window displays. It is their greatest factor in securing transient trade. Grocers have every opportunity to make their windows striking. They have everything at their elbow, and, as the different seasons supply their own "decorations," their is really no excuse why their windows are not always attractive and up-to-date in every sense of the word. If however, the merchant finds that he cannot give his windows systematic attention in regard to displays, he should at least make an effort to get the dead flies out of them before the snow falls. Flies are detested in every shape and form, and to see them in great numbers in the bottom of a grocery window is not conducive to a keen appetite for the eatables within the store, notwithstanding the fact that the major portion of them are protected.

The butter situation remains practically the same. First-class creamery is retailing at thirty-three cents a pound, and it would seem as if the thirty-five mark will be reached. In former years when the price of butter advanced here many citizens had their supply shipped in from sections to the north, where there are but few cheese factories, and the great bulk of the milk is manufactured into butter. But while there are no more cheese factories in these districts than formerly, there is no more cheap butter. The farmers have learned that butter is a scarce commodity, and they too have advanced the price. In some sections where first-class dairy butter could be had last year for 18 and 20 cents a pound, it was learned that this year it is selling for 28 and 30 cents.

MONTREAL.

The question of collections is one of prime importance to the retail grocer. With a view to finding what methods brought good results and what did not, The Grocer's representative called on a number of local grocers.

The first merchant made the remarkable statement that he had not lost twenty-five dollars in six years. His method is as follows: He has two lists, a regular and a special list. If a customer is known to be good pay he is put on the special list and allowed to run an account for one month. All the others are put on the regular list and called upon to pay every week. Apart from this no distinction is made and a customer not paying his bill promptly when it is due is not allowed further credit. He said that during the last six years he had not lost a good customer through that system of collection. Another prosperous grocer said that he allowed no credit except to people of whom he was pretty sure, and then he limited them all to one month.

A somewhat different system was outlined by a grocery, 70 per cent. of whose business is done over the telephone. His method was to place a limit to the amount of credit he would give a customer and then treat all alike. "For," said he, "a rich man who won't pay, isn't much better, so far as the grocer is concerned, than the poor man who can't."

Of the other grocers seen, some adopted one means and some another. But on the whole the ones outlined seem to have given the best results. And it is results the grocer is after. One grocer, in speaking of the difficulty in collecting accounts, said: "Why, some of my customers have such exceedingly delicate feelings that they must not be asked to pay at all."

Another question which was taken up while The Grocer was looking for information from the retailers, and one which brought out some facts interesting to the trade, was that of early closing. Without exception, the grocers called upon highly endorsed the early closing scheme. C. E. Box said that it was more satisfactory every way. There has been an increase in his trade since adopting early closing. It allows him time to balance his cash every day, to attend to arranging store displays for the next day and further, as he said, "it lets me live as well as keep store." E. J. Quinn, when spoken to on the subject said in his characteristic manner: "Why, if a man cannot do business in business hours, he should quit his business and go at something else." The fact is that a bigger business and a much more satisfactory one can be done by closing early. Furthermore, it is much easier to keep good clerks when they are kept on duty only a reasonable number of hours.

Looking at the situation broadly, reasonable grocers seem to be unanimous in their attachment to the early closing idea and the results reported would seem to fully justify their position.

Another point worth considering is that of the quality of goods handled. One grocer doing business in a somewhat aristocratic residential section said: "It pays to carry only the best lines of goods, and when one line of goods has been introduced, to stick persistently to that line, for there is nothing like educating the people into using a certain brand, which insures continued custom."

SASKATOON.

The fall number of The Grocer was hailed with joy by many a western grocer and general merchant. Its correspondence pages formed an interesting budget of news from the various centres which would be eagerly read, while other matter was both interesting and instructive. A special feature was the number of window and interior displays which can be copied to advantage by many a store throughout the Dominion.

OTTAWA.

Matters pertaining to trade in general have been more or less disturbed and neglected, similar to an election campaign during the past month, while the Grand Trunk Railway Company has been seeking to acquire a portion of Major's Hill Park as a site for a superb hotel, the cost of which is expected to reach $1,500,000. At the same time it requests from the city council a fixed assessment of $500,000 per annum for fifteen years. It proposes also to build an up-to-date railway station, to be the central passenger depot on the present site of the so-called Central railway depot at a cost estimated to be $1,000,000, on which request is made for a fixed assessment of $150,000 for same term as for the hotel. Strenuous opposition was exercised against any portion of this beautiful park being devoted to any other purpose. The picture of these shaded grounds, with the proposed buildings to be erected by the Dominion Government for departmental offices, forming a background on the eastern side, and the Laurentian Mountains prominent in the northwestern horizon, had become vividly impressed upon the public mind as one of surpassing scenic beauty and one that should be preserved; hence the struggle against any infringement in that direction. But as the park is the property of the country at large, the Government were willing to allow the portion asked for. With the hotel built as designed, this view will be spoiled, and the proposed new buildings hidden in the rear The city of Ottawa is rightfully entitled to a modern central passenger railway station by reason of an understanding with the Canada Atlantic Company that in a bonus paid to it, the sum of $50,000 was included toward the cost of such a building. It has never been constructed. In the meantime the C. A. R. has sold out to the G. T. R. and has placed the city in the peculiar position of having paid the bonus and got "nil" for it. Now the G.T.R. offers to put up the two buildings on conditions only that the hotel may be placed on the park aforesaid with the fixed assessments, etc., and the city to spend $100,000 or so more in widening street approaches, etc. Hitherto, both the city council and the Board of Trade had roundly opposed the park site for hotel use, but finding that no alternative would be considered, they somersaulted to the company's proposals, rather than lose the advantages desired thereby.

Since agreements have been reached and assurances given that construction work will immediately be commenced, it is to be hoped that the impairment to the park may be compensated by the lively stimulus which these works should give to all classes and accrue largely to the benefit of the grocery business.

Should the Dominion Government decide to begin the erection of the new buildings, for which their locations are already secured, the additional benefit in the way of business to the city will be inestimable.

KINGSTON.

Kingston is gradually losing the name of a deserted village and its future prospects of being a busy centre are very bright. About twenty miles of cement walks have been built and now new roads are being made and the people generally are spending a lot of time and money in beautifying their lawns.

The ladies of Kingston got up a Made in Canada Fair recently and it was a big success. They were aided in their efforts by ladies from Napanee and other places. Their appeals for aid from the different firms throughout Canada were answered in a practical and generous manner, in cash, goods, etc. About $9,000 was made, and the proceeds are to be used for the benefit of our General Hospital.

In a recent letter I wrote about a firm of produce dealers beating me out of 627 doz. eggs, a shipment for which I didn't get a cent. I have heard of others losing by the same firm, and it looks as though they made a business of it. I would like to hear from those who have suffered and arrange to go to the city where the said house exists, and lay the matter before the proper authorities. A letter to The Canadian Grocer office will be forwarded to me.

The bakers in Kingston did not raise the price of their product. Owing to the advance in flour, they merely lowered the weight, and what a lot of quill drivers got after them. All sorts of arguments came from preachers, professors, doctors, wholesale grocers and the bakers themselves. Some think the standard weight of bread should be two pounds for the half loaf. It was lowered to 1½ and when flour dropped the weights remained the same. Now the weight is 1¼, although some still make it 1½ pounds, hoping to gain new customers. One leading baker is coming out for mayor and it places him in a queer position. If he lowers the weight with the rest, people will jump on him. If he sticks to the old weight, they will say he is trying to pull their legs for votes. So he straddles the fence.

The scarcity and high prices ruling in the butter market is serious. One merchant who was handling over 2,000 lbs. of Wiarton creamery got word that the factory was going to close down, owing to scarcity of cream. Now the merchant finds difficulty in getting as good a quality of butter to please his trade. Good butter is a great help to a merchant in making a success of business. Butter is selling at 32c. to 35c. here, and eggs 30c. to 35c. a dozen.

The grocers are working in harmony and advancing prices together.

The Wilson Co., of Gananoque, have closed up after a successful business career. They adopted the cash system and stuck to it. They would have continued in business but their lease expired and they couldn't get satisfactory renewal. One of the clerks, Mr. Smith, and his brother, are opening up a cash store in Gananoque and feel confident of success.

Mr. Smith learned his trade with our much esteemed James Crawford, of Kingston. The other brother learned the hardware business with Dalton & Sons. Their father, Henry Smith, is in the grocery business here. The boys are sure to succeed, as they are workers and thinkers and are sober and industrious. Mr. Wilson expects to go back to Victoria, B.C., where he spent several years in the grocery trade.

Prof. Ruddick thinks butter will not go to 40c., as it can be brought from Europe and laid down for 29c. to 30c. The professor, too, generally knows what he is talking about.

BRANDON.

Business in Brandon is beginning to be brisk again after the recent quiet spell. The farmers are selling their wheat and so there is more money in circulation. Grocers in the city find it very hard to get good butter and fresh eggs and of course the prices are high in consequence. Dairy butter is retailing at 30 cents and fresh eggs at 35 cents, but there are no fresh eggs to be had just now, so they are selling pickled eggs.

Thanksgiving passed off pleasantly and the stores were all closed except one. I suppose Brandon is like every other place—in that they have a "knocker" or two. We are also blessed with a few price-cutters, who do all in their power to demoralize the trade, but they are not of much importance, because they couldn't do any business at all by fair means.

A carload of British Columbia apples came into Brandon to-day. They are good fruit, and are put up in 50-lb. boxes. We cannot sell many B.C. apples here on account of the prices. They cost the merchant from $2 to $2.25 per box and that makes them hard selling when one has to add the profit. The apples are nicer looking and graded better than the Ontario apples, but they are not so juicy, and have not so fine a flavor.

The people in Brandon are beginning to get reconciled to the advanced cost of living. Nearly everything in the grocery line is dearer here than they have been in past years. It comes hard on some people here who are just earning a laborer's wages. A large quantity of canned goods are sold here, especially canned fruits, and the prices are all away up. California evaporated fruits are not being sold at all, the prices are so high that the people will not touch them.

Your Montreal correspondent has taken a step in the right direction—regarding nice, tidy stores. He is a booster all right and cannot say too much regarding this. There is no doubt but tidy stores and well-dressed windows pay. Brandon can be justly proud of her store windows. All the different lines of business keep their windows well trimmed and changed regularly. In closing, I might just mention how quick we can get goods here some times. The Brandon Times of Oct., 28, says: "An instance of rapid transportation was shown yesterday when a car of Spanish Valencia onions was received here by the McPherson Fruit Co., in just 18 days from the date it was consigned in Liverpool. It came via the Empress of Britain and the C.P.R.

STRATFORD.

"Money is tight," and by all appearances there will be many unlooked for and unexpected disclosures made before the expiration of the approaching winter. The outlook is dismal and comatose in not a few, but many lines of business.

The stringency is even felt by the prosperous grocer. Just the other day your correspondent happened to mention the fact to one of Stratford's young and hustling grocers. "Yes," he said, "we grocers know just how tight the money market really is. As things stand at present something will have to be done. Either the grocers will have to reduce the weights in a good many articles or else raise the prices. I don't want to see the prices raised, but something will have to be done and I would rather reduce the weight."

The facts of the matter are these:—The wholesale grocers have boosted the prices of several articles to the retailer and the price has remained the same to the consumer. When the whole matter is considered there is room for "deep thinkers" to get busy and thresh the problem out satisfactorily to both. Since the prices have been raised the retail grocers have become poorer. They have been losing money. If the price is advanced two or five cents by the wholesaler, the retailer loses that much. "The retailers," remarked one dealer, "do not make enough per cent. on the goods sold to warrant the carrying on of business on the square." It is a matter well worth considering and commenting upon.

There are two or three grocers in this city who firmly believe that effective advertising pays, and the more attractive the advertising the more and greater results will be realized. One day last week while discussing matters, a traveler entered one of these bright and attractive stores with the numerous and nicely-printed advertising cards, he was inspired to tell a story. "An old and seasoned farmer drove into town and backed his rig up against the fresh paint. 'Durn you and your old grocery!' Didn't you see that sign, Fresh Paint?' asked the grocer. 'Of course I did, but I've seen so many signs hung out here announcing something fresh that that wasn't, that I didn't believe it.'"

The Barnsdale Trading Co. dress attractive windows. This week one of their large front plates is dressed with vaseline goods and the display is a good and suggestive one. We would advise Manager Williams to enter The Grocer's prize contest for the most attractive window displays.

The grocers here report an excellent Thanksgiving trade. Now for Christmas. Several dealers are laying in large stocks in special lines, and no doubt in a very short time the spasmodic advertisers will begin doing a little bit of splashing in that line.

The majority of the local industries are running full blast and full time despite the stringency of the money market, but others are reducing expenses. On Monday over one hundred employes of the Grand Trunk here were let adrift.

BARRIE.

Produce went the limit here this week, while there was no great amount on the market on account of the wet weather. There was a small demand. Butter sold from 29 to 31 cents; eggs, from 28 to 30 cents per dozen; chickens, 10 cents per pound; turkeys, 12½ to 15 cents per pound; ducks, from 10 to 11 cents per pound; geese, 8 to 10 cents per pound. Potatoes were scarce and advanced 5 cents per bag, which now makes the general price 75 cents per bag. A few loads of oats brought 50 cents and a couple of loads of wheat sold at $1.02 per bushel.

On our bread may be seen labels which on the home-made loaf reads 20 ounces and on the "bakers'" loaf 1½ pounds, a reduction of half a pound all round. When the writer asked a well-known baker the other day why he had cut the bread down, he smiled and said. "Hard times, advanced prices of material and labor."

On account of Hallowe'en arriving on Thanksgiving night this year, the young boys held their annual "shell out" the night before, visiting all the merchants of the town with their war cry. They fared pretty well, having their pockets bulged and their faces smeared with dirt, and only did they meet with one mishap when, as one little chap described it, 'A mean old beggar shelled out a pail of water, but we got even, we pitched mud at his windows."

Mr. James Eadie, official organizer of the Retail Merchants' Association, is in town this week, and is working hard to strengthen the Barrie branch, having called a meeting for to-night.

An up-to-date "Quick Lunch" man from Montreal has opened up a restaurant on Mulcaster St. this week. He says this is a fine, wide-awake town and he thinks his "quick lunch" should pay well.

A merchant in the town here, talking to your correspondent the other day, said he had been greatly bothered lately by petty shoplifting and is almost certain he knows the offenders.

FOOD VALUE OF DRIED FRUITS

By Sir Francis Henry Laking, M.D., Physician to King Edward VII.

It is to be regretted that an economical and valuable article of food, in the shape of the dried currant, should be so much neglected. The dietetic value of the fruit is misunderstood and the prejudice against it entirely unjustified. Properly prepared, the currant might, with the greatest advantage, form an every-day item in the meals of the people, who seem to choose their food and arrange their dishes with an ignorance the extent of which is appalling. If people could be taught a few simple facts about the worth of various kinds of food commonly eaten, I am of opinion that much benefit would result. If some elementary knowledge of the chemical components of food could be imparted to the masses, I feel sure that our race would be healthier, more vigorous and better equipped to resist the attacks of disease.

Imagine what would be the benefit, if the toilers could be induced to master and act upon the fact that food, to be perfect, must contain in the proper proportions the three main elements—nitrogenous substances, carbohydrates, and fats. It should not be difficult, say, to popularize more extensively an inquiry into the meaning of "proteids"—that they are, in fact, the albuminous fundamental and principal constituents of the animal body ; that food accurately abundant in proteid makes for the building of tissue and the making of muscle. The meaning of the word "carbohydrates" should not be incapable of demonstration in popular language ; nor should the importance of the proper balance of the sugar in the food be difficult to explain in a manner intelligible to the people.

An Aid to Digestion.

From recent analysis of samples of dried currants the fact has been verified that the fruit contains no less than 73 per cent of sugar in its most valuable form. This great saccharic proportion is already in the shape of grape sugar, and thus is potential to take up its work of producing and maintaining energy and vitality. It is what is known as "invert" sugar, a composite of dextrose and levulose. It assists digestion ; it allays nervous excitement and provides nourishment in case of nervous exhaustion. No fruit can show this large proportion except those of and kindred with the currant.

I wish it could be more generally realized that, in selecting articles of food to supply the constituents of normal diet, regard should be had to the amount of potential energy in the material. It should be an easy matter to convince the people that this or that food is good or bad—that certain things are abundant or deficient in essential food elements.

Currants Versus Beef.

For instance, let us make an interesting comparison, and one that should be quite clear to the average intelligence : I mean the comparison between the components of currents and lean beef. The currants show 73 per cent. of grape sugar, the whole of which contributes to manufacture energy ; the beef contains no sugar at all. Currants contain 1.77 per cent. of proteid ; the beef 19.3 per cent. In currants there is but 20 per cent. water ; in beef 72 per cent., the bulk of which is waste. Lean beef contains but 0.6 per cent. more heat-producing material than currants, the figures of which as regards fat stand at 3 per cent. The figures referring to the currants are taken from a recent analysis by E. F. Harrison, B.Sc. (Lond.) F.I.C., Ph.C., F.C.S. The figures for the beef are extracted from a table of food values compiled upon the researches of such authorities as Church, Payer, Letheby, Blyth, Pavy, Holbrook, Oldfield, Kress and others. The result is the disclosure of the important fact that there is no less than 54.87 per cent. more total nutriment in the currants than in the beef. The point might be advanced that the currants show a low proportion of proteid, but the people should be warned against the dietetic error of using food containing an excess of proteid. They should also be taught how to supplement any deficiency in the various modes of preparing the fruit for table. They should be shown with what ingredients to mix it, so that it may contribute its powerful assistance in building and maintaining the body. Indeed, I am not wide of the mark when I say that, even eaten alone, the currant contains nutriment in all sufficiency.

In the dietary of the peasant classes of Greece, a people remarkable for their hardihood and health, the currant appears at almost every meal, while in Germany and Holland currant bread is a common article of food ; indeed, among the many shapes in which the currant may be brought to table, a bread made of say thirty parts of currants to seventy parts of dough is one of the best.

A Food for the Masses.

Currants contain in the right proportion certain valuable acids such as tartaric, citric, and malic. These acids, while having wholesome individual properties, besides being refrigerant, antiseptic, and antifebrile, serve to modify or adjust the flavor of the sugar and help the other nutriment components of the fruit to readily deliver themselves up. It will thus be seen that the toiling and insufficiently fed masses have at their command a delicious article of food which costs the merest trifle and of which they would surely and readily avail themselves did they but know its value. The middle and upper classes, those who are in a sense indifferent to food regarded in its dietetic aspect, but who select it mainly for flavor, have an important adjunct to the table, which gratifies the palate and operates as a liberal auxiliary to health and well-being.

The splendid varieties of currants grown in the district of Vostizza, and intended to be eaten as dessert, either alone, with almonds, or with any other kind of nuts, are shade-dried, seedless, as indeed all currants are seedless, and of a velvety softness. For children and those who must of necessity adopt a "diet" currants properly treated and prepared will prove a digestive aid and act as a gentle and natural laxative. Therefore, any accusation against this delicious, economical and valuable little fruit must fall to the ground as absurd.—Scientific American.

THE HOME OF BOVRIL.

In London, England, a short time ago, the chairman of Bovril, Limited, allowed a party of over three thousand persons to make an inspection of the factory where Bovril is made. The party was pleased with what they saw. Neither expense nor trouble have been spared in making the premises thoroughly clean. The laboratories where experimental and analytical work is carried on are equipped with the latest improvements. Everything taken into the factory is analyzed before being used, and again analyzed when ready for bottling, although the supplies of raw materials used by the company are furnished by carefully supervised factories in Canada, the British Colonies, and the River Plate. These repeated analyses are necessary to insure a certain standard of strength. The visitors were shown how solid extract of meat, the flavoring and stimulating part, and the albumen and fibrin, the nutritious element, were blended together. The finished product ready for bottling is run off into vats. Some idea of the vastness of the business can be formed from the fact that each of these vats contains the product of the prime parts of over three hundred oxen. Throughout the whole process of manufacture nothing is touched by hand.

Although England is the home of Bovril, the makers claim there is no country where it is unknown. In Montreal it is manufactured under precisely the same conditions and with the same material as in London.

AN ADVANCE IN BISCUITS.

Larger Manufacturers Quote Higher Prices on All Regular Lines.

And now it's biscuits. Several of the larger manufacturers quote an advance which applies to all orders received on and after Monday, Nov. 4. They say that the increased cost of raw materials and labor compel them to take this step. One large Toronto firm quotes an advance of two cents per tin on sodas and on other lines half a cent per pound on three-pound packages. This may be taken as representative of the general advances.

Several of the smaller firms have not as yet advanced their prices, but they will probably fall in line in a short time.

Montreal Wants Tea Inspector

Government Inspectors Have Been Appointed in Other Cities, but Metropolis Has Been Neglected—Strong Opinions on the Subject Held by the Trade—Federal Authorities Vainly Petitioned—Delays Cause Great Loss to Dealers.

Among Montreal tea merchants there has been, of late, considerable indignation over the Government's lack of action in the matter of appointing in Montreal a tea inspector, similar to the officials to be found at St. John, Quebec, Hamilton and Winnipeg. The idea of the Federal authorities in appointing these men was to save time for tea importers by expediting the examination of teas which have to pass Government inspection before they can be placed on the Canadian market.

Before these inspectors were appointed, all teas costing twenty cents a pound or under, in the country of growth, equivalent to twenty-two cents a pound here, were supposed to be tested by the official Government inspector at Ottawa, F. C. Allan. To-day, in the cities where inspectors are located, teas which have to be examined can be tested and passed with no appreciable delay.

Montreal, as the largest tea importing centre in the Dominion should have an inspector.

But there is no official tester.

Just why the metropolis has been neglected in this matter it is hard to understand. One tea man voices the opinion of the majority when he says that there is more tea brought into Montreal—either for use here, or for reshipment to other parts of Canada—than is received in all the other cities of the Dominion put together.

Such being the case, should not Montreal be the first city to have an inspector? This is the logical reasoning of the tea trade. Evidently the Government cannot see it this way yet. Members of the tea trade in Montreal are endeavoring to explain the situation to the customs authorities, but their efforts have availed them little thus far.

Government Petitioned.

A short time ago the tea merchants of Montreal got together and drew up a petition, which was signed by thirty-three firms, importers, or dealers in tea. The heads of these concerns are a sane lot of business men and are representative of the best tea men in Montreal; they are in a position to know more about conditions in the tea trade in Montreal than any other body of men. Consequently they are in a position to know what is likely to benefit the trade and themselves.

An inspector has been needed in Montreal for years—needed in the worst way. Thousands and thousands of dollars have been lost because dealers have been obliged to forward tea samples to Ottawa, entailing a delay which caused the cancellation of orders, while the testing might just as well have been done in Montreal. The petition which was forwarded to Ottawa, and which we reproduce here, stated simply that an inspector is needed in Montreal. The signatures of the largest and best—in fact, all—of the tea trade, which were affixed to this petition, should be sufficient to warrant some action by the Government. Here is what actually followed:

The Government wrote back that they desired the individual opinion of all who had signed the petition on the advisability of appointing a tea inspector in Montreal! They wanted the whys and wherefores, all the ins and outs of the business.

Did Quebec and Winnipeg have to go through all this red tape? Rather, was not an inspector thrust upon these cities?

How reasonable the tea trade in Montreal have been may be gauged from the fact that they have not up to recently pushed the matter of appointing an inspector. As long as other cities in the Dominion were being treated in the same manner they offered no objection. In demanding an inspector for Montreal the trade are now but insisting upon their rights—insisting only on plain justice and fair treatment.

Shortly after Montreal tea men filed their objection to the unjust deal they were receiving, the Government made an effort to conciliate the trade.

Apparently the official mind at Ottawa was slightly affected by the strong wave of protest which swept down upon it. At any rate the authorities have since been trying to make life easier for tea men in the metropolis. The result of their efforts appeared in the Telegraph Release System.

As explained in the foregoing, the Government requires that samples of all teas costing under twenty cents shall be forwarded to Ottawa for examination. Formerly the result of the testing was sent to Montreal by mail, but by inaugurating the Telegraph Release System the Government began sending word of the outcome of the test by wire.

As the good people at Ottawa reasoned, the matter, a lot of tea would arrive in Montreal in the morning. A sample package would be taken to the customs examining warehouse, and from this a sample would be taken, forwarded to Ottawa the same morning, received the same day; tested in Ottawa next morning; and released by wire the morning after its arrival in Montreal—all so quickly done, and without any trouble.

This would be all right if the theory was borne out by practice. But as a matter of fact such quick work is unknown to the tea trade. They may have dreamed of the possibility of such prompt action, but the realization has not yet been experienced. According to the Customs Department in Montreal this dream could come true but for the railway companies. They do not always make life easy for the customs officials. The best explanation of their position in the matter is found in the words of the chief grocery examiner.

Some Opinions.

Edward Donahue, assistant customs appraiser, Montreal, who looks after the grocery department of the customs work, when seen by the Canadian Grocer, stated that as far as the Customs Department was concerned he could see no cause for complaint because of delays.

He said that 90 per cent. of the teas received in Montreal came direct there

---

The following is the petition referred to in the text. It was drawn up and signed by Montreal tea merchants and forwarded to Ottawa:

PETITION TO OTTAWA.

"The Minister of Customs,
Ottawa, Ont.

"Dear Sir:

"We, the undersigned tea importers of the city of Montreal, beg to ask you to consider the advisability of appointing a tea inspector at this port in the same way you have recently done at other ports of much less importance than Montreal.

"We suggest he be allowed to pass judgment on all teas coming direct from the country of growth.

"The delays existing at present are very serious to our business, and we beg you to give this matter your very careful consideration as we look upon it as a matter of the greatest importance.

"Yours faithfully,

Jno. Duncan & Co., Doyle & Jackson, R. W. Forester, Lockerby Bros., Ltd., Mathewson's Sons, Forbes Bros., L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, The E. D. Marceau & Co., Ltd., Hudon & Orsali, Crosfield, Lampard, Clark & Co., J. S. Hetherington, Jas. Rutherford & Co., Hunt & Co., Birks, Corner & Co., Rose & Laflamme, J. &. W. Kearney, C. N. D. Osgood, Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Ltd., Watt, Scott & Goodacre, Bartley & Reid, Laporte, Martin & Cie, Ltd., Shaw T. Nishimura, W. H. Halford, William Galbraith & Son, Tamilkande Tea Co., W. D. Stroud & Sons, Kearney Bros., Alec. Hendery, Jas. S. Mitchell, Demers, Fletcher & Co., Thos. Wood & Co., S. J. Carter & Co., A. W. Osgood.

by rail, from British Columbia ports, where they are entered direct from the country of growth. Six to seven per cent. of the total receipts of teas came from London by boat, while 2 to 3 per cent. came from the States. The Customs Department, upon notification of the arrival of a shipment of tea, at once has a case of each lot contained therein sent to the examining warehouse, and from these cases samples are taken and forwarded to Ottawa. As stated above, only teas valued at 20c or under in the country of growth, equal to 22c a pound here, are sampled for test at Ottawa. Teas of higher value are passed on to the importers without any test.

According to Mr. Donahue, teas, of which samples are sent to Ottawa the morning of one day are released by wire at ten or eleven the morning of the next. In his opinion there was rarely a delay of more than a day or a day and a half getting teas released. Shipments were immediately released by the customs authorities, upon receipt of the telegram from Ottawa. Mr. Donahue said that the greatest delay was caused by the railway companies. The trouble lay in getting samples from the car in the yards of the transportation company to the customs house, where it could be opened and samples sent to Ottawa. Sometimes, he said, an officer of the Customs Department had to wait days to get a sample package from a car that was somewhere on a siding, waiting until the railway company should see fit to make the car accessible.

Tea men are of the opinion that there is absolutely no reason why sample packages, representative of the lots contained in a car should not be obtainable at once upon the arrival of the car in Montreal. A good tea inspector would see to it that the matter was attended to and there would be absolutely no delay whatever.

Representative tea men when interviewed by The Canadian Grocer, were almost unanimous in stating that it was most necessary that an inspector should be appointed for Montreal. Here is what some of them say :

Crosfield, Lampard, Clark & Co.

A. J. Wiliams, Montreal, manager for Crosfield, Lampard, Clark & Co., when seen by The Grocer, said that no further action was being taken at present. A petition was sent to Ottawa some time ago, and a reply received from Hon. Wm. Paterson, Minister of Customs, desiring an expression of opinion from the individual tea merchants. So far, the merchants had not given the matter detailed consideration.

Said he: "Previous to the appointing of inspectors at St. John, N.B., Quebec Hamilton and Winnipeg (which Hon. Mr. Paterson's letter states is only an experiment), Montreal had an arrangement by which teas were passed at Montreal. Edw. Donohue, appraiser in the Customs House, inspected all teas coming to Montreal, and whenever there was any doubt, he forwarded the samples to Ottawa.

"This was quite satisfactory. I do not know why this arrangement was not continued, most probably it was owing to the fact that large quantities of teas which had been rejected in the United States were brought into Canada. All teas rejected in the United States, when brought into Canada, should be sent to Ottawa for inspection, but why Montreal, the greatest port in the Dominion, should be made subservient to Ottawa, while very much smaller places are given inspectors, is simply a piece of discrimination against Montreal, which is not fair to the trade. At present, a shipment of tea arrives, say at the Bonaventure Station, sample packages are sent to the Customs, samples are forwarded to Ottawa, and the results sent back. All this causes a delay of from one week to ten days.

"Montreal needs a tea inspector, its trade is large enough to justify the appointment of one, and it is inconvenient and unfair to the merchants to force them to be thus dependent upon Ottawa.

Shaw T. Nishimura's Views.

T. Kusonobu, manager for Shaw T. Nishimura, is one of the strongest advocates for the appointment of an inspector in Montreal. His firm is the largest native importing house in Montreal, and every year they bring large quantities of tea from Japan to Canada.

"The delays we suffer owing to the arrangement we are forced to abide by," said he, "are anything but profitable. There have been times when we have been tied up days and days. We have had tea lying in the warehouse here for indefinite periods. Of course, if we wished to do so, we might secure the teas upon becoming responsible for them to the extent of returning them should they be turned down by the official tester at Ottawa. We bring in good teas, but we have no standards to go by and we cannot always be sure that our lots will pass. Why, a firm might bring in a certain grade of tea season after season, without any trouble, and suddenly they would be held up for some unaccountable reason. However, regarding the appointment of an inspector in Montreal, the sooner it is done the better pleased will be the trade."

What W. H. Halford Thinks.

One of the best tea men in Montreal is W. H. Halford. He is as well informed upon Montreal conditions as anyone.

"It is shameful," said he, "that Montreal, the largest port in Canada, should be passed over in this manner. The Government sees fit to appoint inspectors in St. John, Hamilton, Quebec and Winnipeg, yet passes the most important centre of the lot, as it would some small village. If the places I have mentioned require and secure a tea inspector, certainly Montreal needs and should have one also. There is not a tea man in town but has suffered some sort of a loss through the delays occasioned by the necessity of sending samples of teas to Ottawa for test.

"The appointment of an expert tea man in Montreal, as an inspector would obviate the necessity of sending samples to Ottawa. He could look after the interests of the tea houses here to the satisfaction of all, and he could put through a lot in one day as compared with the week or more required now."

Some Further Opinions.

Mr. Doyle, of Doyle & Jackson, said: "The Ottawa inspector's test results are never received by us under five days from the date the samples leave Montreal. Not infrequently there has been a delay of fifteen days. If Montreal had an inspector the goods could be released in about one day."

When asked what was the effect of this delay on the trade, Mr. Doyle said:

"The loss is enormous, but can hardly be estimated in dollars. Buyers get tired waiting for the goods to be released and cancel their orders. And, further, at this time of year, when orders are to be shipped by boat, if the boat is missed, the orders simply cannot be filled."

Jas. Rutherford, when called upon, in addition to protesting against the inconvenience and injustice of the situation here, said that one of the railways had, on certain occasions, refused to deliver shipments of teas until they had been released by word from Ottawa. and at the same time HAD THREATENED TO CHARGE DEMURRAGE.

"The whole situation here," concluded Mr. Rutherford, "is very unsatisfactory, and can be remedied only by appointing a tea inspector for Montreal."

John Patterson, of John Duncan & Co., was very skeptical about the value of an inspector. "The whole trouble," said Mr. Patterson, "is that the chances are the post would be filled by some 'Jack-inOffice,' and the result would be more officialism than ever." Further, John Duncan & Co. say they do not feel the hardship of the situation to the same extent as some other merchants, because they have their own storehouses, and the Customs allow them to have their goods conditionally, without waiting for the decision of the Ottawa inspector.

Twenty-five years ago," said Mr. Patterson, "an appraiser was appointed for Montreal, but the results were not satisfactory enough for the office to be continued."

H. R. Barnard, of Hunt & Co., said that on an average they had to wait ten days for their goods to be released. Sometimes they got them through in seven days, but frequently it was over ten.

"If there was an inspector in Montreal," said Mr. Barnard, "the delay would not be over two days at the outside. The lack of an inspector is a very serious inconvenience because retailers who are in a hurry to have their orders filled, cannot always wait for the release of the goods. Further, there is a financial loss when teas are sold on terms to date from delivery. For, during the time the goods are lying tied up, the dealer loses the interest on the money invested."

When Mr. Barnard was asked about the danger of getting a "political heeler" for an inspector, he said:

"There is a danger in that quarter, but I would take my chance on it, anything being better than the present state of affairs.

When A. L. K. Browne, manager for Thos. Wood & Co., was seen, he said that it was manifestly unfair for the metropolis of the Dominion to be without an inspector, when a number of less important places had inspectors. He pointed out that the inspector, if appointed, should be some tea expert, who was in no way connected with the trade here, "for," said he, "any person connected with the trade, and who was also inspector, would be in a position to see exactly what each merchant was importing, which would certainly be unfair."

Mr. Browne thought that a solution might be found by following the system in operation in the United States where there are tea experts, who are paid a salary to inspect teas. These men are wholly unconnected with the trade.

"The difficulty here," said Mr. Browne, "arises from the fact that the Canadian Government derives no revenue from teas, whereas the United States Government does.

"A solution might be found by having Mr. Allan, the inspector at Ottawa, stationed at Montreal, or, at least, have him come to Montreal twice a week, and have the inspection of teas done here."

Alex. Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali, who is the Grocer's representative on the Board of Trade Council, and who brought the matter up at the last meeting of the Board of Trade, said that the offer made by the Department at Ottawa to send the samples of tea to Ottawa free of cost, and to telegraph the results to Montreal had not proved satisfactory, and that the Board of Trade Council was ready to take the matter up as soon as a second petition was prepared. He said:

"As an example of how the present system works out in practice, a lot of Ceylon green tea was shipped from a Hamilton firm to us. This shipment was entered at the Customs House, in Montreal, on Oct. 10, and the goods were delivered on Oct. 17. Thus the goods were simply tied up for a week. And this is the state of things under favorable circumstances; otherwise the goods would have been held for perhaps fifteen days, though even three weeks' delay has been reported from some quarters.

What the Railways Say.

The Grocer called at the City Freight Office of the Grand Trunk Railway, and found them very much in favor of the idea of having an inspector for teas in Montreal. At present the shipments of tea have to remain, on an average, one week in the freight sheds, which greatly adds to the congestion. If there was an inspector at Montreal the goods need not remain longer than one day under ordinary circumstances, and two days during a rush.

W. P. Martin, C.P.R. freight agent, expressed himself as being very much in favor of appointing a tea inspector from a railroad main's standpoint. He based his opinion on two main reasons.

"Montreal," he said, "is the largest centre in Canada, and handles enough business in teas to amply justify the appointing of a permanent inspector."

"In the second place, such an amount of freight of all kinds is handled in Montreal, that the delay caused by holding up shipments of teas, while samples are being sent to Ottawa and results communicated to Montreal—all of which takes about a week—makes such a congestion in the warehouses that it is almost impossible to give the best service to merchants. Almost every day new shipments of goods are coming in, and blocking up the shipments which would have been delivered had there been an inspector in Montreal to release them promptly. The tea men cannot very well blame us. Were there an inspector in Montreal there would be no delay worth speaking of."

The Inspector's Judgment.

It develops upon inquiry around the trade, that the judgment of the official inspector at Ottawa is not always, in the opinion of tea men, satisfactory. Some claim that teas are occasionally shut out, which are in reality of the same quality as other teas which are passed as being fit for consumption in Canada, and vice versa.

To take a concrete case. Some time previous to July 25, 1906, a number of Montreal merchants had teas rejected. On that date a shipment came by New York, which the tea judges in the local trade, claim to have been of the same quality as teas which Montreal merchants had been importing direct, and which were rejected at Ottawa. This shipment by New York consisted of 3,097 packages, making 87,148 lbs., and was worth $6,401.00 plus $640.10 duty. The file number of this shipment in the Customs House is 495. This tea was admitted by Ottawa, and, consequently, came upon the Canadian market.

Board of Trade Supports.

The Montreal Board of Trade supports the movement of the tea men for the appointment of an inspector. Alex. Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali, one of Montreal's leading wholesale grocery firms, is the representative of the Grocery Section on the Board of Trade Council, and he has placed before the Council the opinion of the tea importers in this matter. They heartily support the movement. They wish the tea merchants to prepare another petition, as the Government made some improvement since the putting before them of the first petition, in that they commenced sending test results by wire.

When the Government does see fit to appoint an inspector for Montreal, an expert must be employed. No cheap man is wanted. He must know the tea business from the ground up. He must have received a thorough education in teas. In other words, he must be a practical man. Probably there is no other grocery line which requires so much painstaking study to become familiar with as tea. A man cannot pick up a knowledge of it in a few months, sufficient to warrant his holding an important position, such as tea inspector for Montreal. There are hundreds of grades of tea, and to be a good judge of the various lines a man must have made tea almost a life study. It would take the ordinary man fully a year to become fairly conversant with the various teas; to learn sufficient about them to say he knew a Japan black from a Ceylon black. And even then he would have to do some hard tudying. Better far to pay an expert a big salary and guarantee satisfaction than to pay an ordinary man a fair salary and run chances.

The interests involved are too great to run any risk. By an error of judgment, which an expert would not make, a large lot of tea might be turned down, which would mean a serious financial loss to the importer. An absolutely first-class man, then, or none.

BAITLESS COD-FISHING.

Discovery of Gloucester Captain May Revolutionize Fishing Industry.

Captain Angus Hines, a middle-aged Gloucester fisherman, has discovered a method of catching cod without bait, which, if it does all that is claimed for it, bids fair to revolutionize the industry.

The new device is called a "jigger," and consists of a fish-shaped piece of shiny lead about eight inches long, from the head of which projects a couple of large hooks.

Captain Hines was troubled by a lack of clam bait when fishing off Sable Island earlier in the year, and he fashioned the "jigger" as an experiment. The device worked so well that in a short time his crew were all fishing with "jiggers," and the trip proved particularly successful. Other vessels adopted his method and reported surprising results, over half the fish in full loads being taken without bait. The discovery is regarded as one of the most significant in the history of the fishing industry.

TRADE NOTES.

A. Desilets, general storekeeper, of Ste. Clothilde, P.Q., has assigned.

A. D. Kennedy, general storekeeper, of Ulric, Alta., has discontinued business.

R. E. Sadler, general storekeeper, of Elgin, Man., has disposed of his business to D. McLennan.

M. J. Skinners, of Edmonton, has taken over the grocery business of J. E. McCarthy in that city.

The North End Store Co., who have been conducting a general store in Edmonton, have dissolved partnership.

THE SITUATION IN THE WEST.

The situation in the West is very largely the situation of wheat at this season of the year, and the past ten days have seen a good many disturbing elements enter the arena. The money panic in the United States has had a very direct bearing on movement of Western crop, and everyone concerned is praying devoutly that our American cousins will speedily get things in shape and allow the market to settle and conditions assume a more normal tone.

It was well understood that banks had decided on a more restricted line of credit for the whole of Canada, but it was not anticipated that there would be any stringency to affect the rapid movement of the Western crop. It seemed to all concerned the most rational thing to get as much of the crop out before navigation closed, as possible. Within the last ten days lines of credit have been much more closely restricted and leading grain men on the Winnipeg Exchange state frankly and freely that they cannot borrow money from the banks to carry wheat across the lakes from Ft. William, and that all wheat must be paid for on going into store at Ft. William.

Some vessels came in light to Fort William and had to leave for Duluth for cargo, because the men who chartered could not pay for the wheat and the banks would not release it until paid for. Men who have been in the export trade in the West for 20 years. state that for the first time when a cargo has been shipped to a reputable firm in Great Britain, the banks have refused to let them draw against that cargo. This condition is the more marked because the cases were drafts on such cargoes have been refused by Old Country houses, have been very rare.

During the famous Leiter corner, a Winnipeg house shipped a cargo to Liverpool, sold at $1.50 per bushel, and before it arrived the bubble had burst and wheat had dropped to 94c., yet the Liverpool house paid the draft on presentation without question. This season these very shippers have experienced difficulty in drawing against a cargo for even less than half the price at which it has been sold.

The banks are strenuously denying that they are restricting crop movement by these hampering regulations, but the market gives the very most emphatic contradiction to these denials, for on Saturday last, when the spread between cash and May wheat was fully 10c., you could not give cash wheat away on the Winnipeg Exchange, except in the most limited quantities, to representatives of Old Country or Canadian milling concerns, who were willing to take a little high grade stuff. The immediate effect of this policy is to restrict buying in the country.

Line elevators have only in a few instances actually refused wheat, but in self protection they have made the spread between street and track wheat so great that farmers will not sell unless absolutely forced to do so, instead, they order a car and endeavor to ship themselves, and the phenomenal number of cars ordered on this account by farmers is one of the very important factors in the grain blockade which is fairly acute at some points.

The small farmer, the man with less than 1,000 bushels, of which there are a large number this year, is simply "getting it in the neck," for he is obliged to take the low street price.

The weather has been so fine for the past six weeks that many people forget that we are within a week or so of the official closing of navigation, and that so far less than 15,000,000 bushels of the wheat crop has been marketed, against over 27,000,000 bushels at the same date last year.

The railway companies have made an excellent record for crop movement, for while last year, out of the 27,500,000 bushels marketed by Nov. 1st, only 11,475,750 bushels had passed inspection at Winnipeg this year of the less than 15,000 000 marketed, over 10,000,000 bushels has passed inspection at Winnipeg.

Now this stringency in money to move the Western crop, is largely the result of over cautiousness on the part of the banks, but if they carry it too far they defeat their own ends.

It is felt in the West that the trouble has largely arisen out of the fact that the headquarters of banks are in the East, and there conditions are not fully understood, and there is no manner of doubt that this present season and its methods will give an immense impetus to the establishment of purely Western banks, with headquarters at Winnipeg.

BE CAUTIOUS.

John A. Green, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States, says in the weekly Trade Press Bulletin, issued by the association :

"Many letters have come to this office asking for information in regard to the outlook for the future.

"While this is a question of more than ordinary importance, and needs more than a passing thought, yet coming in contact with the conditions in several parts of the country, would advise the utmost caution in buying in quantities more than necessary.

"While some parts of the country seem to be in a favorable condition with the outlook for the future exceptionally promising, yet the money market for some time has been in a very strained condition and the last few weeks will bear out the statement that buying beyond the average necessity would not be the best thing to do.

"Prices have reached the highest point for goods sold by grocers, and it would not be surprising if a decline along the line was to take place in the very near future.

"This may not happen, but it is well to use a little caution.

"Should a decline come it may come suddenly and be great."

This note of warning may with advantage be heeded by retail grocers throughout the Dominion.

THE DAIRY SITUATION.

Of late the feeling in the dairy markets has been firm, supplies being scarce and prices high. Butter has been short for weeks. Creamery, of the finest make, has been shipped regularly to western points, an unusual condition of affairs, as the reverse is generally the case. This year there has been a pronounced shortage in the make in Western Canada and the east, itself none too well supplied, has been called upon to produce the wherewithal for trade in the west. The east has been devoting practically no attention to the Old Country, though as a rule, considerable export business is transacted in the course of the season. So great has been the demand at home this year that dealers have paid little attention to English buyers, who in any case were hardly in a position to offer prices as good as were obtainable at home, whether the present extraordinarily stiff values will break or hold depends largely upon the continuance of present conditions. If things continue as they are now, it is not improbable there will be a strong market, though slightly lower prices may prevail for November make, which is never of the finest quality. There has been considerable talk of foreign butter being put upon the market (some having been offered already, but not of the best quality) and should first-class Australian butter be brought along in January, it is likely that prices in Canada will be reduced, provided always that the markets are not too high in England when purchases are made. But that is looking ahead pretty far.

Cheese, the season for which is now practically at an end, has been firm on the average, but during the past three weeks there has been a weaker feeling in the markets with a tendency to lower prices.

Eggs have been in short supply and present prices are likely to hold as demand is strong, with storage supplies not up to the usual quantity. Since a good winter trade is expected and the supply is short, low quotations are not looked for.

FINE WEATHER IN WEST.

Western Canada has been basking in the sunshine of one of the finest autumns on record, while other portions of the Dominion not so favored by Providence have been enduring snowstorms and disagreeable storms. The legend that Western Canada's climate is its drawback is fast being relegated to the lumber room with other dusty relics of an almost forgotten past. We are one nation now in reality as well as in name. Geographically, Winnipeg is the central city of Canada, and very soon it will be the centre of Canada's population. As Canadians become better acquainted with their own country, many misconceptions which have hindered progress will disappear.

THE ABOLITION OF CREDIT.

No more insistent problem confronts the retailer in Canada than the elimination of bad debts, and there is but one solution—the abolition of credit.

In the last generation the methods of business have entirely changed. Transportation systems have annihilated distances; catalogues have supplemented samples, and the facilities for doing every kind of business have increased enormously.

When we consider the conditions on the North American continent, the great momentum that exchange or trade has acquired is easily explained. Nearly one hundred million of the most energetic people on the earth are engaged for the most part in business, each animated with an intense desire to produce —a people to whom Carlyle's essay on work would be superfluous reading.

Holding the commanding positions in this vast army of workers are the huge consolidations or trusts with practically unlimited resources. These shade down to the small joint stock companies, which, as a rule, are one man companies, and at the end of the chain we have the final distributor, the retailer.

As a matter of simple reason it would be logical to suppose that the conditions of credit exacted so vigorously by the trusts would be carried through all ranks of the commercial world, but the reverse is the case, and we find that the last link of the chain is weakest, and the retailer smallest in resources is the one most lax in the respect to his credit.

Examine the bad or doubtful accounts of our large institutions which issue annual statements and note the comparatively insignificant proportions compared with business transacted. The writer has in mind a huge industrial concern whose bad debts amounted to one thousandth part of one per cent. two years ago. We venture to say that not one retailer in America, doing a credit business, could make such a showing.

During the early periods of the country, when trade was not highly organized, credit may have been necessary, but to-day it is more than unnecessary —it is suicidal.

If the retailer wishes to be a leader, and if he desires to serve the entire trade of his district, he must rigorously exact the cash payment, otherwise the mail order house, the larger centres, will absorb the best of his trade, and he earns, instead of a competency, a bare living, instead of an establishment, a precarious business.

MR. IRVING FOR THE SENATE.

T. C. Irving has been suggested for one of the vacant Ontario senatorships. The suggestion is a good one.

Mr. Irving possesses qualities which would make him a valuable addition to the Senate. As Canadian manager of Bradstreets he has acquired a comprehensive knowledge of commercial and financial affairs. He has traveled extensively and knows the Dominion as but few men know it. Twice a year he makes a trip to the Pacific Coast with a view to studying the trade and financial conditions. To his business experience is also added his wide knowledge ol political affairs, having for a generation taken a keen and active interest in politics. For many years he was a personal friend of the late Alexander Mackenzie and was during three election campaigns his financial agent. To these qualifications is added a fund of humor, an asset not to be despised in a public man.

The appointment of Mr. Irving to the Senate would be judicious, and among business men most popular.

GROCERS OPPOSE PARCEL POST.

The National Association of Retail Grocers have taken a strong stand against the proposed new parcels post law in the United States. The retail hardware and other trade associations have been putting up a strong fight against this proposal for years and the combined efforts of the retailers is an obstacle which the United States Postmaster-General will find it hard to overcome.

President Kramer, of the retail grocers, says: "The catalogue houses are so grasping that they are endeavoring to throttle every little corner grocer who is trying to make a living for his wife and children. It is the little merchant that builds up the town and pays his pro rata towards building churches, court houses, good roads, school houses and so forth. Not one dollar do these gigantic mail order houses contribute toward this, and it is now time for each and every merchant to put his shoulder to the wheel and throttle this gigantic scheme."

Secretary John A. Green also said: "We have opposed to us the Postmaster-General, who proposes under any consideration to recommend to Congress some plan whereby this bill may be put into operation. The merchants of Illinois, through their secretary, are doing effective work by circulars and signed petitions. The merchants of other states are also passing resolutions and sending them to the Postmaster-General and the President of the United States. The most effective way, however, to offset any other influence is to appeal direct to the Congressman who represents your district. It is he who has to vote and it is he on whom the promoters of the parcels post must depend for support."

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Dates—New crop arrived.
Walnuts—High prices to arrive N.Y.
Canned Goods—Tomatoes scarce.

Montreal, November 7, 1907.

There is a general feeling of firmness in the trade. Demand in most lines is strong, with high prices generally obtaining. Scaled herrings are in good demand and have advanced 3½c per box. Mushrooms are being offered in small quantities at fancy prices. The new crop of dates are now in. There has been an advance in 1-lb. packages. Tarragona almonds on the spot are very firm. New York reports that there is no falling off in demand for dried fruits for the holiday trade, in spite of the recent stringency in the money market. Rice and tapioca are firm, and supplies are scarce. Especially in rice the market is very unsettled, owing to the reports of a lamine in India. Coffees and spices are reported to be in light supply in the New York markets. There is very little business being done in evaporated apples. Butter, cheese, eggs and honey are all firm with small lots being offered. Maple products are scarce. There is a very active feeling in beans, with very few offerings. The prospects are that continued firm prices will obtain in tea.

Collections are reported slow by the majority and satisfactory by a few.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—The syrup and molasses prices remain unchanged. The jobbers are doing a brisk business. Most of the orders have been filled and the primary markets are about finished. Owing to the scarcity of fruit and the high price of butter, corn syrups are in strong demand.

TEAS—There is not a great amount of business being done in teas. The wholesalers are too busy with other lines of goods to pay much attention to teas this week. Prices are very firm and all indications point to a continuance of this condition. The supply is scarce, especially in low grade teas. Low grades of Ceylon have become firmer recently. So also have Indian teas. There is very little business being done in China Greens. Stocks are small, and low grades are very scarce.

DRIED FRUITS—The first of the new crop of dates arrived the beginning of the week and are being offered to the trade at from 5½c. to 6c. There is quite a brisk demand for figs. Currants are easier, but the decline has come too late to affect the holiday market here. The second direct Mediterranean steamer, Jacona, is due here, She is laden with new malaga and valencia raisins, and the first of the new crop of Tarragona almonds. This cargo should supply the market fully in these lines. The first of the new crop walnuts is expected to arrive in New York about the 15th inst. The prices are so high that many of the dealers are afraid to buy, quotations being fully 4c over last year's prices. This condition is making a better demand for spot goods. The new crop of Grenoble walnuts are expected to open at 15c. The importers are experiencing great delay and difficulty in getting their goods after they are landed at the docks, owing to the shortage of teams for cartage work.

SPICES—Spices are firm. There is a brisk demand and the supply is not heavy. New York reports say that spot stocks are light, everything on the wharves and on this month's steamers being sold. It is also reported that shipments of peppers this year have been short, in all grades, of previous years. Tillicherry and Lamping peppers are 6,000 tons short. Demand for peppers is steady and stocks fairly good. Nutmegs are in better demand at steady prices. The clove market is moderately firm.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The tapioca market has recovered somewhat from the recent decline, and eastern sellers have almost entirely withdrawn, showing that the article will likely be held again for higher prices. There seems to be a scarcity and anything near at hand should find ready sale. Practically all the lots which are still on the way here are already sold, leaving very little available on the local market. The cause of this shortage is to be found in the recent decline, which frightened buyers from purchasing ahead, lest the market should go down still farther; consequently many of them have been caught shorthanded. Some of the importers are advising the dealers not to give way in their prices as there is almost certain to be a general tightness all along the line for some time to come.

The rice market is very unsettled, owing to the uncertainty regarding the extent of the reported famine in India. The crops in Burma and Japan, which are the sources of Canada's supply, are reported to be fully up to, or above, the average in quantity, and the quality is expected to be exceptionally good. Should the famine in India prove not to be widespread, normal prices will likely be maintained. The demand has been a little better this week, due to the nearness of the close of navigation.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The market continues quiet. There is some inquiry but stocks are practically cleared out. There is very little pure maple syrup on the market, and what there is is bringing slightly higher prices. Beauce sugar is more in demand than the other grades because it is stronger and consequently goes farther for confectionery purposes.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—The packers continue their deliveries to jobbers. Some lines are of excellent quality, while others are not up to last season's standard. The market is very bare on tomatoes, one buyer reporting the greatest difficulty in securing 2,000 cases from the canners. The pack is generally admitted to be about 65 to 70 per cent. on this line.

TORONTO—The canners are still making deliveries, and, no doubt, doing the best they can. But many houses complain of delay and say they cannot get supplies with which to fill even a reasonable percentage of their orders. This is especially so with tomatoes. The delay, however, is only temporary, and canners say they are making distribution as fast as they can. Prices are firm and steady on all lines.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Mediterranean fruits arriving:
Sugar—Steady.
Beans—High and scarce.
Rice—Strong market.
Collections—Fair to satisfactory.

Toronto, November 8th, 1907.

Interest in the wholesale grocery markets this week centres chiefly in goods to arrive, spot supplies being temporarily neglected. Currants, raisins, almonds and other Mediterranean fruit is being distributed from the cargo of the Belona, which arrived in Montreal some ten days ago, and a further heavy consignment of these lines is due on the Jaconia, Montreal's second direct steamer, which is expected to reach the metropolis in a day or two.

Rice at present constitutes one of the strongest features of the foodstuffs situation. The rice crop has been heavy in China and Japan, but short in India, where it is now most needed to relieve famine. All indications point to a very strong market for many weeks to come.

The California fig packing season is virtually at an end, according to advices from Fresno. While before the setting in of the rather cool weather this season, the fig pack was expected to average in the neighborhood of 3,500 tons, it is now thought that it will not go above the 3 000-ton mark. This will make it an average pack in size, while it is rather better than the ordinary in quality.

Wholesalers at this centre are almost unanimous in declaring business more active for the month past than for a similar period last year. And there are equally favorable reports on the comparison between the volume of business transacted last month and the amount done in September. Collections are well up to the average, better, probably, from country than from city points. Taking everything into consideration, wholesale grocers seem to have been affected by the money stringency less than men engaged in almost any other business.

TEAS—A representative of a prominent London tea house, who has been visiting the trade here, and is well informed on prevailing conditions, both here and abroad, says that there will be no cheaper teas till next June, if then. The outlook is for stiff prices and short supplies. Stocks held on this market are very small.

Gow, Wilson & Stanton, of London, Eng., report on the situation as follows:

"With little probability of excessive supplies from India or Ceylon, during the present season, and home consumption showing an increase, there seems no occasion to risk overweighting the market, but rather to bring forward offerings in moderate quantities.

"Medium teas are still very cheap when compared with other grades, the average for the whole of Assam from the commencement of the season being lower than has been the case since 1904, while that from Cachar and Sylhet is much higher than it has been for many years.

"The Indian Tea Association and the Ceylon Association in London have forwarded a petition to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, praying for the removal of the differential duty imposed against Indian and Ceylon tea entering Russia."

In the report of Mr. Blecynden, the Commissioner for Indian tea in North America, there are some interesting figures, giving the imports of the different growths of tea into the United States and Canada. China and Japan have recently been declining, while India and Ceylon have about maintained their ground, the total of the two former being 74 million lbs. in 1907, against 93 millions in 1905, and the two latter 37½ millions in 1907, against 35½ in 1905.

Import of tea (in lbs.) into the United States and Canada during the last three years ending 30th June:

Further mail advices from London, under date of Oct. 24, say.

"The tone of the market has again been active, although as anticipated the quantity of Indian tea on offer proved rather too heavy to be easily absorbed, with the result that slacker bidding for some of the better grades was experienced. On the other hand, the rise in Ceylon growths continues unchecked, and the average price is now 8¾d. per lb.—fully ½d. above last year. The latest cables from Calcutta report a distinct setback in October manufacture compared with the record outturns during the same period in 1906 and the total amount available for the United Kingdom cannot well exceed last year's figures, if indeed it prove sufficient for trade requirements. This being the case, the position of importers is very strong, and must continue so thoroughout the season.

"It is a somewhat remarkable fact that, in spite of the high market prevailing so long for common tea, the exports from China to this country should show so small an increase as barely ¾ million lbs. Whether shipments will be stimulated in the event of the present strong tendency of common tea being further accentuated, it is, of course, impossible to say, but it has now become apparent that the public at large will not take to China tea unless forced to do so—in spite of the statements regarding increased consumption which lately have been widely circulated. Deliveries for the nine months ending 30th September, certainly showed a small improvement, but when it is remembered that even then the consumption of China was only 3¼ per cent. of the total, the increase is infinitesimal."

COFFEE—Milds on the New York market are ¼c to ½c cheaper than they have been for some time, owing to the heavy liquidation of stocks. The option market went off 40 points during the week, but has since recovered partially and is apparently gaining strength. Willett & Gray say of the situation:

"For the time being the most interesting question in coffee circles is the size of the current Rio and Santos crop. By those opposed to the market it is reported to be large, notwithstanding that large figures are not justified by the receipts so far. In former years of normal crops the receipts of the first four months have given a fair indication of the total outturn, as shown by the following example:

1903-1904—61 per cent. by Nov. 1.
1904-1905—60 per cent. by Nov. 1.
1905-1906—57 per cent. by Nov. 1.

and these crops averaged a trifle over ten million bags. On the scale of 60 per cent., the receipts for the first four months of the present season indicate a total not over nine million bags in Rio and Santos. It is fair comparison on the receipts of previous years.

"Moreover, actual results from some important plantations carry conviction of the small yield of this crop:,

	Harvested. 1906.	Harvested. 1907.
Companhia Agricola de Ribeirao Preto....	280,000	80,000 arrobas
Jose Nogueira, Tera, Ribeirao Preto.....	32,000	4,000 arrobos
Jose Nogueira, Ribeirao Preto	42,000	7,000 arrobas
M. Francisco S. Val, Ribeirao Preto	140,000	50,000 arrobas

(arroba, 15 kilos—4 arrobas to the bag)

"And the big Schmidt estates, which last year gave 201,000 bags, yielded less than one-fourth of it this year. Altogether there is sufficient evidence by actual comparison that the coffee markets must reckon with a quite small crop from Brazil this year. The advance in the railroad freight rates takes effect November 1st, but as coffee delivered into the stations up-country before that date receives the benefit of the old rates, it may be a matter of a couple of weeks before the movement conforms to the small balance left of the crop.

"From a Government representative, who has traveled through Central America recently, it is learned that the coffee crops in Costa Rica, Nicarague and Salvador are scarcely one-half of what they were last year. From other sources it is reported that the result in Gautemala is not much better, so it seems very certain the mild crops will be quite meagre."

The local grocery markets are not yet affected in any way by these unfavorable conditions, there being practically no speculative buying, dealers contenting themselves with doing a purely hand-to-mouth business.

SUGAR—The European beet market has advanced a couple of farthings, which has no effect locally, but to lend strength generally to the situation in refined. The market here is steady, quiet and unchanged from last week. There has been little or no Christmas selling as yet. A New York report on the refined situation says :

"The financial situation affects, to some extent, the consumption of refined sugar, and to a more or less extent the manufacture and sale of the domestic cane and beet sugars, the influence being shown in a departure from the announced policy of selling the latter at only 10 cents per 100 lbs. reduction from cane granulated. The difference has been increased to 20 cents per 100 lbs. (to basis of 4.60c less 1 per cent. at New York), evidently to relieve the beet sugar factories from the monetary pressure of carrying over a large part of their product as in other years. This difference, however, is liable to be reduced to 10c on improvement in financial conditions."

Willett & Gray say of raws:

"Other matters have taken the place of interest in the sugar market during the week under review, and the only reported business is a lot of centrifugals from store at the current quotation of 3.90c per lb. for 96 degrees test basis, showing no change in quotations for the week. European markets have been equally dull and comparatively steady between small fluctuations from 9s 4½d to 9s 3d for beet sugar, closing at 9s 3d for prompt delivery, with futures at 9s 5½d for January-March and 9s 7¾s for May.

"The European beet crop has been further helped by continued favorable weather. The Cuba crop also has been benefitted by rains where wanted.

"Small remaining stocks available from last crops of cane sugars steady the market, and avoid declines which might naturally result from the panic extending from Wall Street over the entire country, a panic, which, in our opinion, is unwarranted by the material conditions of the country and will soon be over, although its disastrous results may be felt for a long time."

Receipts for the week were 34,586 tons, with meltings, 41,000 tons. Stocks in the United States and Cuba together were 250,783 tons.

DRIED FRUITS—A cable received November 2nd said that the currant market in Greece was active and slightly easier. The probabilities are for steady prices, at least for some time, but if a change does occur, it is more likely to be an advance than a decline. Valencia raisins are steady and unchanged on the original market, with Sultanas from 4s to 5s above the lowest point touched this season.

A report from Denia, dated the second week in October, says of Denia raisins: "Although business looks rather bright, our merchants are just now operating with great caution, owing to the season being already advanced. Transactions, therefore, have somewhat subsided; prices, notwithstanding, remain firm and unchanged for the present."

John B. Jackson, American Minister at Athens, reports that the statistics of the annual Greek currant "campaign" which ends on Aug. 9, old style, each year, have just been officially published, showing the following results: "The total amount of currants exported during the 1906 campaign, as in the preceding year, showed a slight decrease, this amount being 229,212,784 Venetian pounds, as against more than 238,000,000 pounds for 1905. As usual, more than half of the crop was exported to England, the United States retaining second place on the export list, with almost 34,000,000 pounds, or a little less than last year. No currants were shipped to Roumania during the period in question. Brazil took about half the quantity which she had taken the year before, being still the only South American country mentioned. No additional shipments followed the small amount sent to China on account of 1905, and Japan appears as a purchaser to the amount of more than 10,000 pounds. Australia seems to take about 8,000,000 pounds annually."

"Reports from the interior of Oman indicate," says Consul William Coffin of Muscat, "that there is a plentiful crop of Fard dates of excellent quality for the season of 1907." He adds: "The unusually cold summer has, however, greatly retarded the crop, so much so that the cutting began nearly a month later than usual, and Fard dates did not reach Muscat until about September 1. This will to a certain extent affect the American shipments, and while a small quantity of Fards will reach the United States at about the usual time, the bulk of the shipments will be late. It is possible that the cool summer may unfavorably affect next year's crop both as to quantity and quality. A decided shortage is reported in the date crop of the Basra district, owing to the heavy floods there last spring."

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The rice market is exceedingly strong, and stiffer prices are looked for shortly. This applies chiefly to Japans and Patnas, which appear to be the grades most affected, the cheaper rices remaining untouched and quiet. The severe famine in India will force heavy supplies to that country, and under the circumstances it is hardly likely that prices will remain stationary very long.

BEANS — Good quality beans are scarce, and difficult to get at any price, but impossible under about $2. Some houses are not quoting anything lower than $2.25 for the best stock.

Beans have been held rather high to move freely and prices have been shaded slightly, which has secured a better demand. There is some talk of foreign beans being cheaper, which, if true, would considerably curtail Canadian export trade in this line.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Manufacturers have been holding stocks for unreasonably high prices, but realizing the uselessness of continuing this policy, are beginning to shave prices a little. The new crop seems to be a fair pack. Several cars have been sold at less than 9 cents.

Newton A. Hill, Northwestern representative of Chaput, Fils, Montreal, has just returned from an extended trip to British Columbia and the West. He reports business as pretty generally satisfactory, though a conservative feeling, the result of money stringency is rather prevalent.

Coming to You ?

Would you like to see inquiries about business coming at you like this? Of course!

We can accomplish it for you!

How?

By carrying your message to almost every Grocery and Provision man in Canada—not only in Ontario, mind, nor only in the East, but all over this glorious land—into every town from Halifax to Victoria, and from Winnipeg to Dawson City. And farther than this, we'll take it over the line to the United States, over to Old England, down to the blooming West Indies and further south to Mexico, and even round the world to Australia and South Africa.

You've got the goods. We can put you in touch with the people who are interested in them.

Here's an extract from a letter we got the other day, which shows what we've done for one firm:

> "..... For your information we would tell you that the advertisement referred to has brought us direct results from every province in the Dominion, which speaks volumes for the wide distribution of ihe Canadian Grocer, to say nothing of the effectiveness of its medium....."

We believe we could do the same for you if you'd let us. Why not?

Condensed Advertisements in The Canadian Grocer will cost you only 1 cent per word each week. If you keep the message going for a year the expense will be considerably less. Send the money along to our nearest office and we'll start things going for you next week.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Nov. 7, 1907.)

Few price changes will be noted this week, a temporary halt, at least, having been called in the general upward trend of grocery prices. Business is in a more healthy condition than for some time past, there being a considerable improvement in country collections and a more active demand for staple and fancy lines. Retail business in the country is getting down to a cash basis, the dealers, as a rule, having made a virtue of necessity. The result has been beneficial to all classes of trade.

Canned Goods—The demand for canned goods is none too active, as high prices have diverted consumption to other lines. Except for advances in Clark's meats, there are no changes.

CORRESPONDENCE

LONDON.

Brokers report business fair all round, with little change in prices. Fruits are coming in very slowly, with demand good. No Malaga goods have yet reached here, but they are expected this week. Nuts, with the exception of walnuts, are in good supply. The last named are not looked for before the middle of December, too late for the Christmas trade. Teas are still very firm in price and fine coffees are advancing.

The price of milk has been advanced to seven cents per quart—the highest price on record in this city. A number of dairymen have gone out of the business during the past few months, finding no profit in it, with the high price of fodder, and the increase of 3,000 in population the past year finds the city with a diminished milk supply. Even if milk is shipped from outside places, as has been proposed, there is no likelihood of a drop in price, as it will cost from a cent to a cent and a half a quart to bring it here. Many dealers are wondering how they will manage to supply their customers.

The authorities at the city hall are in constant receipt of complaints regarding short-weight butter on the market, and are being asked to take steps to punish offenders, of which there are said to be many. The matter is to be brought up at the city council.

The annual report of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association which is in course of preparation, will show a very prosperous year. It is expected the membership will show a total of 2,500, or 100 more than in 1906. The growth is regarded as remarkable, and as a pretty fair index of the splendid commercial development which western Ontario, and this city in particular, has been experiencing.

Fire broke out in the grocery store of W. E. Vanderveer, corner Talbot and Bathurst streets, Sunday night, and did damage to the amount of about $500.

The annual meeting of the Middlesex Beekeepers' Association was held in the city hall on Saturday last, when several interesting papers were read and discussed:

A. Laing, of St. Thomas, gave a fine paper on "The Benefits Accruing to Beekeepers by Following Advice and Suggestions of the Honey Exchange Commission of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association." A most beneficial, practical discussion was created by Mr. Elliot's address on "Queen Rearing." A paper from W. J. Craig, of Brantford, dealing with the advantages of keeping in touch with the honey exchange commission of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association was read by the secretary. The officers for the past year were unanimously re-elected, as follows: President, F. H. Miller, Ayling; vice-president, George Kimball, Reeve, London township; auditors, Wm. Hill, St. Thomas, and E. M. Husband, Delaware; secretary-treasurer, E. T. Bainard, Lambeth. The association report increased interest in the work of the local association, and a large number of new members.

You can always tell the grocer who does not read The Canadian Grocer. He is a man who, outside of his own business, knows little or nothing, and seems to care less about what is going on in the trade generally. He is out of date and so long as he will not read, will remain so. The man with his heart and soul in the business is ever anxious to learn, and consequently is always learning. It is significant that the most prosperous grocers in London are subscribers to and constant readers and students of The Grocer. "Why," said one to your correspondent, "without The Grocer I would be lost. The market tables alone are worth more than the paper costs, and the vast amount of general information I find most invaluable. No sir, I couldn't get along without The Grocer."

At the marriage last week of the only daughter of James Jupp, grocer, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, there were present representatives of three generations, each of the bride's and bridegroom's families.

SHERBROOKE.

With the harvesting season over and winter close at hand, the crop situation can be more easily definitely determined. A chat with farmers recently seemed to bring out the fact that the position of the farmer this fall is somewhat more comfortable than that of the city consumer. Some farmers in certain localities have had excellent success this year, while perhaps only a short distance from them others have had wretched luck with their crops, but all are getting high prices for what they have to offer.

The supply of hay in barns of this district at the present time appears to be well up to that of the average year. Early in the season the hay crop prospects were not bright. Matters improved, however, and the crop harvested is larger than last year. Some hay was, however, damaged by the great fall of rain or because of standing until over-ripe. Hay prices, however, are away up. The prevailing price is now about $14 per ton in this city and vicinity. Prices on farms beyond the reach of the city market are from $10 to $12 per ton, but there is reason to believe that this will go much higher and some are looking for $20 for hay by spring. In the country as a whole, the hay crop was small and shippers are already buying wherever possible to meet the growing demand.

The potato crop is bad and rotten, and will realize very small profits for the farmers. Those farmers who grow potatoes in sandy fields have been more fortunate this year than the majority. These crops seem to have fared quite well. Although they were rained upon just as hard as the others the farmers had only to dig them and spread them on a dry floor and they were good and sound. The prices are now ranging from 55 to 75 cents, with strong prospects of a much higher price being attained and perhaps a little shortage experienced.

Grain is not, on the whole, quite up to the average, but everything considered, the farmers feel fairly well satisfied. Like the hay, the grain has not proved equally as good in all localities. The crop is probably about two-thirds of the average. The pea crop (soup) is reported to be just about one-third of the average crop. The farmers about this vicinity seem to be inclined to hold on to their grain and watch the market. Some feel certain that higher prices will be procured later on.

* * *

The apple crop has been put down as an almost complete failure. The heavy frosts of last winter are blamed for this loss to the growers. The smaller limbs and branches of the trees were frozen and killed by the severe weather. The smallness of the crop is being felt on the Sherbrooke market. The quality of those being offered for sale is also far from good. Even with the bad luck they have had with their crops this year the farmers hope to make up some of their loss by higher prices of their produce, and certainly the tendency is in this direction.

MONTREAL CUSTOMS HOUSE ABLAZE.

On October 31, a dangerous fire broke out in the top storey of the Montreal Customs House, in what is known as the oil room. Prompt action on the part of the city fire brigade succeeded in extinguishing what would otherwise have been a most disastrous fire. As it was, the damage to the building will be about $10,000, and in addition, the injury to goods stored in the building, which were injured more by water than by fire, will amount to the neighborhood of $40,000, making a total loss of about $50,000.

D. F. Carter, who has been with W. H. Dunn & Co., has recently been appointed representative for Montreal and the Province of Quebec for Thomas J. Lipton.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Still another decline has occurred in cheese, and dealers are quoting prices to-day which are the lowest which have been seen for weeks. Receipts have been small the past couple of weeks, while export figures have not been as large as usual. There is more or less export trade being done, however, dealers being anxious to ship all orders they possibly can by the direct boats before the close of navigation. The port of Montreal will close about the last week of the month. Some of the boats have already made their last trip of the season.

English buyers are not greatly tempted by the declining prices, and seem to be playing a waiting game to a certain extent. What they are calling for at present is cheap cheese, but local sellers cannot do anything better than the ruling prices, much as they would like to make sales.

The range offered runs from 12c to 12⅜c, according to quality. Quebecs bring 12c to 12¼c; Townships cheese is selling from 12⅜c to 12½c; Ontarios are in the neighborhood of 12⅜c to 12¾c. Fine western brings from 12¾c to 12⅞c.

With the advent of November the make is becoming smaller, owing to the closing of many factories. By the beginning of next week most of the larger factories will be closed, and it is probable that prices will be affected, supplies being none too heavy. It would not be surprising to see higher figures within the next couple of weeks.

Receipts of cheese last week amounted to 41.764 boxes, against 51,610 boxes last week, and 69,248 boxes same week a year ago. Total receipts for the season, to date, amount to 1,932,771 boxes, against 2,170,468 boxes during the same period in 1906.

Last week 47,471 boxes of cheese were exported, which is a smaller amount than was exported the previous week, 53,422 boxes, and considerably below the shipments for the same week in 1906, which totalled 71,058 boxes From Montreal, total shipments since May 1 amount to 1,827,317 boxes, against 2,050,279 boxes same period last year.

Butter has been quiet of late, but some dealers are inclined to the belief that the present dullness is but temporary, tradesmen having bought freely, and being at the moment pretty well stocked. Prices run about the same as a week ago, 28c being the average price for boxes, with 28½c to 29c the ruling figures for tubs. Sometimes as much as 30c is asked for finest creamery. Dairy butter is stiff at 25c, and now and then 26c is asked for the very finest.

The quality of the butter now arriving is not up to the usual standard, being rather foddery. Stocks which have been in store since early in the season, or received up to the middle of last month, are first-class as regards quality, but cheese arriving the last two weeks in October, and the beginning of November showed a falling off which is quite noticeable.

Foreign butter, Irish factory, continues to arrive, but not in alarming quantities. This butter does not relieve the situation very much, being but equal to our dairy, it sells at prices about the same as we ask for that grade. At the time of writing it costs about 24c to 24½c to bring into Canada.

As for dairy butter, there is very little on spot. The west, while taking large lots of our creamery butter, is not reciprocating by sending along some of the dairy being made there. One can scarcely blame them, considering conditions. A gentleman from a little place just west of Toronto, a large butter dealer, speaking in Montreal this week, reported sales of dairy at 27c. It is hardly likely that holders would be tempted by 25½c or 26c in Montreal for this product.

Stocks are light according to holders of creamery, some estimating them nearly 50 per cent. below last year.

Receipts of butter last week were 4,685 packages, against 7,006 packages previous week, and 8,049 packages a year ago. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 364,778 packages, against 560,660 packages same period in 1906.

Exports last week amounted to but 5 packages.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The decline forecasted in our last review is well under way, but is not yet sufficiently advanced to do more than throw the packers into a state of nervousness and anxiety with regard to the future trend of conditions. The Old Country market is off about 3s., but this is looked upon by packers here as only the beginning of what is expected to be a heavy drop. Danish "killings" passed the 40,000 mark last week, deliveries totalling 42,000, with 38,000 announced for this week. American shipments have been considerably below normal, last week's figures being 11,000. In view of the unsettled state of the market, Canadian packers are buying hogs sparingly, and have declined the price, 35c to $5.75, f.o.b., country points, $6 to $6.05 fed and watered, and $6.25 off cars at the factory.

Besides the drop in Canadian bacon, the English market declined sharply on Danish, quotations at the time of writing being 1s. 6d. lower for that country's product than the average price for Canadian ruling last week. Packers here would give a good deal to know what bacon manufactured to-day will be worth when it gets to the Old Country market, five weeks' hence. Said a prominent packer to the writer recently: "If the bacon being made from Canadian hogs to-day could be sold in England at prices on a par with those ruling last week, we should net a nice profit, but for all we know to the contrary, the market may be off another 6s. by that time."

The severe money stringency has forced packers on the Chicago market to liquidate, and provisions have ruled lower under heavy sales. The Journal of Commerce, in their weekly review of the situation, say:

The past week has witnessed considerable liquidation and more activity in hog products, both in cash and futures, owing to the increasing stringency in the money market in the West. There have been rumors the latter part of the week that one of the big packers was unable to get currency to conduct his business, as his collections throughout the country have been very slow since the panic began. As a result, there have been heavy sales of cash lard to exporters during the week, and they have tied up the buyers as to the price, as well as to the amount, so it has been impossible to get the full amount taken, although 10,000 tierces were taken on Friday alone, said to have been sold by one packer. Otherwise the pressure has been confined to the futures, as there has been no export demand for meats in volume on which forced sales could have been made of any amount. At the same time receipts of hogs have continued light, in fact have been lighter because of the financial trouble and the refusal of farmers to sell their hogs except for cash.

On the other hand, the quality is still running quite inferior to the average before the last three weeks, during which the quality has been deteriorating, indicating also that the farmers are holding back their hogs to feed with their new crop of corn, the old having been exhausted in many sections. The home trade has done nothing but a jobbing business, as no one has been willing to buy anything he was not compelled to for immediate wants with money so close. Hence there has been no pressure on meats, and hams have been dull and weak, but bellies held up by light supply."

BUTTER—Butter remains firm, although the market has become a little easier than last week. The cause of this is that high prices are causing a falling off in demand. Dairy butter is scarce. Some fresh rolls are being offered and demand for these is good.

PROVISIONS—The market all round is rather dull this week. Business was brisk for a few days last week, probably a reflection of the general holiday rush, but matters have eased off considerably. Supplies of all kinds of pork products are full, but demand is not at all active. Fresh meats also are featureless. Hogs in street lots dropped slightly at the end of the week but are up at the former prices this week.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Oat Products Stiffening Under Unfavorable Reports From the West—Money Stringency Affecting Wheat Crop Movement—Inspections at Winnipeg.

Consequent upon reports of a large proportion of Western oats having been severely frosted and a possible famine of the raw material, oat products are, at the time of writing, so say the millers, on the verge of a further advance, variously estimated at from 10 to 25 cents. "This rise will occur," said one dealer, "within the next week." Most of the larger mills are now buying or have already secured at present prices, sufficient supplies to preclude any possibility of their being caught short of stocks at the anticipated advance, but many of the small dealers will suffer through lack of ready capital and may be forced temporarily to suspend operations. There is considerable export business passing, both in wheat and oat products, the latter especially, which are, however, in such heavy demand at home that foreign buyers are unable to obtain the slightest concessions on prices quoted.

In the West keen anxiety is being felt regarding the generally unsatisfactory condition of the grain market. The wheat markets are stagnant for lack of funds, the wheat is at a standstill and bankers declare themselves unable to extend the necessary credit. The Ogilvie Flour Mills and The Lake of the Woods Milling Companies are buying no grades of wheat below No. 3, and another large company, The Western Canada Flour Mills to wit, has ceased entirely for the present, to buy wheat of any grade.

"It is a situation," says a well-posted Westerner, "well calculated to arouse anxiety in all departments of commercial life. Banks may argue as they like, but the fact about which there is no question is that the exigencies of the financial situation have compelled the revision of a system by which the former grain crops have been marketed and have brought about conditions which make it difficult for the grain-buying companies to buy grain for speculative purposes unless they have themselves sufficient financial resources to fortify the enterprise."

Leading bankers in Toronto discredit the statement that the Western banks have shut down on credit absolutely, and state further that as far as their information extends, no single instance has been brought to their notice of any farmer being refused cash for his grain when he wished to market it.

Inspections of grain at Winnipeg on Saturday of last week were 351 cars, a gain of 62 cars over the same day last year. The quality of the grain inspected has been below last year's standard, but over 77 per cent. of the wheat received this season has graded No. 4 Northern or better.

TRADE NEWS AND MARKETS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Thanksgiving Poultry Market Overstocked—Advances in Several Lines—Large Potato Shipments—Something About the Foxberry Industry.

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 4, 1907.

The wholesale grocery markets are very steady just at present, and there is not much change in the price list. The trade passing is only fair for this season of the year. Considering the high price of all food products, business is quite satisfactory.

The Woodside Sugar Refinery at Dartmouth has been closed down for some days on account of shortage of coal, but it will start again this week. Quotations on sugar here are as follows: Extra standard, $4.50; Austrian Granulated, $4.10; No. 1 Yellow, $4; No. 2 Yellow, $4.10; No. 3 Yellow, $4.20.

Rolled oats are quoted at $7 per barrel, and Canadian onions from $1.35 to $1.45 per bag. Evaporated apples are worth 10½c. in large lots, and lard in pails, at 13½c. Canned coffee and milk have been advanced about 50 cents per case, and American beef is selling at $16.50 per barrel.

The market was overstocked with poultry this Thanksgiving. The demand was very light and prices high. As a result, some of the dealers were hard hit. Three weeks ago some jobbers went into the country and bought up all the poultry in sight. This gave the farmers the impression that there was a scarcity of stock, and they put the price up. The jobbers were obliged to pay from 18 to 20 cents per pound for turkeys, and some af them could not dispose of all their purchases at these prices. Turkeys were retailing at 24 cents two days before Thanksgiving, but on Wednesday morning they dropped to 22 cents, and in the evening some of the jobbers were offering them at cost—20 cents— to clear up their holdings. Others placed their turkeys in cold storage and will hold them for the Christmas trade.

The Elder-Dempster line steamer Sokoto, which sailed for Mexican ports last week, took among other cargo, 1,600 barrels of Nova Scotia potatoes.

The West India line steamer Dahome, which arrived here last week, landed at this port 19,000 bags of sugar from the West Indies.

Heavy apple shipments continue from this port. One of the Furness line steamers sailing last week took over 20,000 barrels. Apple pickers are in great demand in the valley and high wages are being paid.

J. Burton Chute, the well known flour merchant, of Berwick, N.S., passed away last week at the age of 63 years. He was engaged in business many years and was a prominent figure in his town.

The foxberry industry in Nova Scotia is booming at the present time. The crop this year is unusually large and the export of berries is very heavy. In the county of Guysboro about four thousand barrels have been picked, and the most of them have been sent to the Western States, principally to Illinois. Large quantitites of these berries are used by the Scandinavians resident in Chicago. This berry industry is a valuable asset to the County of Guysboro, as they sell from $5.50 to $5.75 per barrel, and upwards of $22,000 has been distributed in cash this season. The profits made by some of the shippers have been very small, as they quoted the berries at a figure slightly above what they had to pay for them.

Short Sketches of Successful Salesmen

Twenty-two years of life on the road, with just as much enthusiasm as at the beginning, is a pretty good record for a commercial man. This is the boast, not boast either, for he doesn't do much of that sort of thing, of B. R. James Norris, who is now a member of the selling staff of the Welcome Soap Company, of St. John, N.B.

Mr. Norris began traveling with the firm of J. W. Tester & Co., of Montreal, manufacturers of high-class confectionery. Handling the sweet things of life seems to agree with him, for when he decided to make a change, which, by the way, was not till ten years later, he joined the staff of the Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Company, with which firm he was allied until their plant was destroyed by fire. At this time Mr. Norris became affiliated with T. H. Estabrooks and for five years devoted himself to the selling of Red Rose Tea in the district from Toronto to

B. R. JAMES NORRIS,
Of the Welcome Soap Co.

Kingston. In his new position, selling Naptho Soap, Mr. Norris covers this same territory and in addition the Niagara district.

Some years ago, to be more in the centre of business, Mr. Norris moved his family from the old home at Kingston to Toronto, where he now resides at 209 Concord Avenue.

Perhaps Mr. Norris' most outstanding qualification, one that the traveler particularly needs, is his ability to make friends. Being of a genial, though not at all of a light disposition, he leaves a pleasing impression everywhere and thus has a remarkably good connection. One of the factors, he says, that has helped to accomplish this result is the fact that he has always looked closely into the quality of the goods and the reputation of the firm he has been connected with, so that he could assure his customers the very best goods on the market. No one seems to know just how old Mr. Norris is, but one of his former employers, when asked the question, replied jovially, "He looks remarkably young for a man over fifty." In any event, he looks well able to continue his life on the road for as long as he has a mind to.

T. J. DAVIS, WINNIPEG.

An Erstwhile Traveler Who is Now a Grocer.

Some commercial travelers find it hard to settle down to the humdrum existence of retailing goods over the counter. Others tire of the wearing life of the drummer, with its many discomforts and hard knocks, and are only too glad to establish a business of their own and stay with it. The latter are among the best retailers in the country, for they have the dogged persistence which is necessary to success, and they have a wide knowledge of the methods which have spelt success for the best grocers in the territory in which they have traveled.

T. J. Davis, whose portrait is shown herewith, is a commercial traveler who has made a good success of his retail business. Three years ago he was a traveler for the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, and previous to his connection with this firm he was for eight and a half years traveling from Calgary for the Hudson's Bay Co. He made a success of the work on the road but he wanted a business of his own, and three years ago he started a grocery at the corner of Notre Dame Ave. and Spence St., Winnipeg.

From the first, Mr. Davis has made good at his business. Experience on the road had shown him the evils of the credit system, and he has insisted strongly upon cash or monthly payments. Mr. Davis is a thorough believer in the maxim that "Goods well displayed are half sold," and he has proved its truth to his own satisfaction.

Not so many weeks ago, The Grocer published a photograph of one of Mr. Davis' window displays and it only needs a glance at this to show that its originator is possessed of artistic ideas as well as sound business ability.

MR. HEBERT RETURNED.

Albert Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal, has just returned from a six months' holiday trip to Europe. Mr. Hebert is in fine health and spirits and is prepared, he says, to work as he never did before.

Asked if he had something interesting to tell the grocery trade about his trip, Mr. Hebert replied:

"Not a thing. I have been away for six months, on pleasure bent during the whole of that period. I left here May 2, sailing for Liverpool. I visited among other countries, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and France, but in none of these places did I make a study of conditions as they would interest a business man. I was away for pleasure, and did not make one business call, or even think of affairs all the time I was away. But I certainly had a fine time."

TRADE NOTES.

There are 12,000 retail grocery stores in greater New York and its suburbs.

The assets of L. Legare & Frere, general storekeepers, of Roxton Falls, P.Q., are advertised for sale.

John E. Graham, who has been conducting a general store at Lavoy, Sask., has assigned to J. B. Walker.

R. M. Common, who has been conducting a general store at Newry, Ont., has sold the business to J. Maybury.

T. J. DAVIS, WINNIPEG.

Roasters and wholesale jobbers are finding Marcaibo coffees exceedingly difficult to obtain, both on the local and New York markets.

Hudon & Orsali, Montreal, have been appointed sub-agents for the Province of Quebec for the Richards Pure Soap Co., Woodstock, Ont., makers of Quick-Naptha, and other brands of soap.

The Laing Packing and Provision Co. have just issued a new hanger, advertising pork, meats and lard, to be distributed among the retailers. It is printed in black letters on a red ground with a border in white.

Eugene Moore, representing Hills Bros., of New York, reports the arrival of the first new Halloway dates. The shipment arrived in New York on Wednesday, 30th ult., by steamer Tabrastan, and was in Toronto the following Monday.

A REMARKABLE ADVERTISEMENT

A Candy Factory For Sale at Half-price—St. John May Lose Company Through Disagreement As To Rights.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

FOR SALE.

To any Persons, Firms or Corporations finding it ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY to locate in St. John, N.B., we offer our FOUR-STOREY and BASEMENT brick factory building 40x100 feet, 240 and 242 Union Street, at less than half what a similar building could be built for at present.

Our reasons for offering to sell are: that Manufacturers are heavily taxed on their Real Estate, Machinery and Stock. Labor, both skilled and unskilled, is scarce, Fuel is high, cost of living very high, and the COMMON COUNCIL will without notice sacrifice existing rights, and will not hesitate to handicap your facilities for doing business, and will refuse, if you desire to object, to give you a hearing.

Building could be altered readily into a tenement building.

This offer holds good during the life of this advertisement.

THE WHITE CANDY CO., LTD.

The above extraordinary advertisement, which appeared in a St. John, N.B. paper on October 22, created quite a sensation and has been the cause of special meetings of the civic board of works. The conditions leading up to it have called out the denunciation of the press of St. John and the matter is now in the courts.

The chief ground of complaint which Thomas F. White, president of the company, puts forward, is that the city is allowing the street railway company to double track Union Street, which is a narrow thoroughfare, and where traffic is always heavy.

Mr. White claims, and his contentions have been well borne out by recent investigations, that the protests and petitions sent to the aldermen, objecting to the double tracking of the street, have been ignored, and that they were refused a hearing before the council. Consequently they decided on the method that has been adopted to bring their grievance before the public. That it has succeeded is attested by the fact that the matter has now been thoroughly investigated and aired by the newspapers.

How it Started.

It appears that the permission to double track the street was given at a slimly attended meeting of the board of works on July 12. The action, however, was not ratified by the council, as it was never before them. Just here arises a fine point in law that the courts will have to decide. The city recorder, after going into the bylaws, has given his opinion that the board of works has power over the streets and that their action is binding on the city without the sanction of the council. The board of works has decided, therefore, that the work must be allowed to proceed. The legal representative of the White Company and other parties on the street who are interested, think otherwise, and they have applied for an injunction to restrain the railway from laying the tracks. By agreement between the parties interested, the case has been set down for argument on Nov. 19, but in the meantime the tracks have been laid and the re-paving of the street is almost completed.

During the heat of the fight, Mayor Sears ordered the chairman of the board of works to stop the work, but the latter refused to do so, in view of the recorder's opinion.

Mr. White's Opinion.

Mr. White feels very indignant over the affair and thinks that in view of the facts he was justified in the assertion that the common council will not only not hesitate to sacrifice existing rights, but will refuse to hear objections when presented in the proper way. He further claims that their action in this matter has seriously interfered with their facilities for doing business, as, owing to their situation, they must of necessity use the entrance on Union Street for the taking in or sending out of goods.

In reply to a question as to just what the advertisement meant, Mr. White said: "It means that if we can sell out we will move our business somewhere beyond the control of or possibility of interference from the St. John city council. We don't owe St. John anything: we have been seventeen years here and nine-tenths of our business is done with outside points. When the merchants of the city come to us it is merely for small supplies to tide over till orders can arrive from other cities."

It is safe to say that noting in recent years has made such a stir in civic circles.

Mr. White feels also that the company should not be taxed on their machinery but only on the stock, the machinery being merely the tools with which the manufacturer makes his living.

TRADE NOTES.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Good Business in Bahama and Spanish Fruit—Vegetable Supply Simmering Down—Fish Markets Active With Good Supplies.

Last week was an exceedingly good one in Canadian markets, the holiday trade making business appreciably brighter. This week was a little quieter, but regular business is picking up.

The demand for foreign fruits, such as Almeria grapes, Jamaica oranges and Bahama grape fruit, is pretty generally good. Grape fruit, particularly, is selling well. "People are eating more grape fruit this year than ever before," said a prominent dealer the other day, "and it is to a large extent supplanting the orange as a breakfast fruit." New Messina lemons will be on Canadian markets this week.

The supply of different varieties of vegetables continues to shrink considerably as the season advances. Home-grown lettuce and radishes are practically out of the markets and their place is being taken by late American goods, which come in good qualities.

The fish market continues quite active, though the Thanksgiving poultry demand made things dull for several days last week. Supplies from British Columbia are plentiful and keep several lines full, but cod and haddock still continue scarce. The demand for oysters is excellent.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Almeria grapes are beginning to arrive in large quantities. California and Canadian grapes are about finished. Fameuse apples are quoted at $4.50 and other varieties all the way from $3.25 to $5. Demand is good and a considerable business is being done in an export way.

VEGETABLES—The market continues fairly brisk in spite of the uniformly high prices. Canadian vegetables, with the exception of such staples as potatoes, beets and carrots, are practically done, and American truck is already beginning to arrive. The potato crop in the east has not been at all satisfactory this year and turnips and other root crops proved disappointing also, with the exception of carrots, of which the yield proved good.

FISH—Business continues fairly brisk. Some large shipments of bullheads have arrived and are being quickly disposed of at slightly easier prices. Haddock and cod continue scarce. Lake trout and pike are out of season. Kippers are scarce, while haddies and bloaters are arriving in fairly large quantities. The market is firm for all kinds of boneless fish, particularly skinless cod. Salt herring is easy, while green cod is very firm. Bulk oysters tend to be a little easier, but shell oysters continue firm.

GREEN FRUITS—Last week saw a particularly large amount of business in the local market and matters this week are slightly quieter in consequence. New Messina lemons are in shipment and should be on the market to-day or to-morrow. There does not seem to be much demand for Jamaica and Bahama oranges, but Bahama grape fruit is selling briskly. Apples are on the market in fair quantity, but business is not at all brisk. Cranberries are advancing steadily, with good demand.

THE POTATO SITUATION

In Hartland County, N.B.—Ingenious Fake Butter Tubs.

A Hartland correspondent writes:

"Potato dealers in this county have stopped buying any but potatoes that have been stored in cellars, as potatoes from the field or those stored in outbuildings are apt to have been damaged by the frost. The price is correspondingly uncertain. After a few days it will be possible to determine which potatoes have been frost-bitten and then the sorting over process will be gone through for the second time this season. In the vicinity of Florenceville the frost appears to have worked less damage than around here, and digging continues with fairly profitable results.

"The farmers have another serious drawback in that they have been unable to do much fall ploughing and will therefore begin work next spring under a serious handicap.

"The other day a farmer living not far away brought to Keith & Plummer nine boxes of "butter." He opened one and disclosed as nice a box of butter as ever was put up in Carleton county. Mr. Keith turned it out, examined it thoroughly, and was well pleased. But the farmer had not reckoned on the dealer going through the whole lot, and was much humiliated when the other boxes were examined and their contents proved to be ordinary salt with a little butter packed over the top. Another dealer found an ordinary brick in the interior of a tub of butter."

LATE ALREADY.

Five minutes after the tardy gong had struck the principal of the school was walking through the lower hall, when he saw a pudgy little fellow scampering toward the first-grade room as fast as his fat legs could carry him. "See here, young man, I want to talk to you," called the principal to the late comer. "I hain't got time to talk to you; I'm late already," replied the breathless beginner as the door of his class-room closed.

HARVESTING THE CANADIAN APPLE

Something about modern methods of picking, grading and packing.

Views in a well-known Ontario orchard.

Among Canadian fruits the apple stands out as perhaps the most important, both for export and for home consumption. Canada's fame as an apple-producing country is world-wide. The manner in which this fruit is picked and packed for shipment, however, is probably not too widely known among our readers, particularly to those outside of Canada, and The Grocer has pleasure in submitting herewith several photographs taken in a well-known Ontario orchard. The orchard in question is in Peel county, between Erindale and Streetsville and about twenty miles from Toronto.

Apple Pickers at Work.

While improved methods of grading and packing apples have been introduced during recent years, the methods of picking remain about the same as they have always been. Mechanical apple pickers galore have been invented and placed on the market, but none of them seem to have proved satisfactory enough to displace the time-tried hand method. Ladders are placed against the trees and the apples are dropped into baskets which are hung by hooks to the rungs of the ladder or on convenient branches. The first photograph of the series here shown illustrates a gang of apple-pickers with full baskets ready to dump on the sorting table.

Sorting Table and Marked Barrel.

The sorting table may be seen in the second photograph. It is merely a large shallow box into which the apples are dumped for grading. The fruit as it is picked over is dropped carefully into barrels which contain apples of different grades. The grading is done according to government regulation and is a very important factor in the apple export business. Grade No. 1 includes only choice, perfect fruit with an allowance of 10 per cent. imperfect. Grade 2 includes the smaller apples with an allowance of 20 per cent. imperfect. Grade 3 is still lower, with the provision, however, that the layer of fruit at the head shall represent the contents of the barrel. This photograph also shows a packer's press, which is an important factor in the packing.

The empty barrel is placed "head" down on the ground beside the sorting table. The "head" is covered with a row of what are known as "facers," which are supposed to represent the quality of apples in the barrel. The stems of the apples are snipped off and the "facers" are placed stem down so that when the "head" end of the barrel is opened they will give an even appearance. The barrels are filled with the apples, to a point an inch or so above the sides, and after they are thoroughly shaken, the "press," an iron frame which surrounds the barrel and supports a screw, forces the apples down gently until the "head" can be applied. The "head" end of the barrel, that is, the end first filled, is stamped with the grade, with the firm name and with the number of the packer, so that if any trouble arises during shipment the difficulty may be traced directly to the one responsible.

The third photograph shows a barrel of prime Northern Spies, and "Teddy," the packer, who is presiding over the barrel, wishes it distinctly understood that it is the "tail" end of the barrel which appears. This would naturally present a somewhat less pleasing appearance than the other end which will be the one opened by the buyer.

Probably ninety per cent. of Canada's apples are shipped in barrels. Some exporters, who cater to a particularly high-class of trade, wrap the fruit in paraffined paper and pack it in boxes. This method is of necessity somewhat costly and requires particularly good prices to make it profitable.

Considerable agitation has been raised among the trade in recent years favoring the establishment of apple packing houses, but the question of the advantage of such a system is an open one among the dealers. Such packing houses have been established in a few districts in Ontario, but the matter is as yet in its infancy.

ONE SOLUTION OF THE CREDIT PROBLEM

We have received the following letter from an old friend and subscriber to The Grocer.

"For the benefit of those merchants who, like myself, are obliged to do some credit business, I submit the enclosed circular which I have found to work very well with me. I give it without comment, and if you think same to be worth printing, I will only be too glad if the suggestion can benefit some one."

We think it is very well worth printing, and advise every grocer who reads it to allow himself to profit by the suggestions it contains, and do his part towards stamping out the credit evil and substituting in its place a system of "Spot cash payment or increased cost of purchase," such as our correspondent has found to work so well.

"For many years I have been studying how to do business in a manner that would be satisfactory both to the customer who buys for cash and to the customer who buys on credit. Though a very hard problem to solve, I think I have succeeded in doing so. Generally the one who buys on time wishes goods at the same price as the one who buys for cash; this you will admit is not right; as cash has a value which no account can have, no matter how good.

"In view of this I have resolved on the following plan and will put same into practice AT ONCE: here it is:

"I have marked all my goods as low as they possibly can be sold for spot cash, and the customers who will not pay at the time of the purchase will be charged TEN PER CENT. extra.

"If the amount is paid within THIRTY days the discount will be deducted.

"If paid within SIXTY days FIVE PER CENT. will be deducted.

"After SIXTY DAYS the TEN PER CENT. will remain charged.

"It will be the same as if I was lending you money to buy goods with and charging Ten per cent. on the amount loaned. By this plan you will be able to buy goods cheaper—it will enable us to have ONE PRICE ONLY—(we will not deviate from this rule) and everyone will be on the same footing.

"Now if you will give this matter a few minutes of good sound reflection, you will admit that I have found the way to deal fairly with everyone.

"Give me a trial. Come and get my prices and I am sure you will appreciate my efforts in giving the public in general fair and honorable dealing. I will take this opportunity to thank everyone for the generous support given to me in the past and by fair dealing with all I hope to have a continuance of the same in the future."

CHURCH & DWIGHT MOVE.

Church & Dwight will move shortly into larger quarters on Brennan street. At present they are occupying the old Grand Trunk building on St. Etienne street, but the increasing sales of Cow Brand soda require larger premises.

W. Frank Hathaway, the St. John tea merchant, has been nominated to contest a local riding in the Liberal interests for the Provincial Legislature. Mr. Hathaway, who has, by the way, some reputation as a litterateur, should prove a valuable member.

A REVIEW OF THE TEA TRADE

The Part Played by China, India, Ceylon, Russia, Germany, The United States, Canada, Japan, Persia, and Tibet in the Tea Trade of the World.

The following interesting review of the tea trade has been contributed to "The Times," of London, Eng., by Brooke, Bond & Co.:

Statistics are generally considered very uninteresting reading; indeed, why they should ever be published is a puzzle to many. And yet there are some statistics which, to every true lover of his country, should be intensely interesting, for as surely as the condition of a man's pulse tells the state of his health does the consumption of certain articles of diet tell the state of a nation's prosperity. Tea is one of these articles.

When this country is prosperous, tea is freely consumed, and a good price is paid for it. When the consumption goes down, or is confined to the poorer kinds, something is wrong; either the country is not in a healthy condition, or too great a strain has in some way been put upon its powers. During the last depression in the cotton trade, the demand, in the countries affected, was greatly for the poorer kinds of tea, because the prosperity of that part of the country was at a low ebb. When the cotton operative is doing well, he drinks really good tea, and declines the inferior sorts. From 1901 to 1905 consumption went down, not because the country was in an unhealthy state, but because the increased duty had put too great a strain upon its powers. Since 1905, when the duty was reduced from 8d to 6d, consumption was steadily increased, till now, with the duty at 5d, it is 6.18 lbs. per head, slightly higher than before the war tax was imposed.

When we turn, in this our annual review of the state of the tea trade, to consider its history throughout the year all over the world, one fact stands out as the salient point in the annals of 1906-7: the important fact that consumption has at last overtaken supply. This fact makes the history of the year unique, and has produced a very curious condition of the market. When, at the end of the year 1906, consumption overtook supply, prices naturally began to rise. Some traders thereupon left off selling very low-priced teas, but many continued selling tea at 1s and 1s 2d a pound retail. The supply not being equal to the demand for the lowest grades their price rose in a most astonishing manner. In February, 1907, the price of common leaf tea was double what it was in February, 1906. At the same time there was but little demand for the better sorts, so that good tea could be bought within a penny a pound of the price of the commonest kinds. It was feared the high prices would affect the quantity of British-grown tea used in foreign countries, driving them to take cheap and common China tea instead. Though this may have been the case to a certain extent, yet the consumption of British-grown tea has increased enormously. Indeed, the fact of demand having overtaken supply is principally due to the increased consumption abroad, 155,000,000 lbs. of Indian and Ceylon tea having been shipped to countries outside the United Kingdom during 1906, against 129,000,000 lbs. in 1905.

During 1906-7 exports of Indian tea to Russia rose to 22,000,000 lbs. Russia is India's best customer. Large quantities were also sent from Colombo to Russia. Imports of Indian tea into Germany increased 20 per cent. in 1906. An interesting article appeared a short time ago in the Gartenlaube, a well-known German paper, on "Attention to Health." The writer shows that tea is a much more healthful drink than alcohol, and advocates the establishment of public tea-rooms, where a good cup of sweetened tea could be bought for five pfennigs (½d), which sum would bring a fair profit. Direct shipments to continental countries other than Russia and Germany have increased 120 per cent. In most of these countries "afternoon tea" is now a recognized institution. French ladies adopted it some time ago, and their example is being followed in Italy. It is also becoming popular in Spain, where, no doubt, the presence of an English Queen tends to make English customs fashionable.

Australia took 26 per cent. more Indian tea in 1906 than in 1905. She is India's second best customer.

North America (the United States and Canada) took about a quarter of the whole quantity of British-grown tea used outside the United Kingdom—viz., 40,000,000 lbs., against 32,000,000 lbs. in the preceding year. There is no doubt that British-grown teas are gradually displacing Chinese and Japanese in the States. This is probably partly owing to the immigration of people accustomed to Indian and Ceylon teas, but chiefly to the persevering way in which the sale of these teas has been pushed.

Political disturbances very much upset trade with Persia last year, but now that things are more settled imports of tea are increasing. The Persian likes good tea, yielding a pale straw-colored liquor and having a delicate flavor. The poorer classes drink a great deal of tea, those who are addicted to opium smoking taking enormous quantities of it.

Consumption by the natives of India increases steadily. Tea seems to satisfy the native's craving for some stimulant and keeps him from resorting to the grog-shop.

Reports from Tibet are very interesting. Almost the whole of the immense quantity of tea consumed there has been supplied, hitherto, in the form of bricks by China. The Indian Tea Cess Committee has, however, turned its attention to this market, with the result that a trade has been established with Tibet, which is most valuable to the British planter. There have been great complaints lately of adulteration of the "bricks" made by the Chinese and Japanese. It seems likely that if British planters will supply "bricks" of pure tea at a moderate price, they may get almost the whole of the Tibet trade into their hands.

Turning from the question of consumption to that of supply, we find that India has exported 18,000,000 lbs. more in 1906-7 than she did in 1905-6. The surplus has been easily absorbed by the increased consumption at home and abroad.

During the year 1906-7 Ceylon has produced very little more tea than in 1905-6, and has exported less to the United Kingdom. A good many Ceylon planters are turning their attention to rubber, which may eventually prove a more profitable object of cultivation than tea, though, as the demand for Ceylon tea is increasing so much, it is unlikely that all growers will give it up in favor of rubber.

Great efforts have been made lately to prove that Chinese tea is more wholesome than Indian and Ceylon, and to push its sale; but in spite of these endeavors consumption of China tea in Europe, America, and Australia steadily declines. The percentage of China tea consumed in the United Kingdom is lower than ever, being only about 2.2 per cent.

Exports from Japan have on the whole decreased, particularly to North America. The Japanese are not, however, letting their trade slip out of their hands without making strong efforts to retain it and to develop it in other directions. They are endeavoring, with the assistance of Government, to improve their methods of production.

The production of tea in Java makes steady progress. In ten years it has increased 190 per cent.

The amount of tea produced in other parts of the world than those already mentioned is still very insignificant.

We have ventured the opinion that the consumption of tea may be taken as a test of the prosperity of the country. It is also clear that its expanding consumption by other countries increases the prosperity of our fellow-countrymen in India and Ceylon. The British planter has for some years had a hard struggle for existence, but his prospects are brightening now. With a somewhat lighter duty at home and increasing consumption abroad (the latter being entirely due to his own untiring exertions in exploiting new markets) he may hope in the future for a fairer reward for his labors than has been his lot of late, and no one will deny that he deserves it.

FOODSTUFFS NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Prices Steadily Advancing—The Produce Markets—Is Butter Cornered?—Heavy Rot in Potato Crop—Assignment of John A. Humble.

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

St. John, N.B., Nov. 4.

The tendency of prices is still upwards. Split peas have advanced 25c, and pot barley 50c. Domestic mess pork and American clear have advanced 25c each. In feeds, middlings are still soaring. Pressed hay in small lots has declined $1 in value. Ontario oats are also down. Some provincial oats are now offering at from 60 to 62 cents a bushel. This is a big price for provincial oats, which about this time of the year usually sell for 40c to 45c.

In the produce line no further change took place last week in the price of butter. There is an undercurrent of feeling among the dealers that it will not go higher. The supply was a little larger during the week, but no more than equal to the demand. Present price is 37c for creamery prints. Eggs are also unchanged. Chickens and poultry in general are somewhat easier. Pork has advanced again and is now held at from 9 to 9½ cents a pound.

From Harvey station comes the following report: "The cold snap of last week did considerable damage to potatoes here. The frost in some places was heavy enough to destroy them in the ground, but most of the damage was done to potatoes temporarily stored in barns and outhouses. Upward of 1,000 barrels were shipped to St. John from this station last week."

It is generally believed that the bakers will soon put the price of bread up to 8 cents, as there is very little profit for them at 7 cents, the way flour is selling now. One of the largest bakeries, which was well supplied with flour when the advance came, is said to be responsible for keeping the price down so long, as they refused to make the advance when asked to do so by the other dealers.

In connection with the abnormal prices of butter it is whispered that some companies have been buying all summer in the up-river counties until they have practically cornered the market and that one company alone has now in bond more than twenty tons of dairy butter of inferior quality, which is being worked over and sold as its own product.

* * *

Fowl and chickens are coming in freely and prices are reasonable. Vegetables of all kinds are fairly plentiful and prices about as usual for this time of year.

* * *

There is still a feeling of uncertainty about the outlook for potatoes. Conflicting reports come in, but all agree that the loss from rot will be heavy.

The creditors of John A. Humble, of Stanley, who lately assigned, met recently and received the report of Inspectors R. B. Hanson and J. D. McKay. A dividend of 37 cents on the dollar was declared and accepted. The liabilities were placed at $16,700, and the assets at $7,000. Much satisfaction was expressed with the work of the inspectors and they were voted $100 each.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Green celebrated the silver anniversary of their wedding Oct. 23. Many friends called to extend congratulations. Mr. Green is one of the leading tobacconists of the city.

STUDY YOUR TRADE.

It takes enthusiasm to make a successful grocery clerk. I believe that the clerk who makes a success of his work and builds well for the future should be willing to work long hours, if necessary.

There is always something to do around a grocery store. The clerk should always be busy. He is forming habits. Loafing is a poor one to form. Industry is better. It is rarely necessary to look for work around a store, as the opportunity is usually in plain sight. When it is not the clerk should get his spyglass to work, says Northwest Trade.

Section hands keep their eyes on the boss. They work where he points. The clerk should never imitate the section hand. He should not wait for the proprietor to "point."

The clerk who cannot unpack a case of goods and arrange them on the shelves carefully and neatly cannot take an order straight or fill it properly. Careless in one duty, he will be careless in another. Such clerks are more likely to be sitting on the counter, complaining of small wages, than the more active and up-to-date clerk.

To be faithful in small things includes the proper tying of parcels. Make them neat and secure, and make them as attractive as possible. This counts with the customer.

Study the trade and try to please them, cranks and all. Remember that every crank has a soft spot. Try to reach it. Ask yourself: "Am I selling my trade all the goods they use? If not, why not?" Then go after the business. If you have all of Mrs. S.'s trade but the butter and coffee she uses, endeavor to get that. You may be able to please the first 20 of your customers every time. The 21st may be the crank which all of the other clerks dodge. Once you get the crank with you, a big point has been gained. Hold your temper. Be serene if the crank gets mad. Slide around the rough corner in his or her makeup. Don't argue.

Do not forget that prompt service covers a multitude of sins. Courtesy costs you nothing and makes money always. The best advertisement any merchant can have is a reputation for prompt service and courtesy. The more people you please, the more you can sell goods to. Pleasing is one of the arts of business, and business is your mission in the store.

Sell goods to those customers who pay promptly. Take orders from those who have a big balance left on the books each month. Never tire presenting the merits of your lines to the gilt-edged customers. That is the fertile soil in which your trade will grow into dividends.—Retail Grocers' Advocate.

"They'll transform your store and transform your business, too."

"WALKER BIN" FIXTURES

A large Western Departmental Store writes:

"THEY (WALKER BINS) ARE SPLENDID SILENT SALESMEN; OUR GROCERY BUSINESS HAS INCREASED OVER 50 p.c. SINCE WE INSTALLED THEM. WE CONSIDER THE MONEY PUT INTO THEM TO BE A SPLENDID INVESTMENT."

INTERESTING TO ALL

Every one who reads the BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE is well pleased with it. A pretty strong recommendation, isn't it?

What is the cause of its great popularity?

Because every article in it is SELECT, having been selected from the current issue of one of the leading magazines, because it was the most interesting and entertaining in that magazine.

This means the Busy Man's contains the Cream, the Choicest, and the Best appearing in the periodical press. Not a dull page in it; 140 pages of live, up-to-date reading matter in each issue: 1,680 pages per year.

It is the best home magazine published. It will interest every member of the family.

The cost of this many-in-one magazine to subscribers of The Canadian Grocer is only $1.50 per year.

Have your subscription commence with the November issue, which is the strongest number yet published.

Oil Sales and Cleanliness

Cut 11—PUMP INSTALLED
All you see of a Bowser Cellar Outfit

Sounds impossible, doesn't it? But with the Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tank oil can be handled in just as clean a manner as sugar.

It's Accomplished in This Way

Your customer brings in a can for a gallon of oil. All that is then necessary is to hang that can under the nozzle of the Bowser Pump, set the indicator for one gallon and give the handle one stroke. When exactly the right quantity is in the can, the pump automatically stops. Other amounts measured in the same way.

There's no drip and no overflow, no hands to wash, no can to wipe off, no floor to clean up.

The Bowser is also economical, convenient and safe, and a time and labor saving device.
